

Dr. Claude L. Sigler Passes Away

Prominent Pinckney Citizen Dies Suddenly

Pinckney's First Citizen Dies Suddenly Early Sunday Morning From a Heart Attack. His Death Ends 41 Years of Active Service as a Physician and Public Official.

The people of this section were shocked Sunday morning to hear of the sudden death of Dr. Claude L. Sigler from a heart attack at 3:00 A. M. Sunday. He had not been in good health for some time and had a severe attack of the flu this past winter from which he failed to entirely recover. However he resumed the practice of his profession and was making calls and attending patients at his private hospital Saturday. In the evening he complained of not feeling well and took some bicarbonate of soda. Failing to improve Mrs. Sigler became alarmed and called his son, Dr. Hollis Sigler, who came over. His father was sinking when he arrived and passed away a short time afterward.

The Sigler family are one of the pioneer families of this section and can be traced way back to the Revolutionary War. According to the records a Sigler was one of the Hessians sent over from Germany to fight with the English army against the American patriots. He knew nothing of the war or its causes and sympathizing with them, deserted the British army and went over to the Americans. He married and raised a family. His son, Jacob Sigler, was one of Pinckney's early pioneers and took up land in Putnam township in 1833. His second son, Hollis Frederick Sigler, married Miss Lelia Haze, daughter of Dr. Charles W. Haze, who had been practicing medicine in Pinckney since 1845. Dr. Hollis F. Sigler graduated from the University of Michigan in 1875 and went into partnership with his father-in-law, Dr. Charles Haze. Dr. Haze died in 1890. Dr. Claude Sigler was born in 1873 and in 1896 he graduated from the medical department of the University of Michigan and entered into partnership with his father. In 1898 they purchased the residence of the late Thompson Grimes and remodeled it into a sanitarium. This has since been in steady operation during which time thousands of patients have been treated there. Dr. Hollis Frederick Sigler died in 1926 but by that time Dr. Hollis L. Sigler, it would be impossible to picture.

Dr. Claude Sigler was united in marriage to Miss Mildred Sykes in 1893. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Sykes and a granddaughter of Samuel Sykes, early pioneer. Two sons were born to this marriage, Hollis L. in 1898 and Donald C. in 1900. The former is a physician in Howell and the latter is employed by the Ford Motor Co. at Dearborn.

During his lifetime Dr. Claude Sigler was called upon to serve in many places in public life. He was village councilman, village president, member of the school board and at one time acting superintendent of the Michigan State Sanitarium at Howell. During his term as village president the first fire engine was purchased and the present fire hall built. When the Pinckney State Bank was organized he was elected its president and served in that capacity during its existence. He was a life member of Livingston Lodge No. 18 F. & A. M., being raised in 1895 by his father, who served as master for six years. His grandfather, Dr. Charles Haze was the first master of this lodge and served in that capacity for 11 years. On March 29, 1935, he was granted a life membership by the lodge and was there in person to receive it.

When the Masonic temple burned in 1921, he with Thomas Reed and Larry VanWinkle, both now deceased, were appointed on the Masonic building committee and through their efforts the present Masonic block was built with stones on the first floor and lodge rooms above. Of late years his health had been good and he has avoided publicity. He had a pleasant personality and the faculty of making friends. His practice was large and extended for a radius of many miles. Of a generous disposition and filled with ready sympathy he probably has like all country doctors thousands and thousands of friendships and also the same amount of uncollected accounts. He will be sorely missed for his father and grandfather, before him were the leading figures in this community for nearly 100 years.

The Pinckney Sanitarium, Established in 1898 by Dr. Claude Sigler and his father Dr. H. F. Sigler.

son of Dr. Claude Sigler, had graduated from the University of Michigan medical department and became associated with his father and so there were still two Dr. Siglers operating the Pinckney Sanitarium. Just what will happen now has not been decided. Dr. Hollis Sigler has an excellent practice at Howell and may be loath to give it up. However it is hoped that he will see his way clear to do so as the Pinckney Sanitarium without a Dr. Sigler presiding over

SHOWMAN IS FINED $5

James Ellis, proprietor of the Ellis tent show which exhibited in Pinckney on May 17 was fined $5 in Justice Knapp's court for carrying a revolver without a license. During a disturbance at the show he fired a 22 pistol into the ground. The bullet struck a tree root glanced and hit Paul Singer in the index finger of his right hand, causing a wound. Ellis failed to get out a warrant for the one he claimed made the disturbance and they were released after a lecture by Prosecutor Berriman.

Pinckney School Notes Catholic Church Service

The freshman class, chaperoned by Mrs. Alice Wilson, enjoyed a weiner roast at Newport Beach, Portage Lake, last Thursday night after school.

The school grounds have been landscaped and the new building is now up, thanks to the spring rains. It presents an attractive appearance.

The business mens volleyball playing seems to have ended but the boys of the school are still playing Tuesday night.

The high school baseball team lost a close game to Hartland there last Friday 12 to 14. Keith Ledwidge pitched a good game, most of the hard runs being scored by him. He left the box. The boys did not expect to do much this year as none had ever played before but just watch them next year. They expect to have new suits then.

Maybe the school will have to build a dormitory to house the teachers. We understand that some of them who desire to rent houses here cannot find any.

The following are the members of the graduating class of the Pinckney high school: Lucile Kirklund, Winston Baughn, Julie Stackable, George William Dyer, Alger Lee, Emmett Clark, Arline Thorpe, Russell Smith, Rose Lupo, Joan L. Spears, Marjorie Haines, Elaine Kulbicki, Mercedes Merrill, William Brown, Raymond D. Ellis, Lois A. Kennedy, Nelson Sheehan, Maclean Ledwidge, June Lamb, Vernie MacRorie, Edward D. Howell and Jeanne Clinton. Commencement is June 23.

Jeanne Clinton has attended school in St. Catharines, Ontario, this year but preferred to graduate here and had enough credits to do so.

TO DOCTOR CLAUDE

Because of him—
Our lives are brighter,
His acts of mercy for you and me,
His genuine missions
made loads lighter.
Like a rough-hewn diamond,
our friend we see.
Because of him—
Our blessed event,
Ten years and more I see,
Thus, as each duty
was graciously spent.
Second Savior—a martyr to mercy.
Because of him—
Our pains we could bear,
Relieved by his word or a touch,
His conscience led him
to those needing care.
The poor or the rich
never worried him much.
Because of him—
Was charity taught.
A lesson for me, for you,
A heart was the only gold
that he sought.
"Never mind," he'd say,
"We'll get through."
Because of him—
Our secrets he bore,
Of health and wealth and love,
No wonder we miss him
more and more.
God needs him in realms up above.
Because of him—
We heard folks say,
"He belongs to us right here,
"What will happen to-morrow—today?"
The outlook of life they do fear.
Because of him—
A life was spared,
In many homes,
both near and far,
In him we put a love,
a trust, a care,
God's gift to man—Doctor Sigler.
Because of him—
We'll carry on,
For he would say with a grin,
In a gently rough voice,
"March on."
And we will—because of him.

News of the State Legislature

Senate Sets May 24 as the Deadline For the Introduction of Bills Important Measures To Be Pushed. Adjournment Soon

The legislature took a step toward adjournment last week when they set May 24 as the final day for the introduction of new bills. With the doors closed to new measures adjournment is looked for by possibly June 15.

The following are the most important measures which it is expected will soon be brought to a vote: 1. The Civil Service Bill; 2. The $25,000,000 Hospital Building Program; 3. Reorganizing State and Local Welfare Agencies; 4. Consolidation of Prison, Parole and Probation Depts.; 5. Occupational Disease Bill; 6. Labor Relations Act.

The capital punishment bill which has been in the judiciary committee for months is due to stay there as Chairman Watson of Capac says there is no demand for it.

The labor inspection bill giving the labor dept. power to enter any place where labor is employed for inspection purposes passed the house and goes to the senate.

A bill permitting Sunday Lase ball games only where the receipts went into a fund for hospitals for the insane was introduced by Reps. Lepczyk and Kircher but later withdrawn. The state banking bill passed the senate with but one dissenting vote. It repeals many obsolete laws and takes all banks conform to federal reserve and deposit regulations. In it bank stockholders are relieved of the double liability. The bill consists of 280 pages.

The state appropriated $150,000 to advertise 1938, as a tourists center. Four tourist associations were given $25,000 a year but all expenses will be at the discretion of the state administrative board.

The effort to prevent clubs in the cities from selling hard liquor by the glass when the city forbids such sales failed 31 to 36. Also the law that all clubs must have a minimum entrance fee of $10 and $10 per year dues.

The house voted to submit the law increasing the governor's salary to a vote of the people in November 1938.

The property qualifications for electors of school or city was abolished by the house. The bill yet has to pass the senate.

The house passed 76 to 11 the Egan bill providing township officers shall be elected every 2 years instead of every one year as is now the law. This will also have to be voted upon by the people.

The amendment providing for the appointment instead of election of supreme court justices will be voted on the ballot in November 1938.

Riding on the fender, bumper or running board of a car would be a misdemeanor under a bill passed last week by the house 63 to 20.

Under a bill passed by the house, the salaries of the governor, Lt. governor, speaker, secretary of state, auditor general, attorney general and state treasurer could be set by the legislature. This is also a constitutional amendment and requires a vote by the people.

The amount in the bill to divert $10,000,000 from the sales tax to the highway fund has been cut in two.

80 war veterans are fighting loss of their state jobs as a result of the state election last fall. They will be given a hearing by Edward Kemp secretary to the governor.

Rep. Eaton's resolution abolishing the offices of highway commissioner and highway overseers in the townships passed the house and goes to the senate. Now that the county has taken over the roads there is little for these officers to do but according to law they must be on the ballot.

Another suspect has been arrested in the bank robbery epidemic. He is William O'Brien, 27, nabbed by G-men at St. Louis, Missouri. He had some $1300 in small bills on him which he claimed he won gambling. He is said to have been identified as one of the Plymouth bank robbers from photographs. Anthony Selinski 33, also identified by photographs as one of the robbers has been released. When brought face to face with those present at the robbery he could not be identified. Both men arrested are ex-convicts with police records.

GERYCZ-BATES

The marriage of Miss Helen Gerycz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gerycz of Pinckney to Bud Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bates of Detroit took place at the Our Lady of the Rosary Church, Detroit, last Saturday morning. The couple were attended by Stephen Gerycz as best man and Mrs. John Metzgar as bride-maid. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. John Gerycz, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reason and daughter, Shirley, Miss Helen Petras and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Bates and family. After a short trip the new couple will be at home in Detroit. The bride is a graduate of the Pinckney High school class of '35 and has been employed in the Leland and Statler hotels in Detroit for some time. The groom is a former radio announcer and is employed in the credit department of Grinnell Bros. In behalf of their many friends here we wish them a happy wedded life.

Current Comment

The house trailer seems to be rapidly becoming a problem in cities. Originally intended for use only on tours and camping trips, many people are using them for permanent residences. With the return of prosperity the demand for labor in the cities created a housing shortage and caused rents to soar. To overcome this people who came here from other states purchased auto trailers and made them their homes. This caused congestion and the sanitary laws were usually ignored. Some places have passed laws against the use of the trailer as residences but the issue is mostly unsettled.

The biggest surprise of the past week was the resignation of Supreme Court Justice VanDevanter and this despite repeated assurances of the conservative press that the justices would stand firm against President Roosevelt's supreme court proposal. The press unfriendly to the president by twisting facts and distorting things endeavor to make his resignation appear as a defeat for the president if any one is able to follow their line of reasoning. The facts are that the justice surrendered on the eve of the big battle before even firing a shot. The Lansing State Journal seems to have partly hit the nail on the head when it says in an editorial that Justice VanDevanter could not take defeat. He has always been an arch conservative and now that Justice Roberts has turned liberal, VanDevanter could see nothing but defeat for his opinions in the supreme court decisions yet to be so stepped out. It is claimed that at least three other supreme court resignations will be soon forthcoming.

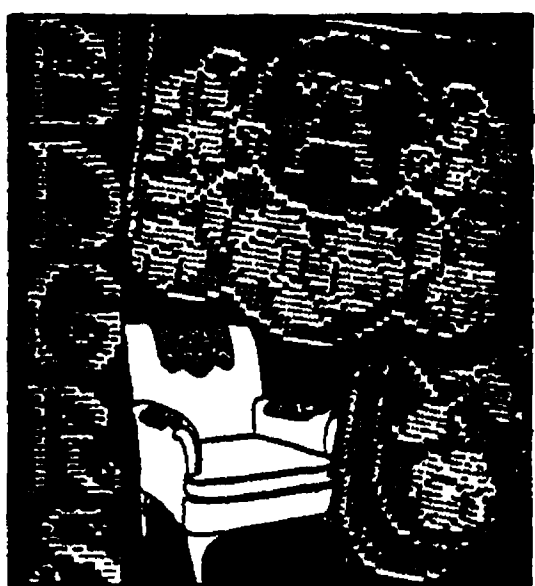

Strike strikes everywhere seems to be the prevailing fashion of the day now they are spreading to the schools. In Flint a strike was staged last week by the pupils because three teachers suspected of being union sympathizers were discharged. The teachers are Carolyn Stearns, English instructor, Morris Roum, grade teacher and Edward Albusky, music teacher. Two other union sympathizers, Shirley Olmstead and Lydia Stearns were reinstated. Teachers' Union is said to have the support of the I.A.W. and a big mass meeting of protest against their discharge was held there Sunday. Pat O'Brien who defended the 4 teachers in the public hearing May 5 was the speaker. In the Harrison school in Macon Co., another school strike was held. There Victor Marlowe was discharged by a board by a 3 to 2 vote. President North voted against the discharge and his son led the sit-down strike of 130 pupils against the discharge of Marlowe. Police protection had to be called for the school. Undoubtedly the school teachers are being unionized or organized. The purpose of the movement is higher wages and to safe guard them against loss of their jobs when their efficiency is not questioned.

The average person is still puzzled by the Spanish conflict. The remark jokingly made that the fascists are losing because their soldiers all speak different languages and cannot understand one another is partially true as there are many Italians, Germans, Moors and Polish, fighting in the insurgent army. On the other hand the loyalists undoubtedly have received aid from other countries, France, Russia and England and even the United States as no less celebrated soldier than Major Lamphera, former commander of Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, is said to be one of their star aviators. Undoubtedly outside supplies and soldiers have prolonged the conflict and if no one had been involved in it but the Spanish people it would have been settled long ago. Just why Americans, British and French should espouse the cause of the loyalists or the reds is not clear. However it is stated that 500 Americans have already been killed fighting on this side.

Despite the fact that Mickey Cochran has won two pennants for Detroit, the first since the days of Hughie Jennings, some 25 years ago he does not seem to be popular in some quarters there. Now an effort is being made to make the Schoolboy Rowe suspension a case of persecution on his part. This is all bunk and certain sports writers are trying to make a name for themselves by attacking a prominent figure. The truth of the matter is that Rowe through carelessness as to condition is not able to deliver. There is as much sense to this as to the attack of Tod Rockwell. Free Press sports writer on Harry Kipke. Kipke is no more to blame for Michigan's bad showing of recent years than the man in the moon. The truth of the matter is that the college authorities got virtuous and let other colleges grab the high school stars. No rise of Michigan State and see the lineup of their team Kipke just was not given any material to work with. A number of years ago Pinckney high school was winning class "D" football championships, county baseball titles and getting into the semi-finals in the state basketball tournaments. Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."
—Mrs. Jas. Miller.
Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shush, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Drugstores.

This Memorial Day

by Lois L. Harty

HERE is something in the air on Memorial day that grips the heart. With lumps in our throats, we see the time-scarred Civil war veterans ride by, and wonder how many will be left in the ranks for another year. With our tears, we water the flowers on the graves of our soldier dead on Memorial day. We think of those who fell in the fray of all wars and are infinitely sad.

But, while we muse, a band sweeps down the street to a stirring martial air. The glorious stars and stripes float before our eyes. Our pulses quicken and we thrill through and through with patriotism. For the moment, we forget the sorrow and futility of war and the pitiful mounds in which our soldier boys are sleeping.

Truly, our emotions are at war on Memorial day. Then, as at no other time, we realize that our intellect is a mere atom afloat on a sea of feeling. Intelligence tells us that war never settled anything. Emotion tells us that when the band plays and the flag floats by, we can do no less than join in the parade and be the first to step forth for our country when we are challenged.

While we stand beside the heroes' graves and reflect, we should make a solemn resolve that, inasmuch as we are able, we shall see that "these dead shall not have died in vain." The lad in blue or olive drab would have fallen joyfully if he could have gone with the assurance that he was giving up his life that those at home would have their future safely assured, and that boys to be born after him would be spared the horror he had known on the battlefield.

They, dying, threw the torch to us. This Memorial day, let us resolve anew to hold it high and work for abiding peace in all nations.

Memorial Day Not Same Date in All the States

WHILE May 30, Memorial day, is a legal holiday in most of the states, there are ten in which it is not, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. With the exception of New Mexico, where the day is nevertheless observed, these states are all in the old South. Most of them have memorial days of their own.

The date most commonly observed as Confederate Memorial day is April 26, a holiday in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi. May 10 is the Confederate Memorial day in North Carolina and Kentucky, the latter observing May 30 also. June 3, Jefferson Davis' birthday, is the Tennessee Memorial day, besides being observed for its own sake in the other southern states.

More Labor Troubles

Washington.—The nation is continuing to witness labor disturbances of an exceedingly serious character. Many persons thought when the big sit-down strikes in the automobile industry were settled without serious bloodshed that we were on the way out of labor trouble in this country. The feeling in this regard had some confirmation when the great United States Steel corporation reached an agreement by which John L. Lewis and his faction of organized labor was recognized as the sole bargaining agency on wages for the greatest single unit of steel.

Unhappily, those circumstances were not indicative of an end. They did not preclude peace between labor and employers. The conflict is continuing and, I believe, holds the elements of much more danger than we have yet experienced. Because of the conditions that are now apparent and those which happen to lie ahead, the recent speech by Edward McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, becomes both interesting and significant. Mr. McGrady, it will be remembered, made a speech at Atlantic City, New Jersey, in which he said boldly to the members of the garment workers union that if labor and capital both are to survive, there must be a sincere effort on the part of each group to understand the problems of the other. He reduced the differences between employer and employee to the simple formula, namely, that representatives of each side, if they expect to do justice by their own people, must sit down at a table and talk things over honestly.

Now, the Assistant Secretary's interest in labor cannot be questioned. He is a former official of organized labor. During his term as Assistant Secretary he has been exceedingly active and earnest in his attempts to solve labor problems and bring about industrial peace. His efforts at conciliation cover the range from the bitter maritime strike on the west coast to the more or less inconsequential sit-down strike of a hundred employees in a hotel here in Washington.

So, it seems thoroughly fair to assume that any advice given by Mr. McGrady must include absolute justice for the workers.

Mr. McGrady believes that the irresponsible practices which lead employers to treat labor representatives as agitators are due to ignorance. On the other hand, you cannot help reading between the lines of his recent speech an inference at least that he regards some labor representatives as quite as irresponsible as some employers. His view in this regard is indicated by the stress, the emphasis, which he laid upon the importance of discipline among union members together with his assertion that labor must recognize the sanctity of its contract with the employers just as much as the employers must recognize the validity of their contract with labor.

Mr. McGrady pointed out what losses result from shut downs or strikes and declared that the efficiency in production, which the country has a right to expect from industry, cannot be achieved unless labor and capital work together.

Further, the Assistant Secretary observed that "responsible labor leadership" must place efficiency and elimination of waste and loss among its objectives if organized labor is to achieve a worthwhile goal.

Mr. McGrady's exposition of his conception of relations between employer and employee comes as something of a ray of hope to the great masses of American citizens who are neither employers of labor nor members of labor unions. I have said in these columns before and I repeat that the tragedy of conflict between employer and employee, organized capital versus organized labor, lies in the fact that there are millions of people in the role of innocent bystanders. They are the individuals who suffer most. It is inevitable that they must suffer because in a nation whose commerce and industry is as complex as ours, every time capital or labor abuses the powers entrusted into its hands, those who are not members of either group pay a penalty which is not possible of measurement.

This characteristic of life obtains not alone in the United States. It exists in every civilized country to the extent that that country is industrialized. There is no better evidence of the truth of the statements I have just made than an incident which occurred a few days ago in the house of commons in London. Stanley Baldwin, prime minister of England, and one of the most powerful men among foreign statesmen today, called attention to "a dark cloud" which he saw on the economic horizon of time.

Mr. Baldwin was speaking to his colleagues in the house of commons something in the nature of a valedictory because he is soon to retire from public office after three decades of service to his government. I happened to have had the privilege of close contact with Mr. Baldwin when he headed his country's debt refunding commission to the United States more than fifteen years ago. From that association I learned to respect his mental capacity and his ability to foresee coming events. When he says, therefore, that labor and capital must be honest with each other, I cannot help feeling that Mr. Baldwin foresees the possibility of bloody clashes and unsound results in the offing, conditions that will flow from the abuse of power.

Mr. Baldwin told the house of commons that: "You will find in our modern civilization, that just as war has changed from being a struggle between professional armies with civilians comparatively uninterested in it, so the weapons of industrial warfare have changed from arms that affected comparatively small localized business into weapons that affected directly those who have no concern whatever with the issue except perhaps natural sympathy with their own class."

The British prime minister added that, under such circumstances, "the one thing we must pray for, not only in our statesmen, but also in trade union leaders and masters, is wisdom." It seems to me that Mr. Baldwin's admonition can be uttered from high places in our American government with a value just as important as he gave to his words. The fact that Assistant Secretary McGrady has been the only public official to speak so frankly and so honestly is comforting, but it is to be deplored that he alone has spoken.

Since there are ominous signs in a class struggle that unfortunately has been promoted in this country, it seems to me the attention of the people ought to be directed somewhat more to conditions in congress. Some months ago I wrote in these columns my fear that the current session of congress was going to leave a rather dull record for having done nothing. Thus far, my fears have been justified to the fullest.

Congress went into session in the first week of January. To date, therefore, it has been in session five months. Its record of accomplishments includes passage of four appropriation bills, providing money for federal government departments; the Guffey-Vinson little NRA coal law and the cash and carry neutrality law. I do not see how anybody can be enthusiastic about those accomplishments. Passage of appropriation bills is mere routine usually because in most cases they involve no controversial question at all. Passage of the neutrality act likewise was an action about which there could be little dispute even though there may have been plenty of grounds for disagreement over the type of law enacted. That leaves, therefore, only the Guffey-Vinson coal bill over which there could have been much delay in house or senate debate. All of this makes the picture look even worse for congressional leadership.

There is talk already about adjournment of congress as soon as hot weather strikes Washington—and the temperatures can get very high and unpleasant. While this undecurrent of talk is not yet in an important volume, it emphasizes the fact that there is a growing body of legislators who see no possibility of accomplishing anything worthwhile in the current session.

But what are the reasons? Having gone rather thoroughly into this situation, I think there are two factors to be considered. One is the lack of capacity of the leadership among both Democrats and Republicans and the other is traceable to the White House. President Roosevelt for four years has told congress what to do and to that extent has destroyed the initiative of the legislators as a body and now that some members want to reassert the power of congress, the President's organized spokesmen appear not to know what to do.

It may be said that the immediate cause of the failure of congressional leadership to get much of the legislative program out of the way in five months is the controversy resulting from Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to add six justices of his own choosing to the United States Supreme court. That statement, in my opinion, is only partially true. There are many senators and representatives, otherwise loyal to the President, who now feel that the court re-organization plan cannot be put through. But those spokesmen thus far have not advised the President frankly of their views and in consequence the court bill is still in the way. To that extent, then, the legislative leadership has lacked courage and Mr. Roosevelt has remained adamant, which possibly charges him with some responsibility in the legislative stalemate.

That statement, in my opinion, is only partially true. There are many senators and representatives, otherwise loyal to the President, who now feel that the court re-organization plan cannot be put through. But those spokesmen thus far have not advised the President frankly of their views and in consequence the court bill is still in the way. To that extent, then, the legislative leadership has lacked courage and Mr. Roosevelt has remained adamant, which possibly charges him with some responsibility in the legislative stalemate.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

Gallant Crusader Against the Marijuana Weed

NEW YORK.—The good men do isn't necessarily interred with their bones if they have co-operating wives. The late Hamilton Wright's world war on narcotics has been shoved on down through 19 years of tireless fighting by his widow.

At Richmond, Va., recently, Mrs. Wright pleaded to the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for united and effective action against the marijuana weed, murderous Mexican narcotic smoked by school children. She calls it the "most pernicious of drugs."

In New Mexico, twelve years ago, the state narcotics commission found growers and cigarette manufacturers pressing a campaign among children, and they found the children smoking marijuana. They passed a law. The use of the weed crept on to New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Texas and several southern states.

At the Richmond congress, Mrs. Wright represented the federal bureau of narcotics. In 1921, she began her service as one of three international members of the opium advisory committee of the League of Nations, and has since waged her fight against the drug traffic in every country where it originates. She was Elizabeth Washburn, the daughter of the late Senator William Drew Washburn, who had been minister to France.

Hamilton Wright traveled, agitated, organized, wrote and lectured for years against narcotics. When, in 1918, he went to Paris as a member of the peace conference, he was killed in a street accident. Mrs. Wright, highly placed socially in Washington, left her pleasant home and her four children and picked up her husband's gage where it had fallen.

In China, Turkey and Persia, she fought against the world tide of poison. She traced the green capsule of the poppy, from the fields of Yunnan and Shensi provinces to the slums and stews of world capitals. She rounded up the story of the foreign wars waged against China to make her admit Indian opium. With Ellen La Motte, who wrote "The Backwash of War," she pieced together a narrative as unlovely as any chapter of horror which ever rested on the brow of the nations.

There are so many things to be against these days, it is hard to pick your opponent. Why not just take marijuana weed? This writer speaks with feeling on this subject, having observed one citizen chewing another's ear off in a mountain hamlet in southern Mexico, quite a few years before the weed became an extra-curricular interest in American high schools.

I had joined in singing the quaint "La Cucaracha" song about the cockroach that got so full of marijuana weed that he couldn't walk home. There was nothing in the song about the drug's peculiar incitement to mayhem. The song will become distasteful to anyone who has seen marijuana at work—also my experience near Mazatlan, where a peon was shooting up the town and lunging at passersby with a machete.

It was about eleven years ago that the Brooklyn police arrested Andrew Huerta, a Mexican sailor, who was selling marijuana cigarettes. In a backyard in Queens, he showed them a knee-high crop of marijuana. This led to the arrest of racketeers, growing the weed and selling cigarettes to soldiers.

Every year or so there is an arrest. The cigarettes are made from the dried leaves and the flowers of the weed, which is known as "wild tobacco" and looks like a tomato vine. It is a tough growth and so is the habit. If somebody on the subway bites you, you will know what is the matter.

All states, as Mrs. Wright reports, have laws against its growth or use, except South Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee. But, so far as this writer can learn, there has been no unified or vigorous action, there is meager information and there is accumulating evidence that, with repeal, some of the more resourceful liquor racketeers became agriculturists.

Lost Atlantis Again.
For more than thirty years Professor Leo Frobenius has been taking the shine off our modern civilization by demonstrating that a lot of it is old stuff. The famous German archeologist, lecturing in the United States, is one of the leading defenders of the lost continent of Atlantis theory. Now sixty-four years old, he delves tirelessly in India, Africa, Egypt, Tripoli and Turkey. The son of a German army officer, also an author and scholar, he made his first expedition in 1904. Of all savants, he has turned up the most convincing evidence that many strata of great buried civilizations underlie our house of life.

Household Questions

Ladders in the Hostery—Place your silk stocking over a glass tumbler when repairing a ladder. The light shows up the cross-threads, which can then be picked up easily with a fine steel crochet hook.

Soft-Bolled Eggs—When soft-boiling eggs, put them in boiling water, boil for one minute and turn off flame, leaving eggs in the water for another four minutes. This prevents them from hardening and saves fuel.

Maple Oatmeal Cookies—Two and a half cups fine oatmeal, one cup maple syrup, one quarter cup water, two and a half cups flour, one cup shortening, one teaspoon soda. Boil water and syrup together, add soda, then shortening. Cool slightly. Add to dry ingredients and allow the mixture to cool thoroughly before rolling out.

Making a Cushion—A useful flat cushion can be made from an old blanket. Fold it carefully to the size required, taking care that it is quite smooth and then secure the "layers" together with a few strong stitches. Slip it into a cover made from any pretty piece of material. These cushions are very useful when you want to make a chair higher, and are comfortable and firm to sit upon.

Better Bread—Home-made bread is lighter and keeps moist longer when mixed with skim-milk instead of water.

Bacon and Macaroni—Break two ounces of macaroni into small pieces and throw into quickly-boiling salted water. Simmer until tender. Fry two ounces of streaky bacon cut into small pieces, then drain the macaroni and add it to the bacon. Add seasoning, one-half ounce of butter, and a scrape of nutmeg, and stir over a low heat until the macaroni is brown. Turn on to a hot dish and serve with dry toast.

Cooking Cauliflower—To prevent it breaking while cooking, wrap loosely in muslin.

Economic Ironing—When ironing dispense with the ironing blanket and fold all the large things flat on the table, forming a "pad." On top of this I iron the small things, and when they are done, I find that the large things are quite nicely pressed.

Early Sheffield Plate

Early Sheffield is most valuable for reasons other than its age. The silver coating is much thicker and its style simpler, though occasionally a little clumsy. So lavish were the smiths with their silver in the early period that, more than a century and a half later, hardly any copper can be seen at all in the old pieces, while in those made later it sometimes is more evident than the remaining silver.

What SHE TOLD WORN-OUT HUSBAND

She could have reproached him for his lack of interest in her "all in" complaints. But wisely she saw in his frequent colds, his "laid out" "on edge" condition the very trouble she herself had whipped. Constipation! The very meaning of taking NIT (Nature's Remedy), was solved. In fact like almost all again—leaving short, peevish, nervous, ill—the NIT is all-reliable, effective and corrective—workingly, thoroughly, gently, lastingly. It's the only true laxative tract to complete, regular function. Get NIT—Nature's Remedy. Try a box tonight. See — at drugstore.

Hamburg

Hamburg High, No. 392, Lady Macabees was hostess at the semi-annual county association convention at I. O. O. F. hall Thursday. A business session was held in the forenoon with the commander, Mrs. Ellen Sabon of Fowlerville, president. Members to the number of about 60 were in attendance from Fowlerville, Howell, Plainfield and Hamburg.

The Fowlerville degree team, including five candidates, three from Fowlerville and Mrs. Jennie Fuman and Mrs. Ella Featherly of Hamburg. The work being presented in an impressive manner.

A delicious dinner was served. The afternoon session, which was open to the public, was in charge of Mrs. Florence Fickett of Howell. The program was as follows: Opening song, "America." Report of courtesy committee, Mrs. Alice Schoenhals, Howell. Address of welcome, Mrs. Emily Kuchar of Hamburg; response, Mrs. Floss Benjamin of Fowlerville. Mother Goose play, Mrs. Charlotte Metzgar and seven children of Hamburg. Dialogue, "The benefits of the Macabees," eleven ladies of Fowlerville. Monologue, "Widow Becler," Mrs. Schoenhals. Pantomime, "Bachelors' Hall," in two scenes; first, five bachelors keeping house; second, a visit of five maidens ending with a wedding scene, including a well, brides bouquet (pie plant) wedding marches, etc. by 11 ladies of Hamburg. Reading, "Adam and Eve," Mrs. Emma Hayner, Hamburg. Song, "Father Come Home With Me Now," and given in the deaf language at the same time, Mrs. Ines [unclear] of Hamburg. Presenting of banners; attendance banner to Fowlerville High, honor banner to Hamburg. The next meeting will be held at Fowlerville in October.

School closed in Miss Helen Wendert's room at Hamburg village Friday with an indoor picnic, luncheon, games and all indoors on account of the rain. The ball game had to be dispensed with; but the two captains, Lobby Roberts and Robert Moon rounded up their team on Wednesday and played the game, the honors going to Robert Moon's team.

The honor roll for May, pupils neither absent or tardy during the month is as follows: Donald Keenman, Ernestine Keenman, Floyd and Lee Schuchel, Harry Miller, Donald, Edward and Robert Moon, Mary and Robert Moore, Bobby Roberts, Melvin Shannon, Wesley Shannon and Barbaradell Way.

Honor roll for the year is Ernestine Keenman, Donald, Edward and Robert Moon, Mary Moore, Bobby Roberts, Melvin and Wesley Shannon.

Mary Moore has a perfect attendance record for three years and Ernestine Keenman a two year record.

Miss Wendert, who has completed her seventh year has been engaged for the year 1937-38.

Apartment Dwellers, Picnickers, Cottagers: For your cooking this summer choose DUTCH OVEN SUSAN!

In small, cramped quarters, cooking is a problem . . . particularly during the summer months when a stove heats up the kitchen so quickly. But there is a comfortable, convenient way of preparing meals—a method made to order for people in apartments, cottages, crowded rooms: DUTCH OVEN SUSAN, the electric cook. For 2c it will cook a complete meal for a family of two to ten people—and it operates from any electric outlet. No heat can escape through its insulated walls. After the cooking is finished, it will keep food warm for hours. It is ideal to carry on picnics: It will hold a complete dinner—two vegetables, a roast, potatoes and gravy.

On sale at hardware stores, furniture and department stores, other electric appliance dealers and at all Detroit Edison offices.

TEEPLE HARDWARE

MACOMB SCHOOL STRIKE ENDS

Led by Robert North, 13, son of Ralph North, president of the Harrison school board, Macomb county, striking pupils locked themselves in the school and held it for 5 hours before they were driven out by deputies led by Sheriff Havel and Prosecutor Nunnally of Mt. Clemens. The striking pupils retreated to the roof where they fought off the deputies with missiles and a fire hose until driven out. Previous to this teachers and pupils were kept out by locked doors. The deputies gained entrance by breaking the window in the new building. Afterwards only 1 pupil entered the building with the teachers. The trouble arose over the ousting of Principal Marlowe by a 3 to 2 vote of the board. It is expected to be threshed out at a mass meeting. There are 136 pupils in the school.

There is only one important element in the matter of accident prevention and safe driving on our highways. That is "brains."

There is nothing difficult or mysterious about safety. Neither is there anything to be ashamed of. It requires no extraordinary genius, college degree, or special training to be safety minded.

The application of a little horse sense will prevent most of the accidents that now occur on our highways. Safety is 99 per cent common sense; accidents are 99 per cent thoughtless hurry.

We cannot blame the automobile for the causes of our accidents, because senseless machines have never caused an accident. Let's apply some brains to our driving and watch the results. It's smart to be careful.

Mrs. Lola Rogers returned home from Detroit Saturday. Mrs. Mae Stark, Mr. and Mrs. George Green of Howell were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Teeple.

FRANK BIRNIE

Frank Birnie, son of William and Margaret Birnie, was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, May 26th, 1846. He died May 26th at the home of his nephews, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gilbert, where, on account of failing health he has made his home for the past few months, where he had the best of care.

One of a family of 13 children only two brothers and three sisters survive.

Mr. Birnie grew to manhood in Scotland and in the spring of 1872 came to America. In May 1873 he was married at Detroit, Michigan, to Elizabeth Sangster, who had just arrived from Scotland, and together they started out to make a new home locating in Unadilla Township where their entire life was spent.

The comradeship, which began in their native land so many years ago, was broken by the death of Mrs. Birnie some six years ago. Both Mr. and Mrs. Birnie were active members of the Presbyterian church of Unadilla, taking part in all of its activities.

In the passing of Mr. Birnie, the community has lost a fine citizen, quiet, kind hearted, just in all his dealings, a neighbor, a friend, and a man of the highest type.

The funeral services were held Sunday at 2 P. M. at the Gilbert home, burial at Unadilla.

Carl Soper was in Ann Arbor Sunday.

NEW HUDSON HAS NO-HIT PITCHER

Jack Weiss, pitcher for the New Hudson high school baseball team, pitched a no-hit game against Brighton high school, last week winning by a score of 10 to 1. Brighton's lone hit was scored by Litch who drew a base on balls, stole second and third and scored on a wild pitch. We predict that Pitcher Weiss will receive considerable attention from now on if history repeats itself and it usually does.

Way back in 1927 Don Swarthout pitched a no-hit game against Hartland, winning by a score of 2 to 1. The game was a pitching duel between two star pitchers as Bruno of Hartland only allowed three hits. The game was scored in the 4th through the generosity of two Pinckney players. Goodchild of Hartland struck out and Lefty Reason, catcher for Pinckney, dropped the last strike and then threw wild to Cecil Hendee at first base the runner going to second. He stole third. Dingle drove one to second and Clare Miller fumbled and Goodchild scored. This run looked as big as a mountain as Pinckney couldn't get another one. In the 7th Norm Miller, star Pinckney outfielder hit one on the nose to deep center field. He would have had a home run only he stepped in a gopher hole at second base and fell down. So he only got to third. Cecil Hendee drove to second and Miller scored on the out at first. The game went into the 9th inning tied 1 to 1. Harold Reason the Pinckney speed king opened with a single. He stole second while 2 of his teammates were working out. He set sail for third and scored when the throw to get him went wild. Swarthout struck out all three Hartland batters in the 9th. The game was played on May 27. On June 3 they defeated Howell high school 8 to 4 at the county play day to win the county championship. On the occasion Swarthout struck out 11 men and allowed 3 hits. Pinckney got 8 hits, Graves and Clare Miller getting two each. The Howell pitchers were Jimmie Robb and Phil In. The Hartland game got into the daily papers and the Detroit Tiger sent Wise Eagan out to look over Don Swarthout, the Pinckney pitcher. This was after school and he was pitching for the independents. He held the Oakland A. C. of Detroit to 4 runs up to the 9th inning when he lost control and was taken out. Swarthout had a jerk delivery and usually developed a sore arm after a hard game or two.

Dust—mankind's friend and enemy. Strange discoveries about this nuisance which is everywhere. But man couldn't live without it. A double page feature in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

KILLING FRIENDLY INSECTS

An article in The American Weekly, with The Detroit Sunday Times of May 30, explains that in exterminating the pests which eat our food supply, many of man's most useful and needed helpers in field and garden are destroyed.

CONSERVATION DEPT. NOTES

Fish hatcheries raising great northern pike are having trouble as 475,000 eggs were obtained for use. When hatched the fish fry attached themselves to the side of the tank. They were transferred to trays and immediately attached themselves to the side of the trays. There they will stay until the egg sacs are exhausted. These fish are predators and will not be planted in roach or bass streams.

A pair of wild geese who built a nest on the Pere Marquette river near Scottville, hatched five out of six eggs and have left the site with their brood.

A fire tower cabin 15 feet high has been erected at the Lansing air port for experimental work.

A deer fawn at birth is about the size of a full grown house cat.

The first grayling reported taken in this state was caught in the Pigeon River last week. It measured 8 and 3/4 inches. It is one of the 5,000 Montana grayling planted last year. It is unlawful to take them and all caught should be returned to the water without injury.

In an effort to learn whether water-fall areas can be restocked with ducks 45 pair of mallards were planted in the Molasses river and Butterfield areas recently. They will be checked as to increase and adaption. If this proves successful more extensive planting in other areas will take place.

Michigan's 60 ft. fire towers are being replaced with modern 100 ft. towers with enclosed cabins and stairways.

Small special radio sets will be set up on the 22,000 forest reserve on Bois Island to give it a fire detection system.

The May sale of state oil and gas lease rights netted the state $28,000. Approximately 22,400 acres of land was sold.

Sharp tailed grouse reported to be vanishing 20 years ago under conservation are steadily increasing.

The department of conservation intends to flood 2000 acres on the north Muskegon river, west of the Loughton lake for breeding grounds for water fowl.

The right to prospect for gold and silver in 340 acres of state land in Marquette and Baraga counties will be sold at public auction on June 1st.

LET IN SUMMER AIDS CHILD SENSE

Every child should have some experience with a pet, for psychologists suggest that a child learns many things in carrying for pet that he may never acquire otherwise.

Pets teach a child to be kind to animals and give him peak experience in responsibility in providing food, water and shelter for the pet.

"Many homes are so arranged that it is not possible to have a year around pet such as a cat or a dog," says Katherine Miller, child development instructor at the Mich. State College. "Yet the summer time is ideal for taking a pet that can be cared for in the garden."

"A turtle makes an interesting pet. He gets along very well if he has an old tub partially filled with water and a rock on which to climb for his sun bath. His food requirements are simple, a few crumbs of bread, a tiny piece of meat once in a while and a fly for a treat."

This is an excellent time to acquire a tadpole and I'm sure any child will watch with delight his growth into a frog. This makes a good lesson in nature study as well as an interest for the child.

A rabbit requires more care because it's a good pet to have. It needs cage or pen of some kind because it likes to chew flowers and shrubs. Once he has a cage the rest of his care is not difficult. He can be trained to use a box of sawdust so that the cleaning of his cage is simple. His diet consists of dry carrots for his solid ration and any kind of green stuff—lettuce cabbage, celery or just plain grass. Bunny will wash himself like a kitten and will respond to any affection given him.

It matters not what, Miss Miller suggests but she does recommend letting the child have some live thing to care for and love.

PINCKNEY LOSES TO HAMBURG

The Pinckney Tri-County League team their second contest Sunday, at Hamburg, finishing on the short end of a 14 to 6 score. Harlo Haines started in the box for Pinckney and looked great for 3 innings getting 5 strikeouts and allowing no hits. In the fourth he blew up and Hamburg bunched 2 doubles, a single and a walk for 4 runs. They got 3 more in the 5th. Lefty Reason relieved him and although 7 more runs were scored on him they were due to poor support at critical times. Clayton Johnson, Hamburg's star pitcher, has left the team to pitch for Lansing in the Central League. Buster, a big right hander from Ann Arbor, who pitched for Percy Rayments Ann Arbor entry last year worked for Hamburg. He did not seem to have much but Pinckney only got 3 hits off him up to the 8th inning. Here he lost control after two were out and filled the bases, walking in two runs. Harlo Haines came up with the bases full and emptied them with a long hit to left. Pinckney got five runs in this inning. He regained his form in the final inning and although Bob Smith got another hit Pinckney did not score.

The Pinckney team shows lack of practice and has not settled lineup yet. As soon as they get a few games under their belts they should play better ball.

Next Sunday they play Saline at Pinckney at 3:00 P. M.

"I don't suppose there's anything else I could do," he said hopefully. "I mean slinging white-wash is—"

"A man's job," Jim said decisively. "The white-wash is for the fence," he added, "not to decorate the landscape or those new overalls. Don't let it splatter."

Tommy departed, wearing the suffering expression of a prisoner exiled to Siberia. He worked industriously for an hour. After that he dipped and splashed with enthusiasm only when Jim was near at hand. Jim, amused and sympathetic, raised his voice or called a direction when he approached the new recruit. It wasn't to be expected that Tommy should overcome his natural dreamy indolence in a moment. Besides, Jim had Tommy on his conscience. He might have lifted the burden of anxiety from the suffering exile's mind.

Susan, too, frequently visited the scene of the new operation. She arrived in the truck driven by Wilfred's father. She coaxed Jim to take her back with him in the small second-hand roadster, supplied by Mr. Vaughn on those days when it was possible for Jim to return to the farm for lunch.

"Why do you want to go there?" Miss Parker asked, more than once, trying to keep her at home.

"It's fun!" Susan would attach herself like a burdock to the small second-hand roadster.

"Sue likes activity," Jim would remark.

"She likes to tag after you," Miss Parker said once, exhibiting uncharacteristic penetration. And very often, "But I'm afraid she'll get hurt. She told me she was on the stable roof yesterday helping to nail on shingles."

"Jim's stronger than anybody," Jim overheard her boast to a languid youth from the village, indifferently swinging a scythe. "He could do that with one finger. You're not very strong, are you? Or maybe you aren't feeling well."

Jim smiled and groaned. She was bossy and always under foot and he was afraid she would break her neck. He was unable, however, to resist the appeal in her wide hazel eyes or to hurt her feelings by sending her home. There were times when he regretted his thorough conquest of Susan.

No, he had not escaped the Vaughns. Cecily came to the riding academy, too. The moment of elation which Jim felt the first time he saw her ride in through the open gate on "Lady" was followed by a feeling of depression. He had thought that the new job would remove him from any contact with Cecily. If he didn't see her a dozen times a day, he would stop thinking of her.

She was friendly and interested. She wanted to see the stable and the jumps and the practice oval in the meadow. Jim called a man to hold the horse and went with her on a tour of investigation, closely shadowed by Susan.

"You should cut another window in the harness-room," Cecily said, making her way through shavings and old shingles, saw-horses, discarded beams, a sea of litter and debris. "Green blankets, Jim. The shade you are going to paint the roof. That nice moss green, I think."

"Whose job is this?" Jim asked, pretending to be injured, pigeon-holing the suggestions for further consideration.

"Yours and you're doing it splendidly." Her amber eyes were admiring. "But I'm interested, too."

"Jim!" Susan called shrilly. "Jim look at me walk on the beam! Jim! Wait for me! I want to go with you, too!"

Yes, there were moments when Jim deeply regretted his conquest of Susan.

Cecily's interest continued. After her visit she came frequently, riding "Lady" or driving her car.

Cecily's interest was pleasant but it was disturbing as well. Jim did not stop thinking of her. He found himself watching for her, actually going to the gate and looking up the road. If she didn't come, he felt depressed and out of sorts. If she did appear, he felt depressed and out of sorts after she had gone.

One morning a shower came up while she was there. They ran for shelter into the house. The air was musty, suggestive of spiders, cobwebs, mice. Jim raised windows and opened shutters. Subdued light replaced the gloom. They explored the house, exclaiming over the fireplace in the kitchen, the stairway, the chimney nook and the wash-cot in what might have been the dining-room.

"It's nice, isn't it?" Cecily said. "We should do it over for a clubhouse."

Wei! Jim's heart leapt and sank again. Wei! Cecily and Jim.

Sitting in a deep window-seat, looking out at the rain, they did over the house.

"Rough pine furniture," Cecily said. "Hand-made and waxed."

"Things griled in the kitchen fireplace," Jim continued. "Oysters and steaks and chops."

"Waiters in jockey costumes."

"Costumes! Hold on. This isn't a musical comedy."

"I like you, Jim."

Cecily! . . .

All at once they were silent. The gaiety splintered into crystals, merged with the rain, was lost. Cecily looked out through the window, curtained with sliding beads of moisture. Jim looked at Cecily, her hands lying motionless in her lap, the soft hollow at the base of her throat, the lovely curve of her cheek turned against her shoulder. If he should touch her hand—if he should press his lips against the soft hollow in her throat where a pulse stirred and fluttered—The rain drummed a melody on the roof, drummed in his ears, drummed out reason and caution. Cecily!

She turned to him as though he had spoken her name aloud.

"Yes?" Her voice was not quite steady. Her eyes met his in a long questioning look, faintly startled. For a moment something trembled between them, an evanescent emotion, fragile, tenuous, confusing. Cecily stirred, glanced away, out through the window again.

"Look!" Her laughter shook.

"That child!"

Jim's eyes moved reluctantly from her mobile face, followed the direction of her glance. Susan, in her father's fishing-boots and sou'wester, was sloshing through puddles, making her way toward the house. She saw Jim and Cecily in the window, waved, broke into a stumbling run across the lawn.

Cecily and Jim exchanged a glance of amused exasperation. The emotion had vanished before it could be held by a word or a gesture. Perhaps it had never existed. But it had. The moment had passed, was gone.

No, he had not escaped the Vaughns; the new job did not terminate Jim's contacts with Cecily. She was at the riding academy the day that Kay and Lenore arrived.

It was an afternoon late in August with a suggestion of autumn in the air and the sunlight. Jim sat straddling the low limb of an oak tree at the upper edge of the drive. He had been sawing off dead branches when Cecily rode in on "Lady" and he dropped down on the low branch to talk to her. She sat on the horse only a little below him. Suddenly "Lady" began to make restive movements. A car was turning in at the gate.

"Customers," Cecily said, her voice interested and a little excited. "Swank customers!"

Jim hitched himself along the limb for a clearer view of the drive. The dark cherry-colored phaeton shining with chromium, and driven by an impressively uniformed chauffeur with a small waxed mustache was creating a stir among the workmen about the place. Jim shared the general excitement. His first instinct was toward escape, for on the back seat of the car, closed in by a folding windshield, like a rare exotic bloom in a florist's display case, between Kay and a gentleman Jim did not know, sat Lenore.

"Who is it?" Cecily asked, looking up at him.

"Friends and relatives," he said, answering Cecily's question. He heard her soft exclamation as he swung down from the limb of the tree. "I'm in for a dressing down. What about a little moral support?"

"The Whitewash Is for the Fence."

"Always obliging!"—Cecily slipped down from the saddle, and leading the horse by the loosened reins walked with Jim down the drive.

CHAPTER VIII

"You're an idiot, Jimmy!" Kay said with emphasis and a noticeably cross expression.

"Thank you," Jim said serenely. The statement had become a tiresome reiteration. Kay had made it many times during the progress of an early supper out-of-doors at Dutch's.

"It is a little idiotic, Jim," Lenore said with a small laugh, quickly stilled. "Surely you can get away for three or four days. I should think you would need a vacation." Her enormous dark eyes pleaded with him from under the shadowy brim of her hat.

"I had a vacation for four years," Jim said a trifle grimly and then, making an effort to appear politely regretful, "Get thee behind me, Satan! I have a job."

Kay turned her pleasantly plain, becomingly tanned face toward the accompanying gentleman. "You see, Wally," she said with a gesture of affectionate exasperation. "He's as stubborn as a mule."

The gentleman's name was Beresford. He was tall and incredibly thin with indefinite features and pale blue eyes that peeped slightly. His hair, thinning above the temples, was of a silver fairness. He looked, Jim thought, like a codfish, an aristocratic codfish, of course, pallid, limp, impeccably dressed and groomed. Where had Lenore acquired him? It made no difference, really. It was merely a passing thought.

Kay returned to the attack. "It will be a good party," she said persuasively. "You know the Warren place on the Eastern shore."

"Perfectly," Jim replied.

"We've counted on you, Jim," Lenore's hand touched his arm. "We wouldn't have accepted the invitation if we hadn't thought we could pick you up on the way."

"I'm sorry," Jim said, becoming restive under the barrage of persuasion. "I'd like a binge. But I can't leave. I have a job. Have I mentioned it before?"

Kay pushed back her chair.

"If I stay here I'll probably throw things," she said. "I haven't patience enough to cope with a mule. Come on, Wally, let's take a walk before I am arrested for assault and battery. Not a long walk," she added, exchanging an amused glance with Jim as the accompanying gentleman languidly unfolded himself, joint by joint, like a carpenter's rule. "I promise not to be strenuous, darling."

Alone at the table under the clipped catalpa Lenore looked at Jim.

"Hello!" she said. "Hello!" Jim replied. He hadn't wanted to be alone with Lenore. Kay had deliberately forced the situation. She had put him on the spot. Oh, well—"Who is the codfish?" he asked. Lenore stiffened.

"He is a very charming person," she said, with the superior, humorless expression which Jim remembered with distaste. "I met him in London last winter. He will be a duke when his father dies. The most marvelous country estate. He's visiting at Aunt Laura's."

"I'm sorry," Jim said. Might as well apologize. He should have remembered that Lenore was incapable of humor directed at a title or a celebrity.

Lenore relaxed. They made conversation for an interval, talking of mutual friends, recalling shared experiences, a wall between them, recognized, unmentioned. Finally Lenore drilled through the barrier.

"Jim," she asked not quite steadily, "why did you run away?"

Jim considered.

"I didn't," he said, after a moment. "Running away is premeditated, isn't it? I didn't plan the thing. It happened. Impulse. Extenuating circumstances. Lunch at a drug-store. A horse-shoe."

"You must have been desperate," she said slowly. "You must have been awfully fed up with—everything."

"I was," he said, serious now, wanting to be honest.

She raised her head, looked at him across the table. The glow of the fading sunset illuminated her face.

"Fed up—with me?" she asked.

He knew what the question cost her. A feeling of pity for her, of regret for a lost emotion, held him silent for a moment. She looked older than he had remembered.

"Tell me, Jim," Her voice was insistent. There was pain in her eyes, fear, humiliation. "Tell me, darling—were you running away from-me?"

If he could make her understand without hurting her too badly. He wanted to be honest with her. He knew that was impossible. Pity for her, the familiar necessity for flattery made him feel weary and depressed.

"It was everything," he said brusquely. "Sponging on Kay and Vic. Having nothing of my own—Good God, Lenore! Can't you understand?"

Her lips trembled. Jim felt like an insensitive brute.

"Don't you see," he said gently, "that I couldn't let you support me?" His hands held hers in a steady clasp, small plump hands wearing jewels that bit into his flesh. "We wouldn't have been happy. You would have despised me."

"I couldn't despise you, Jim." She looked up at him feebly, looked down at his hands holding hers. "Do you remember the house-party at Princeton? The letters you wrote me after I was married? My ring, that babyish thing with the turquoise forget-me-nots that you carried in your breast pocket above your heart?"

"That was a long time ago."

"Too long? I haven't forgotten."

"Listen to me, Lenore," Jim said urgently. "That week-end in Princeton, your summer visit with Kay are a part of another existence. The world has changed since then, your world, mine particularly. It isn't a matter of making a choice. I'd have been glad enough to go into Uncle's business. I'd have been a vice-president, now. But all of that is water under the dam. I'm living in a new world, a world as far from yours as Saturn is from the earth. Our worlds have nothing in common. They can never touch, can have no point of contact. Don't you see?"

"Never?" She echoed the word wistfully, forlornly.

"It's hardly possible," he said. "Not for years, at least. I must go on from the start I've made. I have no choice."

"You have!" Her voice was low and intense. "I have enough for both of us. Why can't you share it with me? If you love me enough—" "There can be no love without respect. I'm saying this badly, perhaps. I wouldn't be myself if I let you support me. You'd hate me. I'm so fond of you. You've been swell to me. But I won't let you be my meal-ticket—now or ever."

"Didn't You Ever Consider It—As a Last Resort?"

Her eyebrows lifted. Her lips curved crookedly.

"Didn't you ever consider it—as a last resort?" she asked with studied penetration.

"Yes," he said. "Last winter. This spring. Early in June—the day I came here."

Her expression softened. "Why didn't you?" she asked breathlessly. "What happened, Jim?"

He gave a short laugh, sheepish, self-mocking.

"I missed the train," he answered. "I was hungry. I ate sandwiches in a drug-store."

"Jim!"

"It is amazing, isn't it? Trifles which seem of no importance decide our destiny. For the want of a nail a kingdom was lost. If I hadn't missed the train, something else would probably have happened. I couldn't have gone through with it." He bent toward her across the table. "Do you understand?"

He asked gravely, gently. "It had nothing to do with you or my feeling for you. I was the only one concerned. Do you see?"

He had not convinced her of anything. The anger in her eyes told him that the crooked curve of her full red lips. She drew her hands from his, sat erect in her chair.

"Words!" she said with a brittle laugh. "You talk well and persuasively, Mr. Fielding. Your frankness is disarming. But I'm not an utter and abject fool. I know."

Her change of attitude surprised him.

"Know what?" he said hesitantly.

"You're in love with the Vaughn girl, I knew that when I saw you together this afternoon. You might have spared yourself the outburst of eloquence. Not a bad idea. She's pretty—and young. The estate indicates a certain degree of comfortable affluence." She lifted her glass with a laugh that was like a sob. "Here's to a successful campaign."

Jim's evening clothes, freshly pressed, lay on the bed in his room in the cottage.

He was going to Cecily's party, a party for the Patton girl who was to be married in September. He had been amazed when Cecily asked him, as a special favor, to help her out. One of the prospective ushers had somehow or somewhere become involved with a bed of poison ivy. She would be a man short that perennial tragedy to a hostess. Jim could avert the tragedy. Wouldn't he? Couldn't he?

Jim could and would when Mr. Vaughn had approved the invitation.

Mingled, tonight, with apprehension and the diffidence induced by recalling his former position in the household was a growing sense of elation. He was going to dance with Cecily. Tomorrow he might regret it. Tomorrow? There was no tomorrow. There was only tonight. Condemned prisoners must feel like this, he thought, when they enjoyed a last hearty meal of chicken and ice-cream before they were led to the electric chair.

Suspenders, collar, a narrow black tie. Jim whistled as he fashioned the tie into an expert bow, as he brushed his hair to shining smoothness, as he slipped on the jacket.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Dinkel Ties for Lead by Winning from Ledwidge While Clinton Loses to Haines

In the Pinckney soft ball league last week Clinton lost the lead when it dropped its game to Haines 20 to 9. Swarthout who pitched for him was wild and received poor support. Wednesday Dinkel tied for first place by winning a close game from Ledwidge 11 to 10. Swarthout, pitching for Dinkel made a comeback in this game. Clinton pitched for Haines. Home run hitters last week were W. Lamb, B. VanBlaricum, L. VanBlaricum, Floyd Haines and Swarthout.

WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

By Congressman Andrew J. Transue
Sixth District, Michigan.

Rapid Developments

Tentative approval given by the House of Representatives on Friday to a relief and WPA appropriation of $1,500,000,000 was the climax of a momentous week in Washington. In the last seven days one of the Supreme Court Justices announced his retirement; the Senate Judiciary Committee reported 10 to 8 against the President's Court reform plan; President Roosevelt indicated a wage and hour law would be submitted to Congress; the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee held open hearings on child labor; the House approved an Interior Department appropriation bill providing for $123,100,000 and both Houses of Congress have ratified extension of federal jurisdiction over soil conservation until 1942 with the Senate demanding a specific annual accounting from the Secretary of Agriculture.

Vehement debate featured the discussion of the welfare appropriation as the House of Representatives repeatedly eliminated all amendments that would change the sum of $1,500,000,000 requested by President Roosevelt. The various amendments ranged from no appropriation at all to $4,000,000,000. One of the Republican Representatives from Michigan made a motion to strike out the enacting clause of the bill. Had this parliamentary subterfuge been adopted the bill would have been reported the House without the enacting clause and no appropriation would be possible. The Democratic majority defeated this nullifying suggestion with the explanation that human needs would prevail in this question rather than the perpetual objections of a few millionaires complaining about taxation on their abundant incomes.

Labor Laws

Congress this week expects to receive from President Roosevelt a supplemental message pertaining to labor. It was understood that the new regulations would not try to control trade practices in the NRA manner but would include provisions for a work week ranging from 35 to 40 hours and a minimum wage of $16 a week with a rigid ban on products made by children under the age of 16. Service industries including garages and dry cleaners and similar concerns will be exempt under the law that will probably apply only to companies with 20 or more employees and dealing in interstate commerce or effecting interstate commerce in their business. A stamp is planned for all goods produced under the terms of the prospective law.

Auto-moblie Exposure

With an estimated population of 619,000 the District of Columbia has a registration of 185,894 automobiles including 5,122 taxicabs that are always cruising the streets of Washington. The majority of cars have no garages available especially in the block house districts where each home adjoins the neighbor's dwelling on each side. Building authorities of the District assert that in many cases in the outer residential sections where car owners have garages, they follow the general custom of leaving their automobiles parked at the curb instead of using garages.

Court Action

On the same day and within a few minutes of the time that the Judiciary Committee of the Senate reported adversely on the President's Court proposal, 78-year-old Justice Willis F. VanDevanter announced he would retire from the Supreme Court next month. This retirement will give President Roosevelt his first chance to name a member of the Supreme Court. In and out of Congress the retirement of Justice VanDevanter caused a great deal of speculation as to the probable effect it would have on the President's court plan and upon the Justice the President would submit to the Senate for confirmation. While Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas had impressive support among his colleagues for the vacancy, Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan was included in the list of potential candidates the President might name.

Democratic Defense

Amendments to increase the appropriation were overwhelmingly defeated. The closest votes came upon amendments to reduce the appropriation to $1,000,000,000 and then a compromise on $1,200,000,000. Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas declared he approved the $1,500,000,000 because the administration knows the problem and if there is any suffering next winter the fault will not be upon the heads of Congress. The Texas Representative said: "We have voted money without stint. I know; we have been liberal. I know; we have brought this country from its darkest hour since Valley Forge to complete recovery in many instances, in many sections and among many classes. We will not do our duty by the American people at this time, nor to the generation that immediately succeeds the present generation unless we carry on this program of recovery until it reaches every section of the country and every class of American citizens." A final vote is scheduled in the House this week.

Giant Among Flowers

The amorphophallus, which produces the largest flowers in the world, is so big that a man standing upright can barely reach the top with the tips of his fingers and can only reach it with his arms stretched.

In the contest between David and Goliath, the giant Philistine showed animal courage, while the courage of David, though expressed in physical courage of the highest kind, found its basis in the understanding whereby he denied the dictatorship of the human mind. "Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied." (1 Samuel 17:45). Armed with this moral courage, this reliance on the power of God, good, David was able to destroy the domination of the Philistine army by slaying their champion by means of his shepherd's sling and Goliath's own sword.

The writer of the book of Proverbs saw something of this need of developing right qualities of thought when he said (14:1), "Every wise woman buildeth her house: but the foolish plucketh it down with her hands."

Courage, then, in the true sense of the word, consists in learning to do right, to love good, and then to take one's stand for the right and good and true, even in the face of persecution and hatred.

Our great Master knew this when he said lovingly to his trembling disciples about to face the opposition of the heathen world in all its so-called power and splendor (Luke 12:32), "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."—The Christian Science Monitor.

MEMORIAL DAY

We pause on Memorial Day to give credit and honor to the men and women who built our country and saved it from attack by foreign nations and dissolution by sectional disunion. The United States of America is not the United States with one section of the nation missing. Each is dependent on the others. In the light of the past, let us judge ourselves. Are we following the principals of our fathers? The founders of this nation worked together and saved. Work and save was their motto. Can we say we are following this axiom. We work, but we don't all save. Let us start saving some part of the proceeds of our work so that when we are the ones talked of on Memorial Day, we will have left a heritage of honesty and thrift.
