

Ford Proposition

Is Taken up by Village Council and at Board of Commerce Meeting Last Week. Has Not Yet Assumed Definite Shape

Last spring representatives from the Ford Motor Co. came here and stated that a Ford factory would be erected here providing that Henry Ford could obtain certain flowage rights etc. Some 15 years ago Ford bought the water rights on the Pinckney mill pond and the land. At that time he intended to erect a factory. A man named Romberger asked a higher price than Ford offered. The late Dr. Sigler and Floyd Reason bought the Romberger property and sold Ford the part he desired but for reasons unknown the factory was not built. Last spring it was found out that all but two property owners would sell for $40 an acre. Accordingly options were taken on all property lying to the west of Pinckney mill pond to a point beyond Anderson. This includes the property on both sides of the pond. These options expired about July 1 and were renewed at the council meeting the Ford Co. was given permission to close all streets running into the pond. At the board of Commerce meeting enough money was pledged to buy out the two persons who would not sell at Ford's price.

Most of the option buying was done by Messrs. Norman, Reason and Lucius Doyle. They visited Dearborn last week and talked to Mr. Leobold secretary to Mr. Ford. He refused to set any definite date as to when a factory would be built in Pinckney but stated that Mr. Ford was in earnest and was not buying the property to play with, but meant business.

Just what is in the wind we have not been able to find out. We understand that Ford representatives have visited the Hi-Land Lake section and also Hudson Mills and Birketta. Naturally both places are hopeful of developments.

MRS. MARY LEDWIDGE

Many relatives, old friends and neighbors gathered at St. Mary's church last Saturday morning to pay affectionate tribute to the memory of Mrs. Mary Ledwidge who died in Detroit, July 14, after an illness of several months' duration. The funeral services were most impressive. Solemn Requiem Mass was chanted by the Reverend James Carolan, pastor of St. Mary's. He was assisted by the Reverend J. V. Coyle of Ionia as deacon; the Reverend Morgan Harris of Dearborn as sub-deacon; the Rev. A. Stitt, Detroit, Master of Ceremonies; the Reverend Raynor Oak, Detroit and the Reverend Henry Donnelly, Detroit, acolytes. Other priests present were the Rev. James Cotter, Birmingham; the Rev. Vincent R. Hughes, O. P. St. Joseph College Adrian, Michigan; the Rev. T. Lisenmeyer and the Rev. Leo DeBarry, both of Detroit. Rev. Mother M. Gerald and nine sisters of St. Dominic of St. Joseph College, Adrian were also in attendance. The sermon was preached by Father Coyle. The music was rendered by Miss Nellie Gardner and Daniel Noecker. The pall bearers were James Stackable of Gregory, Loy McCleer of Pinckney, Andrew Roche Henry Ruen, Martin Greiner and Frank Brogan, all former Pinckney boys now living in Detroit.

Mary Roche Ledwidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Roche, was born near Pinckney, July 5, 1860 and lived all her life in the vicinity until after the death of her husband six years ago when she took up her residence with her daughter, Germaine, in Detroit. On November 25, 1884, she was united in marriage to William Ledwidge. To this happy union were born five children all of whom survive except one daughter, Alice, who died in infancy. The survivors include two sons, R. M. Ledwidge of Pinckney and Dr. P. L. Ledwidge of Detroit; two daughters, Sr. Benedicta Marie, O. P. of St. Joseph College, Adrian, Michigan and Mrs. Louis Stackable of Detroit; three brothers, William and M. J. Roche, Pinckney, and Dr. A. C. Roche, Calumet, Michigan; two sisters, Mrs. Michael Levey of Pinckney and Mrs. E. T. McCleer of Whitmore Lake; fifteen grandchildren and one great grand child.

The death of Mrs. Ledwidge brought to a close a well spent life marked by fidelity to God and duty, filled with kindly deeds to friends and neighbors, rich in inspiration to those privileged to know her most intimately in the family circle.

Gov. Murphy Calls Extra Session

July 30 is the Date for the Extra Session of the Michigan Six Measures to be Considered

Governor has called a special session of the Michigan legislature to convene on July 30 to finish up the work of the last session.

The following measures are listed for special consideration:

- 1.—A civil service amendment.
- 2.—Broadening the Unemployment Compensation Act to include 250,000 additional persons working for small employers.
- 3.—A women's minimum wage minimum hour bill.
- 4.—Three bills designed to speed formation of rural electric co-operatives.
- 5.—A teacher's tenure bill.
- 6.—Changes in Labor Relations and Occupational Diseases Acts, which have been passed.

The governor will ask the special session to remove the provision in the Labor relations Act prohibiting picketing by persons not employed at the plant where the picket line is located, it is expected.

Governor Murphy said the civil service unemployment compensation and minimum wage bills constitute the most urgent items to act on.

The governor said preliminary work with committees on important bills would be completed week in advance of the session. He said the session should not last more than a few days.

Today was the first definite announcement by Murphy he would attempt to push through the minimum wage, maximum hour bill at the special session.

The bill which passed the house and was defeated in the Senate, provided for a 48-hour week for working women. Murphy said today he favored making this 44 hours a week.

The governor also said he would push enactment of provisions under which the department of labor and industry can hold investigations of sweat shops conditions and issue orders fixing basic wage rates for women in each industry.

FRED BOWMAN

Fred Bowman, 69, died at his home here Sunday evening from a heart attack after a few days illness. He was the son of the late Charles Bowman, former Pinckney merchant and produce buyer. His occupation was that of a carpenter and contractor. Surviving are his wife, the former Mildred Parker, a sister, Mrs. Grace Thomas, both of Pinckney, a brother Earl, of Port Huron and four grandchildren. A son J. C. and a daughter, Mrs. Madeline Aschenbrenner, preceded him in death.

The funeral was held from the home this afternoon at 2:00 P. M. with Rev. C. H. Zuse of the Pinckney Congregational church officiating. Burial was in the Pinckney cemetery, Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M. exemplified the Masonic burial service at the grave. Past Master Axel Carpenter delivering the funeral oration.

TEACHER'S STANDARDS

In Saugus, Mass., a school teacher Isabell Hallin has taken her case to court to get reinstated as a teacher. The school board dismissed her on the grounds that she served her class cocktails and cigarettes at a class party. In the old days a teachers private life was supposed to be like that of a minister, that is above reproach. They were not supposed to drink, smoke or do anything the least of color. The people set this high standard of deportment and for years saw that it was observed. Of late years however, there have been indications that it has slipped a little. Not that efforts have not been made to uphold it. It is not over 12 years ago that an Ypsi co-ed was expelled for smoking cigarettes after a battle in court at Ann Arbor. This may have been the last great battle for the old standards for the attitude in regard to teachers' standards has undoubtedly become changed in recent years.

Will He Ever Get It?

St. Marys Picnic

Next Sunday will be the occasion on which the annual picnic of St. Mary's church of Pinckney will be held. The main item on the days event is undoubtedly the big chicken dinner served by the ladies of the parish. Each family will be asked to furnish two chicken pies. The three tables are to be in charge of following ladies: Mrs. Dora Stackable, Mr. Brace Hoisel and Mrs. Lucia Doyle. Serving will start at 11:00 A. M. and continue until all are served. Following the dinner will be games and many former Pinckneyites attend these picnics every year for the purpose of greeting old friends.

O. E. S. LAWN SOCIAL

A good attendance was present at the lawn social given at the Ford Lamb home by the Pinckney O. E. S. last Friday evening. A very interesting program was put on by Mr. Charles Goodremont of Detroit. There were several dance numbers and other entertainment. Muriel Reed was the featured lady dancer. The music was furnished by Edith Meyer and her sister, Megan played several numbers on the trumpet and played the Prairie Ramblers consisting of Jean Howard, Jeanette and Barbara Haines. Several musical numbers and also sang. They responded to numerous requests.

The marriage of Miss Mary Jane Atlee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Atlee of Pinckney to Robert Tasch of Ann Arbor has been announced. It took place at DeKalb, Indiana on February 27 last. Both are students at the University of Michigan. Congratulations.

KILLED IN GRAVEL PIT

Robert L. Miller, 22, of Detroit died from injuries received when a large rock fell on him in a gravel pit at Chilson. With six amateur geologists they were examining the stones in the pit. He was taken to the Mellus hospital, Brighton, where he died four days later. Coroner Henry Wilson of Howell was called and decided no inquest was necessary.

MRS. ANNA ERWIN

Mrs. Anna Spears Erwin wife of George A. Erwin was born August 1876 near Pinckney, and died at Owosso July 11, 1937 at the age of 61 years 11 months. After a 10 day illness in the Owosso Hospital. In 1904 she was united in marriage to George A. Erwin. They then lived in Lansing until 1914, then moving to Owosso where she lived until 1927 when her husband died. From that time on until 2 years ago, she lived among relatives near Pinckney, when she returned to Owosso. She is survived by two brothers John and Edward Spears several nieces and nephews and many friends. The funeral service was held in Owosso Wednesday afternoon July 14, and burial was made in Pinckney cemetery. Rev Zuse officiated at the burial in Pinckney

Nearly everybody has his own precious ideas about what causes auto accidents. It all depends on the point of view. Some people believe it is the slow drivers, others claim it is the weather, some to the road surface and many to the car itself. All these factors and many others contribute to the large toll of accidents. One of the very important causes should be listed as poor equipment.

There is no single cause. For instance where would the blame be placed when a car with bad brakes, hits a pedestrian on a slippery pavement and whose head is hidden behind an umbrella. Since there is no single cause there can be no single remedy. It requires the combined cooperation of every living soul to do his utmost to prevent accidents.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Doyle at the Pinckney Sanitarium this morning. A son.

Washington News Letter

By Congressman Andrew Transue

Death Intervenes

Congressional business came to an abrupt halt last week when Senate Majority leader Joseph Robinson of Arkansas died suddenly in his apartment near the capitol. Both the Senate and the house of Representatives adjourned within a few minutes after the sessions opened on the day the 65 year old Senator died and both Houses of Congress joined with the president and his Cabinet and the Diplomatic corps of Washington to attend the state funeral service to be held in the Senate chamber on Friday.

Senator Robinson's death paradoxically caused an adjournment in the bitter debate over the supreme court issue that the majority leader had decided would be kept before the Senate until it was decided. Just a week before his death the Senior Senator from Arkansas had boasted that he could stand a prolonged debate better than some of the senators who were opposed to the court plan. The day before Senator Robinson died and while he was absent from the Senate chamber, Senator Bailey of North Carolina in denouncing the court plan said in reference to Senator Robinson "I wish that he would never grow old; but my wish would be in vain I am hoping, however, that when he does grow old in public service there will not be those to complain of his years or to make them a pretext for his removal." Senator Bailey was referring to an earlier remark made by the Majority Leader in the court debate when he said, "Men will grow old and men will hang on." Adjournment ended the protracted legislative day of July 6, 1937 on July 14.

Interruption with the court debate is the problem of the Senate Democrats to name a new majority leader. Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the assist of majority leader under Senator Robinson and the veteran Pat Harrison of Mississippi are the outstanding candidates for the post. The senate was expected to settle the Majority Leader question when sessions are resumed this week after the return of the Senators and Representatives who accompanied the body of Senator Robinson to Little Rock Arkansas for the final funeral services. Mr. Hiram's two senators, Prentiss Brown and Arthur Vandenberg made the funeral pilgrimage and two Michigan Representatives John Dargatzis of Detroit and Earl Michener of Adrian were named among 23 representatives to attend the funeral but the Hon. Michener was unable to make the trip.

Official Washington filled the Senate chamber for the solemn and brief services for one of the national outstanding Democrats who was a candidate for vice president in 1928. President Roosevelt sat in a chair directly in front of the vacant desk of Senator Robinson. The silver-lined casket banked high with flowers was in front of the rostrum from which the vice president presides at senate sessions. The senate arose when the House of Representatives filed in with the delegation for the funeral journey in the vanguard. There followed the Diplomatic corps and Mrs. Robinson and her immediate family and finally the cabinet and the president. Mrs. Roosevelt was in the front row of the family gallery in the space reserved for the presidential family. Two vocal solos by Miss Helen Hoverson, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me" and the solemn and impressive trailer Episcopal burial ritual completed the service. The Senate chamber was emptied with the President leaving first. The casket remained in the chamber a few feet from the senators desk with an honor guard of Capitol policeman until the funeral train started for Arkansas Friday night.

Effect Studied

The effect of Senator Robinson's death on the court proposal plan has been the speculative subject of Washington discussion since the first announcement of his death. Opponents of the court plan immediately claimed the senator's death would finish the court issue. Proponents of the court reorganization said they would press harder for the proposal in memory of Senator Robinson's valiant battle for the administration. President Roosevelt said the fight would go on.

Current Comment

The supreme court bill continues to hold the stage at Washington and despite the claims of the anti that they have the votes to defeat it they desire to send it back to the committee and thus prevent a vote upon it. These people profess great love for Senator Robinson but did not even wait until after the funeral until they renewed their fight on the bill although the present compromise bill was drawn up by him and is known as the Robinson bill. The flowery motives and sacredness of the constitution offered as their motives for opposing the bill are all bunk. Their sole aim is to destroy the Roosevelt prestige and influence. The leaders are would-be presidential candidates in 1940 and know that their nomination is impossible while Roosevelt is holding his present popularity. Senator Wheeler left the party in 1924 to run as vice president on the independent ticket with Senator La Follette. Sr. Senator Copeland was formerly Republican mayor of Ann Arbor and also a would be candidate for the congressional nomination in that district. It is amusing to see the right about face of the conservative press. Back in the Tea-Pot Dome days when Senator Wheeler was sneering the Harding administration, Senator Fall Daugherty, Edwin Denny and others it could say nothing but enough about him. Now he has become their patron saint. The controlled press has again unleashed the same flood of proprogan da that was used against Roosevelt last November and indications are that they are again overdoing it.

The gambling situation in Macomb county has reached the amusing stage. For many years gambling halls have flourished there on a wide scale, practically uninterfered. Governor Murphy in his campaign pledged himself to drive them out and when he went into office the Chesterfield, Chalet and others closed. Sheriff Smith was defeated for a third term by a man named Havel, chiefly because it was thought he was too lenient. Sheriff Havel raided a lot of places and confiscated slot machines and punch boards. Recently the Chalet sent out cards announcing a re-opening. The state police raided it and seized roulette wheels and other gambling apparatus and destroyed them. All this made Sheriff Havel very angry. He announced to the public at large he had been double crossed and had nothing to do with the raid and was a liberal sheriff in a liberal county, etc. In t where does this leave the church people?

Gov. Murphy signed the bill repealing from jury duty doctors, lawyers, dentists, clergymen, teachers, railroad employees etc heretofore granted. For some time there has been much complaint in regard to the class of people who have drawn as jurors. It was claimed that they were chiefly drawn from the idle classes, were not representative and were to blame for numerous poor decisions. In Detroit for some time the bulk of the jury panel has consisted of housewives willing to earn a little spending money by doing jury duty. This law repealing the exemption of what is regarded as a more representative strata of citizens is expected to improve the jury verdicts.

Much attention is being given to the marijuana drug habit which seems to be spreading in this state. It has been a vice in Mexico for years and has been introduced in this state in the form of cigarettes. It is a mild drug but is said to lead to the use of opium, cocaine and other dope. Last week the Detroit police arrested two pypsies and a boy with six pound of marijuana and afterwards confiscated a half a ton of the weed found growing on a vacant lot on Green Avenue. This amount would make 500,000 cigarettes it is claimed.

At the time of Governor Murphy's election the Free Press who have never supported him in any of his campaigns observed that while his speeches were radical his appointments of men to fill important offices were unusually high class. This seems to be borne out by his appointments so far. Joel Moore, a penal expert who holds both a masters and doctors degree, he named warden of Jackson prison, Gerrit Hevns, supt. Christian school, of Holland, appointed warden of Ionia prison, likewise holds a doctors and masters degree. The later was formerly supt. of Royal Oak schools and later a teacher in the University of Michigan and Marquette Normal.

Future Leaders

Washington. — This article shall be devoted not to politics nor to affairs of the government of the nation exclusively but to the future—the future leaders. It shall be, to that extent, a discussion of fundamentals about which I think there can be no controversy.

First, let us take a quick survey. In the Capitol building of our own nation there is raging a bitter debate between two schools of political thought. The question is whether there shall be a law passed that will give to the President of the United States the power to appoint additional justices to the bench of the Supreme court when and if present sitting members reach the age of seventy-five and refuse to retire from active work.

In Spain, a bitter political warfare moves on apace. It is over the question whether Communism or the Russian sort of Fascism or the Italian brand should be the dominant influence in the government of that nation.

In the Far East, along the Russian border, troops of the Japanese emperor and of the Russian dictator, Stalin, glare at each other. Their controversy also involves political bases. That controversy also is complicated by economic conditions. It is a powder keg.

Back in Europe, we find a dictator, Hitler by name, persecuting citizens of Germany almost without end. A political question there is involved and it is complicated deeply by religion and race. Hitler and his minions seek to destroy, first, the Catholic church and, second, the Jews.

Somewhat set off by the great Alps, although woven intricately into the whole picture, is another distorted and disturbing condition. In Italy, Mussolini, having most of his people under his steel boot, is now preparing for new crusades. He has ordered all steel producing units in Italy to increase their production to the maximum so that war material will be available. Mussolini wants more territory; he wants to expand the influence of Fascism and he wants to build a gigantic world power in a military way with Rome as the center and with him as the head.

Through many years residents of Washington and visitors to the capital of the nation have gloried in a greensward that borders the Potomac river within the District of Columbia. It is a justly famous park, made more beautiful by such stately structures as the monument to George Washington and the great citadel of beauty erected to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. And, to add to this beauty is the vista across the river where stands in grandeur the beautiful home that was the residence of Robert E. Lee—maintaining throughout the years the respect that a nation has for a great military leader. It reposes, or seems to repose, in peace and quiet as do the thousands of men who rest in the hillside of Arlington National cemetery.

In this peaceful setting for ten days, more than twenty-six thousand boys—the leaders of the future—were congregated in a National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America. Tents were everywhere. Uncounted boys in the khaki shorts, which is their uniform, flitted about the city or held various maneuvers or staged dramas of the ages in a great arena. Among them was a sprinkling, and the number was not more than a sprinkling compared to the boys, of the scoutmasters and mature men who constitute the leadership of this great army of youth.

I hope I may be forgiven for interjecting here an expression of my personal feelings. It has been my lot to work hard from the time I put off swaddling clothes. The work I have done and the experiences I have met had a tendency to make me callous, somewhat cynical. But I must confess that on half a dozen occasions as I wandered through this tented city, I gave thought to my own boyhood and to two boys for whom I am responsible. I felt a swelling of pride, a satisfaction of heart, that I live in a nation which has given me the right to liberty and progress.

Moreover, there came to me the thoughts of the future of my own two boys and the millions of others just like them—future leaders of a nation that holds forth such possibilities as are best evidenced by the encampment of those twenty-six thousand then within the range of my vision.

Then, no tribute to these future leaders of our nation and to the nation which bred them can or will be complete without mention of Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive. Dr. West was an orphan boy. Worse, he was a cripple. And to add to these handicaps, there was a period in his early life when the keenest medical minds said he could not live and if he did live would be a hopeless invalid.

But Dr. West was made out of the same mold from which came the founders of our nation and from whom, as founders, the traditions and the methods known now as the American way have grown.

It was Dr. West who devoted, indeed, dedicated his life to the organization and development of the Boy Scouts of America. It is now an organization of more than two million boys and there are some six million who can be called alumni because they have grown too old to remain in the ranks of active Boy Scouts.

I mentioned earlier that this was an army of peace, an army devoted to the maintenance of American traditions. No better proof of this need be given, if any were needed, than the notorious fact that representatives from the three totalitarian states—Italy, Germany and Russia—are missing from the encampment. In two of those states the Boy Scout movement has been superseded by a dictator's decree which forces regimentation and militarizing of the youth. They are being trained for war. Happily most countries still pin their faith to the virtues summarized in the Scout law—the boys promise not to die but to live, not to cringe but to blossom, by holding themselves ever trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, clean, and last but not least to maintain a reverence for God.

So, I think I can be pardoned for the feeling I have that in this encampment lie the seeds of a continued free America, waiting the time to take root and bloom into manhood. It is from these and from these alone that we can hope to maintain in our beloved nation a political system which warrants neither Communism nor Fascism; which desires liberty and peace and which challenges the cockeyed theories that government must care for the people rather than the people care for their government.

It seemed to me, therefore, to be something of a sour note that the National Youth administration which set up a hideous looking, box-like structure near the center of the capital city from which literature could be distributed to the Boy Scouts. This structure looked for all the world like a soft drink stand at a cheap carnival and I, personally, resented the action of National Youth administration officials who ordered its construction. I felt this way because the National Youth administration is predicated upon the very theory that I have just condemned—a theory that government must serve as a father for everybody and that it must lay down rules to which all must subscribe. It is the nearest thing to the regimentation that is going on in nations under dictators that exists in our government today.

Cabled dispatches from Russia indicate again that the dictator, Stalin, is determined to rid the Soviet of anyone and everyone who may be opposed to him. The official announcements of the so-called Soviet government tell of the "liquidation" of numerous individuals who have objected to Stalin's tactics or who are seeking to revise the Soviet system. "Liquidation" in Russia means that those individuals were executed by a firing squad. A dead man can cause no harm to the aspirations of a dictator.

The Stalin administration arranges for the "liquidation" of its opponents by coercion of confessions and this is followed up by what the Soviet calls a trial in a court of justice. The courts of justice are owned and controlled by Stalin; they decide as they are told to decide and there is no such thing as an impartial court in Russia because the government owns the courts and names the judges who are to do the government's bidding.

Private advices from abroad seem to show that there is a very serious uprising underneath the surface in Russia. Thousands of Russians have grown tired of having one man determine whether they shall live or die and they yearn again for a system of courts which will determine their guilt or innocence in accordance with honest evidence presented and not in accordance with the way the governing clique wants justice administered.

As the Russian judiciary is constructed under the mailed fist of Stalin, courts are a farce. Without such a court structure, however, a dictator could not perpetuate his own power. He must have control of the courts in order to carry out the guise of law all of the whims and fancies and hatreds that he possesses. A nation of free people does not long remain free after its courts become subjected to the direction and control of one man. Judges who can administer justice without fear or favor are the first perquisite to liberty.

New Zealand Is Country of Scenic Wonders and Many Odd Paradoxes

Prepared by National Geographic Society.

ON DECEMBER 16, 1642, Abel Tasman stood on the deck of the Heemskirk in the South Pacific and gazed out toward an unknown "great, high, bold land." At the hands of an unimaginative cartographer the new wavy lines added to the map became New Zealand, after the Netherlands Province of Zeeland, to which it bears not the least resemblance. The inappropriateness of its name, however, is not the only paradox of this British dominion of the Far South.

Captain James Cook, who first explored the islands a century and a quarter later, took possession of them for his country only to have his claims rejected. Britain still later hoisted the Union Jack over the land to prevent French immigrants from settling in the place they cherished. The country's capital bears the name Wellington, but the Iron Duke stood firm against the annexation.

Many New Zealanders who have never been away from the island's shores, and whose parents likewise were born in the Dominion, still speak of England as "home."

Here in an area approximately the size of Colorado are grouped the snow-mantled peaks of Switzerland, geysers of a Yellowstone, volcanic cones of Java and Japan, and the lakes of Italy; the mineral springs of Czechoslovakia, fiords of Norway, seacoasts of Maine and California, and waterfalls higher than Yosemite.

Largest and Smallest Pines.
Glaciers slip down sharp mountainsides from vast snow fields into subtropical bush. A short ride through a pass in the southern Alps will take one from impenetrable evergreen forests into barren tussock-covered lands.

New Zealand is the home of the massive kauri pines, some of which measure 22 feet in diameter and have reached hoary ages that rank them next to the sequoias. It also is the home of the smallest known representative of the pine-tree family. Giant fuchsias grow to the height of 40 feet; a white buttercup has blooms four inches in diameter; flax is produced from a lily; man has imported all of the mammals, and many of the native birds cannot fly.

The Maoris were the first-known colonists of these southern islands. Guided only by the stars and a knowledge of the winds and ocean currents, they boldly piloted their slender double canoes from their homeland of "Hawaiki" (probably Tahiti and the Cook islands) to the shores of New Zealand in the Fourteenth century. Legend credits them with having followed the sailing directions of the famous Polynesian navigator, Kupe, who is said to have preceded them by 400 years.

To the new land they gave the lilted, vowel-studded name, Aotearoa, which is variously translated as "The Long White Cloud," "The Land of Long Daylight," and "The Long, Bright Land."

Here they lived, increased, warred against each other, and cultivated their taro and the more important kumara, or sweet potato, which they brought with them. Then came whalers, missionaries, and traders; and colonists arrived with gunpowder, conflicting social standards, and the desire to carve out new homes.

Principal City Thrives.
Protracted Maori wars, contested land claims, the discovery of gold, land booms, and a heavy depression—New Zealand passed through them all before she settled down to economic equilibrium.

With its 221,300 people Auckland today has more than twice the British population of the whole country in the early 60's of the last century. As a ship nears the end of its 6,000-mile journey from the west coast of the United States, or the 1,200-mile span from Australia, it skirts the islands that stud the cobalt waters of Hauraki gulf, enters Waitemata harbor, and finally ties up at the very foot of the thriving city.

The early colonists chose well when they staked out this harbor-side settlement that once served the country as capital and now is the largest city in New Zealand.

Long ago Nature's forces, not man's industry, reigned in this locality. Within a radius of ten miles there are more than 80 burnt-out volcanic cones. Stand on the top of Mount Eden, one of the best-preserved of the craters, which rises like an observation post near the center of the city, and you see the once-fertile throats bulging or forming symmetrical cones on the landscape.

From this same vantage point it is apparent how narrowly North island escaped being divided in two. The isthmus upon which Auckland sprawls, between the Waitemata harbor, looking out toward the Pacific, and the Manukau harbor, opening westward to the Tasman sea, is only eight miles wide. River estuaries and other indentations narrow it in places to a scant mile. Veritably, water seems almost to encircle the red- and green-roofed maze of the city's business blocks and suburban residences.

Abundant in Flowers.
Business hovers close to Queen's street, which leads up from the wharves, and in its adjacent narrow, twisting thoroughfares. But if the people responsible for the city's growth have failed somewhat in town planning so far as the streets are concerned, they have more than exonerated themselves in providing broad park spaces.

The parks seem almost numberless. To them the flush of the subtropics gives perpetual freshness and color. Flowers luxuriate all the year round. Even the race course has an avenue of palms and extensive beds of blooms that would do justice to a botanical garden.

One cannot move about Auckland long without the New War Memorial museum claiming attention. It stands out boldly, a massive white Grecian building, above the wide greensward on the heights of the Domain. Here are housed treasures from many lands, but most interesting of all is the comprehensive collection of Maori objects on display—the homes, elaborately carved storehouses, war canoes, war implements, and handicrafts of that powerful native race.

Rolling southward in January from Auckland on the ribbon of concrete and asphalt, you pass soon into smiling open country, checkered with fields. Men are haying and herds of sleek cattle and sheep graze on a hundred rolling hills. Agriculture was the task to which the New Zealand colonists first directed their efforts, but in the passing years they have come to rely more and more on pastoral enterprise. An experimental shipment of frozen meat sent to England in 1882 pointed the way out of a pinching depression that had followed the collapse of a land boom.

Historic Battle Scenes.
Today New Zealand butter and other dairy products have attained world-wide distribution. Of more than 4,300,000 cattle pasturing on the land, nearly half are dairy stock. More than 28,000,000 sheep also range North and South islands, making New Zealand the world's seventh largest sheep-producing country and the fifth largest in wool production.

Near the little town of Mercer was the old frontier between Maori and colonist. The whole region is historic ground, for here in 1863-4 the Maori warriors tested the best mettle of the British troops and long made pioneering a perilous venture. Today, instead of a battleground, the district is a peaceful, English-flavored countryside. Upon a hill now stands the St. Stephens Maori Boys' college, where Maori youths are being trained for useful pursuits.

Just beyond Hamilton, the largest provincial town in Auckland province, you may run into peat fires that are smoldering and eating into the black soil in many places. The continued dry, hot summer weather causes an outbreak of many of these destructive fires.

A few miles to the west of the main road that leads to Te Kuiti are the fascinating Waitomo caves. Interest in the caves hinges on a tiny worm—an unusual carnivorous glowworm—scientifically, the Bioluminescence.

The Glowworm grotto is a magically uncanny spot. Floating along in a boat on the stillness of a subterranean stream, one looks up at myriads of these tiny creatures, with their lamps alight, that cover the roof of the cavern like a dense, greenish-blue Milky Way.

Chair or Buffet Set of Lace

Pattern 1437.

Isn't it exciting to think that with your own crochet hook you can fashion a chair or buffet set as lovely and practical as this basket design? A bit of string helps do the trick, giving it durability beyond compare. Even a beginner can do this simple filet crochet, the design set off in open stitch. Pattern 1437 contains charts and directions for making the set shown; material requirements, an illustration of all stitches used.

STATE SOON TO GET BETTER CAR TITLES

The familiar buff colored license title form will shortly be replaced with another of different color and style, Leon D. Case, Secretary of State has announced.

Two reasons for the cause of the new form: a color against which typewriting is more legible, will be chosen; the new 1937 legislature passed an act which requires additional information on the face of the title.

The new law, passed with immediate effect, but not yet operative will require that all chattel mortgages taken on motor vehicles to guarantee payment of accessories and the like be endorsed on the face of the cars title, with a true copy filed with the Secretary of State, in addition to the original filed with the register of deeds of the county in which the transaction is made.

The purpose of the law is to protect innocent subsequent purchasers of cars on which chattel mortgages previously taken and never discharged, might be executed. In such instances the new owner would have the choice of completing payment for an accessory he believed included in the car's purchase or of surrendering the car to the seller of the accessory.

Heretofore cautious purchasers of used cars were faced with the nearly impossible task of checking the chattel mortgages recorded with the registers of deeds in 83 counties. Case endorsed the new law as a protective measure.

Red Coral Always Prized

It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person. As ancient Gauls rushed headlong into battle, they trusted their safety to their swords, strength and the "magic" coral imbedded in their shields or helmets. Many Italians and Indians regard coral as protection against the "evil eye." The world's red coral comes from the reefs of the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post, and is obtained chiefly by Italians.

"I think it is one of the greatest boons in our household. It picks up my work tremendously!"

End your water-heating worries forever! A new and carefree service—automatic ELECTRIC water heating—frees you from all the responsibilities and annoyances of heating water in the old-fashioned way.

No longer need you run up and down stairs to light a tank, then wait for the water to get hot. An electric water heater provides a definite, assured supply without any attention whatever: Fifty gallons cost less than 10c a day. The water is heated at night and stored in a well-insulated tank, where it is available for use during the next twenty-four hours. When you need hot water, just turn the faucet—and there is your hot water on tap!

Any Detroit Edison office will gladly give you full information about this newest electrical convenience for your home. It represents the ultimate in automatic hot water service—safe, clean, and absolutely dependable.

"It is the best, cleanest, and cheapest in the long run. No worries. It is perfect in every way."

Philathea Notes

Are you going? Where? To the Pinckney public square on Friday night, of course The Philathea Class serving ice cream and home made cake on this Friday and surely you can do no better with a dime than to enjoy ice cream and cake, and incidentally help the ladies in our one money raising event of the year. The Philathea cordially invite you.

Plan were made for this ice cream social at the regular meeting in July held with our teacher at the parsonage, on last Wednesday afternoon. Devotionals were conducted by Rev. Zuse and Clella Fish. Following the opening song, Mrs. Pauline Vedder called the roll and gave a report of the June meeting with Mrs. Isham. Members and guests enjoyed a pleasant afternoon of sewing and friendly chat with an offering of $1.80 to meet current expenses. For the August 11 meeting, Mrs. Herman Vedder and Mrs. Dora Swarthout will entertain the class at Swarthout's Cove, Portage, which time the swimming champions of the community are expected to be at their best. Bring your bathing suits—also kindly provide for a generous benevolence offering as August is the month for the quarterly missionary meeting. The roll call later for the month is D.

Philathea should remember the Ladies Aid business meeting schedule for this Thursday afternoon, July 22. And once again, another reminder of the ice cream social on this coming Friday evening. Be there without fail! Philathea members are requested to bring cake and help serve.

One more reminder: A fair sized class studied the lesson together last Sunday, but many slipped out after church. We hope you can all arrange to stay next Sunday and thus double today's attendance. Topic "God Prepares a People". Ex. 12: 21—28. Here also that our resort friends will join us for Sunday School.

How to Open a CHECKING ACCOUNT

The procedure of opening a checking account here is as simple as it is short.
Bring in the money you want to open the account with; make yourself known to an officer he will help you fill out a signature form, for your own protection and for the bank's records. Then, you make out a deposit slip showing the amount of money you are depositing.
You will receive both a check book and pass book. That completes the transaction. If your initial deposit is made in cash, you can begin drawing against it any time that you wish. A check on another bank, however, takes a short time to clear.
When you come in, any of our officers will be glad to assist you and inform you of the regulations concerning checking accounts.

the sole collector for monies due the state and in addition has the jurisdiction along with the Michigan Crippled Children's Commission for establishing all fees and rates as well as the procedure that shall be followed in the rendering of related services.
Two outstanding features of the new laws provide for the definite establishment of a maximum amount that may be paid to both hospitals and physicians and secondly, provides for the prosecution as a felony of any hospital or parents and also from the state.
Mr. Gundry pointed out that the cost to the state for these services has increased tremendously during the past nine months. As an example he said that the entire cost of treatment for July, August and September for 1936 amounted to $52,000 while the costs of April, May and June, 1937 will run somewhat over $200,000 or an increase of 400 percent in nine months.

"Why?"

"Because—" The flush deepened. "Because I've been crazy about you all summer and I knew you were in love with her and it made me mad. I mean, I knew there wasn't a chance of your liking me. I guess that made me hate her more."

"But I do like you, Dolly." Jim took one of her hands in his. "I'm very, very fond of you."

"You thought I was getting crazy about you, didn't you?" she asked. "That's why you stopped coming to see me."

"I didn't want you to be hurt," Jim said. "That makes me sound awfully conceited, doesn't it?"

"No," she said. "I know. But I couldn't help hating Cecily. So when Jerry called me that night—"

"Did he call you?" Jim asked quickly.

"He called me at the store," she went on. "When the phone rang, I thought at first it was you. When it wasn't, I was so disappointed I told him I'd meet him where he said after the store had closed."

"Where was that?"

"By the bridge over the gully at the edge of town. I knew he didn't want anybody to see him with me but I didn't care. I didn't care about anything. I wanted to do something crazy and wild. It was exciting, at first, to ride in Miss Vaughn's car, though we only went on country roads. He acted sort of wild and crazy, too. I thought he was tight, but he wasn't. He was just mad."

"What do you remember of the accident?" Jim asked.

"She considered for a moment, frowning with concentration. "We turned into that road," she said. "He wanted to park, but I didn't want to and I said your riding academy was somewhere near to sort of take his mind off the idea of parking. I think I said something about you. I can't remember what it was, but it made him furious. He stepped on the gas and the car shot ahead like a rocket. I was scared. I don't know. Maybe I grabbed the wheel. And then—"

"Never mind, Dolly," Jim stroked her hand soothingly. "I'm sorry I asked. Try not to think of it. It doesn't matter now."

"He's gone away, hasn't he?" she asked, after a moment.

"Yes," Jim replied. "You had something to do with that, didn't you?"

"I told Dad to keep quiet, if that's what you mean. After Miss Vaughn came to see me, I felt differently about it. She was so nice to me. Not snooty at all, just friendly and really interested. Her father is paying the hospital bills and he's going to send me to Atlantic City for two weeks after I get out of here. I think Cecily—Miss Vaughn—thought of that."

"She made the suggestion," Jim said.

"So why should I let Dad yap around about suing anybody?" Dolly went on. "Jerry Clyde hasn't any money. I want with him, didn't I? He didn't sandbag me or kidnap me or anything. Besides—" She drew her hand from Jim's, groped under the mound of pillows, drew out a small satin jeweler's box and snapped open the lid. "Look," she said.

Jim saw the small diamond set in a flurry of carved white gold fitted between folds of velvet.

"Herbert?" he asked.

"No—the Prince of Wales. He proposed to me over the radio." The gaiety died out of her voice. "Yes, Herb," she said.

"Do you want to marry him, Dolly?"

Her flax-blue eyes looked up into his steadily, with confidence and serenity. "Yes, I do," she said gravely. "Lying here makes you think. Happiness means more than anything, doesn't it? Herb's been so good to me. He really loves me. And after all this—Well, I know he'd stand by me through anything."

"Yes, Dolly, I think he would," "Herb isn't exciting," Dolly's glance wandered from Jim, rested upon the mirror in the bureau at the foot of the bed. "He'll never do anything thrilling," she continued, as though she were talking to her reflection in the mirror, that unfamiliar Dolly in a bed jacket of lace and chiffon with an orchid pinned on her breast. "I guess this has been the most exciting thing that will ever happen to me. It will be fun to have a house, though. And babies, maybe. Penny brings up the new babies from the nursery. They're sweet."

"Be happy, Dolly," Jim said. "I will," she said staunchly. "I hate to leave the kids, though—Joey especially."

An idea occurred to Jim. "Do you think," he asked, "that Joey would like to work with me?"

Her face brightened. She turned to look at him swiftly, gratefully. "Could you give him a job?" she asked.

"I think so," Jim smiled at her obvious delight. "He isn't afraid of horses, is he?"

"Joey's not afraid of anything," she said proudly. "That's swell of you, Jim." She caught his hand, held it against her cheek. "I'll feel so relieved to know he's with you. Take care of him for me. Won't you? I don't want him to hang around with that tough gang in town."

"I'll do my best," Jim promised. "After all I'm only repaying a debt. You sent me out to the Vaughns."

"I did, didn't I?" The thought seemed to give her pleasure. "Jim," she said hesitatingly, "are you—? Is Cecily—?"

"I'm not and she isn't," Jim replied. "She's going to Bermuda with her father."

"Then she hasn't good sense!" Dolly said warmly.

Jim smiled.

"You're prejudiced. You like me," he said.

"Oh, I do," she slipped her engagement ring on and off her finger. "I hope she'll come back from Bermuda," she said. "I hope you'll get what you want. You've been swell to me."

Miss Penny opened the door. "Time's up!" she called brightly.

"Go away, Penny," Dolly said.

Jim rose from his chair beside the bed. "Miss Penny is right," he said. "You must not get tired. I'm going now."

"Okay, Mister. Good-by. Thanks for coming. Thanks for the orchid and Joey's job. Thanks for everything."

"You're more than welcome. Good-by."

He walked to the door, turned to look at her again. Her eyes, following him, were wistful. One hand lay against the orchid at her breast. Jim smiled. She returned the smile, her eyes narrowing and crinkling in the way he remembered.

"I'd No Idea How Much I Cared for You."

"Look, Penny," she said distinctly. "You didn't know I was engaged, did you? To the Prince of Wales. See this. It's one of the crown jewels off Queen Mary's hat. Yes, I'm sleepy. Here, don't touch that. It's the only orchid I've ever had and I'm not going to let it get away from me."

Jim walked slowly down the corridor. Bravery and bravado. Dolly, too, had her share of them. Absurd to feel a lump in his throat. No, it wasn't absurd. He had just said farewell to . . .

Wasn't the elevator somewhere in this direction? Never mind, he'd walk . . .

"And the dressing-case and the camera," Miss Parker said, checking the list in her hand. "Cecily, is that all?"

"You've forgotten Father's walking-stick," Cecily teased, "and my purse and this book Jim gave me which I mean, absolutely, to read."

Miss Parker smiled abstractedly. "I know you think I'm a fuss-budger," she said. "But with all this—"

Her sweeping gesture included the luggage in the center of the living-room floor and the trunks standing in the hall. "You can't possibly be sure you have everything unless you keep this list. Last year when the Beaches went abroad, one trunk followed them all over Europe."

"How awful!" Cecily laughed. "Imagine being pursued all over Europe by a trunk. Can you think of anything worse, Jim? Especially one of the Beaches' trunks, that Saratoga, for instance."

Jim, attaching printed tags to the luggage, looked up and smiled. Cecily was thinner, he thought. Or perhaps that was the effect of the dark wool suit she wore with a bright scarf knotted under her chin and a small dark hat tilted rakishly over one eye. No, she was really thinner. Her eyes were too large, now, for the slender oval of her face. He looked down at the inscription on the tag—"Queen of Bermuda"—hating the ship that would take her away from him over so many miles of salt gray-green water.

"The trunks, Jim?" Miss Parker worried. "Have you tagged them?"

"He's tagged everything except me," Cecily's color was high, unnaturally so, Jim thought. She had been excitedly gay since she had come up to the house an hour ago. But she had not looked at him directly. Her eyes, whenever he had attempted to hold them for an instant, had danced away from him, evading an unspoken question or reply. What was she thinking? Was she glad to go?

"Here's a tag for you," he said. "Where is the proper place to tag a lady?"

"Keep it for whatever we've forgotten. I want to say good-by to 'Lady.' Will you come with me, Jim?"

The October air was clear and sparkling. In the garden the late zinnias and scarlet sage burned with clear hot colors. The wind rustled through leaves fallen on the lawn, blew them dancing across the grass.

"I like the autumn," Jim said stoutly, closing his mind to a picture of Cecily in a bathing-suit on the white sands of Bermuda.

"We're going to fish," Cecily said, still carefully avoiding a direct glance at Jim.

He saw her in shorts and a spreading straw hat, fishing. "Not for the rainbow-colored ones," he said. "They're only to be looked at through a glass bottomed boat."

"Have you been to Bermuda, Jim?"

"Once or twice."

He thought of the evenings there, the stars hanging low in a deep sapphire sky—

"I've told every little star just how sweet I think you are"

"I've never been there," Cecily said. "There are lilies, aren't there?"

"Onions," Jim said, "at this season. Do you like onions?"

"I adore them." She went into the stable, walking ahead of him. He could not see her eyes. They stood beside "Lady's" stall.

"I always hate to leave 'Lady,'" Cecily stroked the mare's soft nose, fed her a lump of sugar. "You'll take care of her for me, Jim?"

She looked up at Jim. He was looking at her.

"Cecily—" he said softly.

"I know." Dark lashes curtained her eyes. "I feel that way, too."

"How?"

"As though this moment was the end of the world. We've so many things to say and so little time. I feel shy with you, Jim. That's odd, isn't it? I've never felt shy with you before?"

"You've never considered me as a person before. I've been a confidante, a shoulder to weep on, an extra man in and about the house."

"Something is different." She leaned against "Lady's" stall, still absently stroking the mare's quivering nose. "Everything. But this time I must be sure. I loved Jerry. Perhaps I still love him. I don't know."

"I love you, Cecily. It's a relief to say it openly. I could keep on telling you indefinitely." His arms were around her, holding her close, his lips were against her cheek.

"Don't go to Bermuda. Stay here and help me run the riding academy. We'll make the house into a home for us. We'll—"

"I'm crazy, I guess."

She drew away from him. "I must go, Jim," she said slowly. "I think I know, but I must be sure. Do you remember what you told me that evening at Dutch's, that things which seemed true and charming in a shadowy place—"

"I remember. Did you understand? I wasn't sure."

She nodded. "I hated myself for being critical of Jerry. Unconsciously, I suppose, I was comparing him with you. I'd no idea how much I cared for you—not even that night in the garden, until—"

She nodded. "I hated myself for being critical of Jerry. Unconsciously, I suppose, I was comparing him with you. I'd no idea how much I cared for you—not even that night in the garden, until—"

"When?" Jim asked. "Can you tell me?"

"The night of Marjory's wedding," she said, "when I first suspected that Jerry was responsible for the Quinn girl's being hurt. It was a question of Jerry or you, of Jerry or you, and it didn't occur to me to doubt the truth of your story. That night, lying awake, thinking of it, I wanted your story to be true."

"Cecily—Darling—"

"It's so confusing," she said slowly. "I don't know whether I love you or not, Jim. There's lots of sun in Bermuda. Perhaps I'll find out."

She laughed shakily. "You're making love to me in the stable, Jim. Or am I making love to you?"

"Appropriate, isn't it?" he asked. "The first time I saw you, you were riding 'Lady.' Cecily darling, I do love you so. That evening in the garden—the things I said were mere bragging. I'm not going to get over you. I'm not going to forget which song it is that makes me sad. I—"

A shadow darkened the doorway. "Cecily!" Mr. Vaughn called. "We've got to get started. The steamer won't wait for us. She sails at half-past five." He disappeared abruptly.

Cecily moved away from the stall. Jim followed her. They went out into the sunlight, into the clear sparkling air.

"Cecily, aren't you sure now?" Jim asked. "Must you go?"

"Yes," she said firmly. "Father is taking this trip for me. He's been so fine about everything. I'm going fishing with him. I'll even stick worms on hooks."

"You'll write to me?"

"I'll send you postcards," she promised. "Those bright colored ones with heavenly blue water and flowers as big as cabbages."

Nearing the group about the sedan, they walked more slowly.

"Don't go, Cecily," Jim said. "You might fall off a bicycle or get eaten by a shark or meet a charming Englishman with a title."

She smiled. "You talk so persuasively, Jim."

"Hurry!" Mr. Vaughn called, standing beside the sedan, his watch in his hand.

They joined the group about the car, Miss Parker, Nora, MacPherson. Their hands met and parted.

"Good-by, Cecily."

"Good-by, Jim."

Mr. Vaughn cleared his throat. "Get in here, Jim," he said brusquely. "You'd better drive over to New York with us so we'll stand a chance of catching the boat."

Jim saw Mr. Vaughn's half grave, half smiling expression, saw the shining expectancy in Cecily's dark golden eyes. He shook his head.

"No thank you," he said. "I'd rather meet you at the dock when you return. I don't like farewells."

There was a chorus of good-bys, parting instructions, Miss Parker's warning not to lose the luggage list, Nora's importuning all the saints in the calendar for a safe and pleasant voyage, MacPherson's quiet "God's speed." The sedan moved slowly along the drive, picked up speed, disappeared around the curve between the dark hemlocks.

Miss Parker and Nora went into the house. MacPherson touched Jim's arm.

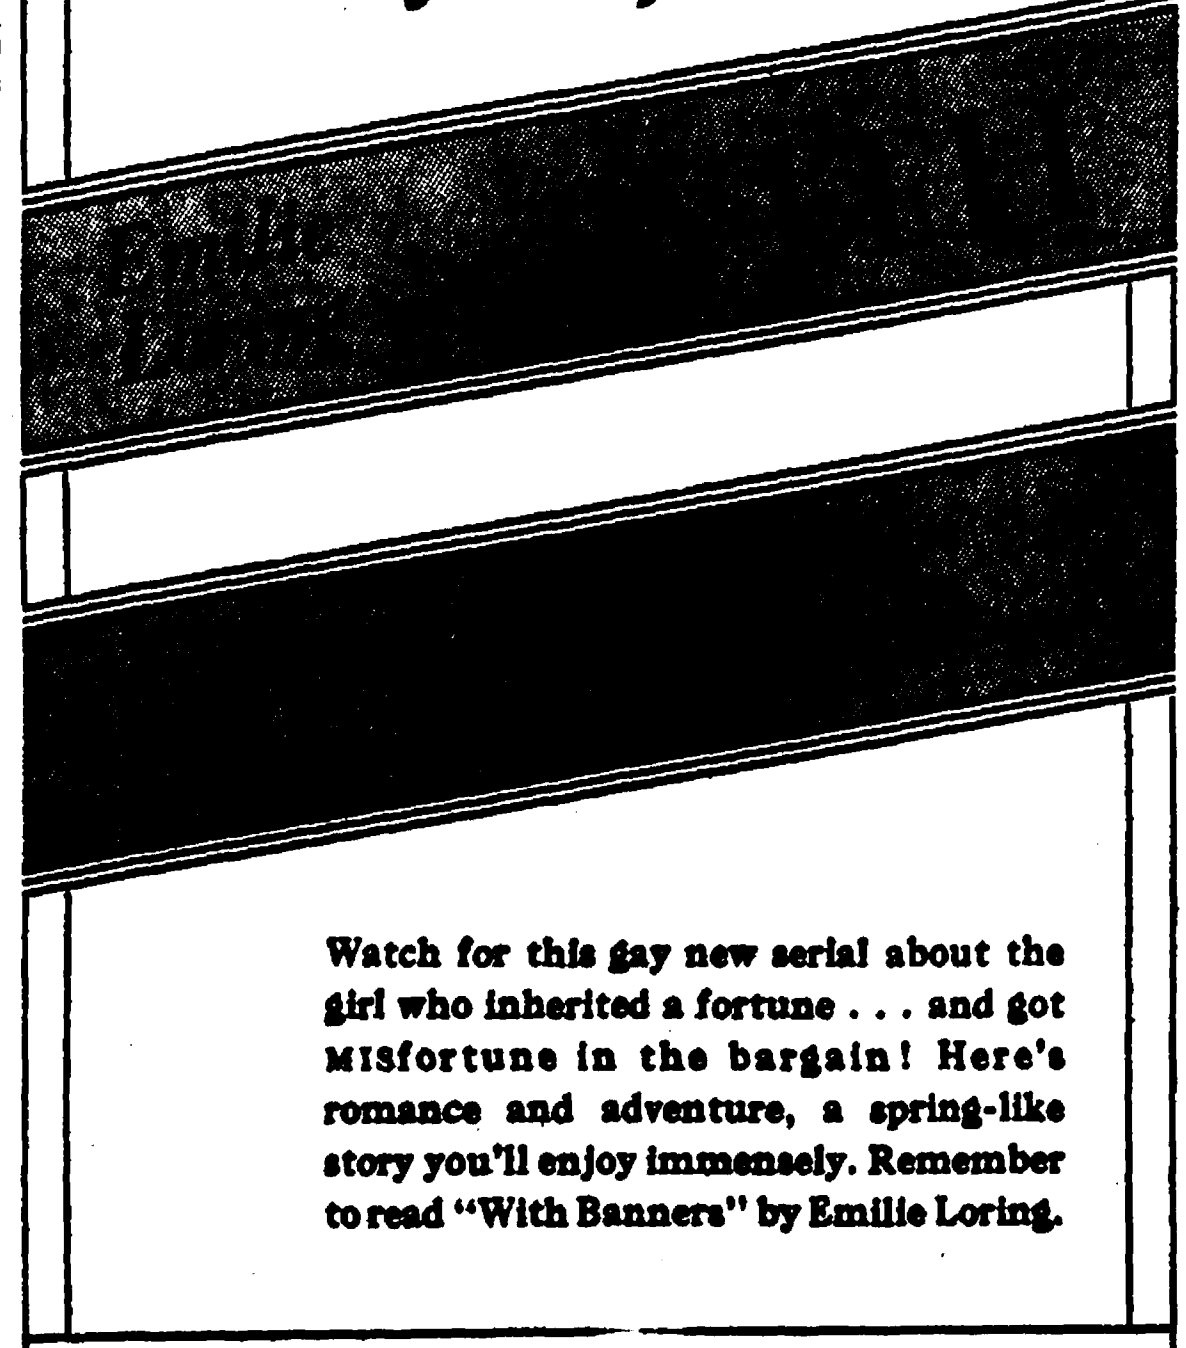

"Don't look so forlorn, lad," he said, his eyes twinkling under the shaggy brows. "I'm thinking the trip will be a short one."

Jim's eyes turned from the winding drive between the hemlocks. He smiled at his old friend. "I think so, too," he said confidently.

"Think?" The smile deepened, shone in his eyes, banished the lines of strain and fatigue. "I'm sure. I'll meet her on a dock in New York three—perhaps two—weeks from today."

For Discriminating People

NOW is the time for all smart women to come to the aid of their wardrobes. Sew-Your-Own wants to lend a hand, Milady: hence today's trio of mid-summer pace makers.

At The Left.

A trim little reminder that careful grooming is an asset anywhere, anytime, is this frock. It features simplicity. Its forte is comfort. Make one version in cotton for all purpose wear, another of sports silk for dressy occasions. You'll praise the cool cut of its short sleeves and softly rolled collar. Yes, Milady, you'll enjoy making it.

In The Center.

Here you have a light and breezy ensemble that's the perfect attire for Society. It has cosmopolitan dash, refinement, and engaging charm. Once more you'll be the subject of complimentary tea table talk with your delightfully slender silhouette. Make it of sheer chiffon or more durable acetate. You'll have a hit in either.

At The Right.

The little lady who likes unusual touches in her frocks will go for this new dress and pantie set. It has the chic of mommy's dresses plus a little-girl daintiness that is more than fetching. Wrap around styling makes it easy for even the tiniest girl to get into and it's quite a time saver on ironing day. A splendid idea is to cut this pattern twice and be assured of little sister's all summer chic.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1237 is designed for sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material plus ¾ yard contrasting for collar.

Pattern 1333 is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 7½ yards of 39 inch material. The dress alone requires 4½ yards. To line the jacket requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1322 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 6 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material plus 5½ yards of ribbon for trimming as pictured.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Freezer Ice Cream.

1 quart milk
1 package ice cream powder (vanilla, strawberry, lemon, maple, or chocolate flavor)

Add milk very gradually to ice cream powder, stirring until dissolved. Pour into freezer can; place in freezer and pack mixture of cracked ice and salt around can (use 8 parts ice to 1 part salt). Turn slowly for 3 minutes, then rapidly and continuously until frozen. Makes 1½ quarts ice cream.

Any of the following may be substituted for milk in this recipe: 1 quart rich milk or light cream, 1 cup cream and 3 cups milk, or 2 cups evaporated milk and 2 cups milk or water.

*With chocolate ice cream powder, add ¼ cup sugar.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

resentive for the second time this year voted to override a presidential veto with your congressman voting with the majority of the 260 against 97 to extend for two years the low Farm Loan interest rates. President Roosevelt vetoed the extension as a budget balancing item but the majority of the house decided against increasing the interest rates on Federal Land Bank Loans. While the House took into consideration the additional funds the Treasury would get from a higher interest rate the majority agreed that the agriculture districts that encountered the depression long before the industrial sections, needed additional aid to equalize their status. The house has already passed a Farm Tenancy bill to help tenant farmers and consistently decided to extend aid to farmers to keep them out of the tenant classification.

TIPS ON CLOTHING PRAISE HOT IRON

Hot weather or cool the dressmaker who wants to obtain praise for the clothes she wears or sells should put the pressing iron after it has cooled off. For pressing in the minds of the clothing specialists is a major part in adding a tailored look to new clothes even before the clothes are cut.

Suggestions from Marjorie Eastman clothing specialist at the Michigan State College, offer the conclusion that pressing the cloth is important at various stages of the work as well as when the garment is finished.

She suggests first pressing the fold and wrinkles out of the fabric before starting to cut it. If the parts of the pattern are pressed, the cutting can be more accurate, too.

If ornamental features such as pockets, are made before sewing up the seams, they can be pressed while the section is flat. Collars and cuffs and other parts made separately, may be more conveniently pressed as they are completed and before they are attached to the garment.

After darts, tucks or pleats have been basted and that portion of the garment tried on, it is time to stitch and then press those details.

Stitched seams are pressed open particularly if they are later crossed by other seams, as when the waist and skirt of a dress are joined.

Sometimes the iron can be used instead of basting a hem or turning a narrow edge. It is a great help in making bias binding or piping that must be folded evenly.

PINCKNEY WINS FROM CHELSEA 4 TO 3

The Pinckney base ball team won a close game from Chelsea Sunday by a score of 4 to 3. The game was a pitchers battle between Haines of Pinckney and Barth of Chelsea, both pitchers being hard to hit with men on bases. Both teams fielded nicely Pinckney making two errors and Chelsea one.

Pinckney went into the lead by scoring a run in the first inning when Bob Smith tripled and scored on an out at first base. Tom Young singled in the second and scored on an infield out. Smith got a hit in the third and scored when Grant Ward sacrificed and Bud the Chelsea outfielder failed to hang onto Haines fly. Chelsea got two runs in the third on a hit and two Pinckney errors and tied the score in the 4th on a base on ball and two hits. This ended the scoring until the 8th. Both teams got men on but the pitchers always managed to get themselves out of trouble. Young led off with a hit in the 8th and stole second. LaBelle struck out. Ed Meyer singled to center scoring Young with the winning run. In the ninth Haines struck out both Pruden and Highland and Floyd Haines made a nice catch of Criger's fly. Meyer and Smith each got 3 hits for Pinckney and White the same for Chelsea.

Next Sunday Pinckney is scheduled to play Ann Arbor at West Park, Ann Arbor.
