

People of Pinckney Aid Red Cross

A Total of $161.85 in Money Contributed to Flood Sufferers Besides a Large Amount of Clothing and Bedding.

The people of Pinckney and vicinity contributed generously to the flood sufferers of the Ohio Valley last week. A total of $161.85 in money was contributed besides a large amount of clothing, bedding, food etc. Miss Nellie Gardner, township Red Cross chairman, received the money donations and the clothing etc was left at the home of Mrs. Pauline Vedder. Saturday it was taken to the town headquarters by truck. The lists are not yet closed and anyone else wishing to give can still do so.

Thos. Read Sons donated the use of a truck and this was loaded with supplies at Howell and driven to Indianapolis, Indiana by Fred Read from Howell last Thursday. Each county is told where to take supplies by the state Red Cross head. All Livingston county goods go to Indianapolis. We understand several trucks were sent from Howell and Fowlerville and Brighton also sent loads there.

The following are the cash donations contributed from Pinckney and vicinity:

UNADILLA TOWNSHIP GIFTS TOTAL $141

The January dinner for the membership of the Gregory circle, King's Daughters was turned over into a community dinner in order to collect supplies and money for the distressed people of the flood districts. Food, clothing or money was donated by nearly everyone in this district. Nearly $119 was collected for the Red Cross at the dinner, with a truck load of clothing. All of this was sent to the county chapter at Howell.

The township was well represented at the dinner. Guests helped to sort clothing and other donated material. The village of Unadilla and community collected a small truck load of clothing and bedding worth $23 in money. This was turned in at Gregory, making a total of $141.25 for the township.

Following the dinner a business meeting was held at which the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. F. M. Bowditch; vice president, Mrs. Jennie Voeghts; secretary, Mrs. James Caskey; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Crozman.

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 21 at the home of Mrs. C. P. Ballinger.

News of the State Legislature

Legislators Pass $6 Per Day Wage Bill But It May Be Declared Illegal. Many Other Bills Are Introduced.

More bills are introduced each day in the legislature but many of them will undoubtedly be found reposed in the different committee pigeon holes when the session ends.

The legislators passed a bill providing for a $6 wage for themselves despite the opinion of Attorney General Starr that it would probably be ruled illegal.

Senator Munshaw of Grand Rapids asked that county officers be elected for four year terms. The elections would still be held every two years but only part of the officers elected at a time. This would necessitate a constitutional amendment.

Several bills were introduced for the purpose of ousting Senator Wilkowski. According to the Michigan law he still draws his salary although confined in Jackson prison.

The Watson bill has been reported out of committee. This would set June 1, 1939 as the deadline for mortgage and land contract moratoriums.

Up to last week 96 bills had been introduced in the house and 74 in the senate.

Rep. Clancy introduced a bill reducing the Detroit common pleas judges from 9 to 6.

Rep. Gardner of Wayne offered a liquor bill to restrict voting on sale of liquor by the glass to every four years.

Rep. Diehl of Monroe introduced a bill to let the delegates elect the county chairman and permit them to remove the county committee officers by a two-thirds vote.

Rep. Stockfish of Detroit would reduce the limit on old age pensions from 70 to 60 years.

Rep. Nagel of Detroit asked an investigation of the overcrowding in state hospitals.

There is talk of the revival of the junket trips to state institutions by legislators which were discontinued in 1931. These are favored for the reason that nearly all state institutions have asked cash appropriations for remodeling and building. The legislators believe if they saw these places they would be able to vote more intelligently on these requests.

At a recent meeting of the school board the following committees were appointed to carry out the big masquerade program, Friday evening, February 26, at the school gymnasium.

MURRAY VON WAGONER SHOULD BE RE-ELECTED THIS SPRING

Among several state offices that Michigan citizens will elect men to this spring none appears more important than that of state highway commissioner. As you know, both the Republicans and the Democrats will vie for this position, now ably filled by Murray D. Von Wagoner, Democrat and former citizen of Pontiac.

From the standpoint of the average citizen who wants a maximum of efficiency together with as large an amount of available federal appropriations for highway work in Michigan as possible, it seems to us that Michigan voters will get the best service in the future by re-electing Commissioner Von Wagoner to this office.

We are aware of the fact that the Republicans of the state have, in the services of Charles M. Ziegler, recently announced candidate, a man of ability and integrity; but we do question his ability to obtain from Washington as much money as Mr. Von Wagoner can. Besides, a majority of Michigan's voters not so long ago revealed the fact that they want the Democratic party to run affairs at Lansing for a while, and Mr. Von Wagoner's re-election insures to the taxpayers a plentiful amount of Democratic co-operation.

Commissioner Von Wagoner really has demonstrated his ability and also won a host of friends from every section of Michigan; Republicans as well as Democrats; have been pleased with his official activities. It seems to us that the retention of Mr. Von Wagoner as state highway commissioner this spring is good business and good government. That's why we shall support him for re-election.

The new curtains for the stage have been hung and are now ready for use. The front curtains are of red velvet and the side drapes and back ones are buff colored. All of the curtains pull sideways instead of up.

All classes in the school started gym work last week under the instruction of their teachers. Coach Seelke put the high school boys through a regular course of army exercises.

Will Jeffreys, janitor, is more than pleased with the new stoker. He says it only takes about 20 minutes to get up steam with it when the old way of firing it took several hours.

The blower system, used to heat the gym is also satisfactory. Last week only about twenty minutes were required to heat the gym each time.

The school board and teachers met last Wednesday night at the school and a number of matters were ironed out. The bids for the basket ball equipment were read and rejected as too high. The lowest bid for hardware alone without the baskets, was $137. The job of installing these was let to Messrs Will Jeffreys and Frank Bowers and the work will be done this week.

Democrats Hold County Convention and Nominate Delegates to State Convention.

The Democrat County Convention was held at the court house Saturday with about 70 present. Don Van Winkle, county chairman, called the meeting to order. Judge Arthur Cole of Fowlerville was named temporary chairman and Ray Taylor of Brighton temporary secretary. The motion to make their selection permanent carried. By adopting a motion to make all present delegates, the need of an organization committee was dispensed with.

Judge Cole made the keynote speech in which he lauded the administration of President Roosevelt, Gov. Murphy, Senator Brown and Congressman Senneker. He also called for the re-election of Murray D. Von Wagoner.

W. E. Robb, Martin Lavan, and P. W. Curlett were appointed on the resolutions committee.

A debate on the selection of delegates ensued between W. E. Robb, Martin Lavan, Mr. Robb wished to have anyone desiring to attend the state convention at Grand Rapids on February 11, be made a delegate, whether they were in attendance at the county convention or not. Mr. Lavan wished but 16 named and those from the persons attending the county convention. The Robb resolution was defeated and that of Mr. Lavan adopted. The following delegates were elected: Chas. Runckman, Unadilla, chairman and Guy Kuhn; W. E. Robb, Don VanWinkle, Bert Hoff, Gerald Hughes, Francis Barron, Howell; Judge Cole, Ross Robb, Fowlerville; Martin Lavan, Ray Taylor, Brighton; M. J. Hoisel, Lee Lavey, P. W. Curlett, C. H. Kennedy, Putnam; Eugene Shehan, Hamburg; Twp. and Edward Durfee, Howell.

On motion of Mr. Robb four women, Mrs. Amelia Knapp, Mrs. Pearl Sheridan, Miss Nellie Gardner and Miss Velma Fay were added to the delegation.

The headquarters will be at the Hotel Pantlind, Grand Rapids, where a banquet will be held on the night of Feb. 10. The convention is across the street from the hotel at the Civic Auditorium.

PRAIRIE FARMER WLS HOME TALENT SHOW

This is sponsored by the Congregational church which will take place at the community hall on February 11, 12 and 13. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This production is an impersonation of the National Barn Dance broadcast and promises to be very gay, colorful and entertaining. The Community Hall will be appropriately fashioned to represent a Barn Dance show and all the characters will be dressed appropriately in overalls, bandanas, old straw hats, bright gingham dresses. Old time square dancing will be a special feature along with the many amateur acts presented.

Arrangements are being made to allow all children under twelve to be admitted free the first night of the show, February 11, Thursday accompanied by their parents.

Tryouts are being held at the Community Hall this week Thursday and Friday nights at 7 P. M. and a large turnout is expected. So if you play an instrument... guitar, banjo, accordion, or any other instrument, sing or tap dance you are cordially invited to come down to tryouts.

Tickets will be on sale at any of the downtown merchants so make your purchase now.

Remember the tryouts and watch for the cast of characters and more news of this Prairie Farmer WLS Home Talent Show.

If anyone wishes to register before tryouts send your application to Miss Harriet Boak (Director) in care of Box 135 Post Office or call Pinckney 60, give a description of your number.

The Book That Upset This Village

The Story of the First Book Written About Pinckney by Mrs. C. M. Kirkland.

The following brief extracts from Mrs. Kirkland's book have been selected from 298 pages of matter. In a general way these extracts afford a picture of life in Michigan in the '30's and also a fairly continuous story of Mrs. Kirkland's trip from New York to Pinckney. Of course a great deal of detail had to be omitted. Editor.

Our friends in the 'settlements' (meaning back East) have expressed so much interest in such of our letters to them, as happened to convey any account of the peculiar features of western life and have asked so many questions, touching particulars which we had not thought worthy of mention that I have been for some time past contemplating the possibility of something like a detailed account of our experiences. And I have determined to give them to the world in a form not very different from that in which they were originally recorded for our private delectation; nothing doubting that a veracious history of actual occurrences, an unvarnished transcript of real characters and an impartial record of every-day forms of speech (taken down in many cases from the lips of the speaker) will be pronounced 'graphic' by at least a fair proportion of the journalists of the day.

A home on the outskirts of civilization - bits of society which allow the mind and her mistress to do the honors in complete equality, and to make the social tea visit in loving conjunction - such a distribution of the duties of life as compels all, without distinction, to rise with the sun or before him to breakfast with the chickens - then,

"Count the slow clock, and dine exact at noon" - to be ready for tea at four and for bed at eight - may be expected to furnish some curious particulars for the consideration of those whose daily course almost-reverses this primitive arrangement.

When my husband purchased two acres of wild land on the banks of this to-be-celebrated stream, and drew with a piece of chalk on the barroom table at Danforth's the plan of a village, I little thought I was destined to make myself famous by handing down to posterity a faithful record of the advancing fortunes of that favored spot.

The xxxx 'madness of the people' in those days of golden dreams took more common the form of city-building; but there were a few who contented themselves with planning villages, on the banks of streams which certainly never could be expected to bear navies, but which might yet be turned to account in the more homely way of grinding or sawing - operations which must necessarily be performed somewhere for the well being of those very cities. It is one of these humble attempts that it is my lot to speak, and I make my confessions at the outset, warning any fashionable reader, who may have taken up my book, that I intend to be 'decidedly low'.

When I made my first visit to these remote and lonely regions; the scattered woods through which we rode many miles were gay in their first gossamer-green suit of half opened leaves, and the forest odors which exhaled with the dews of morning and evening, were beyond measure delicious to one 'long in populous cities pent'.

Danger Signs
Washington.—The arrival of the first robin is only a sign of the coming of spring. It does not bring spring weather. Nevertheless, we Americans watch for signs all our lives and lately there have been several of them in national affairs that are worthy of notice.

There never has been a time in our country's history, as far as I have been able to discover, when the tension surrounding labor conditions has been as dangerous as it is right now. I do not believe anyone can forecast what the results are going to be; what all of these strikes and factional fights in organized labor mean and I am convinced that they represent something much deeper than just dissatisfaction with wages or growing pains of expanding business. In other words, there are many students of national affairs who are attempting to analyze current labor conditions as signs of new times. Most observers with whom I have discussed the present labor problems, are hopeful that these troubles mean only continued increases in the demand for labor. That is, they want to accept these signs as indicative of a returning and sound prosperity in commerce and industry. Yet, none of them is quite sure. There are too many "ifs" and too many uncertainties for anyone to attempt a complete diagnosis of the circumstances.

Some weeks ago I ventured the opinion in these columns that the rift in organized labor between William Green as head of the American Federation of Labor and John L. Lewis as sponsor of the industrial union idea, likely would result in serious trouble for the labor unions themselves. I was unable to report then that which I can write at this time, namely, that the schism in organized labor appears certain to set back the cause of organized labor many years. Indeed, it seems that the split, tangled as it is with partisan politics, may prove to be the uncharted rock in union labor's course and its ship may founder on it.

But the situation is fraught with graver possibilities, I am sure. There are elements and influences at work in the labor situation today that easily could lead to riots and bloodshed. From riots and bloodshed it is only a step to revolution of a political sort.

None here knows exactly what the administration's labor policies are beyond the exaggerated promises made during the last Presidential campaign. Of course, President Roosevelt and the bulk of his New Deal spokesmen are exceedingly friendly, overfriendly some believe, to organized labor. The New Dealers had organized labor with them in the last campaign. Now, however, it is made to appear that the support of labor in the campaign is proving more or less embarrassing to the administration which has just started on its second four-year term.

Some of the critics of the administration are outspoken in their statements that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to dodge, trying to avoid, getting mixed up too deeply in labor's problems. Some of his subordinates have been active but the President has stayed out of the picture just as far as he could and as long as he could.

I am inclined to believe that these assertions that Mr. Roosevelt is afraid to take leadership too frequently in labor's problems are unfair to the President. They amount to a statement that he lacks courage—which is not true. On the contrary, there are many who believe with me that Mr. Roosevelt senses developments yet to arise in the labor situation and he is, therefore, being cautious as to steps thus early in what threatens to be a national labor crisis.

On the other hand, it is difficult to explain why the national labor relations board has been so nearly quiescent through such strikes as the plate glass and portions of the automobile workers.

If there ever was a situation made to order for use of the agency set up under the so-called Wagner law, that situation was to be found in the two strikes just mentioned. The board did so little in those circumstances that its existence can be said to have been forgotten. It amounted to a dead letter insofar as the law itself is concerned. In some quarters one can hear discussion to the effect that sponsors of the national labor relations act and board were unwilling to have that agency and the law receive a real test at this time. I have been unable to confirm this thought at all but frankly the circumstances that one sees indicate there is some truth in the rumor that too much of a burden should not be unloaded on the board for its first real test.

Business interests never have believed the law to be constitutional. The New Dealers, however, have contended vociferously that it is valid and yet we have the picture of a New Deal agency failing to perform the very functions for which it was created.

I mentioned earlier some of the signs and portents that are visible in the labor situation. One of the most important of these is the significance of the "sit down" type of strike. I find many informed authorities who refer to the "sit down" strike as a key point in present labor problems.

It is something new in this country. It's a program of striking in which labor is entirely passive but by which it usurps the rights of ownership. The workers simply stay in the plants, offering no trouble and for the most part avoiding destructive tactics. But it is the fact that they remain in the plants, the property of their employers, that is causing considerable worry in government circles.

The reason why this phase of strike tactics is creating concern lies in the fact that it amounts to the seizure of private property by individuals who have no right or warrant in law. It would be the same thing as far as legal rights are concerned if a group of strikers went to your home or mine and announced they expected to stay there. There is no difference in the two situations. While the effect on you or me would be less important to the country as a whole, it remains as a fact that our rights would be violated in exactly the same manner as rights of corporations were violated, say, in the General Motors strike. After all, you and I are merely units of the great mass of people that make up the United States of America. Now, it takes no great stretch of the imagination to recognize that if union labor establishes its ability to occupy the property of others and fixes that as a precedent, then where are the rights of any person who owns property. It matters not whether it is a small cottage, a farm home or a great industrial plant—the right to own property, guaranteed to us by the Constitution of the United States, is virtually nullified.

One of the rights of American citizenship is a right to own property. It is a principle that has grown to be sacred with us since the Boston tea party. Yet, it is being challenged and thus far the federal government has made no move to break it up. As long as employers organize and tread on labor with a steel boot, just so long the workers are entitled to organize to combat mistreatment from business. But it does not seem to me to be a right of labor to actually take private property. To that extent I cannot feel very kindly toward those strikers at present asserting such a right through use of the "sit down" strike.

Now, there are reasons why the federal government has not acted. If troops were sent into private factories to drive out the "sit down" strikers, one can readily see what a riot would result. But if the federal government fails to enforce this inherent right, it is not doing its sworn duty to the rest of the people. And it was only a few weeks ago that Mr. Roosevelt again took the oath of office as President, swearing to enforce as well as defend the Constitution.

Then, another phase of the situation is being discussed. The Wagner law says employers must negotiate collectively "with the majority" organization of employees and it decrees further that the labor relations board shall determine which is the majority organization; that it can decide this question on evidence or order an election among employees. None can tell us whether union or company organization employees are in the majority in some of these strikes, so the labor relations board has kept out of them.

Taking this labor situation as a whole, I believe I am justified in saying, as I said earlier, that it portends a crisis. Preaching of class hatred has been the main occupation of certain elements in the last three or four years and now those elements are reaping what they sowed. The tragedy of it all is that the rest of us have to reap the same reward.

Wisdom Teeth
Such appellations as "wisdom teeth" to indicate the third molars or "eye teeth" to describe the canine teeth are the carryover from the Middle Ages to our own time of the relationship generally accepted between tooth and wisdom, tooth and eye, says Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

FROM AROUND MICHIGAN

Jackson—Operating an inn near here for 18 years, Mrs. Charles Stevens of this city has prepared and served an estimated 16,000 chicken dinners.

Big Rapids—A new high in fraternal sociability was reached here recently with the inauguration of a cribbage tournament in which members of the Knights of Columbus, Masons, Odd Fellows and postal clerks participate.

Bay City—Federal prison inspectors ruled recently that the Bay County Jail is antiquated and unfit for federal prisoners. Thus, the county jail loses its big "cash customer." Prisoners of the United States Government will henceforth be confined the Saginaw County Jail.

Lansing—No new taxes will be needed to meet the requested appropriations of $100,000,000 a year for the next two years, according to a recent report. While the State Government will carry the largest budget in its history, increase in revenues, chiefly from the general 3 per cent sales tax, are relied upon to carry the State financially.

Albion—It was revealed recently that this city, the home of Albion College and internationally known Starr-Commonwealth for Boys, is the birthplace of one of the greatest of inspirational hymns, sung in churches and missions throughout the world—"The Old Rugged Cross." And the universally observed Mother's Day, a dedication to mothers everywhere, was first originated in this city.

Lansing—Under the direction of the Michigan Superintendent of Public Instruction, a number of schools throughout the state are experimenting with a course, combining safety education with technical training on motor car operation. Safety engineers have tried all other means of public education, it was stated, and now are looking to the schools to assume the responsibility of training safer, more capable drivers for the future.

Cadillac—Lavender and old lace may have been the thing during the Victorian era, says Joseph U. Smith, but today it's carpentry for the fairer sex. Mr. Smith has two daughters who are excellent carpenters and have joined him in the construction company of Smith & Daughter. Happy with a hammer, saw, a plane, some nails, and a job to be done, the girls are content to watch the rest of the world do the knitting.

Fennville—George W. Atkinson, 80, who walks a couple of miles every day, found it pays to keep in condition. When his house caught fire recently, there was no telephone with which to summon the fire department, so he went to work with a step-ladder, axe and a pail of water and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. Not to be outdone, he later helped the carpenter who had been sent by the insurance adjuster to repair the damage.

Marine City—Again, 'tis an ill wind that blows no good. Stricken with paralysis 18 years ago, Tim Pelkey was forced to give up his work as a marine engineer. Of an inventive mind, he turned back to the lakes and ships for inspiration, developed a new type of anchor, so designed that the hooks are always in a position to hold. Today, the use of Pelkey anchors is spreading rapidly and the handicapped which struck the inventor has proved to be his fortune.

Bay City—Desert lands may be famous for their mirages, but residents of this city have gone Nature one better with an optical illusion that has fooled people into thinking it a bridge, and using it for more than 40 years to cross the Saginaw River. And, as the story books have it, thereby hangs a tale. In response to a request for a PWA grant to repair the Belinda Street bridge, the War Department wrote that due to the lack of any records of the bridge, it is technically non-existent.

Jackson—Fluffy, a Persian cat owned by Mrs. Floyd DeLano, recently spoiled another of those "Cat eats fish" stories. While sewing, Mrs. DeLano was twice interrupted by the cat, which each time stalked into the sun-room with plaintive meows. Investigation disclosed a gold fish, which had jumped from its bowl, weakly flopping on the floor. The fish soon revived after being returned to the water and Fluffy dined royally, with canned salmon as virtue's reward.

Rochester—A traditional land mark for a century, the Squire Mack home here is to be torn down and replaced, in the crude parlance of our modern civilization with a "Type A-426-X postoffice, costing $70,135.63." The recent arrival from Washington of one of those brief documents, addressed to the postmaster, ended the honorable career of the mansion. Thus, the building, which came into being about the time Michigan entered the Union will pass away on the eve of the State's Centenary.

Delight a Child With These

Pattern 5247

This sturdy pair, dressed in their "Sunday best," are sure to walk right into the heart of some wee tot. You'll have fun, too, making both the dolls and their bright finery, especially if your scrap bag furnishes you with gay odds and ends. Hair and features are done with a few simple embroidery stitches. Grand indeed for gifts are Sambo of the checkered overalls, and Mammy, in apron and kerchief. In pattern 5247 you will find a transfer pattern for a doll about 14 inches high; patterns for making the clothes; directions for making doll and clothes; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 230 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Feathering Foes' Arrows
To ruminate upon evils, to make critical notes upon injuries, and be too acute in their apprehensions, is to add unto our own tortures, to feather the arrows of our enemies, and to resolve to sleep no more; for injuries, long dreamt on, take away at last all rest.—Sir Thomas Browne.

How to Ease a Cold Quickly

Get Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving Bayer Aspirin. Take 2 Tablets

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice. The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat the fever and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's—not for "aspirin" alone.

MANY CONTESTS

FARMERS' WEEK

Competitions scheduled during the 22nd annual Farmers' Week Feb. 1 to 5 at Michigan State College will draw hundreds of persons from all sections of the state to compete for the honors of being among the best in Michigan in colt development projects, grain feeding, lamb feeding, beef calf feeding, or in the growing of potatoes, corn, wheat, oats, barley rye or beans.

Although it is "open house" to the thousands expected from all over the state, it also is the annual time to crown new champions among the state's farm producers.

In Livingston County, the following are among those who have been preparing for weeks and months to enter the annual contests at East Lansing during Farmers' Week:

O. W. Sober & Sons, Fowlerville, Colt Development.

O. W. Sober & Sons, Fowlerville, Wolves Lame Production.

Jarvis L. Gage, Wixom, Wolverine Lamb Production.

Karl R. Fenton, Wolverine Lamb Production.

Crops and livestock are to be judged the first three days in the week. Sales of the livestock, including hogs, calves and horses are to be held Thursday and Friday. Students competing in the Little International for showmanship honors will be judged with their animals in the ring Thursday afternoon, Feb. 4.

Other contests will include rifle shooting, sheep dog trials, wood identification, dairy cow judging, 4-H crops and egg judging.

HERE IS ANOTHER THOUGHT

The Detroit News, in an editorial remarks that the present system in vogue by industrial concerns of turning off the man at 40 years of age and hiring those between 20 and 30 is a drawback. This younger class of workmen are usually single, have no property or family ties and are inclined to drift from job to job. They are ready to listen to strike agitators and a strike is a gain day to them. They can probably be speeded up and more money secured from them if kept on the other hand most of those over 40 have family and property and make that job.

Household Questions

Pastry made with too much water is tough and hard. Use only enough water to hold the ingredients together, mix quickly, roll and handle as little as possible.

Do not use soft butter or lard in making pie crust. The shortening should be hard and cold.

Do not put too much wax on floors. A little wax and plenty of polishing makes a better-looking floor.

A mixture of equal parts of salt and vinegar will quickly brighten copper or brass ware.

If you want a really gay and cheerful dressing table why not make the drapery of chintz which has a design of red, pink and yellow flowers on a rather bright blue ground. The frill of pleated yellow chintz about the top is headed by a narrower one of blue to match the ground of the printed chintz.

To cook dried prunes wash them well, cover with four inches of cold water and let soak overnight. Simmer very slowly for one hour.

Grease your measuring cup before measuring syrup or molasses and the ingredients will not stick to the sides of the cup.

Painting the top and bottom basement steps white is a good idea that may save many a fall.

If You Have a Child

ASK YOUR DOCTOR THIS

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

"This child hasn't a thing to wear!" Sylvia announced in the accents, faintly disgusted, faintly indignant, which I had heard so many times from her mother's mouth. "She is a perfect disgrace. I'm ashamed of her. She's got to have a whole new wardrobe. She doesn't take care of her clothes at all. She gets them dirty. She spills her oatmeal all down the front. She catches her clothes in the blackberry vines. She's a perfectly terrible, terrible child sometimes."

Energetic nodding and vehement emphasis accompanied this diatribe. Of course, like all mothers, Sylvia was enjoying the utter unregeneration of her offspring and of course, like all children, she was quoting grown-up violence of expression. Indeed, when she had finished, she looked up at me with a sunny smile. Then she set her lips again. "She ought to be sent to a reform school."

I wondered where Sylvia had received her education in regard to reform schools and then I remembered that that was a pet phrase with Bessie in regard to naughty children.

"But after all," I remonstrated, "it seems to me, Sylvia, that Dorinda Belle is a pretty good child. She's very quiet about the house. She treats your other dolls very well."

Compunction apparently hit Sylvia hard. "She's a beautiful child!" she admitted remorsefully. She picked Dorinda Belle up from the hammock. She was still kissing the china face when Patrick drove up to the door.

"I left pretty suddenly yesterday, Mary," he apologized, "but it gave me such a what my old grandmother used to call—a turn to hear that story from Walter and Molly."

As though by mutual consent, we withdrew to the living-room to get away from Sylvia. "It's haunted me all night," I admitted.

"Mary," Patrick said, "I guess we've got to admit that from some points of view, Ace was a pretty bad actor."

"It wasn't exactly a surprise," I agreed, "and yet it was a surprise too. Of course before we go any further, I'll have to tell you, Patrick, that I believe every word Walter said."

"So do I."

"But," I went on, "I had no idea that Ace was capable of such—I wouldn't have believed that he would have tried to compel Molly."

"Well, you see, Ace was spoiled as far as women were concerned. He'd always had his way with them. That's bad medicine for any man. Especially, if a man lets it get him. And Ace let it get him. When he was young, as you and I knew well enough, he was a chaser. I don't know why I call him a chaser. He was chased much more than he chased. Girls fell for him in all directions. I think you're the only one who ever gave him his come-uppance, Mary."

"Ace never was in love with me, Patrick."

"Perhaps not. He's always taken you for granted, that you were within hand's reach so to speak. He felt that he could close his fist on you at any time. But when Mark began to specialize on you he didn't like it. Believe me, he didn't like it, Mary. He couldn't do anything about it though. I must confess I took a great deal of private satisfaction out of that."

"Ace and Mark and I were always good friends," I commented. "That's right! And Ace and I were great friends. Damn it all, I loved Ace. I love him still. That story Walter told me yesterday rocked me more than anything that's happened in a long time. But there was something about Ace—"

"I suppose he had more natural charm than any human being I have ever known," I tried to sum it up. "The most delightful personality!"

"It was that charm that ruined him," Patrick carried my thought on. "It brought him so many things when he was young that he thought he could keep it up forever. Yet, by God, I shall always feel about Ace—"

"It's one of the puzzles of life," I said. "Once or twice in a lifetime, this happens to everyone. Charm is as strong as the force of gravity. People who have it sweep our hearts along in the very face of disapproving judgment. That was Ace."

I think I raised my voice a little; for Sylvia, suddenly abandoning her dress-making, seized a freshly dressed Dorinda Belle and came pattering into the living-room. She seated herself on a cricket beside the low table on which stood a telephone extension.

"Patrick," she said, "did you know that Doctor Ace had gone to Heaven?"

Before Patrick could answer the question, her eyes, wandering over the surface of the table, fell on a little Dresden box there. Now Sylvia had been brought up not to touch bric-a-brac or books without permission. She is an extremely docile child and I cannot recall that she has ever broken anything in my house. Now her eyes fixed themselves hard on that Dresden box. Her fixed gaze recalled no association to me, but apparently it suggested vaguely something to her. Suddenly she jumped up from her cricket and lifted the cover. "Oh there it is!" she exclaimed. "There's the beautiful buckle I found. I forgot all about it. I found it—I found it—"

Her eyes seemed to look inward in the effort of her concentration. "I found it the day after the party."

A silence as bleak and cold as ice seemed to fall on my piazza. For when Sylvia's tiny fingers lifted the brilliant buckle—old paste and old silver—from the box, a series of mental cataclysms shook me. They came as fast as successive shots from a revolver. Instantly I recalled Sylvia's entrance to the piazza early Saturday afternoon, carrying a Dorinda Belle who glittered with a magnificent—an alien—splendor. I remembered taking the buckle from her and, as the telephone rang, slipping it into the Dresden box. Suddenly too now, I recalled, though I had not recalled it then, that that buckle was one of a pair which ornamented the slipper which Myron Marden wore at the masquerade. Instantly too, I recalled another thing that I would have said must have departed completely from my memory—departed, leaving no trace behind. And that was an event of Sunday morning—waking and going to the bathroom for a drink of water, returning and for an instant gazing out my window onto the fog-laden scene. What I saw in that instant merged completely from my mind in the oblivious weariness with which I again sank back to sleep.

Yet now, I saw the picture perfectly—Myron Marden coming out of my Spinney and up over my lawn in the direction of the park and of his own home. Patrick's eyes had narrowed. Never had I heard siltier accents than those which emerged at that moment from his throat. "Come over here, Sylvia," he wheedled. "I want to talk with you. Bring the buckle with you."

Sylvia pattered over to him and he lifted her onto his lap. She opened her little fist and they surveyed the paste together.

"How it sparkles!" Patrick commented. "How lucky you were to find it! When did you say you picked it up?"

"Saturday afternoon," Sylvia answered with a childish explicitness. "Right after lunch!"

"And where did you say you found it?" Patrick asked, turning the buckle this way and that, so that it flashed fire.

"Near the path to the Spinney." "Where were you going?" Patrick asked in the most casual of tones.

"I was going to the Little House and I saw this buckle in the path. So I runned right back to get a ribbon to tie it on Dorinda Belle."

"Now, who do you suppose," Patrick went on, "that buckle belongs to?"

"Oh I know now," Sylvia announced. "Doctor Marden wore it on his shoe."

"Sylvia," Patrick went on, "did you see anybody go out of the Stow house the night of the masquerade—I mean anybody besides Molly Eames and Walter Treadway?"

I remembered now that Patrick had asked Sylvia a similar question once before. However, he had not waited for the reply and I had not thought it important.

Sylvia leaned her head back against Patrick's chest. She looked up into his face, smiling her most sunny smile. "Yes," she answered. "Doctor Marden."

"When did you see him go?" Patrick asked in a friendly way. "And what door did he go out of?"

Sylvia snuggled close against him. "You see," she went on in the most confidential manner, "I went out into the kitchen. Nobody was there. All the girls had gone downstairs into the cellar—I forget what—Oh, I know, they wanted to look at the ice cream." Patrick made big eyes at her. "All of them?" he asked in an astounded voice.

"Every one of them!" Sylvia replied with finality. "You mean that there wasn't a single one of the girls there?" Patrick kept it up. "Not Sarah, nor Bessie, nor Caddie, nor Jessie, nor Little Alice—"

"There wasn't anybody but me," Sylvia asserted. "Wasn't that wonderful?" Patrick commented.

"Go on and tell me about Doctor Marden," he said. "Well, Doctor Marden came out into the kitchen."

"Did he see you?" "Yes."

"What did he say?" "He didn't say anything. He put his finger on his lips—just like this." Sylvia's tiny forefinger and thumb moved upwards to press her lips close but the lips pouted outwards as they emitted a gentle, "Sh—sh—sh!"

"And didn't you say anything?" Sylvia's eyes grew sparkly with mischief. "No, I didn't say a word. I just did this." She put her forefinger to her lips and emitted a "Sh—sh—sh!"

"And then what did Doctor Marden do?" "Well, he went out through the pantry and into the garage and I heard him open that little door in the back wall of the garage."

Idiot all of us! Suddenly I remembered that little door! Of course Patrick had posted no policeman there. It was extremely unlikely that any guests would enter that door, would even remember its existence—if indeed they had ever known of it. Mattie herself rarely used it.

"I should have thought Doctor Marden would have got all dirty going out that way," Patrick commented.

"Oh," Sylvia explained, "he wore his long dark cape. It was in the garage."

"How do you know he put it on?" "He came back to the door of the kitchen and he said, 'Sh—sh—sh!' and he put his finger to his lips again. And I said, 'Sh—sh—sh!' and I put my finger to my lips."

I knew the garment very well. The heavy, dark cape that the French peasants wear. Doctor Marden's tall, thin figure in that dark blue cape and the dark blue beret which matched it was an accepted detail of the Second Head roads.

"And did you see Doctor Marden come back to the party?" Patrick asked.

"Yes."

"Did he come back soon?" "Yes."

"Was it a long time like this?" Patrick put his hands about a yard apart. "Or a little time like this?" Patrick drew his hands towards each other until the space of a foot lay between them.

"It was a littler time like this," Sylvia answered. With the utmost care, she placed her slim, brown little paws first about nine inches apart; then about six.

Patrick kissed her. "And were you still in the kitchen when Doctor Marden came back?" "Yes."

"Who was there?" "Oh lots and lots and lots of people!"

"I forget," Patrick mused aloud. "Was Doctor Marden in Mrs. Stow's house when they unmasked, Sylvia?"

"Oh yes!" Sylvia said. Over Sylvia's head again Patrick looked at me questioningly. Again I nodded in assent.

"Did Doctor Marden have on his mask the first time he came into the kitchen?" Patrick asked.

"Yes," Sylvia answered. "How did you know it was Doctor Marden then?"

"Oh, when he put his finger to his lips and said, 'Sh—sh—sh!' he lifted his mask way up and he winked at me."

Patrick sat motionless for a tiny interval. Suddenly, but with utmost gentleness, he put Sylvia down. "I think Sylvia will want to go out and see Sarah Darbe," he signaled to me. He took the buckle from Sylvia's reluctant fingers and dropped it into his pocket. Then he hurried swiftly across the room to the telephone, called up the station. "Get two men over here at once!" he ordered. "Put them on the Marden house. Don't let Doctor Marden leave the house until he hears from me. I'm phoning him to come to Mrs. Avery's house. See that he comes!"

Then he took up the telephone again and called a number. "I'd like to talk with Doctor Marden, please . . . Oh good morning, Doctor Marden. This is Patrick O'Brien speaking. I'm talking from Mrs. Avery's house. I'd like to see you here at once. I have some further questions to ask you in regard to the Blaikie case."

It seemed to me that my life had reduced itself to waiting—waiting for people to come in cars. Waiting—and trying not to tremble; for I was always poignantly troubled about some friend or other. I remembered that while I waited for Myron Marden, moods chased each other through my mind. One was a kind of despairing impatience. How long was this ghastly suspense to last? Could it be possible that the mystery would never be solved; that we would all go down to death never knowing who had killed Ace Blaikie? The other was more desperate.

Going to the Party?

WHERE is the party? At Mrs. Smith's on Walnut street and it looks awfully much as though the principals were caught by the candid camera. Luckily, however, they're perfectly groomed for their parts:

Introducing Janet.

Janet in her jumper (Pattern 1936) is asking Mother which glassware to use. Her plaid blouse in taffeta makes her feel very dressed up. Mother chose this style because the many possibilities for change make it a wardrobe rather than a dress and she knew it would be easy-to-make. Your own little girl may have this same ensemble in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for the jumper and 1 1/2 yards for the blouse.

Mother, the Hostess.

Mother is the perfect hostess, calm and assured, because she knows her all-occasion frock with its sprightly crisp apron (Pattern 1220) is becoming and appropriate. For house wear she made up this model in print. She is wearing here the crepe version and knows that it will be delightful for later on in cool black and white. It comes in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. The dress and apron in size 36 require 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. The apron alone requires 1 1/2 yards.

And the Guest.

The guest just arriving is wearing her trigest Sew-Your-Own. She likes it because the puffed shoulders and swing skirt make her hips look smaller. The collar is young and the sleeves stylish. This frock is especially chic in silk crepe alpaca or one of the lovely new prints. For your own daytime distinction, then, why not make up Pattern 1205? It is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 18 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. One ball of yarn required for trimming as pictured.

WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

By Congressman Andrew J. Transue
Sixth District, Michigan.

Down to Business
Flashing mid-season form after the interlude of the inauguration, the House of Representatives last week approved a deficiency appropriation to include flood relief and did its part to place postmasters under civil service. In shorter sessions the Senate debated amendments pertaining to the Supreme Court and agreed to consider the deficiency appropriation bill this week. The President signed the Seed Loan Bill to permit farmers to borrow up to $400 to buy seed for spring planting. The White House reception to Congress was the social event of the week.

Flood Relief
Relief for the flood stricken districts will be the first purpose of the deficiency appropriation amounting to $790,000,000. The House of Representatives defeated efforts to increase the appropriation to more than $1,400,000,000 and make a "pork barrel" of relief. Your Congressman was with the majority in sustaining the President's request and refusing to inflate the appropriation.

Merit System
Postmasters throughout the country will be placed under civil service if the Senate concurs with the action taken by the House of Representatives last week. The Rumspeck Bill will effect 13,730 postmasters and will enable employees in the Postal service to become postmasters through merit service. The plan was suggested by President Roosevelt in an executive order pertaining to the postoffice last July.

Court Curb
Heated debate, with party lines forgotten, swept the Senate Chamber when Senator McKellar, Tennessee Democrat, suggested that the lower courts be deprived of the authority to nullify and declare unconstitutional Acts of Congress. Senator Ashurst, Arizona Democrat, said, "The Congress should manfully stand up and demand a Constitutional amendment whenever the Supreme Court invalidates an Act of Congress." Senator Minto, Indiana Democrat, advocated a two thirds division of the Supreme Court before a law could be held unconstitutional.

Seed Loans
President Roosevelt made $50,000,000 available to farmers of America by signing the Seed Loan Bill. Individual loans are limited to $400. Each loan will bear four percent interest. Last year a similar law was vetoed by the President.

Labor Laws
Labor Secretary Frances Perkins

asked new labor laws along with immediate power to summon witnesses in strikes. The proposed laws would regulate child labor, minimum wages maximum hours and would include many of the admittedly advantageous labor regulations of the N. R. A. with a broader scope for collective bargaining guarantees.

White House Party
Scheduled to attend the Presidential Reception at the White House the House of Representatives last week almost forgot to allow time to dress. The House debated the Civil Service for Postmasters bill until 7 o'clock at night, just two hours before the reception was due to start. With their wives the Members of the House of Representatives and the Senators met the President and Mrs. Roosevelt in the East Room of the White House at the start of the two hour ceremony.

"Gone with the Wind" is very popular in Washington. There are more than 75 advance requests for the book at the Congressional Library waiting list.

THE BOOK THAT UPSET PINCKNEY

succeeded in inspiring my communion with one spark of my own floral enthusiasm, one hundred miles of travel would have occupied a week's time.

The wild flowers of Michigan deserve a poet of their own.

Since I have casually alluded to a Michigan mud-hole, I may as well enter into a detailed memoir on the subject, for the benefit of future travelers, who, lying over the soil on railroads, may look slightly back upon the achievements of their predecessors. In the 'settlements' mud hole is considered as apt to occasion an unpleasant jolt - a breaking of the thread of one's reverie - or in extreme cases, a temporary standstill, or even an overturn of the rash and unwary. Here, on approaching one of these characteristic features of the west, the driver alights, walks up to the dark gulf, and around it, and sounds it, measures it across to ascertain how its width compares with the length of his wagon, tries whether its sides are perpendicular, as is usually the case if the road is much used. If he finds it not more than three feet deep, he remounts cheerily, encourages his team, and in they go with a plunge and a shock, rather apt to damp the courage of the inexperienced. If the hole be narrow, the hinder wheels will be quite lifted off the ground by the depression of their predecessors, and so remain until by unwaried chirruping and some judicious touches of the string the horses are induced to struggle as for their lives; and if the Pates are propitious they generally emerge on the opposite side, dragging the vehicle, or at least the fore-wheels after them.

Our journey was marked by no incident more alarming than the one I have related, though one night passed in a wretched inn, deep in the 'timbered land' as all woods are called in Michigan - was not without its terrors, owing to the horrible drugginess of the mastery of the house, whose wife and children were in constant fear of their lives from his insane fury. I can never forget the countenance of that desolate woman sitting, trembling and with white lips in the midst of her children. The father, raving all night, and coming through our sleeping apartment with the earliest ray of morning, in search of more of the poison already boiling in his veins. The poor wife could not forbear telling me her story - her change of lot - from a well stored and comfortable home in Connecticut to this wretched den in the wilderness - herself and children worn almost to shadows with the ague, and her husband such as I have described him.

Our ride being a deliberate one, I felt, after the third day, a little wearied and began to complain of the sameness of the oak openings, and to wish we were fairly at our journey's end.

HOWELL BOY KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Glenn Wiltse, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiltse of Howell was killed while hunting rabbits near Standish with Preston Pelky of Howell, Sunday. His death resulted from a fall. Surviving are his mother, five brothers and two sisters. The funeral will be held at Howell. He was a graduate of Howell High School and with his four brothers formed the famous Wiltse Bros. basketball team and he has played both with and against Pinckney basketball teams.

STATE POLICE CALLED IN

The board of supervisors in Sanilac are not getting enough action in the Charles Lord murder case which happened near Peck two weeks ago and have offered a $200 reward and called in the state police. Sheriff Campbell already has one 20 year old nephew of the deceased under arrest and another man and is searching for George Lord, 22, another nephew and his wife.

DRUNK DRIVER WRECKS HOUSE

Jerome Coleman, 26, of Windsor who drove his laundry truck into the home of Mrs. Lucy Carter at Brighton damaging it, was fined $75 by Justice Singer for drunken driving and his companion, Arthur Maine, was fined $25.

A UNIVERSAL DESIRE

The profession of funeral directing was developed as a response to the universal desire to pay all possible respect to the remains of those who have passed on. The modern funeral director is a man of specialized training and long practical experience.

His function is to give necessary counsel and advice, as well as actual service to those bereaved. The members of this organization are fully prepared to serve in such a manner.

Obedience

PERHAPS there is no mental quality more necessary to the happiness, health, prosperity, peace of mind, and success of the human race than obedience. Harmony is the proof of obedience to God's law, while discord is the result of disobedience to His law. The happiest homes are those wherein the Golden Rule is obeyed, where the children are taught to be obedient through love, and where the elders set an example of obedience to divine Principle, God, good.

A little child who has been rightly taught to obey God, will obey his parents and his school teachers, and will have little trouble later in life in observing the rules or regulations of his college or university. This habit of obedience will be of incalculable value to him in his business career, and he will seldom be found disregarding the traffic laws or the civil laws of his city, state, or country.

In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy writes (p. 153): "Divine Mind rightly demands man's entire obedience, affection, and strength. No reservation is made for any lesser loyalty. Obedience to Truth gives man power and strength." If we observe closely, we shall find that the great and good character in history, and all who have achieved true success, have been obedient to their highest sense of good, and have prospered; for, as the Bible declares (Isaiah 1:19): "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land."

The Scriptures are rich in promises of blessings to those obedient to the voice of God. Jeremiah records God as saying (7:23): "This thing commanded I them, saying, Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people; and walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you, that ye may be well unto me."

To the Employees of the Industries of Howell:

We feel it is our duty to point out to each of you the several ways in which you may bring about a certain amount of financial independence in years to come.

As we see it, budgeting is more important to piece work employees than to salary workers. Pay checks vary in amount. For persons on a piece work basis, it is difficult to budget the income. It will pay to plan. Planning of this kind is only another way of saying, "Saving". Saving even a little, if done regularly, will grow surprisingly fast. Open a Savings Account on pay day.
