

Annual High School Alumni Reunion

Ball Game Banquet Program and Dance Draws Good Attendance at Annual High School Reunion

The annual Pinckney high school alumni reunion was held Saturday and drew a fairly good attendance and some 125 tickets were sold. The days events opened with a soft ball game on the square between the high school and the alumni. Edsil Meyer captained the high school and Don Swarthout the alumni. Both teams were made up of players who have played in the local soft ball league. The result was an excellent game. The score was tied 10 to 10 at the end of the 9th inning. In the 10th the high school got 3 runs and won the game. Cliff Miller was the alumni star with 4 runs and 3 hits. Paul Singer besides pitching a fine game for the high school hit a home run and a double.

Following the banquet the gathering adjourned to the new building's auditorium where the program took place. Glenn Tupper of St. John's president of alumni, called the meeting to order and read a letter from Leo Monks Bay City who had been scheduled to be toastmaster stating he could not come on account of illness. Emil Lambertson of Lansing then acted as toastmaster. Mrs. Marjorie Shehan then gave her report. There are 478 members of the alumni. This year sufficient revenue was taken in to pay all expenses and leave a balance. The roll of the different classes was called and they responded and were counted. The toastmaster then called upon a number for remarks. Among this number the following responded: Dr. Mowley Vaughn Maybee, Lucile Kirkland, president of the class of 1937. She introduced the members of her class Miss Molly Wilson Staten Island Roy Teeple Brighton Miss Grace Young Detroit Mrs. Mae Rane Whitmore Lake Gene Reaseon Detroit Victor Bourbonnais Lansing, Mrs. Gerald Bauer, Brighton and several others.

The Prairie Ramblers composed of Jason Marjorie Howard Jeanette and Barbara Haines who have proven popular entertainers this past year played several numbers and responded to several encores. The grade pupils sang a couple of selections and the assembly sang old time songs with Mrs. E. Baughn at the piano.

The election of officers wound up the meeting. Ona Campbell was elected president of the alumni assoc. Mrs. Mae Rane vice pres. Mrs. Marjorie Shehan sec-treas.; and Mrs. Alta Meyer asst. sec.

The balance of the evening was spent in dancing to the music of Bob Ryan's orchestra of Lansing.

Pinckney High School Commencement Held

46th Commencement Held by Pinckney High School Sees a Class of 22 Graduated

The 46th annual commencement was held in the new high school auditorium last Wednesday night. This was the first class to graduate from the new school. The class numbered 22, 12 girls and 10 boys. They were: Mercede Merrill, Joan Spears, Lois Kennedy, Jeanne Clinton, Julie Stackable, Arlene Thorp, Verna McRorie, Marjorie Haines, Elaine Kubickis, June Lamb, Rose Lupo, Alger Lee, Emmett Clark, Edward Howell, Wm. George Meyer, Russell Smith, Marciann Ledwidge, William Brown, Raymond Ellis, Nelson Shehan, Winston Baughn and Lucile Kirkland.

The hall was decorated with the class colors of green and gold with the class motto "We Finish To Begin" in the background of the stage. Plants ferns, etc. completed the decorations. Rev. Carolan gave the invocation. The salutatory was given by Joan Spears. Winston Baughn gave the class history. Several songs were sung by the grade pupils under the direction of Mrs. Iva Meyers, music instructor. Verna McRorie recited the class poem composed by herself and the class oration was delivered by Alger Lee who took for his subject "Crime Prevention". Lucile Kirkland played a composition on the piano and Arlene Thorp devised and bequeathed various things to different members of the class in the class will. Julie Stackable with the giftatory delivered suitable tokens to her classmates. Mrs. Earl Baughn rendered a solo in her imitable style. Mercede Merrill, valedictorian, delivered the class fare well in which she bade goodbye to her classmates, the faculty etc. in an impressive manner.

Supt. Doyle presented the diplomas to the various members. This marked a departure from the method in use for years for instead of the parchment rolls the graduates received cards in neat leather folders.

The Albert and Sarah Wilson Memorial Awards to the two pupils having the best four year marks in English were won by Mercede Merrill and Joan Spears. The former received $10 and the latter $5. There was no Citizenship medal awarded this year. This evidently ending with the death of its donor, the late Ed. T. Kearney. The program this year was characterized by snappiness and brevity, the entire exercise not consuming over 45 minutes. For the second successive year the graduates were attired in caps and gowns.

IS TAKEN TO FLINT

Edmund Stone, 31, arrested near the Charlie Bullis farm, west of Pinckney by Deputy Loren Bassett for an auto theft from a Flint man, was taken from the Howell jail by Genesee county officials and removed to Flint that night. Stone was a hitchhiker and was picked up by a motorist from whom he stole a 1937 Chevrolet sedan. He pretended to have a gun in his pocket but none was found on him. The man is a dope user and was still under the influence of dope when taken to Flint.

The Flint officers made a double barrel haul as during the day two boys stole another Flint car, drove in to a gas station and got ten gallons of gas which they failed to settle for. The alarm was given and they were arrested at Howell. The two were to be taken back to Flint with Stone.

A Comparison for Independence Day

Two People Pass Away

MRS. G. W. TEEPLE

Mrs. Hettie Sigler Teeple was born in Putnam township Oct. 3 1855 and departed from this life June 28, 1937. She was united in marriage to George W. Teeple on Sept. 11 1878. Mrs. Teeple was one of the oldest residents of the community having come as a bride to the home in which she passed away.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Maud Wolfer, Mrs. Mocco Butters and Mrs. Mae Bryant, four grandchildren and six great grand-children. Funeral services will be held from her late residence Thursday at 2 o'clock.

Rev. Zuse of the Cong'l Church of which Mrs. Teeple was a member will officiate. She was also a member of the Ladies Aid Society and a charter member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Interment in the Pinckney cemetery.

REX DROWN

Rex Drown, son of Curtis and Janice Drown was born August 19, 1903 in Uadilla township. He departed from this life on June 25, 1937, after a five weeks illness. On December 29, 1928 he was united in holy matrimony to Gertrude Van Blaricum of Pinckney. To this union five children were born, Catherine, 12; Junior, 10; Earl, 8; Patricia Ann, 3 and Wm. 2. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, his mother and father of Gregory, two sisters, Allie Mae of Onaway and Gladys of Howell and five brothers, Ernest of Gregory, Disco of Howell, Herbert of Engardine, Glenn of Stockbridge and Eugene of Detroit. Also many nieces, and nephews and a host of friends.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. in the Community Congregational Church Rev. C. H. Zuse officiating. Members of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Lansing were present and conducted the service at the grave.

AUTO WRECK AT DEXTER CORNERS

Last Wednesday when Mrs. Harry Lee was on her way home to Lakeland from Pinckney her car was badly smashed when a collision took place between it and a truck driven by August Musolf of Stockbridge. The accident took place at Dexter Corners near the White Star oil station. Mrs. Lee was going east on M-36 and Musolf was coming from Dexter on the blacktop road. The Lee car was turned over twice and badly battered. Mrs. Lee had to have a number of stitches taken in head and has been confined to her bed. The Musolf truck was not badly damaged. The latter was on his way home from Milan where he is having an insulated body made for his truck. He hauls milk for the Pinckney Creamery.

THE FISHING SEASON OPENS

The fishing season opened last Friday and drew many people from the city here. While not many record catches are reported still quite a few got excellent fish. Roy Reason reports 4 bass taken from the mill pond and the Singer boys also made good hauls. Those who rent boats at the nearby lakes did a thriving business and report numerous fish taken. The high water at the present time has helped the fishing.

News of the State Legislature

Gov. Murphy Wins Sweeping Victory As Legislature Adjourns After Approving All of His Measures But Civil Service

The legislature adjourned at 6:45 P. M. Saturday morning after an all night session which saw all of Gov. Murphy's measures approved except civil service. Of the many measures on the governor's program this year this was the only one not passed. Among the governor's victories are the following:

1. A labor relations law for Michigan patterned somewhat after the Wagner act.
2. Executive authority to control expenditures so the customary deficit will not mark the end of his term.
3. An occupational disease law sought by workers for more than two decades.
4. Reorganization of the welfare system to bring about more economical operation and centralization of control.

BALK ON CIVIL SERVICE

5. Modernization of the prison and parole system.
6. A building program to enlarge state hospitals, end fire traps and clear streets of several thousand insane persons, free because the state's facilities are unable to care for them.
7. Extension of old age pension to cover persons over 65 years of age instead of 70, and to grant compensation to residents not citizens.
8. Creation of a secret primary election after 25 years under a law requiring voters to make public their party affiliation.

The governor's last minute attempts to get civil service through failed when the senate adjourned before balloting on a new civil service measure proposed by a joint conference committee. The Detroit Free Press says the civil service measure was amended so many times in order to please everyone it was useless and urges the governor to draw up a new one and submit it to the vote of the people at the next election.

The press as a rule commends the governor for his success. The associated press has the following to say: "Asks from civil service governor Murphy won a sweeping victory, although no one can account for his accomplishments. He stayed in his office the entire legislative session and seldom attempted to exercise leadership. Nevertheless, the legislature passed his bills to reorganize the prison parole system, and to change the welfare set-up. His old age pension passed. So did a measure establishing the secret primary election in Michigan in which he was interested. A special session may be called to enact a civil service bill."

The county boards of supervisors were unsuccessful in their attempts to turn the control of welfare funds back to counties. Amendments providing for this tacked onto the welfare bill were beaten 54 to 44.

Back taxes on the American Legion club house at Port Huron were cancelled by the by a 75 to 3 vote. The attempt by the house to pass the bill restricting municipalities from borrowing money against unpaid taxes failed 51 to 24. 67 votes were needed.

Senate Republicans killed the bill to have members of the county committee elected at spring election by the voters. The successful primary candidates now elect them.

The school aid bill passed but state aid will be withheld from any school which does not levy a three mill tax. The old age pension bill lowering the age limit to 65 years passed both houses.

The bill adding 120 state police to the force was approved by both houses and awaits the governor's signature. The bill to repeal the Teacher's Oath failed to pass last week.

Gov. Murphy signed the Diggs bill last week to prevent racial discrimination in hotels and restaurants.

LAST DANCE UNTIL FALL

Jack Dowling and his orchestra will be here Friday eve July 2 to mark the end of a very successful season of parties at St. Joseph hall in Howell.

So we'll say farewell to our many friends until we see you all back with us when September rolls around.

Current Comment

By a 19 to 9 vote of the Michigan Senate, the legislature brought back the old time saloon bar to Michigan. 14 Democrats and 5 Republicans voted for its return. We think this is a mistake and hope Gov. Murphy will veto this measure. At the time repeal was voted upon assurance was given that the old time saloon would never return. In its place the beer garden can Tavern was adopted. This plan would have worked, probably, except that about twice as many beer gardens were licensed as tax evasion going on. Besides the dummy corporation method there are numerous others. Another one that is much in use is to operate a farm at a loss and thus gain exemption on this. These methods are perfectly legal but undoubtedly laws will be passed to plug these tax loopholes.

The investigation in the United States Senate on tax evasion is illuminating. The favorite method of dodging the tax is apparently for individuals to form themselves into a corporation and place their assets in it. For instance John Doe may be a millionaire but he would have no assets as all of them would be in the name of the John Doe Corporation. In fact it would be the same thing as if Bergen the ventriloquist, placing all of his assets in the name of his dummy doll Charlie McCarthy. For some time it has been generally known that there was considerable tax evasion going on. Besides the dummy corporation method there are numerous others. Another one that is much in use is to operate a farm at a loss and thus gain exemption on this. These methods are perfectly legal but undoubtedly laws will be passed to plug these tax loopholes.

We have seen our beloved president called a communist, fascist and many other things. An exchange last week coined a new one by calling him a criminal. In commenting on the report of the Judiciary committee of the U. S. senate, their adverse report on the supreme court proposal he remarked "How the author of this proposal must have cringed when he read it." President Roosevelt never did anything cringing in his life. A person who has gone down almost into the valley of death as he did when he was stricken with infantile paralysis, and won the fight for life by patience, perseverance and pure grit does not want for lack of courage. The American people of the lower classes know and love Franklin Roosevelt for it. That was the reason for the unprecedented vote given him last fall in which he carried every state but Maine & Vermont. Verily we believe that many Michigan editors are still getting material from the Literary Digest which predicted a Landon landslide.

Remedies to prevent strikes are coming thick & fast, especially in the public letter columns of the daily papers. We are interested in reading one the other day in which the author blamed the ignorance of the voters for them and stated the only remedy was to take the ballot away from the people not property owners. This class he stated would fight to keep what they have won and are the only thinking voters. This man evidently has not read history. This property qualification for voters was the main plank of the old federalist party and it was mainly on their insistence of this that the party went on the rocks and out of existence after only electing two presidential candidates. No we don't think a property qualification for voters is the remedy for the present situation.

Macomb is known as one of the wide open counties of the state on account of its proximity to Wayne county. Gambling on a wide scale and slot machines have flourished there with only occasional interruptions for the past 40 years. Now since Gov. Murphy went into office the life is on as a result of a campaign promise made by him. Lately the clerks of the county have been going after the punch boards, pin games and other minor gambling devices. The basement of the jail is filled with them and in many cases the operators were fined. Slot machines are like weeds.

The sergeant answered the question.

"If bail is furnished and the magistrate will sign his release."

"But he's innocent!" Cecily cried.

"If that is true," Sergeant McCready said soothingly, "you've nothing to worry about. It may take a little time. We can't have a final hearing until we know definitely how badly the girl is hurt. That's all I can tell you, Miss Vaughn."

"Then there's nothing I can do?"

She looked at Jim, her spirits drooping a little.

"You can go home and get some sleep."

"Sleep?" Her chin lifted. "I'm going home and call Father. Don't worry, Jim."

"I'm not worrying," He smiled. "Good-night. Thank you for coming. Good-night, MacPherson."

"Good-night, lad," MacPherson pressed Jim's hand. "We'll be coming back tomorrow."

"We certainly will," Cecily said with emphasis. "Good-night. Good-night, Jim."

Jim's eyes followed her as she walked through the door. It was almost worth being under arrest to have her defend him so spiritedly. He seated himself in a hard oak chair, resenting his detention less than he had before Cecily and MacPherson came, thinking, with a certain degree of serenity, of the ordeal before him.

Silence filled the room for an interval. Sergeant McCready, at the desk, wrote on a long sheet of paper with a scratching pen. Officer Kelly dozed behind the sports section of a newspaper. Jim lit a cigarette. The hands of the round-faced clock pointed to quarter of five.

CHAPTER XII

"You get to bed now, Jamie," Mrs. MacPherson said, as Jim finished a heartening mid-afternoon lunch in the kitchen at the cottage.

"Not just yet, Bessie," Jim pushed back his chair and stood wearily erect.

"You must be ready to drop. No sleep last night and all those questions this morning. It was downright bad manners the way that judge or whatever he was talked to you."

"Official routine," Jim said, smiling to lighten Mrs. MacPherson's concern. "I'm going to bed pretty soon. Right now I've something to do."

Mrs. MacPherson sighed. Jim went out of the cottage and down the orchard path. He had to find Tommy before he could sleep. Tommy had not been present at the hearing this morning. Cecily had been there, accompanied by Jeremy Clyde. The MacPhersons, too, had been present, Dolly's father and stepmother, her brother, Joey, the one who sang, more closely resembling Dolly than any of her family, the same flax-blue eyes and impudent charm. Seeing Joey in the magistrate's office this morning had given Jim a bad moment or two.

The hearing had been less of an ordeal than he had anticipated. Sergeant McCready presented a report from the hospital. Dolly's condition was much the same. She had regained partial consciousness, toward morning, only to slip back into unconsciousness again. The doctor in charge of the case would not, as yet, make a definite statement. The inference seemed to be, Sergeant McCready stated, that the Dolly—Dorothy Quinn, how strange that sounded!—was in a serious condition as a result of a fractured skull.

Following the hearing, Jim was detained in the magistrate's office until Mr. Vaughn's lawyer came out from the city and signed the bail bond, acting on authority from Mr. Vaughn who had made the arrangements by long-distance. Mr. Vaughn was returning at once. Cecily had told Jim that at the close of the hearing, Jeremy Clyde had been sympathetic. He had even seemed to be distressed about his predicament, Jim thought, recalling Jeremy's white and shaken look during the brief public interview he'd had with Cecily and her guest.

Mr. Vaughn would arrive at "Meadowbrook" some time about noon tomorrow. The matter would be cleared up speedily then. But Jim wanted to talk to Tommy.

Susan was sitting on the steps of the side veranda, a disconsolate little figure, her chin resting on her knees. She sprang up when she caught sight of Jim, ran to meet him, flung herself at him impetuously.

"What's all this?" Jim asked holding her off, looking down into the wide hazel eyes upturned to him.

"Will they put you in jail?" Her lips trembled; her eyes filled with tears.

"Of course not," Jim said cheerfully. "What gave you that idea?"

"Nora said they would and so did Rose." Tears spilled down over her cheeks. She held tightly to Jim's arm.

"Neither Nora nor Rose know everything. Stop crying, silly. Your eyes will be red for the wedding. People will think you have hay-fever."

"I don't want to go to the wedding," She pressed closer to him. "I want to stay here with you."

"Oh, come now," Jim says coaxingly. "They can't have the wedding without you. Think how disappointed the bride and groom will be and all the people."

"I'm afraid, while I'm gone, they'll come and take you away."

"Nonsense! I'll be here when you get back."

"Truly?" she asked.

"Certainly. I'm going to the cottage and sleep for a day and a half. Will you bring me some wedding cake?"

She nodded. "Did they put handcuffs on you," she asked, "like in the movies?"

"No. They treated me very politely. Where is Tommy?"

"He's out on the front lawn writing a letter. He told me to go away so I think it's to a girl. I don't care if they do put you in jail," she cried vehemently. "I'll like you just the same. I do like you awfully, Jim."

"You're a pal," Jim said gently. "But you must go to the wedding. Go up and take a nap. The wedding isn't until six. You'll have time enough. I want to see Tommy."

Susan went off toward the house, pausing on the veranda steps to call back to Jim. "Can I come to the cottage after the wedding," she asked, "and bring you some cake?"

"I'll probably be sleeping. You can put it under my pillow," He smiled and waved his hand.

The smile vanished as Jim walked on around the side of the house. His prospective interview with Tommy was no smiling matter.

Tommy was writing at a card-table set up under the purple beech at the far end of the lawn. He glanced up as Jim approached, his face lighting with interest and excitement.

"Hi!" he called, knocking a box of stationery off the table in the colt-like exuberance of his welcome. "They let you out all right, didn't they? I knew Dad could fix it. I knew that even state cops can't put anything over on Dad."

Jim was amazed. He had expected to find Tommy either terrified and evasive or dramatically remorseful and tragic.

"Tommy," he asked gravely, "did you take Cecily's car last night?"

The question, obviously, had a staggering effect.

"Did I take it?" he asked. "You mean did I?"

"Exactly," Jim continued. "Did you take Dolly driving last night in Cecily's car?"

"Me? Gosh, no, Jim!" In Tommy's startled countenance amazement and passionate protest were convincingly blended. "I didn't know anything about what happened last night until Cecily told us this morning. Gosh, Jim, did you think I ran off and left her when she was hurt? I mean you'd have to have thought that if you thought I did it. Nobody would be as low as that. Nobody would."

"Somebody did," Jim said.

"Where were you last night?"

Tommy's expression altered. He slumped down in the chair at the table.

"Oh just around," he said, displaying, for the first time, a suggestion of the evasion which Jim had expected.

"This is important," Jim said sternly. "You've got to tell me."

"I had a date," Tommy mumbled and then in tone of justified indignation, "What's the idea of ribbing me?" he asked. "Haven't I got a right to have a date if I want to?"

"You're concealing something," Jim said sternly.

Tommy flushed. "Well, if you've got to know—" he said, "I had a date with the girl who's visiting Betty Beach."

"Why did you try to make a mystery of that?" he asked.

Tommy's hands fidgeted with objects on the table.

"I took her out in the Pierce," he said. "Now, I suppose you'll have to tell Dad. What does he expect? I can't take a smooth number like Carol out in the station wagon. I suppose you'll consider it your sacred duty to tell Dad, though," he added expectantly.

"At the moment," Jim said wearily, "your taking the Pierce seems relatively unimportant."

Tommy brightened.

"She's a smooth number," he said dreamily. "She went home this morning."

"And you're writing to her already?"

"Well, I thought I'd better sign her up for the Thanksgiving dance at school. She has lots of dates."

Jim sighed and smiled, amused for the moment.

"You're a perennial Romeo," he said. "I thought you'd stopped writing letters to young ladies."

"Carol's different," Tommy looked down at the table, fitted the cap of a fountain pen on and off, his expression sober, a little embarrassed. "You know, Jim," he said, "I don't believe Dolly would have made a fuss about those letters."

"No," Jim said, seeing Dolly with painful vividness for an instant, Dolly sparkling behind the soda bar in the drug-store, Dolly lying on the stretcher in the flooding radiance of the headlights, so small and so still. "No," he repeated. "Dolly wouldn't have made a fuss."

"I think she was just kidding me," Tommy continued.

"I was kidding you, Tommy. I thought being uncertain about what she might do, would make you work. It was entirely my own idea."

"Well, I'll be—!" Tommy gave indications of exploding with indignation. All at once he laughed, instead. "That was pretty smart," he said. "I don't mind because Mr. Jordan thinks I'll pass the re-exams all right and I had money enough on account of working with you to show Carol a pretty good time."

He roused, momentarily, from his absorption in a new and exciting romance. "Jim," he asked, "who did take Dolly driving in Cecily's car last night?"

"I don't know," Weariness, an urgent need for sleep, crept over Jim, dulling his senses, confusing him.

"MacPherson has questioned everyone on the place. The men have water-tight alibis. It's possible that an outsider might have come in and taken the car. Ralph is careless about locking the garage. That theory is hardly probable, though. Dolly is the only one who could tell us and Dolly is conscious only for a moment now and then. It would be dangerous to attempt to question her. The matter of greatest importance to all of us is that Dolly shall have every possible chance to get well."

"It was a rotten trick! And you thought it was me," Tommy said reproachfully. "That's what hurts me, Jim."

"I'm sorry, old man," Jim extended his hand. "You see I thought of those letters. I blamed myself for letting you think the preposterous thing you did think. Can you forgive me?"

"Oh, sure," Tommy wrung the hand Jim extended. "And don't you worry. Dad will be here tomorrow. He'll find out who did it. Dad's pretty smart. Don't you worry, Jim."

"I'm not going to worry. I'm going to sleep. I feel as though I'd been hit in the head."

Jim left Tommy to the composition of his letter under the purple beech. He walked up and across the lawn, thinking only of getting to bed as quickly as possible. Cecily hailed him from the garden. Jim saw that Clyde was with her.

"Wait a minute," she called. "I want to talk to you, Jim!"

She came up to him, a flat basket of asters and cosmos held in the crook of her elbow. Jeremy followed her closely.

"These are for the wedding decorations," Cecily said, indicating the flowers. "I promised Mrs. Patton to send them over and I forgot them this morning."

"Let somebody else take care of them," Jim said. "You ought to be getting a nap."

"I know," She sighed. "I'm simply dead. I'll look like the ghost at the feast. Oh well, it's a bride's maid's first duty to look less radiant than the bride."

"I hope you can persuade her to go to bed," Jeremy said with a note of concern in his voice. "She won't listen to me."

Jim, surprised at the statement, glanced at Jeremy. He had the white and shaken look which Jim had observed that morning at the hearing.

"You look as though you didn't sleep well last night," he said, returning the amiability surprisingly extended. "And I'm completely out. How about a nap all around?"

The suggestion had been innocuous, a mere exchange of civilities. The words had no underlying motive or purpose. Their effect upon Jeremy puzzled Jim for an instant, then tore in a lightning streak through the weariness dulling his senses. Clyde! Why hadn't he thought of that? The casual remark had brought into Jeremy's eyes a sudden expression of terror.

"Have you heard from the hospital since this morning, Jim?" Cecily asked.

"MacPherson called about an hour ago," Did he imagine it or was Clyde waiting in breathless suspense for his reply. "There's been no decided change," he continued. "The physicians in charge of the case are extremely apprehensive. Dolly is conscious only now and then."

"I Had a Date With the Girl Who's Visiting Betty Beach."

Cecily sighed, looked up at Jim with a faint encouraging smile. "Father will be here in the morning," she said. "I dread this wedding. The morning papers hadn't the story, merely a brief police report."

"I wouldn't worry about that, darling," Jeremy said soothingly. "The countryside has been too greatly absorbed in the wedding to read papers today. You're completely exhausted, Cecily." He took the basket from her. "You've time enough to sleep for an hour, at least. See you again, Fielding."

Cecily smiled back over her shoulder at Jim as Jeremy, his hand on her arm, led her toward the house. Jim watched them go in through the side door, then continued on his way to the cottage, thinking, fitting fragments together, growing more and more convinced that it was Clyde who had taken Cecily's car last night, that it was he who had left Dolly—dying perhaps—at the side of the road.

Why hadn't he thought of it before, he asked himself, lying wide awake on his bed, lighting one cigarette after another in sheer nervous excitement as the fragments of the story fitted neatly together and suspicion became certainty. Jeremy was angry last night because he had not been included in the festivities which had been arranged for the wedding party. He had taken Cecily's car from the garage, had picked Dolly up somewhere and persuaded her to ride with him. He might have been drinking. That wasn't important. Cecily had spoken of Jerry's unreliable driving. Or Dolly, herself, alarmed at the speed at which the car had torn along the winding road, might have grabbed the wheel.

When the car crashed, Jeremy had not been hurt. He had probably tried, unsuccessfully, to rouse Dolly, and discovering that they were near the riding academy, had gone there for help.

Was it Jeremy who had knocked at the door? Jim made a concentrated effort to remember precisely what had happened at the moment. He'd been aroused. The voice which had called had not sounded familiar. But then he'd been only half awake. It might have been Clyde. What would Clyde have done if he, Jim, had been awake and had recognized him?

Since Jim hadn't seen him, Jeremy had taken advantage of the unexpected opportunity to keep himself out of the mess. Jim saw, in imagination, Jeremy hiding somewhere near the office, watching him as he opened the door, as he located the car in the side road from the fence at the rear of the grounds and set off across the fields. Knowing that Jim would find Dolly, hoping, perhaps, that Jim would be held responsible for the accident, Jeremy had walked back to "Meadowbrook" and gone to bed.

It all fitted together. Why hadn't he thought of it before? Because his certainty that Tommy had taken the car had precluded any other theory; because, even now that he was sure Jeremy had done it, he couldn't make it seem plausible. How did he think he could get away with a thing like that? Even if no one had seen him take the car, if no one had seen him all evening, didn't he know that when Dolly regained consciousness the truth would be revealed? Or was he hoping that Dolly would not regain consciousness?

That was the truth of the matter, of course. Jeremy was counting on the possibility of Dolly dying without regaining consciousness, in which case, he would be secure. But it wasn't possible, Jim thought. No one he knew would do a thing like that.

Jeremy was terrified. His entire future had been at stake. He had seen himself in certain danger of losing Cecily, her father's support, his professional advancement. It was possible. People were constantly taking chances equally dishonorable.

Yes, Clyde had taken Cecily's car. But how could he prove it? He was fairly certain that no one had suspected Jeremy, the MacPhersons, Cecily—

Cecily—! For the first time Jim considered the certain effect upon Cecily of any proof of Jeremy's guilt. She would be completely crushed. He knew that she was terribly in love with him. Yes, terribly was the word. Recalling her confidences, recalling the lighted look of happiness she'd had when Jeremy first came to "Meadowbrook," Jim groaned and tossed restlessly on the bed.

Cecily—! He recalled her defense of him early this morning in the state troopers' headquarters at Chestertown. He'd loved her so, then. He loved her now. He would love her always.

But he wasn't a hero of romantic fiction. He wasn't a Sidney Carton going nobly to the guillotine to insure the happiness of the woman he loved. No heroic gesture which he might make would insure Cecily's happiness. If — when Dolly returned to consciousness, Cecily would know the truth. If Dolly died and no suspicion fell upon Jeremy, his own guilty conscience would make impossible any continued happiness in his relation to Cecily. He hadn't the stamina to live a lie, consistently day after day. Sometimes he would go to pieces. Cecily would know eventually.

A Drop of Honey

"IF YOU would win a man to your cause," Lincoln said on one occasion, "first convince him that you are his true friend. Therein is a drop of honey which will catch his heart—and which, say what you will, is the greatest high road to his reason—and which, once gained, you will have little trouble in convincing him of the justness of your cause."

Lincoln prepared himself for every interview—he studied the prospect. "I spend one-third of my time figuring what I am going to say, and two-thirds of my time thinking what the other fellow is going to say."

"I quote from the Record"

The only record is the one you now hold in your hand — this newspaper

Congress is in session. Claims and counter-claims about proposed legislation are being made. What our national legislators say is soon forgotten. Forgotten, but recorded!

The "record" is down in black and white—you hold today's record in your hand—it is this newspaper. This is a record that cannot die—that cannot be erased. For your newspaper is a record of fact!

Here is recorded exactly what was said and done by presidents and kings, by senator leaders and congressmen. More important, the newspaper interprets what it all means to you.

For this newspaper is edited especially for its readers. News of remote places is adequately covered and interpreted. Local events are reported fully. Thus, a newspaper is "tailored" for the people it serves; you and your neighbors.

NOW is a good time to learn how "the record" is kept—for you.

WOMAN OWNS STATE'S LEADING HEN

We are reprinting the following from the Jackson Citizen Patriot: A White Rock hen in the 15th international egg laying contest at the Michigan State College is the property of a Livingston county farm woman, Mrs. F. L. Woodworth of Pinckney.

In the first eight months of the 1936-37 egg laying race, Mrs. Woodworth's prize biddy No. 99 deposited 216 eggs in the trapsnets to lead the parade toward poultry fame in the great international competition.

The nearest rival of hen No. 99 is a white Leghorn owned by the Asel Poultry farm of Comstock Park, Kent county. She laid 214 eggs to become the lady in waiting—waiting to take first place should No 99 go into a slump.

The second place individual is a member of the leading pen in the contest. Aseltine's entry has stretched its lead to 126 eggs over its nearest competitor, a pen of White Leghorns from the farm of Foreman Poultry of Lowell. The Comstock Park birds deposited 1,929 eggs in eight months, scoring 1,981.5 points, to lead all other hens. Foreman's hens laid 1,808 eggs scoring 1,880.65 points, to take second place.

Other high Michigan pens in the contest are owned as follows: Royal Poultry farm, Northland farms, R. O. Wagemaker and the Saline Valley farms of Saline.

the ELECTRACIDE

keeps your garden, porch, or veranda free from annoying

insects

If you are unable to sit on the porch at night or step into the yard without being driven frantic by mosquitoes, you will find the Electracide a boon. Electracide is a light trap that attracts and destroys mosquitoes, moths, gnats, beetles, fish flies and other insect pests. You simply plug it into any convenience outlet, like a portable lamp. It costs only 1/4c an hour for electricity. Electracide also destroys many insects which are damaging to shrubs, flowers and fruit trees . . . the codling moth, bud moth and fruit tree leaf roller. Experiments in apple orchards have shown that, with this protection, trees produce greater yields of clean fruit each year. See the Electracide on display at department stores, hardware stores and electrical dealers.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN AUTO TAG LAWS

Passage by the legislature of the bill to make March 1st the annual deadline for the purchase of auto license plates and stickers, with neither the secretary of State nor any other official authorized to extend this deadline, is believed by Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, to be a step in advance. The present law permits the Secretary of State to extend the final expiration date to March 1st.

In addition to Case's desire to call public attention to these two important changes in the motor vehicle law, the Secretary of State also points out to the fee of 25c to be collected hereafter for the issuance of stickers or half-year permits. The charging by the state of this small fee appears to be fair and proper, considering the accommodation represented by a half-year installment plan for the purchase of a set of plates.

The bookkeeping, special costs represented by the printing and handling of the some million and a half stickers annually is an item which no one should long expect in the state to absorb. The collection of a 25c fee will bring in approximately $125,000 annually, it is estimated.

BRIGHTON CARNIVAL TO BE HELD JULY 2, 3, 4, 5

The Brighton carnival to be held on the Catholic Church grounds, Brighton, promises to be a fine success. Beginning on Friday evening, July 2nd with what will be known as Brighton Day, there will be fun for all, old and young. As a special attraction boys from the Detroit C. Y. O. will put on several boxing bouts.

Saturday and Sunday will be for the general public. Mack and Mack will entertain with Baby Rides and Chair Rides.

Sunday from 11:00 A. M. to 3:00 P. M. a chicken dinner will be served in the usual elaborate style by the ladies of the parish. In the evening there will be a grand display of fireworks by an expert from Detroit.

Monday is Livingston County Day when another series of boxing bouts will be exhibited for the general entertainment.

Conservation Dept. Notes

Only one bidder appeared at the auction sale of state owned gold and silver rights held at Lansing last week. He was Lou J. LeVeque of Marquette. He bought 3 40 acre plots in Baraga county for himself and 80 acres in Marquette for Anna LeVeque.

Short wave radio sets to equip all district conservation posts have been purchased by the department. This will give the upper Peninsula a complete short wave hookup.

The Chippewa River Conservation Club has been awarded first prize as a national wild fowl refuge. In 1935 they planted 30 wild mallards from the state game farm. These have multiplied to 300.

A resident of Sagola township, Dickinson has been arrested for starting a fire by careless use of a cigarette butt. 10 acres were burned in the fire caused by him.

The deer yards in Michigan have been examined & found to be in poor condition. That is there were many more deer in them than will be able to find food year after year. 72 were examined in the upper peninsula and 60 percent were overpopulated. 121 were examined in the lower and 45 percent were overpopulated.

A land locked salmon was caught on Lake Charlevoix by Harry Brown of Detroit last May. None have been reported for some years and they were believed to be extinct. The salmon were planted in Michigan some years ago and the smelt to serve as their food. The result was unexpected. The smelt have thrived but the salmon have not.

The state fire towers are a great attraction. One tower has had 250 visitors so far this year.

Trout fishing in the Pine river in Lake county has been pepped up by planting legal size trout from the fish hatchery. 3000 of these trout were planted there in June. More will be planted in July and August.

More than 1,250,000 hunting, fishing, and trapping licenses were sold in Michigan in 1936. This is an increase of 40,000 over 1935.

TRI-COUNTY LEAGUE GAMES

Pinckney Loses To Hamburg 3 to 2.
Chelsea Beats Dexter and Ann Arbor Shuts Out Saline

Despite the fact that the Pinckney team was made up mostly of substitutes Sunday with hardly any man playing his own position the team put up the best game of the year and were just nosed out by Hamburg 3 to 2. The game had to be played at Hamburg as the Pinckney diamond failed to dry off after the rain. Harlo Haines pitched his best game of the season only allowing six hits. Hamburg scored two runs when F. Haines pitched right field fell down going after a fly ball. Bob Smith played a bang-up game at third and so did Bob Kerr at short. Rollie Shehan played a nice game in center field and broke into the hit column.

Next Sunday Pinckney plays at Saline and will make an effort to get back into the win column.

ROWING BUMPER CROPS WITHOUT ANY SOIL

An article, in the American Weekly with the July issue of the Detroit Sunday Times, tells of the remarkable results of "dirtless farming" by which vegetables, flowers and even fruit can be raised with a few cheap chemicals—in water, sand or sawdust in small places.

JIM MORAN GOING GOOD

James Moran, former Pinckney pitcher is pitching for the United Steel & Wire Co. of Battle Creek. Last Sunday in a game at Lansing against the Luce Mfg. Co. he relieved Brown in the third star 9 runs had been scored and shut out the Luce team the last six innings, winning 14 to 9.

LOSES BOTH EYES IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

John Marshall, 50 who runs a gaso. line station on U. S.-16 near Howell lost the sight of both eyes Saturday evening when an auto struck him four miles east of Brighton. Marshall's hat was blown off and as he ran after it he was struck by an auto driven by Jacob Rette, 21, of Detroit. The door handle of the car struck him in such a way as to destroy the sight of both eyes. State police arrested Rette and took him to the county jail. Marshall is at Moline hospital, Brighton.

HOME-MAKER'S CORNER

Very small children will soon learn to dress themselves if their clothes are designed to make dressing easy. It is a matter of roomy cut, well located openings, and easily managed fastenings.

To begin with, the dress or suit must have fullness where it is needed to prevent tearing and for free activity, suggest Miss Hazel Strahan, assistant professor of clothing at the Michigan State College. The places to check for sufficient fullness are across the chest and shoulders, at the bottom of girl's dresses, seats of trousers and panties. Raglan sleeves, stopping just above the bend of the elbow, allow unrestricted arm movements in climbing, and their roomy cut helps the child to put on the blouse or dress unassisted.

Long plackets or openings, whether down the front or back, at the neck or on the side of the trousers, greatly facilitate dressing. When the front placket is too short the child has difficulty in pulling on the garment.

The kind and location of the fastenings is equally important. Large flat buttons, which the child's untrained fingers can find and handle, are good. There should be pliable button holes that fit the buttons, or firm crocheted loops. Children also like to work sliding metal fasteners.

Pockets are one form of trimming which serve a useful purpose, as they add to the appearance and give the child a place for a handkerchief and other belongings.

If parents will not hurry the child but allow him to progress in dressing at his own rate of speed, self-reliance will be more apparent. It is helpful for parents to recognize unevenness in skill and interest on the part of the child. Patience and encouragement are recommended.

DEXTER MAN KILLED BY FALL

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—Two actions of sections of the congress lately deserve more than ordinary attention. Congress Makes News One of these was probably as courageous a position as any group of senators ever has taken. The other action—by majority of the house—was shot through with the utmost cowardice and selfishness.

Lately, a group of senators, nearly all Democrats, took their political lives in their hands and delivered to the senate a report from its judiciary committee advising defeat of President Roosevelt's proposal to add six new justices of his own choosing to the Supreme court of the United States.

In my time in Washington, I believe I can say without qualification, there never has been a committee action in the house or senate in which the President, as the leader of the dominant party, received such a castigation on a legislative proposal as was given Mr. Roosevelt by Democrats who constituted the majority of the senate judiciary committee. They did not mince words in any respect. What ever may be the merit of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to add six justices of his own choosing to the highest court, the majority report of the judiciary committee left no stone unturned in disclosing objections to the proposal as opponents of the court reorganization scheme see them.

Almost on the same day that senate Democrats were, in effect, breaking or revolting from the President's leadership, the Democratic majority in the house killed off a proposal for new taxes in the District of Columbia that would have resulted in taxing the salaries of representatives and senators and their office staffs. They were brazen about it. They were not going to vote an income tax upon themselves and they made no effort to conceal their reasons for refusing to accept the recommendations of a special tax subcommittee which was acting for the permanent committee in the house of the District of Columbia.

The District of Columbia committee, examining the budget for the seat of the federal government, was confronted with a deficit in the district finances and instructed its tax subcommittee to develop new sources of revenue in order that the District of Columbia might not get into debt. Among the taxes proposed was a tax on income of residents of the District of Columbia, which is synonymous with Washington, and it provided for taxing earnings here whether the person who earned the income was a resident of the capital city or not.

That was too much. The majority in the house of representatives just could not take it. They voiced their objections openly and, being superior in numbers to those who believed that income in the District of Columbia should be taxed, they forced the tax bill back to the District of Columbia committee for revision. Indeed, they went further. The line of criticism of an income tax that would touch the sacred salaries of congressmen and senators was such as to have the effect of forcing the committee to bring in a tax bill that would increase the tax on property in the federal area. Now, it is a fact that few members of the house and a very small number of senators have bought residences in Washington. They usually live in apartments or hotels or lease homes for the period that congress is in session. Consequently, a real estate tax will not concern most of the representatives and senators.

The indictment brought against the President's court plan by the senate judiciary committee was quite unusual in many respects.

In the first instance, it was approximately fifteen thousand words in length; being in that regard probably the longest and most comprehensive analysis that any congressional committee ever has made of a piece of legislation. Certainly, it is the most extensive examination to be included in a committee report in the last quarter of a century.

Every argument advanced by the administration in support of the plan was picked to pieces and held up to public gaze; every possible reason for expansion of the court by the addition of six new justices was scrutinized and denounced and, then, the committee put forth some of its own ideas.

"It applies force to the judiciary," the committee said in a sentence that constituted one paragraph and thereby was emphasized.

"The only argument for the increase which survives analysis," the report added, "is that congress should enlarge the court so as to make the policies of this administration effective."

The bill was found by the seven Democrats and three Republicans who constituted a majority of the senate judiciary committee, to be "a needless, futile and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle." It charged that the "American system" of independence of the courts would be violated and that if the bill were to be enacted into law, "political control" over the judiciary branch of the government would pass into the hands of the President.

With the presentation of this terrific attack on the bill to the senate, a second unusual circumstance developed. Those Democrats who were opposed to the President's proposal decided to go about the job of fighting the measure on the floor in a manner seldom seen in the congress. These opponents from the Democratic ranks got together and chose Senator Wheeler of Montana as leader of the Democratic opposition to the Democratic President's court revision program. They gave him full authority to act, including the selection of a steering committee, a committee on strategy, to aid him.

Thus, in the senate now we have three major leaders. Senator Wheeler will speak for the court opposition; Senator Robinson of Arkansas as the leader of the Democratic party in the senate will lead the fight for passage of the court bill; and Senator McNary of Oregon will head up the Republicans as usual. Since all of the Republicans and Independents excepting only Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin, are opposed to the court revision plan, Senator McNary and Senator Wheeler are working hand in glove against the regular Democratic line-up headed by Senator Robinson.

It appears that the President is going to be badly defeated on this piece of legislation, but it is too early to be sure. Mr. Roosevelt is a powerful figure and he has political knowledge that must be described as remarkable. He has with him in the senate some exceedingly able political strategists. It is thus a battle of wits.

Mr. Roosevelt has said several times that he will accept no compromises. There is a very definite feeling at the Capitol, however, that the President will be glad to have a compromise if he can get one and save the bill from complete wreckage. On the other hand, Senator Wheeler and his strategy committee have announced in no uncertain terms that they will defeat the bill or any compromise that is offered. Time alone can answer the question of what will come out of the President's proposal. At this writing, the odds certainly are against the President on the proposition.

Hunt Tax Evaders

Speaking of taxes and the selfishness that was evident in the house action, as mentioned earlier, calls to mind the investigation by the joint house and senate committee that is now under way. This committee, made up of five representatives and five senators has begun a search to find out how taxpayers avoid taxes or reduce the amounts they would otherwise have to pay by various trick schemes. The committee has been given fifty thousand dollars with which to make the investigation and it is receiving able assistance from Under Secretary Roswell Magill and other Treasury experts on taxation.

Contrary to the outlook when Mr. Roosevelt released a vicious attack on tax dodgers and tax avoiders, this committee is getting down to real business and there is every reason to believe it will be able to recommend to congress changes in the law that will stop some of the schemes and tricks to which large taxpayers have resorted.

I have sat in on a number of the hearings thus far, including the opening session when Secretary Morgenthau made the opening statement and disclosed to the satisfaction of everyone that he was not conversant with the problem at hand. Like the President, Mr. Morgenthau attempted to place the tax problem confronting the government on moral grounds. His statement did not click with the committee at all. With two or three exceptions, the committee members recognized the problem as purely a question of law and Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, vice chairman, said that there was no point in making the investigation "a Roman holiday." Therefore, the thing settled down very quickly to an earnest study of cases where men have resorted to various kinds of subterfuges of law, to reduce their tax liability.

In this connection, it seemed to me that too much credit cannot be given Under Secretary Magill who apparently is anxious to get to the bottom of the problem.

BETSY ROSS HOUSE Where Our Flag Was Made

THE historic incident of the origin of the flag is one of the dramatic stories of Revolutionary days, featuring one of the more colorful women of colonial history, the widow of John Ross, upholsterer, who fell early in the revolution. A storehouse of munitions he was guarding exploded. Betsy Ross has been pictured as the Florence Nightingale of the Revolution.

To this brick house at 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, came one day in June, 1776, a committee of Gen. George Washington, Col. George Ross, uncle of Betsy's late husband, and the wealthy Robert Morris, chairman of the secret commission on supplies for the colonial forces. They requested Betsy Ross to make the flag according to a design given her by General Washington, and which was officially adopted by the congress the following year.

The old house is a two-and-a-half story structure, 17 feet wide, with but two rooms on the ground floor. At the front was the upholstery shop, and in the rear, connected by a hallway, was the sitting room, used as a dining room on gala occasions. Beneath this was the basement kitchen, reached by a winding stairs. Bedrooms were on the second and dormer floors. The living room still has the large fireplace with the white mantel framed with the original blue Dutch tile; the room was originally painted blue, as shown by the removal of many coats of paint.

An inch-by-inch study of the building has revealed many changes since the flag incident. The front entrance had been shifted from one side of the building to the other; a chimney and three fireplaces had been closed up; four windows had been made into doors; the original floor of the basement kitchen was found ten inches beneath the present brick flooring.

All of the original building is being carefully preserved. Thus it was discovered that six doors with original L-shaped hinges of colonial make remain; two sets of colonial shutters, of spliced wood, panelled inside, with authentic hinges were discovered on the rear of the building. Two second-story front windows and a dormer window were originals even to the small panes of glass.

Flag Code Provides for Reverence to the Emblem
THE following extract from the flag code, providing for reverence to the national emblem, adopted by the National Flag Conferences held in Washington in 1923 and 1924, gives the form of the salute:

"During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag or when the flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the head-dress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the flag in the moving column is rendered at the moment the flag passes."

Adams, Jefferson Died on Fourth
John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, both died on July 4, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. They were the only two signers to become President.

Cool, Smart, Comfortable

COOL is the word for Carrie when she wears one of these smart new frocks by Sew-Your-Own. No matter whether she's three or thirty, a June bride or a proud mama, Carrie will find what she needs for summer comfort here.

Left to Right.
The young frock with the interesting middle and sporty inverted pleat is one that's going in for extra credit at summer school. It has that advanced chic which readily distinguishes co-eds' clothes. If you're campus bound (or just bound for an ordinary vacation) be sure to have a couple of versions of this fashion first with you. Then you'll be set for that heavy summer schedule.

Lines for a Princess.
Second to none in the summer is this princess dress. As fit for golf as it is for dancing, you can see at a glance that this is the one dress you can't be even half-way happy without. Fresh in spirit, dainty in detail and becoming to all figures this simple-to-sew frock will introduce countless women to new chic this season. Come on, Milady, shake hands with Chic.

Tot's Tidbit.
Only when we're very young are we privileged to wear dresses as cute as this one. The most unaccustomed seamstress can make it with its half dozen pieces; the merest remnant will suffice for material. There is more than ordinary intrigue packed in the diminutive skirt that shows a couple of darling dimpled knees so lusciously sun tanned. Use it as a cool, cool top with panties as the ideal hot weather attire, or slip it on as an apron—either way it will be a fine little companion for mother's pet this summer.

The Patterns.
Pattern 1258 is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 4 1/2 yards for braid trimming as pictured.

Pattern 1323 is designed in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 46 bust). Size 16 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material for the short length. Beach length requires 7 1/2 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1944 is designed for sizes 6 months, 1, 2, and 3 years. Size 1 year requires 1 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. The pockets, cuffs and facings for collar in contrasting material require 1/4 yard of 27 inch material.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

CURRENT COMMENT

They spring up over night and only eternal vigilance will keep them out. In the past the enforcement efforts have always been to spasmodic to be effective and were never continued. All remember how they came back with a rush after Harry Toy was elevated to the Supreme Court and Gov. Fitzgerald threw his slot machine cleanup campaign out the window.

The heavy weight championship fight last week between Joe Louis and Jim Braddock caused less excitement than other such events that we remember. Not a terrible amount of money was wagered as the Braddock supporters wanted huge odds. The race question did not seem to enter into it at all. Such was not the case when Jack Johnson fought Jim Jeffries back in 1910. Then the white race backed Jeffries as a matter of race pride, making him a big favorite. For his defeat they went into mourning and did not smile again until Whitney took the title from Jeffries. Then followed the area of white hopes who streamed across the landscape. It's times change.

MORE OF M-36 BEING BLACK-TOPPED

The Livingston County Road Com. is black-topping another mile of M-36 in Green Oak Township. Two miles were black-topped there last year. Ingham county submitted a project to the federal government to get their part of M-36 black-topped and had it accepted. The work is now being done. This will mean a black-topped road nearly to Plainfield. The portion of M-36 from U. S. 23 to South Lyon was never taken over by the state and is still county road hence the county road commission is doing the work.

A Pinckney delegation visited the office of the state highway commissioner last winter and asked what steps could be taken to get the Livingston county portion of M-36 black-topped. They were told they would have to submit a federal project similar to that of Ingham county. However only welfare men can be employed on this and Livingston county has not a large enough welfare list of persons able to work on such a project.

Safetygrams BY W. BRAUN The Safety Man

The town of July will be celebrated on Monday, and, therefore, the highways will be crowded with automobiles and people. Thousands upon thousands of cars will wind their way to various spots for picnics, visits with relatives, outings, and other forms of amusement.

At the end of the celebration hundreds and hundreds of people will be dead because of failure to comply with safe practices.

Avoid congestion-control your speed put your car in perfect mechanical condition and above all-drive carefully.

It's smart to be careful-death takes no holiday.

GRADUATES

To the graduates of the schools of this county we offer congratulations on your accomplishments. We know that you will each have a different idea in mind as to what you want to do in the world. Some of you will go on to college for special courses in law, medicine, or any one of many professions. Eventually you will all be earning your living. Some will make more money than others, but each must follow the same rules.

As a bank we are prepared to help you all build for the future. A Saving account opened now will serve as a solid foundation for an estate. A little added regularly grows very rapidly. It acts as a reserve for emergencies, something no one can tell when it will be needed. Thrift has been a by-word with every successful man in this country. Carnegie, Rockefeller, Edson and many more started with a little or nothing but saving gave them the capital with which to build.
