

Coleman Murder Trial Has Started

Harvey Davis, John Bannerman, Edwin Lee, Roy Lorraine and Chas. Rouse go on trial in Detroit for the Silas Coleman murder.

One of the five Black Legion members, Davis, Lorraine, Bannerman, Lee, and Rouse, for the murder of Silas Coleman, Detroit negro, at the age of May 23, 1935, started in the Van Sues court in Detroit last Monday. Assistant Prosecutors, Wm. Dowling and Charles Jackson are in charge of the case for the county and E. O. Hugel and Robert Speed are the defense attorneys.

The first day the defense filed a motion to quash the indictments on the grounds the crime was committed in Livingston county and Wayne county had no jurisdiction. The prosecution protested this on the grounds the crime was planned in Wayne county, that Coleman was taken to Pinckney from Wayne county, and all five defendants knew in advance the crime was to be committed. Judge Van Sile denied the motion by the defense, and the drawing of the jury started Wednesday.

Considerable difficulty developed here as the defense attorneys persisted in barring every prospective jurymen or jury woman, who had ever attended a parochial or private school or whose husband or wife had been a pupil in one. Two days were occupied in drawing a jury and several panels were exhausted. Most of the panels were made up of women and by Friday night ten women and four men had been tried and accepted. This trial is causing interest among Detroit's colored population and about three-fourths of the spectators are negroes.

The following Livingston county witnesses have been called: Edmund Haines, who found the body on the morning of May 26; Deputy Ivin Kennedy, who was called and conducted the investigation; Coroner Claude Rounselle, who signed the death certificate; P. H. Swarthout, local mortician, who took charge of the body; Dr. Hollis Sigler, who conducted the post mortem; Edward Spears and daughter, Joan, who heard the shots fired Saturday night; P. W. Curlett, who took pictures of the body before it was removed from the water; Wm. Slavin, county road commission engineer; Sheriff Claude Fawcett and his father, Deputy Geo. Fawcett. Then there are a number of Detroit witnesses, including Coleman's wife, Lee Grant, a colored friend of his; firemen Experts, Sergeants Harvill, O'Day and Mehan of the Detroit police, etc.

The jury was secured and sworn in about noon Tuesday. All of the Livingston county witnesses testified. Also the wife of Pinckney was rewarded Spears of Pinckney. Day-called to testify Wednesday. Day-ton Dean testified that the night of May 25 was bright and clear. Mr. Spears did not remember it to be moonlight. The defense also claimed that the traffic noise on M-36 could prevent Mr. Spears from hearing the shots fired.

DEER HUNTERS RETURN

The Pinckney deer hunters who went north for deer are now returning. Five deer were brought back over the week end. They were shot by Edmund Haines, Bert Daller, Ralph Harris, Clara Swarthout and Rex Harris. Many hunters are still in the north and probably more will return.

There seem to be quite a few deer in this section. A fine live buck was seen Sunday morning in the marsh this side of the Heggison or John Mowk's farm. These deer have been seen in various parts of the county, and one was found shot dead in the woods two weeks ago, by hunters, who would not thought that these deer first. It was thought that these deer had escaped from the U. of M. Wild Life Sanctuary, 3 miles west of here. Lawrence Camburn, in charge of the sanctuary, denies this, and says the deer of a different variety. These deer often come to the sanctuary and hobnob with the deer of the game preserve.

Howell Plumber Loses His Life

John Zmuda Loses His Life Saturday Noon When His Truck Collided With Large Brewery Truck

John Smuda, 50, Howell plumbing contractor lost his life about 12:30 noon last Saturday when his truck collided with a large truck operated by the Brewery Products Co. of Ann Arbor, distributors for Frankmuth beer. The fatal accident happened directly in front of the old Season farm on the Pinckney-Howell road about two miles south of Howell. The occupants of the farm did not see the accident, but heard the crash. The Smuda truck, a light pickup, had the left front wheel torn off and the axle snapped but was not overturned. The large brewery truck, which was on the moving van over, went into the ditch, hit a telephone pole, breaking it off and then turned bottom side up. The driver, Norman Fisher of Ann Arbor, by some miracle, escaped unharmed. Mr. Smuda had his skull smashed and his brains were scattered over the blacktop road. Smuda was going toward Pinckney and Fisher to Howell.

The authorities were notified and the body of Smuda was removed to Howell. Deputy Sheriff Bassett questioned Fisher for some length. According to his story, the dead man did not seem to see the approaching truck and was so far on the wrong side of the road that the accident was unavoidable. According to him neither truck was traveling at an excessive speed. The accident happened at the top of a hill.

According to the proprietor of the Brewery Products Co., Fisher has worked for and been known to them for some time and bears an excellent reputation. He is married and has a baby a few weeks old. Previous to the accident he stopped at the Louis Wagoner grocery and oil station at Chubb's Corners to leave goods.

Smuda worked for the Sutton Hardware as plumber for some time but about six years ago started in business for himself and since then has had a shop in the old ten-cent barn. For some time he has been doing the work for St. Mary's parish of Pinckney. He is survived by his wife and aged mother.

SPROUT SCHOOL SOCIAL

The Sprout school, District No. 4 of Putnam township, with Lucille Isham, teacher, entertained about fifty people at a Shadow-box Social Friday, Nov. 20. The school was very prettily decorated in rust, gold and orange, under the supervision of Mrs. Gerald Reason. The first part of the evening was spent in playing keno, with chickens and other gifts given as prizes.

Shadows were flashed on the curtain and Mrs. Grant Cass acted as auctioneer. Mary Jane Willette danced and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing. The proceeds amounted to $27.83, with which the school hopes to purchase a set of dishes to be used for hot lunches.

Photographic Contest For School Children

All School Children Are Invited to Enter Photography Contest of Wildlife. Valuable Awards

A statewide photographic contest to interest school children in the conservation of wildlife resources will be sponsored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan in co-operation with the department of conservation. The contest opens Dec. 1 and closes April 1.

Competition is open to all senior and junior high school pupils of public, parochial and private schools, urban and rural, who establish a feeding station to help wildlife during the season of the year in which it is faced with the greatest hardships.

According to Mrs. Andy DeWitt, who is assisting the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan in the preliminary arrangements for the contest, it is not necessary that an entrant own a camera of any special type or make; a borrowed camera will suffice to qualify the participant.

The establishment of a feeding station for the purpose of attracting game or songbirds, squirrels, muskrats or chipmunks is the major requirement. Mrs. DeWitt said "Wildlife or animals attracted to the food placed in these stations are excellent photographic subjects and while experience in 'hunting with a camera' is not necessary, every entrant doubtless will learn that much skill and ingenuity enters into wildlife picture-taking. To be eligible for the contest, a snapshot must show the subject actually using the feeding station."

Judges named to select the prize-winning photographs are well-known in Michigan and have been known in Michigan since 1908. They are: J. Van Couvering, outdoor editor of the Detroit Free Press; Ben E. L. Gifford, editor of the Grand Rapids Press; Walter E. H. Hines, a photographer; Mrs. Alice E. Hines, a writer of Hobbies, Saturday and Glenn MacDonald, editor of Ray City Times.

Each entrant must submit two photographs, although only one prize will be awarded to an individual whose entry meets favorable action by the judges. Photographs must not exceed four by five inches in size.

Where local contests are sponsored by local garden clubs in connection with the state contest, the winning photographs will be entered in the final judging. Entrants. All photographs will be judged on the following basis: Ten per cent for good subject, 25 per cent for good subject, 25 per cent for artistic and 40 per cent for technical.

State judges will select four winners, two boys and two girls, in the final judging. The finalists will receive as prize a 1936-37 tour through the scenic wilderness areas of the upper peninsula next summer, visiting the Pictured Rocks National Monument, the Pictured Rocks, the world famous Soo locks.

Philathea Notes

"Thanksgiving, 1936" seems only a step from last year. Again, in behalf of the Club, we wish you each, the readers of these Notes, a most happy and successful Thanksgiving and a truly Thanksgiving year to come.

The lesson last Sunday was a helpful subject, "An Ambassador in Chains," its application being to determine what we may do today for the cause of Christ under seemingly adverse circumstances. The Golden Text is one which is familiar and very dear to all Philatheas, Philippians 4:13. Paul believed this and proved it, though he himself was in chains. "The chief of the Jews" whom Paul called together in Rome, told him "We desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest; for as concerning this sect, we know that everywhere it is spoken against." "The Practical Point" comments on this verse by saying, "A thing isn't made so by everybody saying so. Experience often proves the minority right to be the sensible one." The word today reminds us of the names of the ten other spies sent to report on the "Promised Land," and who led them back to wander forty years in the wilderness. The two in the minority were "chained but not silenced."

Next Sunday the topic is "Christian Brotherhood"—Philippians 4:20. The thought is: "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

OIL STATION IS ROBBED

Two armed bandits held up and robbed the Taft oil station at Oak Grove last Wednesday night, getting about $25. Then they proceeded to shoot up the place. They are described as being about 20 years old. Although eight cars soon had all roads blocked, no trace of them could be found. Mr. and Mrs. Garret operate the oil station.

Current Comment

Well, the slot machines and ball machines are gone. The question is "Have they gone for good?" Many times before they have disappeared but, like the cat with nine lives, they always come back. The story is that Gov. Frank Murphy attacked the slot machine racket in his campaign and it is generally understood that one of his first acts would be to put them out of business. Now it looks as if he would already find them gone when he goes into office. However, he will have to watch his step as only eternal vigilance will keep them out. Just whether the slot machine industry will take this setting down or not is a question. They have considerable invested and are well organized. Every county has a so-called slot machine king, although this is probably an exaggeration as in some cases he is little more than a distributor or money collector. What they would like is a law licensing them on the order of the one in force in Florida. However, this seem hard to get.

Many are wondering if the landslide victory of President Roosevelt will have any effect on the Supreme Court. These men are pretty well on in years, ranging from Chief Justice Hughes, who is 74 to Louis Brandeis, who is 80. Undoubtedly there will be vacancies to be filled there in the next four years. It was at a dinner of the Alhambra Club in Washington, not long before his death, that the late Will Rogers warned President Roosevelt to beware of the nine old men in kimonos. The opinion, however, seems to be that they will not nullify the National Security Act.

Harvey J. Campbell, Secretary of the Detroit Board of Commerce gets out another gem which is published in the Detroit Free Press. A few years ago, and it would be a wonderful thing if the villages and small cities in that state disappeared. This time around it was a leadership, courage and the industry to spend large sums to make new goods to market that which the automotive industry out of the mire. Bunk. If the price of farm produce and other things had not gone up there would have been no market at all for these new goods and this industry would have still be stuck in the mire as badly as it was in 1929-32, when leadership, courage and rugged individualism added naught.

Gov. Fitzgerald seems to have pleased the people by appointing Senator John Prentiss Brown to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator C. W. Smith. The term is short but the appointment will give him seniority over those who do not have office until March 4, and make him eligible for better committee appointments.

For some time we have pondered over just how many people were unemployed in this country. The United States Chamber of Commerce who have just finished a poll of them, set the mark Sun pass the figure at 6,000,000 and the American Federation of Labor at 11,000,000. It seems to be hard to get an accurate count of them, but one thing however is certain. Unemployment has undoubtedly been decreasing.

Every day the dailies broadcast the news of some industry paying a bonus or raising wages. The reason for this seems to be the National Security Act. Previously, industry put large sums into surplus funds to be used in slack times. The Security Act taxes such funds so now they are distributed in the forms of bonuses or wages. It's evidently an ill wind which does not blow somebody good.

We say that the state of Florida has established a border patrol for the purpose of turning penniless hitch-hikers back from the border. This year, already 2,000 of these have been sent back. Last year the total number was 50,000. California has had such a blockade for a number of years. The main reason for his action is to keep persons out of the state who are liable to become a public charge.

IS WALKING COMING BACK?

The following we reprint from the Wayne County Review. Walking used to be popular years ago. It is one of the best forms of exercise there is, but we are afraid the auto has dulled the appetites of the people too much to make it ever very popular.

It approaches the astounding some times what influence some short-printed news item can have in a community. Several months ago there appeared in a Detroit metropolitan paper an account of the Hikers club that have been formed in New York City. Immediately similar clubs were organized in Detroit and apparently the sport has spread to Detroit's environs, too. A group of 25 Wayne hikers held their first hike Sunday and have arranged to meet again this Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Slayton and children of Howell visited Pinckney Saturday Sunday.

Decline in Relief Rolls Predicted by Hopkins

IN HIS first press conference since the Presidential election Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, asserted his belief that relief rolls this winter would be at the lowest point since the start of the depression.

He estimated that 3,750,000 families and single persons would be receiving federal and local aid January 1, 1937, compared to a peak of 5,316,000 in January, 1935.

"I think," Hopkins said confidently, "that we will go into January of this year caring for 1,000,000 less cases than a year ago and a reduction of about 1,500,000 from 1935."

The administrator's attention was called to the fact that latest figures showed that 3,498,012 persons were employed the first two weeks of October, an increase of 29,020 over the preceding half month. He explained this by pointing out that the drought in the Midwest added 32,831 destitute farmers to his WPA project list.

Lewis' epochal rebellion with a detailed factual account of its progress during the last year. "Appropriate action" was suggested.

George L. Berry, national co-ordinator for industrial recovery and president of the Printing Pressmen's union, proposed that the controversy with Lewis and his C. I. O. group be ended by arbitration, but this was rejected by President Green and other federation leaders. John P. Frey lost no time in introducing his resolution for expulsion of the rebel unions with their membership of over a million.

President Starts on His Ocean Cruise

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT went by train to Charleston, S. C., to board the cruiser Indianapolis for a jaunt in southern waters. He said he was not certain where the ship would take him, but in Washington it was assumed that he would proceed at once for Buenos Aires to attend the opening of the Pan-American peace conference on December 1. In that case he will make stops at Port of Spain, Rio de Janeiro and Montevideo, and will not return before December 15. If his plans are changed, he will merely spend two or three weeks fishing in the Caribbean.

At his last press conference before departing the President said he had about completed drafting the 1937 budget. He said also that he had outlined to his subordinates the things he wants done during his absence, these including:

Drafting of a farm tenancy law to end evils attending the system of share-cropping and farm tenancy, now chiefly prevalent in the South.

Clarifying amendments to the social security act.

Amendments to the Tennessee Valley Authority act, permitting broader social and economic improvement of the regions served by the TVA's huge power projects.

Year's Breathing Spell Likely for Farmers

SECRETARY of Agriculture Wallace in an interview intimates that for a year there may be no new legislation for crop control along the lines of the outlawed AAA, for farmers would like to have one really good crop without forced curtailment. But he added: "We will need some legislation eventually unless the weather changes or the world demand for our products greatly improves."

Wallace was asked whether the lack of a control plan might not result in another surplus, leaving the administration up in the air without any machinery to cope with it. He said he could not estimate a surplus ahead of time and that he would rather wait to see what would happen.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., to Marry Ethel du Pont

THE engagement of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., third son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, to Miss Ethel du Pont of Wilmington, Del., was announced by the young lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont. There had been rumors of this romance for months, but announcement was delayed until after the election. The wedding will be in June after Mr. Roosevelt's graduation from Harvard, and will be a quiet affair. Miss du Pont's father is a member of the board of directors of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company. She is a niece of Lamont du Pont, president of the company; of Pierre S. du Pont, chairman of the board, and of Irene du Pont, another director of the board. She was presented to society on June 27 last.

Loyalists Defend Madrid With Desperation

LOYALIST defenders of Madrid, reinforced by troops from the southeast and apparently supplied with airplanes and tanks from Russia, put up unexpected resistance to the furious attacks of the Fascists, delaying the capture of the capital. The insurgents sent many planes to rain bombs on the city and there were dramatic battles in the air as well as on land. The attackers at one time smashed the defending lines at the Los Franceses bridge and forced their way across the Manzanares river and into the northwest quarter of Madrid, but probably retired, for the loyalists dynamited the bridge and captured several rebel tanks. The new supreme defense council in the capital, taking charge when the president and other government officials fled to Valencia, was reported to be functioning smoothly and was confident of ultimate victory over the rebels, even if Madrid were lost to them.

Uncle Phil Says:

The Mark Stays

Gossip is like mud thrown against a clean wall; it may not stick but it leaves a mark.

Smile, smile, smile if you like, but don't pound people over the head in your enthusiasm to make them do it.

The life you lead writes its story on your face, but only the clever can read it.

There are people who think they are observant, who can't tell you offhand what are the pictures on a one-dollar bill or a five-dollar bill.

Destroying Accomplishments

Can't you see a splendid tree without thinking of the thrill of cutting it down? Apparently some can't and the anticipation overcomes them.

Be natural, borrowed garments seldom fit well.

Loneliness is a misery that finally wears itself out. One can grow to prefer solitude.

If his wife is the best dressed woman at the party, a man thinks it's worth it.

Ability to Profit

There is sometimes much ability in knowing how to profit by good advice.

Silence is the wisest argument of the ignorant man and the wise man can frequently use it to advantage.

A boy changes his voice at the age of fifteen or sixteen, and he changes all his notions, too.

A girl's no-hope chest is one that begins to accumulate interest-bearing bonds.

Valueless Comparisons

A COMPARISON may seem more creditable than it really is. To say of a man that his word is as good as his bond may appear quite complimentary; but when it is known that his bond is worthless, the comparison loses its value.

To say that a man is as godly every day of the week as he is on Sunday is little to his credit when he is known to spend his Sundays drinking and gambling. Only when the standard has real value are comparisons with the standard of substantial credit.

Corn, wheat, oats, barley and rye showed a gain, while potatoes, beans, sugar beets and fruit showed a decrease. The fruit, however, was of better quality, size and color.

Charlevoix—Seven miles of illegally set nets were brought here recently by the conservation department patrol boat No. 1. The nets were found between Manistique and Green Bay on the north shore and belonged to west shore fishermen. The nets carried no identifying marks. They were estimated to be worth $1,000. More than a ton of trout was brought in.

Manistee—With 12,786,000 2-year-old Norway pine seedlings already set out near here, enrollees of the 12 CCC camps in the Manistee National Forest attempted to complete the planting of 30,000,000 young trees before the hard winter weather set in. The first public park and picnic ground in the forest will be planned and built this winter, in time for the 1937 tourist season.

Grand Rapids—Clarence Eugene Rogers Bigelow, chairman of the Grand Rapids Will Rogers Memorial Commission, announced that this city is the first in the United States to subscribe its quota to the memorial for the late film actor and humorist. The memorial, to which Grand Rapids has subscribed $2,500, will function as a means of providing for underprivileged and crippled children.

East Lansing—New Hampshire Reds, a new variety of chicken, led all breeds in egg production in the fourteenth international egg-laying contest at Michigan. Twenty hens of this breed had an average production of 221.6 eggs per bird for 51 weeks of competition. Rhode Island Reds, with 20 hens competing, were second with an average of 216 eggs per bird. White Leghorns, with 360 hens, were third with 207.2 eggs.

Pontiac—From the stove-heated court room at Orchard Lake Village, Justice Arthur R. Green rendered a legal decision recently which may vitally affect thousands of nomadic Americans living in camp trailers. Justice Green opined that "a house trailer of the type having many appointments of a modern home, would come under the scope of human dwelling and therefore is subject to the ordinances governing such a dwelling." Since the verdict, residents of the colony have moved on.

Lansing—A total of $62,730 has been allocated for the Yankee Springs project and $94,095 for the Waterloo recreation area in Michigan, by the national park service. The Waterloo area consists of 13,000 acres in Jackson and Washtenaw counties, while the Yankee Springs area totals 4,000 acres in Barry county. The allocations will be used largely for the development of recreational facilities and conservation work, including wild life conservation.

St. Ignace—Prentiss M. Brown, Democratic senator-elect, was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator James Couzens. In announcing the appointment at Lansing, Gov. Fitzgerald expressed belief that Brown thereby would gain seniority in Senate committee assignments over other new senators. It was thought the advantage would stay with him as long as he is in the Senate. Informal oath was administered on November 16th, the formal oath to be taken when Congress assembles in January.

Ann Arbor—The relative gain in both the receipts and expenditures of the University of Michigan during the fiscal year 1935-36 as compared with the previous annum was greater than for the average of some 300 institutions studied by the office of education, the department of the interior reported. By comparison, receipts of the University of Michigan increased from $7,453,751 to $9,812,927, or almost 29 per cent. Expenditures increased from $7,204,740 to $8,453,620, more than 17 per cent.

How Many Pennies Your Child's Life?

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies—Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first.

All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia"—many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Comes now, also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." 25¢ for a big box of the tablets at drug stores.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT FORMS

Employees filling out Social Security Act forms are advised today by Major Howard Starret, State Re-employment Director, that registration with the National Re-employment Service is the same as registration with the United States Employment Service.

Item 13 of the application for account number reads: "If registered with the U. S. Employment Service, give number of registration card."

"If you are registered with the National Re-employment Service in Michigan, it will suffice to write in the identification number assigned to you," Major Starret said. "This is printed on the 3x5 buff card headed 'Applicant's Identification Card.'"

Approximately 250,000 Michigan persons have registered with the National Re-employment Service and have been issued identification numbers, according to Major Starret.

The National Re-employment Service, a division of the United States Employment Service, is operated entirely by Federal funds. State Employment services with support divided equally between the local State government and the Federal government are said to be affiliated with the U. S. Employment Service.

Both the NRS and the SES are administered by the same director who is appointed through the U. S. Department of Labor.

Neither the National Re-employment Service nor the United States Employment Service have any administrative connection with the Social Security Board. The employment service was re-organized in 1933 and the Social Security Board was established under the Social Security Act of 1935.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS FOR STOMACH ACIDITY

YOU CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps, when your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love. Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man. A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three or four years of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

Murder Masquerade

—BY—

SYNOPSIS

Mary Avery, a widow who lives in the harbor town of Satuit, Mass., with two negro maids, Sarah Darbe and Beanie Williams, writes a manuscript describing the famous Second Head murder, which occurred on her estate. Next to Mary live Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stow who every year give a summer masquerade party. One of the guests of this function is murdered. Nearby live Dr. and Mrs. Geary and their married daughter Edith and her husband Alfred Bray; Doctor Myron Marden and his step-granddaughter, Caro Prentiss, a beautiful young girl who was born in France. Next live Paul and Lora Eames and their daughter Molly. Molly was engaged to the murdered man, Ace Blaikie. She had been engaged to Walter Treadway, who had been the murdered man's secretary, but the engagement was suddenly broken and he had left town. Other neighbors are the Fairweather sisters, Flora, a hopeless invalid and Margaret. All but the latter two attended the masquerade. Mary's eight-year-old niece Sylvia Sard is visiting her for the summer. The wooded part of Mary's estate is called the Spinney. In it is a tiny log cabin. Near a stone wall is a tiny circular pond called the Merry Mere. This is the day of the masquerade and excitement is high. Mary decides to take Sylvia, who is an unusually observant child. Caro Prentiss and Molly Eames drop in during the afternoon. Soon Blaikie, Doctor Marden and Bruce Hexson, a friend of Ace's, arrive. Molly is impatient to leave and they all excuse themselves. At the party Sylvia identifies each of the masked guests as they arrive. Ace comes garbed as Julius Caesar. Molly Eames appears as a Snow Queen, accompanied by a man in armor whom Sylvia identifies as Walter Treadway. They dance together continuously. Caro Prentiss and Marden arrive dressed in Revolutionary costumes, the doctor wearing jeweled shoe buckles. When the guests unmask, Ace, Walter and Molly have disappeared. When Mary Avery leaves the party a little after two, neither Molly and Walter or Ace Blaikie had returned. Sarah Darbe confides to Mary that someone apparently had spent the night in the Little House. Sylvia finds a shoe buckle in the Spinney and Mary drops it into a jewel box and forgets it. Sarah walks down to the Little House and returns screaming. She has found Ace Blaikie stabbed to death in the Spinney. Mary summons Patrick O'Brien, chief of police, who had been a schoolmate of hers and Ace's.

SATURDAY—Continued

Ace looked strangely beautiful and strangely dignified in death—as though his body had been carefully laid out, as indeed ultimately we learned that it had. His tunic lay straight and close about his figure. His helmet lay at his side. His tiny black velvet mask lay beside it. Suddenly I seemed to see for the first time the slit in that tunic, a slit surrounded by a rust-colored stain over the heart. "Stabbed!" Patrick dropped tersely. He too knelt.

"Yes," Joe assented. "There it is!"

It was the weapon that had killed Ace. It was his own sword; the short sword of the Roman officer which had stuck upright on the left of his belt. The blade was unstained, smooth and shining.

A second wave of faintness came over me. As I went into it, I heard Patrick say, "Not suicide! And somebody that he trusted killed him. Whoever it was, he wiped the blade clean." As I came out of it, I saw Patrick's stern eyes examining the ground about Ace's body.

"Finger-prints!" Joe Geary suggested sternly.

Patrick drew something shining from his pocket and put it to his lips. On the blast of his whistle, the four policemen appeared at the entrance of the Spinney. "It's a murder all right," he informed them briefly. "Mike, you call the coroner! Then get Doctor Blaikie's house and tell them there what has happened. Then get the station and tell them to put a man at the crossroads. Nobody but the people who live here or deliver here are to come over to the Head until I say so. The rest of you spread about and guard this wood. Nobody is to set foot here unless I O. K. it."

I lay awake almost all night long, thinking of Ace Blaikie . . . considering, poignantly certain half-forgotten scenes which seemed, of their own volition, to drift from out of the past into my mind . . . recalling with careful deliberation a succession of pictures of our long, vivid friendship . . . all these the very warp and woof of my childhood and girlhood.

The period which I might describe as late babyhood provides me with no picture of Ace, although it is possible that I did see him then at Sunday school, or on the beach. Already the boys had shortened his old New England name of Asa to Ace—I little knew how appropriate that nickname was to become. I was exactly eight when I first became conscious of his existence. I remember perfectly how he looked the first time I laid observant eyes on him. The Blaikies had spent that summer in Europe. Ace was their only child and naturally their pride and joy. Well he might be that! There was no period in his life when, whatever the occasion, he wasn't the most handsome male creature present, the most striking and debonaire.

It was typical of Ace that not only did he appear the first day of school wearing a Scottish costume which his mother had bought in Edinburgh—it was typical of him that he carried it off with distinction and complete unconsciousness.

I suppose that every other girl in the class fell dead in love with Ace that day. I did not however. Already—yes, even then, Mark Avery and I were meeting at the cross-roads to go to school together. Ace broke hearts left and right in his cocksure pilgrimage through life. I am glad he did not break mine. He never caused me even a suspicion of heartache.

I saw more and more of Ace however. We became great friends. He always entertained and interested me. He was fascinating.

Ace, Patrick O'Brien and I were the leading spirits in our class. Patrick, as I have said, beat me in the race for scholarship and was graduated at the head. However, although he was salutatorian, I was valedictorian. Ace never studied. He was never in danger of reaching the head of the class, but not once did he fall below the middle. How he remained so far above it was a miracle. He had a good mind, an instant and retentive memory. Anything he could read in fifteen minutes before class opened, he could remember. The rest was a winning audacity and a charming impudence. He was beyond discipline. Yet the teachers all adored him.

Ace might have gone far, but he was not ambitious. Except for his one splendid adventure, all he wanted out of life was easy money for lavish entertaining.

The Blaikies had always been important people in Plymouth county. Their house is without doubt the most beautiful in Satuit. The gardens are the pride of the countryside.

Inside are gathered the inherited family treasure, in furniture, pictures, books, of nearly two centuries.

The Blaikies had always had money and very soon Ace began to entertain. At first, it was children's parties—candy-pulls and the like; later it was dances and plenty of them.

Ace went to Harvard; Harvard was a tradition in the Blaikie family. He went to Harvard Medical. Instead of finishing off in Germany, as most doctors did in those days, he chose to study in Paris. He was there when the World war broke. In the autumn he joined the Foreign Legion. He was wounded that winter; when he recovered, he volunteered for aviation. He flew with the French army, until we entered the war. Then he joined our army. He became an ace—strange how life fulfilled the prophecy of his nickname! He had five enemy planes on his record. He believed, himself, that he had brought down two or three more; but that, he could not prove. When he came back from France, the town gave him a party—no one in Satuit missed it. We asked him to come in uniform wearing all his decorations—the French and Belgian Croix de Guerre, the Medaille Militaire, the Legion d'Honneur and the D.S.C. I thought him, that night, the handsomest male creature I ever laid eyes on.

Then Ace settled down to a practice in Satuit. Of course he could not make money in so small a place, but instantly he became a great success. Personality helped here, his own tremendous strength, his robust vitality. For with Ace's entrance to a sick-room came a gust of health-giving air. But perhaps his greatest asset was that sympathy with the sick, the old, the weary and the discouraged. It even helped that he liked girl-babies so much. However fathers felt, mothers always knew an infant pride when they pleased Doctor Blaikie by bringing forth a girl.

But for other reasons, the countryside adored Ace. One was his reckless generosity. Anybody who wanted to sell tickets, or to get up a fund for charitable purposes made a bee-line for Ace.

Nothing illustrates Ace more perfectly than the story of his treatment of Tom Boylan. Tom was the village drunk. Ace was always having to take care of him, free of course—Tom had no money—for alcoholism. Once he brought Tom through delirium tremens. Yet when Tom got well, Ace always gave him his first drink—after Tom had begged long enough for it.

And yet . . . And yet . . . Something had happened to Ace—I don't mean to his body. Something had happened to his soul.

In the meantime, I had married Mark Avery. I used to talk Ace over with him. My husband, who was a nerve specialist like Doctor Geary, with an office in Boston, had served as a physician in the World war. He had great wisdom. He said to me once, "Mary, the strange thing about war is that it frequently ruins good men and rehabilitates bad ones. Men are returning to this country on every transport, who, if they had not been caught at the right moment by the discipline of an army, would have spent most of their lives in jail. On the other hand, war frequently ruins able men—its rigid discipline, its inherent immorality."

War must have been bad medicine for Ace. It must have unloosed something in him that he had always held in abeyance before.

At any rate, from the time he came back, he seemed to me to disintegrate. Not physically! To the very end, he kept his magnificent body in condition. He was always inheriting money. Yet no matter how much company filled the huge Blaikie house, Ace was always leaving on sudden calls. How often when I have been there, he has returned with a wearied but triumphant, "A big eleven-pound boy!" or "A nice little girl!" Once—and this was the apex of his medical pride—"Girl twins!"

The countryside always surged with gossip about Ace. He was, had always been, would always be a terrific—I use the word of my generation—flirt. I will not say that he desired all women, but I will say that any pretty woman seemed to serve as a challenge to him.

Why, when Mark first began regularly to specialize on me, Ace looked upon that as a challenge! I laughed his tentative wooing out of existence. Along with this tremendous susceptibility, let me call it—although it wasn't exactly that—came an equally tremendous fickleness. As I have hinted, to see a pretty woman meant, at once, on Ace's part, a desire to conquer her; and to conquer her was, at once, to begin to tire of her. Rumors of his conquests, both at home and abroad, choked our tea-talk. For the last few years, other rumors had spread—reports all his patrimony and his various inheritances; that each year increasingly, he spent more than he earned.

And then occurred the strange complication to which I have already twice referred. Molly Eames came back from a year in Europe the most beautiful girl that Satuit had ever produced. In three months she was engaged to Walter Treadway, Ace's secretary. It seemed to everybody that they were passionately in love and yet after six months Molly broke her engagement to Walter. Six months later, she became engaged to Ace.

No one of us who had known Ace, no one of us who loved Molly, felt happy over this turn of events.

But one thing Ace brought to us from the war which meant more to Satuit as a whole than all his decorations—and that was his friend, Bruce Hexson.

Bruce Hexson was a lawyer. He was in Paris when the war broke and volunteered immediately to drive an ambulance for the French army. He met Ace in the hospital. When we entered the war he volunteered for aviation. The two men served in the same squadron. Long before the Armistice, they had become inseparable pals. Bruce, too, was a man of private fortune. He lived in Pennsylvania. He came regularly every summer to Satuit and visited Ace for two months at a time.

And then suddenly an unexpected thing happened to him.

To use the old pat phrase—Bruce "got" religion, but not somehow in the usual sense. Ace always avoided talking about his friend's spiritual seizure, but he told me once that he attributed Bruce's frenzy to the long strain of the war. "If he had been wounded once," he said to me, "it would have been better for him. Aviators often went haywire. The officers watched us like doctors. The instant any one of us showed the first sign of psychological strain, they gave him a long leave in Paris. If a man were slightly wounded, the change to the hospital helped. Bruce never got a pip; he never showed any signs of nerve breakage. That's my explanation."

Whatever the reason, the result was definite and permanent. Bruce Hexson's whole life changed. He came to Satuit every year, but now for the whole summer. He did not, as formerly, live with Ace. Ace owned a little camp on the Indian river. Like everything Ace touched, it was charming and convenient. Bruce rented the camp from Ace—lived there with his two colored servants, Adah Silverston and Berry Vale.

Bruce Hexson had become a social fixture in summer Satuit. Nowadays he never came to our parties, but always, broodingly tender, we felt him there.

The Split Infinitive

A split infinitive is a form of expression in which the sign of the infinitive "to" is separated from its verb by a word or phrase, usually an adverb. For instance, "to quickly return" instead of "to return quickly."

The split infinitive is frowned upon by a few "purists", but it is used by nearly all good writers and is now regarded as respectable English. However, this form of expression is not usually adopted unless it is smoother or more effective than the regular form.

Sowing and Reaping

IN HUMAN experience one must first sow before one can reap, and one reaps what one sows. If one sows paucy seeds in a garden, one does not expect chrysanthemums to appear. Rather does one watch eagerly for the first green of the pansy plant to push its way through the earth, already visioning the velvety flowers to follow. If, on the other hand, weeds are allowed to grow in a garden, what can be expected but a growth of weeds. Therefore, a wise gardener is careful in his sowing and watchful in his weeding.

In Deuteronomy, Moses is recorded as saying (22:9), "Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled." Even if one is careful in one's selection of seeds, with the first appearance of the dainty plants may come the harmful weeds. Anyone who has done much gardening knows how aggressively the weeds strive to outdo the plants, and what alertness is required to see that the weeding keeps pace with the eager pushing forward of the desired plants.

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 343), "The weeds of mortal mind are not always destroyed by the first uprooting; they reappear, like devastating witch-grasses, to choke the coming clover." How we all dislike to see a weed-clogged, overgrown garden! And we realize the work involved before all devastating weeds are cleared out; for, from the time of ripening, their seeds have not only been re-seeding their immediate vicinity, but have also been blowing hither and yon to infest the neighbors' gardens. Occasionally, if the weeds are rank on the adjoining property, the one whose garden is clear may be tempted to be annoyed, and even to feel that punishment should come to those responsible for letting the weeds scatter their seeds. But immediately comes the realization that if any weeds have been left in one's own garden, they may be blowing over the fence to someone else's flower bed. The wise plan is to keep up one's own weeding, and then guard in every way against the possible encroachment of weeds from without. Sometimes the weeds are so nearly like the plant or flower that one fails to recognize them at first glance, and care is required not to pull up the plant.

If we then the seeds in our garden. Those who have accepted this statement, and have persistently worked from the standpoint of presents, have been healed physically, financially, morally, and have found their homes becoming more harmonious and their days more joy-filled.

BANK GROUPS MAKE NATIONWIDE SURVEY

American and State Banking Associations Collaborate in Investigation
LOAN SERVICES STUDIED
Activities of the Government in the Banking Field Are Reviewed and Position of Banks Analyzed

NEW YORK.—Detailed bank researches, covering all phases of practical operating and economic facts and conditions related to banking, are being made by the American Bankers Association. The resulting material is being placed at the disposal of all state banking associations, which in many instances are extending the researches of the national association in their own states. These activities are said to be a part of the general program of banking development which is being carried on by the organized banking business.

Among the most extensive researches being conducted by the American Bankers Association is that of its Committee on Banking Studies, which is making a detailed survey of Federal Government lending agencies and policies. The basic material, which is kept up to date by continuing studies, shows where the Government agencies get the money they lend, what liability the Government assumes, what subsidy it extends, what return it gets, for what and to whom the money goes and on what terms it is loaned.

The Government in Banking
 "It is not the intention of the committee to express its viewpoint about any agency," says the foreword to this material. "Its intention is only to determine the facts. These facts properly assembled and presented should help banks to meet Government competition if and where it exists. The committee believes the Government entered the lending field at a critical period in order to aid banks and financial institutions. If the time has come for the Government to withdraw, it is the duty of bankers to demonstrate their readiness to take care of all sound credit needs."

It adds that the banks must be equipped with full factual material as to the Government's emergency lending activities and practices, and that full cooperation has been given the committee by Government agencies in obtaining facts. Binders of the material gathered have been placed by the committee in the hands of state associations.

Investigation of Postal Savings
 The Committee on Banking Studies has also made a survey of the Postal Savings System throughout the United States to ascertain to what extent it is competing with chartered banks. Questionnaires were sent to banks in all places where Postal Savings depositories are operated and their answers will be analyzed as a basis for the committee's findings.

The Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a nation-wide survey covering the movement among banks to increase their earning abilities through fair and legitimate rates for services they render their depositors. It has developed a plan of account analysis as a basis of fair charges.

Business in order to justify its existence is founded on the economic principle that a reasonable return should be expected from services rendered," the commission says.

Personal Income Loans
 The Bank Management Commission has also formulated methods for installing and operating personal income loan departments in banks. "This plan contemplates making loans primarily to individuals and small business concerns, based upon the character and assured incomes of the borrowers, as distinguished from the usual basis for commercial loans," the commission says.

It points out that a large part of the population is not now making use of available bank credit and that "to these people the personal loan department extends a valuable service which at the same time is profitable to the bank." It adds that it is "the duty of the banks to educate the public to come to the bank for all financial services. Small borrowers should be informed that the local bank is willing to care for their demands."

Other Researches
 Other researches are being made by the Economic Policy Commission of the association dealing with shrinkages in liquid commercial loans caused by economic changes in the nation's business methods while the National Bank Division has made studies of the lending and investment powers of this class of bank, the present status of the real estate investment field and of detailed data by states on earnings and expenses.

The Savings Division has gathered the facts showing savings in banks of all types, the number of savings depositors, the per capita savings for the country as a whole and the effects of current economic and social changes upon the savings habits of the American people.

The association's State Bank Division has issued the most recent figures available as to the detailed conditions of state banks, showing steady improvement in the position of the state banks, with marked expansion in their aggregate resources, while the Trust Division has compiled a guide to fees with a recommended cost accounting system.
