Fruit Salad

Place lettuce leaves on each plate. On this place one slice of pineapple (cut through but left in shape). Over this slice a banana, figs, orange and pears. Put one maraschino cherry or pomegranate seed on top. Use whipped cream or dressing made from the fruit juices sweetened to taste.

The Coleman is a genuine instant lighting iron. All you have to do is turn a valve, strike a match and it lights instantly. You don't have to insert the match inside the iron—no burned fingers. The Coleman heats in a jiffy; is quickly ready for use. Entire ironing surface is heated with point the hottest. Maintains its heat even for the fast worker. Instantly self-heating. Operates for 1/2 an hour. You do your ironing with less effort, in one-third less time. Be sure your next iron is the genuine Instant-Lighting Coleman. It's the iron every woman wants. It's a wonderful time and labor saver—nothing like it. The Coleman is the easy way to iron.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—Several weeks ago, I reported to you the apparent necessity for presidential action in the direction of a curb on spending.

Must Cut Spending

I have written about this subject many times and I have no regret that I have done so, because for a half dozen years our government has been spending money too rapidly.

The President's latest message reviewing the budget situation indicates that the Chief Executive at last has started his thoughts in the direction of curtailed spending. Indeed, Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress in which he asked for a billion and a half dollars for relief purposes was characterized by quite a new note of firmness in his discussion of the need for cutting government costs. I think it is fair to say that in previous messages the President gave little more than lip service to the cause of economy in government. His previous suggestions to congress lacked force. Not so with the current call for a reduction in expenses. It had the earmarks of determination—but it yet remains to be seen whether he will insist strongly upon his conclusions when the showdown with congress comes.

The President's message was interesting in several respects beside the note of firmness, mentioned above. He confessed, for example, that there was no chance for a balanced budget in the next fiscal year. There is no chance, he disclosed, even for achieving the "layman's balance." That "layman's balance" ought to be explained for, my understanding of economics does not contemplate more than one kind of budget balancing, namely, income equalling outgo. But Mr. Roosevelt, in his campaign last year and in his message to congress last January, spoke of "layman's balance" as meaning a balance of income and outgo with the exception of expenditures for relief and for retirement of the public debt. I have heard it described in many quarters as a trick balance which I truly believe it should be called since it is not an honest balance.

In the January message, Mr. Roosevelt talked at length about the necessity for business taking on workers who were then on relief rolls. Only in that manner, he emphasized, could there be a reduction in relief rolls.

In the more recent message, the President omitted any reference to the responsibility of industry for reducing relief rolls by re-employing workers. That is not strange. The fact is, according to the government's own records, that industry is taking on workers at a more rapid rate than the administration had expected. But still there is no hope of a balanced budget this year.

So we must look elsewhere to find the reason. Instead of one, we find two reasons. The first and most important of the two is the fact that, by whatever analysis you make, the New Deal is guilty of continuing to waste money by hundreds of millions and it was not until a few weeks ago that any serious effort was made to choke off this drain, assuming the current effort is serious.

That statement sounds complicated and dull. It is not either one. The unvarnished truth is that Secretary Morgenthau and the flock of experts, trained only in theory, with whom he has surrounded himself, were unable to calculate what the present taxes would produce in revenue. Or, to say the same thing in a few words: Revenue receipts were far below what the Treasury experts guessed they would be.

Thus, the picture seems to be clear. On the one hand, the President heretofore has allowed the alphabetical agencies to run hither and yon in their money spending spree. On the other hand, the lack of competent financial men in the Treasury again is glaringly shown.

To get back to the question of curtailed spending I should like to call attention to the President's Sounds Strong; but— language in his latest message.

He said that he proposed to use "every means at my command" to eliminate the deficit next year. That statement sounds strong enough. I question, however, that it can be called a program of retrenchment. In other words, Mr. Roosevelt was content in his message to congress simply to criticize, if not to denounce, extravagant outlays insofar as new commitments are concerned.

During the last few weeks, Mr. Roosevelt has called upon the various agencies of the government for statements of their financial requirements and something of a review of what they have done with previous funds. Considerable ballyhoo accompanied announcement of this survey of governmental requirement. But again, there was no evidence of specific determination by the Chief Executive as to what governmental activity should be restricted or entirely eliminated. It was like a charge of bird shot. It scattered. There was no target mentioned except in a general way.

There has been some talk that possibly Mr. Roosevelt's message and promise to use every means at his command for curtailing expenditures may have been intended as a message to his own subordinates that definite orders were to follow; that he intended his subordinates should see where they themselves could lop off spending plans, and could put their own houses in order. I hope it works out that way. On the other hand, I entertain very serious doubt that such a procedure will ever cause such individuals as the impetuous Mr. Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, to cut down on his spending. Mr. Hopkins loves to spend money. He seems to be happy when he has billions to spread around, regardless of whether the spending plans really accomplish aid for the destitute. I suspect that congress alone can curb Mr. Hopkins and the only way congress can do so is by declining to appropriate extra money for him.

What I am trying to say in using Mr. Hopkins as the "horrible example," is that Mr. Roosevelt has taught his subordinates to spend money as freely as they can. To a considerable extent, he has let congress have a taste of new spending morsels and what politician does not like to spend money! Therefore, the President is confronted with the necessity of educating both his own subordinates and congress to the new order of conserving taxpayers' money. If he does not accomplish this, we will be saying in another six months what we have said many times—that we are confronted with national bankruptcy.

I cannot believe that the budgetary situation looks any different than it did last January. The difference in the picture is that Mr. Roosevelt at last has begun to see some of the dangers in the situation which he either failed to see or elected to ignore last January. There were few who believed in January that the tax receipts were going to amount to the estimate given congress by the President. The fact that they have fallen short of his calculations by four or five hundred million is a serious thing but it is not so serious that a remedy can not be worked out. The remedy, it seems to me, is a simple use of a simple practice among Americans: When you do not have the money, deny yourself some of the things you would buy if you had the cash.

Mr. Roosevelt's message asking for a billion and a half for relief served to get the collective mind of congress off the Supreme court Relief Message packing plan only temporarily. The relief message caused quite a stir in the house of representatives where there has been a decided move already to continue appropriating huge sums of federal money for relief purposes, but it held the senate off the court question no longer than one business day.

I think there has been no question more frequently asked in my time in Washington than: "Will the President's bill to pack the Supreme court pass?"

I have watched the ebb and flow of the tide of sentiment in the senate constantly since the court packing plan was submitted. As the situation now stands, I believe Mr. Roosevelt has the odds in his favor. There is probably a margin of from five to ten votes on the President's side. Whether that will be the state of affairs when a vote comes, I think no one can foretell because the vote in the senate is going to be close.

Many informal polls of the senate have been taken. The results have varied somewhat. They have varied of necessity because there are many senators who remain non-committal, and who are unwilling at this time to take a position for or against the President's scheme.

One may properly ask why this is. The answer is politics. A good many senators do not know how their home states feel about the plan. That is, they are not able to determine whether there has been a crystallization of sentiment for or against the thing.

Consequently, these senators are trying to wait outside of the playing field until they can tell whether they can be justified in going against presidential wishes or capitulating to the President's command. It is to be remembered that if they turn against the President, they antagonize the administration and particularly the Farley political machine. It is rather unhealthy for a New Dealer or Democrat to oppose the Farley machine.

Another reason why many senators are keeping their own counsel on the court packing scheme is that they believe there will be something in the nature of a compromise come out of the hearings and senate judiciary committee consideration.

Talk About Smart Frocks

"AUNT ALMA, there's just one thing I don't like about my new dress—it's so attractive I'm afraid Sis over there will appropriate it when I'm not looking. Outside of that I'm crazy about it, and I think you're swell to make it for me. Why—"

"What's this, what's this? If that isn't a laugh. Aunt Alma! Imagine me wanting anybody's dress. Why since you've taught me to sew-my-own I never want anything. I just make it and that's that. This sport dress, for instance, took me only one afternoon."

"I think you do wonderfully well with your sewing, my dear. You'll be making my clothes the first thing I know. I feel especially pleased with my new spring dress and I have both of you to thank for suggesting this style. It does right well by my hips, and it's so comfortable through the shoulders. I guess I should diet but in this dress I feel nice and slender. Don't you see, girls, how important it is to choose a style that's particularly becoming? It's adding by this theory that gives some women such enviable chic."

Notes of 50 Years Ago

Dispatch of May 19, 1887
Prospects of abundant fruit. Too many English sparrows.

The trees on the square had to be watered yesterday. It needs more grass seed.

There are 20 saloons in this county. Gusie Markey and friend, Clarence Pattison, of Lansing spent Sunday here.

Dr. Haze has sold $1300 worth of horses so far this year.

L. P. Beebe has sold his furniture business at Fowlerville and come to Pinckney to reside.

Pettyville won a ball game from Brighton last week 19 to 9.

W. B. Hoff left for Cash City, Kan. last week. Mrs. Hoff who is visiting in Canada will go later.

Henry Rice brought in a hen's egg yesterday which measured 7 by 8 in.

Rev. Coddington is attending the ministerial meeting at Lansing. Rev. Johnson will preach in his place Sun.

The Cong'l. church will give a memorial sermon for the G. A. R. boys on Sunday evening, May 29.

The Dayton Hedge Fence Co. of which S. G. Teeple is local agent is resetting the hedges in the village which have died. They have 85 miles of new hedge to set this year.

Mrs. Wm. Placeway and daughter were thrown out of their buggy Sat. night when their horse ran away but escaped uninjured.

Supervisor Brokaw and his jail building committee have decided to follow the plan of the Mt. Pleasant jail in the construction of the Howell jail. It will be two stories. The residential part will be 45 x 32 and the jail part 30 x 32.

The township board of review is in session this week. It consists of Sup. Brokaw, Dan Jackson and David Roberts.

The Fowlerville school has 178 pupils.

Two Chelsea papers, the Echo and Herald have been consolidated.

Mr. Collins of Capac has purchased the Brighton flour mill.

The first graduating class of Brighton high school will receive their diplomas this year.

Clayton township Genesee county had a murder May 14. Two brothers Chas. and James Patterson, got in a drunken quarrel and Charles struck James with an ax, killing him instantly.

On Sat., last, Floris the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moran fell in a tub of cleaning water which had been left in the yard. Other children gave the alarm and it was almost too late to save his life when he was removed from the tub. Medical aid was summoned and it took nearly an hour to bring him too. A barrow was used in the work. Then the ashes etc. in the water which he breathed came near proving fatal.

The milling firm of Grimes and Johnson is one of the busiest in this section. They get their power from a small stream of water. Their turbine wheel is only 21 inches in diameter but 7 inches deep. They make a high grade of flour.

Another oat swindling scheme is being worked similar to the Bohemian racket. This time it is called the Early White Swedish Oats plan. The oats are merely the common kind, sorted and well cleaned. The promoter agrees to furnish the seed to the farm owner for half of the crop. The farmer also signs a contract not to sell his until the following June and for not less than $1.50 per bushel.

WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

By Congressman Andrew J. Trause
Sixth District, Michigan
CCC Extension

Preliminary preparations pertaining to important legislation were completed last week as the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee approved the President's request for $1,500,000,000 for relief and the Senate Judiciary Committee planned to report the Court reorganization plan next week. The House approved the extension of the CCC for two years while a Senate Committee report, favorably a bill to make the CCC a permanent institution.

Since the President submitted his relief estimate along with a recommendation for economy in all government functions Congress has been privately debating the possibility of curtailing the welfare appropriation. A subcommittee decided the appropriation should be cut to $1,000,000,000 but the entire committee rejected this plan and approved the total requested by President Roosevelt. The House will vote on the Committee's recommendation Thursday. With one faction demanding an increase to $2,000,000,000 and another group insisting upon a reduction to a flat billion dollar appropriation the likelihood of request is considered a likely compromise.

Year Congressmen voted with the majority to extend the Civilian Conservation Corps for two years instead of creating another permanent government bureau. While the purposes and results of the CCC have been praised almost universally the majority in the House hopes that the justifying emergency that created the CCC will no longer exist after two years, and that young men of the nation may by that time find normal places in private industry.

The Civil Service feature of the proposed extension was eliminated through the same opposition against making the CCC a permanent institution and another perpetual expense to the taxpayers of the nation. If the Senate approves the measure to make the CCC a permanent government bureau the question of continuing it will have to be settled in a conference of the two Houses.

Last week the Senate Judiciary Committee agreed to hold no more than one or two more executive sessions on the Presidential plan to reorganize the courts and add six new justices to the Supreme Court. A report of the Senate Committee either approving or rejecting the plan is expected this week with the controversial question then open to debate on the Senate floor. President Roosevelt returned to Washington from the southern fishing vacation last week and indicated that he is not considering a compromise on any of his proposals. His intricate plan of government reorganization which was introduced at the beginning of this session, has been sidetracked until after the Court plan is definitely settled.

Michigan Congressmen represent a large section of the sugar beet industry kept in close contact with the sugar situation last week as the House Agricultural Committee was considering the argument between the administration and local producers of cane sugar. Florida sugar cane growers said they were ready to produce their crops without benefit payments and without quota restrictions in open competition with any sugar producing district in the world. The administration wants the present allotments continued in the interests of reciprocal trade agreements.

The Senate last week curtailed and changed the second deficiency appropriation bill with the result that the bill is now in conference between the two Houses. The Senate sliced $1,500,000 from the House total to approve an appropriation of $81,646,412. The curtailment was made in spite of replacing $2,700,000 in the bill for initial construction work on the Gilbertsville Dam in the TVA territory.

Sanitary Records
Compressed air and fumigating machines clean and sterilize all of the documents that are filed in the new Government Archives Building at the apex of the triangle of government buildings in downtown Washington. The printed records are kept in air conditioned vaults that are subdivided by firewalls. The cleaning and fumigating process helps protect the records against the inroads of time, decay and germs.

TO FIND OUT WHETHER WE GOT OUR MANNERS FROM MONKEYS
A article in The American Weekly, with the May 23 issue of The Detroit Times, will point out that scientists of several universities have decided to study the family life of the queer, shy gibbons in their native jungles for new light upon human morals and customs.

A NEW FASCINATING STORY BY VERA BROWN
"Reckless Lady," by Vera Brown, Michigan's Own Author, now in The Detroit Times, tells about a rich playgirl who thought her wealth gave her the right to do as she pleased—until a judge spanked her and she caused death and suffering. Chapters appearing this week are accompanied by a liberal synopsis, so those who have not started reading "Reckless Lady" can do so.

By a vote of 109 to 45 Concord approved a $15,000 bond issue for a new high school gymnasium Monday. It will be 43 by 125 ft with changing and locker rooms.

"SOUND LOANS"

For Bank and Borrower

We do not claim unfeeling ability to anticipate success or failure for any business venture. But through our own experience and that of other banks, we are able to make a sound judgment of the creditworthiness of any business concern. When the borrower understands his business thoroughly and when his integrity is unquestionable.

With these factors of success in favor of a loan, we make it gladly for its use is likely to mean profit to the borrower and safety to our depositories. When our experience indicates the contrary, we feel that we are rendering a valuable professional service (without charge) in so advising the applicant for credit.

We look to such principles as these to help us keep money turning over for constructive loans at this bank.

Montgomery products fatigue. Statistics show that some of our most serious accidents—in fact, the largest percentage of them—are caused by drivers slumping up on straight roads. Possibly the solution is to have wind-up roads, will marked so that the attention of drivers will be on his driving at all times. While many accidents do occur, of course, on hills and curves, a great many others occur on straight, smooth highways.

It's all very well to increase your alertness when the road is full of twists, turns and hills. Never let your self take a nap at any time while driving an automobile.

Two recent cases in Chicago: Oakland bus driver, enroute, suddenly collapsed at wheel. An alert passenger sitting next to him grabbed the wheel and stopped the bus, probably preventing a serious smash-up.

In another instance, a father, sitting at the wheel beside his son, suffered a heart attack, slumped over the wheel and died almost immediately.

When cases certainly emphasize the necessity for drivers keeping in the best condition at all times through right living and periodic physical examinations.

When you check up your motor, check up on yourself.

MOTHPROOF BAGS DEFY FUR EATERS

Fur may continue to flit about in fur coats but they will go hungry if proper precautions are taken in storing furs at home this summer. Garments should be placed in moth proof bags and sealed with gummed paper. Commercial moth preventive may be placed in the bottom of the bag, but should not touch the garment as they often cause discoloration.

Even with these precautions garments should be removed every two weeks and beaten gently on the skin side with a flexible beater to destroy any moth eggs that may be sheltered in the folds.

Home methods of caring for them are relatively inadequate, says Miss Hazel Strahan, associate professor in clothing at the Mich. State College. The ideal method is to put them in the hands of a reputable furrier where they may be put in cold storage for several days at a temperature of 18 degrees and finally at a maintained temperature of 40 degrees.

The moth eggs will not hatch at this temperature and the balanced humidity will prevent the loss of natural oils which will cause the skin to become dry and hard and the hair to lose luster. Included in the cost of storage is usually 3 per cent of valuation is insurance against fire and burglary.

The odd habit of sunning fur is absolutely wrong. Heat and light damage furs by drying out the leather and fading both dyed and undyed furs. Furs may be aired but should be kept out of direct sunlight. Cleaning should be done by the sawdust method of furriers. Dry cleaning solvents dry the natural oil in leather and destroy luster and pliability.

DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION NOTES

One half of the state parks which open on memorial day will have facilities for electric service for auto trailers.

CCC workers who conducted a coyote hunt in the Luddington state park did not see a coyote but counted 25 deer. This herd started from a buck and two does placed there in ten years ago.

Women's groups in the upper peninsula are asking conservation for the trail ing arbutus.

June the 1st is the last date for filing of application s by those who wish to take the conservation examination at Marquette on June 14. 195 applications have been filed so far.

Dickinson county by a large majority voted to come under the land zoning act. This gives the county the right to zone off areas for restricted use such as conservation, game production or farming. Delta and Menominee have been operating under this for some time.

The first class of conservation officers will make a 300 mile trip through the north-central Michigan May 22-28 to see the actual working of conservation. They will visit forest reserves and hatcheries, game preserves etc.

The frog season opens on June 1. There are no restrictions as to size, number or possession but no artificial light can be used. The season ends Oct. 1.

Special caution should be used in shooting black birds as the red-winged black bird and cow bird are protected under a treaty with Mexico.

The smelt harvest broke all records this year, 630,000 lbs. being marketed. Last year the amount was 143,000 lbs.

The April bounty hunters take was the heaviest so far this year, 233 being taken. There were 1119 bobcats, 104 coyotes. The cost was $1500.

The conscience fund has received another contribution. A Huron county resident who took a pine tree, a foot high from the Huron state park recently, sent the dept a one dollar bill.

A recent forest fire at East Tawas killed one man and injured another. A nest of eastern goshawk, a bird uncommon to Michigan, has been found at Houghton Lake state forest.

Commercial fishing fell off three million lbs. in 1936. Herring have replaced trout as the most numerous fish caught.

CHECK ADDRESSES MOTORISTS CAUTIONED

With the approach of the outdoor and summer vacation season, motorists of Michigan are cautioned by Department of state officials to check the home addresses on their drivers licenses.

The 1931 operators and chauffeurs licensing act makes it the duty of operators to notify Leon D. Case, Sec. of State, of changes in address. Forms available at police and sheriff's offices.

In the event of injury or accidental death of motorists, drivers license at times furnish the sole means of identification; only complications result if the addresses are not correct. Department officials point out.

Not infrequently the Department receives queries as to the whereabouts of missing persons believed licensed in this state as a motor vehicle operator. Little aid can be given if a motorist's registered address is not up to date, it pointed out.

COUNTY 4-H CLUB SUMMER PROGRAM

The 4-H Clubs Summer program of Livingston county is getting under way to a fine start. Quite a number of clubs have been organized and their enrollments are in the county office. Their leaders and officers are as follows:

Chester Clark (Garden Club)—leader; Franklin Hotchkiss, pres.; Ruth Clements, vice-pres.; Francis Clark, sec.; Bryce Miller, treas. Albird Seim Mixed Club) leader; Wilber Coyle, pres.; Robert Nixon, vice-pres.; Raymond Strebbing, sec.; Lloyd Fredricks, treas.

Anthony Sober (Mixed Club) leader; Robert Bessert, pres.; Raymond Malettske, vice-pres.; James Sober, sec.; Paul Westmoreland, treas.

Kenneth Steinsacker (Dairy Club) leader; Ronald Maxwell, pres.; Victor Schrepper, vice-pres.; Marshall Sheldon, sec.; Stanley Frederickson, treas.

Voyle Becker (Mixed Club) leader; Lee Gordon Jr., pres.; Junior Lutz, vice-pres.; Geraldine Wildes, sec.; Leon Becker, treas.

Lloyd Miller (Livestock Club) leader; Douglas Miller, pres.; Bryce Miller, vice-pres.; Robert Clements, sec.-treas.

Glady's Allis (Canning Club) leader; Eleanor Fredricks, pres.; Phyllis Contos, vice-pres.; Margaret Nixon, sec.-treas.

Willis Duncan Jr. (Mixed Club) leader; George Wilkinson, pres.; Harold Robb, vice-pres.; George Robb, sec.; Wayne Wilkinson, treas.

Walter Malettske (Sheep Club) leader; Thelma Dean, pres.; Wm. Outwater, vice-pres.; Clare Copeland sec.; Elwood Copeland treas.

Quite a number of other club groups are in the process of being organized. We expect about ten more enrollments in the office in the next two weeks. With the expectation of a good growing summer and with the 4-H Club exhibition coming early in August, we are looking forward to a large membership and a good time in 4-H club work.

If you are interested in becoming a 4-H Club member and haven't already made your plans to do so, a visit to the county agricultural agent's office in the court house or a cord to your club agent H. J. Hart, addressed "Court House, Howell" will bring a response. There is still time to organize colt, dairy crops, pig, canning and foods clubs.

Red Coral Always Prized

It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person. As ancient Gauls rushed headlong into battle, they trusted their safety to their swords, strength and the "magic" coral imbedded in their shields or helmets. Many Italians and Indians regard coral as protection against the "evil eye." The world's red coral comes from the reefs off the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post, and is obtained chiefly by Italians.

(FAITHFUL UTILIZATION)

To Mary Baker, Eddy, the Discover and Founder of Christian Science, confidence in God as the vital power, the sovereign presence, the Father-Mother Mind, outweighed all other influences in her life; and through her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," she has placed this beautiful, practical, and satisfying sense of God within the reach of all mankind.

On page 520 of Science and Health
we find this profound statement:
"Unfathomable Mind is expressed.
The depth, breadth, height, might, majesty, and glory of Infinite Love fill all space. That is enough!" As to the material senses, the sun pours its light and heat upon all the earth, blessing and heartening mankind, so to the spiritual senses of those who gain a right concept of God, comes the glorious assurance of the all-pervading presence and power of the Infinite Mind, which is Love, ceaselessly pouring forth its divine ideas for men to recognize and utilize.
Goodness, wisdom, purity, loving-kindness, justice, mercy, faith, hope, courage, assurance—all these and every other spiritual quality existing in Infinite Mind belong to man by reflection, for he is the idea of God, the expression of God's being.

Let all who find themselves held in cramped and narrow places by the limited sense of things they have hitherto entertained, begin at once to turn thought in the right direction. As the glories of Infinite Mind are steadfastly contemplated, their concept of God will grow and enlarge, and with it will come a joyful sense of freedom and power through the spiritual ability to reject the false beliefs of limitation, lack, and discord. One's daily life and occupations will take on nobler outlines.
Instead of the dread of helpless old age there will be the confident expectation of added wisdom, harmony and fruition; and so the ceaseless incoming of Love's spiritual ideas to human consciousness, and their faithful utilization, will be manifested in our experience in abundant supply.—The Christian Science Monitor.

Shopping is simplified if you carry several small slips of paper on which your name and address are typed. Give a slip to the clerk when making a purchase. You will save the time usually spent in giving your name and address, and avoid all chance of mistakes.

The next time you have a stubborn bottle cap to unscrew, don't wrestle with it. Just try using the nutcracker. You will find that it will grip the bottle cap and unscrew it easily.

PINEAPPLE MARSHMALLOW ICE CREAM made with canned pineapple. (Serves 8.) Place 1/4 pound marshmallows and 1 tablespoon milk in saucepan and heat over a low flame folding over and over until marshmallows are about half melted. Remove from flame and continue folding until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Cool. Then gradually add 1 1/4 cups of crushed canned pineapple and blend. Whip 1/4 pint of whipping cream until stiff and fold into the pineapple marshmallow mixture. Pour into freezing container of still ice cream freezer. Cover and surround with a mixture of chipped ice and salt. Place in ice refrigerator. Freeze one hour, stirring once.

No longer do you need someone's outstretched arms to help wind into a ball yarn or thread that comes in skeins. Simply put the skein over a lamp shade and loosen the top screw of the lamp so that when winding, the shade will continue to go around as fast as you wind.

When children's arms outgrow the sleeves of their leather jackets, sew a knitted wristlet to the sleeve lining at each cuff. This will keep out the winter winds and eliminate that Ichabod Crane effect.

To eliminate soggy bottom crusts in custard pies, bake the pastry shell and custard separately, but in the same pie tin. Bake the custard in a well-oiled tin. After baking, place the custard in refrigerator, preferably in an air-conditioned ice refrigerator so that the custard will not absorb moisture. Then, just before serving, fill the filling out of the pan into the pastry shell and serve at once.

To enable little folk to recognize their own gnomes among dozens of others, paint the steps a bright color.

A CHEESE BISCUIT that you can make yourself? Sift together 1 cup of general purpose flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon paprika. Cut in 1/4 cup shortening. Then add 1/2 cup cheese. Then store in a cool, dry place until such time as you wish to use "in-a-jiffy" hot biscuits. The moist, clean-washed air of the modern ice refrigerator will protect the mix against rapid drying out and against absorbing the odors of other foods. When ready to bake the biscuits, remove the mix from the refrigerator. Then add 1/4 cup milk and 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard. Mix together and blend lightly with a fork. Pat or roll out on a floured board and cut in small biscuits. Place on greased baking sheet and bake in hot oven (450°) for 12 to 15 minutes.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys are not self-cleaning organs. If they become clogged, it is imperative that, if retained, they poison the system and upset the whole body mechanism.
Symptoms may be aching backache, particularly in the lower back, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, a feeling of nervousness and a feeling of general weakness. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wise than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a national reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SYNOPSIS

Jim Fielding, one of the "lost generation" who had left college in the depression and is unable to find a job, arrives at Glendale to visit his friends the MacPhersons. Mac had formerly been a gardener at his late uncle's estate and now works for T. H. Vaughn of "Meadowbrook." Jim is tired of being supported by his married sister Kay. While he still can marry Lenore, an attractive divorcee who is in love with him and has an easy life because of her wealth, his mind rebels. Stopping at the village drug store for a sandwich, he meets Dolly, a pretty soda fountain girl. When he inquires about the Vaughns, she asks if he is a friend of "Cecily's." She also entrusts a message to Tommy, young son of the family and tells him how to reach the Vaughn's estate. Approaching the house, Jim encounters a tomboyish little girl, fishing. She is startled and falls in the brook. Incensed at first, she discovers she likes Jim and he learns that she is Susan Vaughn. He discovers Cecily is her older sister. He sees Tommy, a youth of eighteen who imagines he is in love with Dolly. Jim explains his impetuous position to the MacPhersons. They tell him that Mr. Vaughn is recovering from a nervous breakdown and has been a widower since Sue was a little child. Mrs. MacPherson suggests that Mac give Jim a job as handyman. Jim goes for a walk to think it over and picks up a horse shoe. Soon Cecily, a lovely young girl, appears, riding a limping horse. Jim scolds her when he sees the animal has thrown a shoe. There is an angry scene. Jim's ire cools and he is intrigued as he thinks about her. He tells the MacPhersons he wants to stay and assumes his duties as handyman. He sees Dolly again. She explains that she has been seeing Tommy, but regards him with amusement. When Cecily returns from a house-party she asks him anxiously, "It was your how long you stay?" Jim acts as Mr. Vaughn's part-time secretary. He opens a letter for Vaughn by mistake and learns it is a love message to Cecily from Jeremy Clyde, a young actor of whom her father disapproves. Cecily accuses Jim of being hired to spy on her. Jim comes upon Sue sobbing rebelliously after an encounter with Cecily. Everybody is helpless to quell her. Jim soothes her. Jim writes Lenore, asking to avoid attending a house-party to which she has invited him. Tommy is afraid his father will be wrathful if he discovers his attachment for Dolly and asks Jim to intercede with her to get back letters he has written. Jim decides to use the supposed affair with Dolly as a club over Tommy to make him catch up in his studies.

"Where are we going?" Dolly asked.
"Have you been to 'Dutch's'?" Jim asked.
"Dutch's? Whew!" The exclamation was a whistling sound of pleasure and surprise.
"Is it that sort of place?" Jim asked.
"I've never been there in the evening."
"But I'm not wearing my emeralds," Dolly objected.
"Don't you want to go?"
"Oh, yes!" He knew that she was pleased. Excitement bubbled in her voice. But, after a moment, she said, "You needn't, you know. I mean it's expensive at 'Dutch's.' I'd just as soon go somewhere else. Maple Grove or 'Greenie's' or just ride."

"Hush up!" Jim said, pretending to be offended. "I told you this was an occasion. I have a week's wages in my pocket. Fifteen dollars! Let's shoot the roll!"
"Okay, Mister!" Excitement bubbled again in her odd husky voice.
Jim liked having her there beside him, warm and friendly, as undemanding as a kitten. He was touched by her consideration. If fifteen dollars would buy her a handsome evening, certainly she should have it.

They left the highway, presently, and turned into the road that led through Cherry Hollow. The borough, set in a wooded depression between gently rolling hills, lay before them after a time. In the moonlight it was charming, a village from Hans Christian Andersen, a stage-set for the Pied Piper of Hamelin. The artfully quaint houses, located apparently at random among dogwoods and pines and wild cherry trees, were inhabited by artists, more or less successful, writers, musicians, a sprinkling of less-gifted individuals who enjoyed living in an unconventional community. A stream ran through the hollow, crossed by bridges, dammed, here and there, into pools rimmed with iris and splattered with lily pads.

"This is a cute place, isn't it?" Dolly remarked as the MacPhersons' coupe followed a winding lane.
"Crazy," Jim replied. "The houses couldn't have been built according to an architect's blueprints. I think they sprang up like mushrooms some morning after a heavy rain. This road seems to end in a garden wall. Where do we go from here?"
They had some difficulty in finding their way out. Eventually, however, after an interval of bumping along picturesque but rutty lanes they found the road they had lost.
"This is right," Dolly said encouragingly. "There's the theater over there."
The Cherry Hollow theater was located beside the stream in a depression at the end of the borough.

Jim had known of it before he came to "Meadowbrook," had passed it once or twice riding about the country on his free afternoons. Now as they approached the low stone playhouse, he diminished the speed of the car. The theater had a significance for him aside from its history, its location, its distinctive reputation. Cecily's friend, Jeremy Clyde, was connected in some way with the company here. Perhaps Cecily was here tonight. Perhaps that was where she'd been going when she sped past him through the village.

A performance was obviously in progress. The windows were rectangles of light. A number of cars were parked at the side of the playhouse. But the fawn-colored roadster was not there.

"Going in?" Dolly asked, amiably.
Jim realized, then, that the MacPhersons' coupe had been advancing at a snail's pace, that in the moment Dolly spoke he had stalled the engine.

"Sorry," he said, a little disconcerted. "It's interesting, isn't it?"

The car, its motor purring again, picked up speed on the open road. Dolly told Jim of a "show" she'd seen once when she went to visit her aunt in New York. She recalled the comedian's jokes and sang the hit number of the musical score in her engaging voice. The rhythm was perfect. She remembered all of the words. By the time they had reached "Dutch's," Jim had lost the feeling of being a little out of sorts. They drew up before the roadhouse, singing in a jovial and discordant duet—
"Sing hallelujah, hallelujah!
Sing hallelujah, all the day!"

Jim parked the car and opened the door for Dolly.

The orchestra wore Bavarian costumes. The drummer looked like Old King Cole in suspenders and bare pink knees. The dance floor in the garden was dimly lighted and moonlight sifted down through the branches of lofty trees. Dolly danced with spirit and faultless rhythm, the white beret pressed against Jim's shoulder, the red sandals twinkling across the floor.

Her cheek pressed his shoulder. Her slim rounded body felt firm, buoyant, held lightly in his arms. There was something about Dolly, something piquant, something moving.

They sat in a stall, separated from other stalls by sapling screens covered with vines. A bulb in a swinging lantern made a rosy pleasant light.

Dolly glanced about the garden, her eyes shining, her cheeks naturally pink under the film of raspberry rouge. People were coming in crowds, smart looking people, Jim observed, eyes following Dolly's; dowagers and debutantes, men with a ruddy country look and perfectly tailored clothes, college boys and boys of Tommy's age.

"There's the Patton girl who's to be married soon," she informed Jim, indicating a party just entering the garden.

"The redhead?" Jim asked, not particularly interested.
"No, the dark one. And that's the man she's going to marry. They're friends of Ce— of Miss Vaughn's. She's to be a bridesmaid at the wedding."

"Yes?" Jim was still apparently indifferent. But the small vivacious brunette held his attention now. She had, or was to have, a homespun countenance for a shower gift. Cecily had seen Mrs. MacPherson unpacking his trunk. Cecily! Where was she now? . . . He brought his straying attention back to Dolly.

"You know," he said looking at her intently, "you don't look like the sort of woman who drives young men to the ends of the earth."

The flax-blue eyes, rayed with mascaraed lashes, widened in surprise.

"I?" she asked. "The ends of the earth?"

Jim nodded.
"But who?" she asked. "You're kidding. You've got me mixed up with Greta Garbo. I'm laughing."

"It's no laughing matter, young lady," Jim maintained a grave expression. "A young man confided in me tonight." He took a crumpled envelope from his pocket. "Here's his farewell message. I hope it will teach you a lesson."

She took the envelope from Jim, glanced at the inscription.

"Oh, Tommy!" Amusement glinted in her eyes. "What's it, all about. I thought he'd jilted me."

"He wants the letters he's written you. You've kept them, I suppose."

"Oh, yes!" She laughed. "They're tied up with pink ribbons and pressed forget-me-nots. Why does he want them?"

"He's afraid you may sue him for breach-of-promise."

"Well I'll—I!" A sort of amused tenderness replaced the startled expression in her eyes. "I guess I shouldn't have gone out with him. Didn't you tell him? I mean, you don't think I'd do anything so—so crazy, do you?"

"No to both questions," Jim replied.

"Why not?"

"If you don't mind, I'm going to use you to make Tommy work off his school obligations."

She slipped the letter, unopened, into the pocket of her coat.

"I'm a girl scout. No, I don't mind." She glanced at him quickly, shrewdly. "What do you care?"

she asked. "About Tommy, I mean. Or is he part of your job?"

"He seems to be. I don't know. He's a nice kid."

Dolly looked away.
"You're losing interest in me," he said plaintively. "You keep looking off over there. Who is it? Somebody you know?"

"It's Cecily Vaughn," she said. "Over there in the booth beside the orchestra. She's with the Clyde fellow from the theater."

Cecily sat with her elbows propped on the table, her chin resting in the cupped palms of her hands. Jim, from his position, at the other end of the dance floor, saw her profile, the curls over her ears under a small soft hat, her straight nose, her firm round chin, her long slender throat melting into the ruffled blouse.

His eyes turned from Cecily to her companion. Jeremy Clyde was a dark romantic-looking young man with a beautiful profile and hair a ripple too wavy. He was slight but well-built and not much taller than Cecily. He didn't look "artistic." He was immaculately dressed in clothes conventional in material and cut. But he did look "pretty," somehow, and, somehow, again, well aware of the fact.

The orchestra made preliminary sounds. In a moment the melody of a waltz floated out into the night.

He deserved that, Jim thought. He needn't have defended Dolly so vigorously.

"Jim," she said, breaking a lengthening silence. "Will you do something for me?"

"I'm afraid I can't," he said briefly. He'd thought that to put her in her place would give him a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. It wasn't working out that way. He felt a little embarrassed, instead. He'd sounded like a prig.

"It isn't what you think," she assured him. "I don't care if you tell Father that I was with Jerry tonight. That isn't important. Father knows how I feel about Jerry. What I want you to do for me is important."

"I mean, will you hear my side of the story?" she continued, in earnest now, the bantering tone gone out of her voice. "Even if we are enemies—Let's call it a court-room confession. The prisoner at the bar has a right to be heard, hasn't he? You know only Father's side. Jim," she said, "it isn't infatuation. I'm awfully in love with Jerry."

He hadn't expected a statement so simple and sincere. He hadn't expected directness from Cecily. This frank appeal to his sympathies was more devastating than cajolery or tricks.

"Father's so pig-headed," she went on. "He is, Jim. He's as obstinate as a mule."

"That doesn't mean I'm not fond of Father," she continued. "I am fond of him and proud of him. But he is pig-headed. I think it's stupid to be fond of people blindly, to admire your father just because he is your father, if he isn't an admirable person. It doesn't make you love people less to know their weaknesses. Sometimes it makes you love them more."

"If Mother had lived it would have been different," she went on, after a moment. "Father adored her. After she died he did nothing but work. We've never known him until this summer. He doesn't know us at all. He's never paid any particular attention to us, except to blow us up when he couldn't avoid the issue."

She paused, turned to him with an apologetic smile. "Am I boring you unbearably? Tell me if I am. That wouldn't be a tactful approach to a request."

"You aren't boring me," Jim assured her. "I'm interested."

"You see," she went on presently. "I want to do something with my life. I found that out the winter I was a debutante. It was fun at first but I got awfully bored. I wanted to do something. I told you once that I'm the tortoise-shell cat who thought she was a lion. I look like somebody who does interesting things, at least to myself I do, and I'm always sure that I'm going to be a shining success. But I have no particular talents."

"One," Jim said. "You dance beautifully. And one other, at least, you play a swell game of tennis."

"But—I don't do either well enough," she replied. "I wanted to be terribly interested in something. I was getting discouraged, and then I met Jerry." Her voice caressed the name. "I found Jerry," she went on, "and I found myself. I knew that Jerry was my job. Jerry has more than a touch of genius. But he needs a tremendous amount of encouragement and sympathy and understanding."

"How old are you, Cecily?" Jim asked, moved by her sincerity, vaguely alarmed for her, unaware that he was asking her a personal question or that he had addressed her, intimately, using her name.

"Twenty," she replied. "I know what you're thinking," she added. "You're thinking that I'm pathetically young and romantic and idealistic."

"No," he protested. "No, you aren't."

"But I had to tell you all this so you'd understand," she went on. "I want Father to know Jerry. Father has the quaint idea that actors and artists are lily-like creatures, indolent and as soft as mush, with no, what he terms moral fiber. They aren't. Jerry isn't, at least. He can beat me at tennis and swim like a fish. He's well-read and well informed. He's serious about his work. I want Father to know him."

CHAPTER VI

Cecily was waiting for him when he returned to "Meadowbrook." The instant he saw her car standing in the lower end of the drive, Jim felt that he had known she would be there. The fawn-colored roadster blocked his progress.

"Good evening," he said distantly.

"I have a flat tire," she announced.

"You could have run up to the garage on the rim."

"Could but didn't," she said apologetically.

"Why didn't you?"

"I thought you would be coming along this way soon."

"Oh! Well, I won't try to fix it here. Drive on up to the garage."

"You drive for me." It was scarcely a command. Her voice was as soft as silk. "It's so hard to steer with a flat on the front wheel." And taking his acquiescence for granted she moved over from under the steering wheel.

Jim opened the door and took the place she had vacated.

"You don't sound very—clubby," she said. "Are you hungry or sleepy or anything?"

"No."

"That's good. I want to talk."

"But why to me?"

"Oh, enemies intrigue me. May I have a cigarette?"

Jim supplied a cigarette and a light. In the flare of the match he saw distinctly the golden lights in her eyes. His hands were aware of her. He flicked the match into the drive.

"Thank you." She made herself comfortable again. "Did you have a pleasant evening?"

"Very pleasant."

"Dutch's is fun. Good orchestra. I didn't know that the girl in the drug-store was a friend of yours."

"She's a nice kid," he said. "Amusing. Good dancer."

"I'm sure she is." Cecily's voice was sullen. "I meant no disparagement. You needn't get out your duelling pistols."

He desisted that, Jim thought. He needn't have defended Dolly so vigorously.

"Jim," she said, breaking a lengthening silence. "Will you do something for me?"

"I'm afraid I can't," he said briefly. He'd thought that to put her in her place would give him a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. It wasn't working out that way. He felt a little embarrassed, instead. He'd sounded like a prig.

Household Questions

Date Pie—Two cups milk, half pound dates, two eggs, one-quarter teaspoon salt, nutmeg. Cook dates with milk twenty minutes in top of double boiler. Strain and rub through sieve, then add eggs and salt. Line pie plate with paste, pour in filling and bake in quick oven at first to set rim, decrease heat afterwards.

Oiling Household Machinery—A little oil applied when needed will keep household machinery working longer and always ready for work. You can use cooking or salad oil to lubricate small cooking equipment.

When Washing Paint—Add a little turpentine to the hot soapy water. It greatly simplifies the job and makes much less "elbow grease" necessary, especially when the paint has that rather greasy film caused by the fumes from fires or gas stoves.

Angel Cake—One cupful of white of eggs, one and one-quarter cupfuls of granulated sugar. One cupful of flour. One-half teaspoon cream of tartar. A pinch of salt added to whites before whipping; flavor to taste. Cook in a very slow oven. Yolks of the eggs may be used for mayonnaise.

Dust-Proofing Pictures—Has the dust got into your picture frame? It should be examined periodically and new brown paper backings should be stuck on to make it dust-proof.

Garbage as a Compost—Garbage and vegetable matter of all sorts buried underground will in time rot into excellent compost for use on lawn, garden or field.

Cleaning Reed Furniture—A stiff brush dipped in furniture polish is good for cleaning reed and rattan furniture.

Knowledge

WE GREEDILY ask of a man, "Does he know Latin or Greek? Does he write poetry or prose?" But whether he has become better or worse we never care a straw. We ought to ask, not who knows the most, but who knows the best. In true education anything that comes to our hand is as good as a book. So examine every man's talent, a peasant, a bricklayer, a passerby. You may learn something from all, each in his own line, of the real affair of this earth—how to live and die well.—Montaigne, 1533-1592.

Gas, Gas All the Time, Can't Eat or Sleep

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. My friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."—Mrs. Jas. Miller.
Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.
Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful cures GAS and constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

STATE LEGISLATURE

The basic science bill has passed both houses and awaits the governor's signature. This provides that chiropractors must have expert medical knowledge.

A stormy session took place at the public hearing on the proposed milk control bill. This would give a board elected by the farmers, consumers, and distributors power to regulate the milk industry. It is patterned after the Indiana control act. It was defended by the Mich. Milk producers and the Grange and opposed by the Farmer's Union. Among those who spoke against it was Charles Lockwood, Detroit, Roy McDonald, vice president of the Farmers' union, Rep. James Helm, Adrian and Walter Nelson, Detroit. The bill will be reported out this week.

The new auto damage bill was reported out. This would have juries base the amount of damages given in damage suits on the earning power of the victim.

The slaughter of the innocent would be curbed by a new boxing bill. Many are making more out of amateur bouts than professional ones. Many amateurs are matched with professionals for buildup purposes only. $118,000 were taken in at these bouts last year. No tax is paid by them.

Gov. Murphy signed these bills last week. They are:

A bill authorizing county drain commissioners to establish the levels on inland lakes.

A bill to permit a county to levy a two mill tax after a referendum for the improvement of port districts.

A bill to authorize boards of supervisors to loan money to school districts.

A bill authorizing municipal judges to perform marriage ceremonies anywhere in the county.

A bill to eliminate the minimum sentence for destruction by explosives.

A bill to correct the act regulating the practice of law.

The House approved these bills on final passage. They are:

The Brake bill, making the misbranding or selling of a domestic animal, afflicted with tuberculosis or Bang's disease a misdemeanor. Speakers declared Bang's disease is predominate and the law is necessary.

The Fenlon-Nagel bill to prorate oil production.

The Watson bill to exempt all insurance benefits from garnishment.

The Fitzgerald-Brown bill revising the building code for cities over 10,000.

The Schriber bill establishing a system of firemen's pensions.

The Murphy-Watson bill making FHA debentures acceptable as collateral for deposits of public funds.

The Watson bill, relative to the use of seals on real estate instruments.

The Watson bills to make deeds legal without witnesses and the date of the notary's commission and the marital status of the parties.

The Morley bill providing for the disposition and sale of stolen property recovered by the state police.

The Steele bill providing a $1 fee for disco netting.

The bill asking that relief labor be used in sugar beet fields instead of imported Mexicans.

The House killed the Walsr bill making unpaid water bills a lien against property and the Diehl bill making every hunter a conservation officer with power to arrest game law violators.

MORE BANK ROBBERIES PULLED THIS WEEK

The bank robbers who have pulled off six successful robberies, since Jan. 1, 1937, evidently have become emboldened for they robbed three more banks this week, bringing the number up to 9. The banks robbed were the Newport bank, Oxford, and Lapeer. The last two were robbed by the same gang only about an hour apart. The total loot was about $10,000. Commissioner Olander of the state police stated that an increase in the state police is necessary if the robberies are to be stopped.

THE MATHEWS BILL

A large number of school districts in the state will be able to obtain financial relief from the delinquent tax situation if the Mathews bill now before the House of representatives here, passes and becomes a law. The bill, introduced by Senator C. F. Mathews of Mt. Clemens, passed the senate recently with plenty of votes to spare.

School districts with a school population of less than 1,500 would be eligible to participate under the act which would create a fund of $500,000 to loan to districts suffering from a heavy tax delinquency.

"This act would prove highly beneficial to many school districts that are burdened with tax problems," Dr. Eugene Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction declared. "It is a wise piece of legislation and educators are looking forward to its passage by the lower house and then approval by the governor."

The amorphophallus, which produces the largest flowers in the world, is so big that a man standing upright can barely reach the top with the tip of his fingers and can only reach all way round the circumference.
