

Legislature Sets Legal Adjournment Date

Senate Returns to Lansing Passes Teacher's Tenure Act and Legal Adjourn

The runaway senate returned to Lansing last Thursday passed several measures and set August 11 as the legal date for adjournment.

The Labor bill previously passed by the house again came up and only lacked three votes of passing. The final vote on the bill was 14 to 14 with all Republicans but Senator Hittle voting against it. 17 votes are required for passage. The Democrats have 16 votes but Senators Palmer and Lamereaux did not vote.

The Teachers Tenure Act passed the house 56 to 12 and the senate 23 to 3. Three Republicans voted against it. The teachers tenure act is a original bill except it has a notice which says a school district must vote to come under its provisions. Also a notice must be given to a teacher before dismissal and said teacher is entitled public hearing before said board. The teacher also has the right to appeal to a three member board appointed by the governor. Teachers will have to teach two years before coming under the law.

The governor expressed himself as well pleased with the results of the extra session as he had gotten his civil service and teachers tenure bills enacted. He said another extra session will be called this fall to enact labor legislation.

Senator James Burns of Detroit who struck Senator Palmer when the latter failed to vote and stop the illegal adjournment of the senate, apologized and the charges against him were dismissed on motion of the committee appointed to investigate them. Senator Palmer is the Democrat floor leader who has distinguished himself by himself by voting with the republicans or not voting at all.

The resuming of the session and the legal adjournment date also legalized the $200,000 snow removal fund for the upper peninsula.

WINS AGAIN

P. G. Teeple has returned to Marquette after attending the sixty-first annual convention of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company at Milwaukee, bringing with him the achievement cup awarded annually by the Northwestern to the general agency making the best record during the year.

This is the second consecutive year that the cup has been won by the Teeple agency, in competition with 85 other general agencies in the United States.

The agencies are scored in a point system and the Teeple organization scored 906 out of a possible 1,000 this year, as improvement over the 1936 record which was 888, but high enough nevertheless to get the cup. Eight general points are taken into consideration in scoring the agencies: four for conservation of business already written and four for production of new business.

The Teeple general agency covers all counties in the upper peninsula and four in the northern part of lower Michigan. Mr. Teeple has been with the Northwestern 42 years and has been at the head of the general agency for 30 years.

Eleven of Mr. Teeple's agents, including J. R. DeHass and Carl Mattson, of Marquette, and James E. Fria and Salvatore A. Tasson, of Ishpeming, attended the convention. Marquette Mining Journal.

Board of Commerce

At the Pinckney board of Commerce meeting held last Wednesday night the balance of the $400 raised to buy out the property owners who ask more than Henry Ford is willing to pay was raised. The Ford Co. has informed the property owners that as soon as they get their deeds ready their money will be paid them and as soon as the property is all purchased work will be started at Pinckney.

MASONIC AND O. E. S. PICNIC
Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M. and O. E. S. Chapter 145 will hold a joint picnic at Cedar Lake on Friday, September 3. There will be races, contests and a pot-luck dinner at noon. The Dexter Masonic lodges are invited and a soft ball game will take place between the two Masonic lodges. All Masons and Stars are invited and also their friends.

More Week End Auto Accidents

Several Persons Hurt in Auto Accidents Over the Week End

Two accidents occurred near here over the week end. Saturday evening cars driven by C. L. Rice of 582 Chestnut St. Wyandotte and Walter Poiner of 249 N. Knagg St., Pittsburgh, Penn., came together at Harris' corners, two miles south of Pinckney. Rice was going south and Poiner was headed west on Darwin road. Both cars were smashed up but the drivers escaped serious injury.

Sunday about noon Miss Eva Docking of Howell former Pinckney resident and a daughter of the late Wm. Docking had her wrist broken in an auto accident on M-36, a mile west of Pinckney near the Wm. Mercer home. Miss Docking had been visiting her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jewett of 1102 Woodsum St., Jackson. The Jewetts were taking her to the home of her sister, Mrs. Jack Bidwell of Brighton. Near the Mercer farm a car driven by J. A. Decker containing his wife and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dean of Cleveland, Ohio attempted to pass the Jewett car. They failed to clear it and the right front fender of their car struck the Jewett car overturning it. Mrs. Jewett had an arm broken her husband two ribs and cuts and bruises and their car was wrecked. The Decker car suffered a crushed fender and running board. The Deckers were on their way to visit his brother, Chester, who owns the Fred Teeple farm three miles north of Pinckney. Miss Docking and the Jewetts were given first aid at the Pinckney Sanitarium. Mr. Jewett is a bus driver for the city of Jackson and has an honor card for driving 31 years without an accident. Deputy Sheriff Bowers investigated both of the accidents.

CEMETERY DAY

August 20 has been set aside as cemetery day by the legislature. On this day all persons are urged to bring lawn mowers, scythes, sickles etc. and help clean up the cemeteries. A sum was appropriated for this purpose by township and many cemeteries pay dues. On account of the numerous rains this year this money was insufficient. So in order to make the cemeteries presentable every man and woman interested in them should turn out this day and do their share.

FORD STARTS WORK MILFORD

Last Thursday August 5th the Ford Motor Company hauled a steam shovel into Milford on a trailer behind a truck and started excavating there on the mill pond property they recently purchased. Tuesday night a large air compressor and equipment was unloaded and workmen started to break up the foundation of the old mill. Ford officials stated a power house will be built here. The Ford Co. offer to extend Liberty St. across the dam, filling in and making a regulation width. They will also erect guard rails. This street has never been opened. The Co. also wishes a portion of Detroit street and the north end of Chandler where it runs through their land. —Milford Times.

HAD NO CLAIMS

In the last board of supervisors proceedings published in this county in the list of sheep claims allowed was one for $108 to L. W. Hendee for sheep killed by dogs. This was a mystery to Mr. Hendee for he has not had any sheep killed by dogs for five years and consequently has filed no claims for dead sheep. Investigation at the county clerk's office solved the mystery. Mr. Hendee is treasurer for the House school district and the $103 received by him was the districts public school money.

MEABON REUNION

The Meabon re-union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Meabon Sr. Sunday August 8th. 108 were present all being relatives. They came from, Pontiac, Ypsilanti, Fowlerville, Howell, Detroit, Eaton Rapids, Lansing, Sunfield, Owosso, Ann Arbor, Durand, Jackson, Mason, Plainfield and Dexter.

Detroit Edison Co. Changes Districts

Will Divide State in County Districts. Supt. Sylvester Transferred to Detroit

Changes in the territory alignment have just been announced by the sales department of The Detroit Edison Co. These changes will in no way effect customers and are solely for betterment of operation and management.

A customer as always may conduct any type of Detroit Edison business at any office most convenient at the moment for the customer.

The territory served by the Detroit Edison Company has for several years been divided into areas called "Districts." These areas grew slowly by accretion and tended toward unbalance as to size and shape. Some lines seem not to be the best method of division and the districts are now being realigned.

The new districts and the changes in the personnel are as follows:
Liveston District—E. L. Mills
Macomb District—G. W. Haregrave
Merced District—no change in area
W. J. Fitzgerald
North Oakland, Oakland county north of Sylvan Lake—H. J. Keith
South Oakland District, includes all of Oakland County south of Pontiac R. W. Bricker
Port Huron—expanded D. W. Hayes
Washington District—R. E. Brown
Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor continues to serve as main office for the district
Wayne District—exclusive of Detroit area E. J. German

STATE TRIMS EXPENSE

Auditor General Gundry said today that he has squared the books with members of the state Board of Cosmetology with whom he has warred over expense accounts.

They sent us statements of expense account which we checked, and we sent them a statement of what expenses we would allow, Gundry said. We are all clear for the fiscal year. Among other things, we intend to approve only actual travel expenses. If a member takes a train we'll approve train fare but not the distance traveled at 5 cents a mile as if he had used his automobile.

Under a new state law, incidentally oard members may meet no more than 120 days in a year. This will limit their compensation to $1,200 in any one year.

He continued: Reductions in the expenses were made where members filed a bill for their per diem $10 when they had done no more than correct couple of examination papers. Travel items were reduced where the bill as a charge for use of a private car at 5 cents per mile, although a train actually was used or free transportation obtained.

Home Stretch

Housing legislation intended to eliminate slums in U. S. cities occupied the Senate and the Harding and Currensey Committee of the house last week as Congress headed for the home stretch by long sessions and double Committee meetings. The senate passed a housing bill providing $726,000,000 for 60 year loans and rental subsidies and at a Saturday session approved a Court reorganization bill that omitted mention of the supreme court. The house without a record vote passed a sugar bill that has the threat of a presidents veto because it discriminates against producers in off shore territories including the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Hawaii. The fair trade practice bill was approved by congress in a rider form.

While the house banking and currency Committee of which your Congressman is a member, held twice a day hearings on the housing bill the senate modified the original measure to limit the cost of the slum replacement dwellings to $4000 each with a unit cost of not more than $1000 per room. The final senate vote was 64 to 16 with both of Michigan's Senators voting for the bill. During the discussion of the bill Senator Vandenberg (Continued on last page)

DELINQUENT TAX WARNING

George Gundry

In order to bring to the attention of the people of Michigan the danger of neglect to pay delinquent taxes the State of Michigan has authorized a

GEORGE T. GUNDY
Auditor General

State wide campaign of advertising which calls attention to Public Act 28 passed in the 1937 session of the Legislature.

The act clearly provides that properties delinquent for taxes for 1935 and prior years will go on sale in May next unless advantage is taken of the provisions for partial payment BEFORE September 1, 1937. The legislature has recognized that a method on relief is necessary in the case of some property owners and has made possible the payment of back taxes on a ten and ten plan.

According to Auditor General Gundry who is charged with the duty of supervising the operation of this law all 1933, 1934, 1935 back taxes, as well as taxes levied in prior years must be paid before September 1st, 1937 or else it is mandatory to place such properties on tax sale in May of next year.

The ten and ten plan says Mr. Gundry helps those property-owners who cannot pay in full at this time by permitting the payment of 10 percent of taxes due up to and including 1935 and allows the balance to be paid in ten year plan. It is decidedly to the advantage of taxpayers to use this plan. Interest and penalties have been cancelled and the only added charge is a 2 % collection fee.

In order to take advantage of the provisions of the law it is necessary that 1936 taxes be paid in full. County treasurers are all acquainted with the act and are already receiving applications from many tax payers who welcome this method of discharging their tax obligations and keeping their properties from the certain of a tax sale next May. It is very important however that arrangements be made before September 1st, after which no further relief can be granted.

Current Comment

The report that President Roosevelt may make a recess appointment to fill the supreme court vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice VanDevanter has caused fireworks in the senate. Ben. Vandenberg presented a bill to place the senate on record against such appointment. It was tabled. President Roosevelt had not stated he intends to make such an appointment at the attorney general has informed him that such an appointment is legal. In the past 9 such appointments to the supreme court have been made by presidents and the only one the senate refused to confirm was that of John Rutledge appointed by President George Washington.

The gambling situation in Michigan seems to be due for an airing gain as the legislature has named a committee to investigate gambling. Rep. John Hamilton of Detroit is on the committee. He introduced a bill to legalize gambling in the regular session and says he intends to find out why certain sheriffs, prosecutors and slot machine interest were present at the capitol last month to oppose it. Attorney General Starr at a roseators convention last month anned sheriffs and prosecutors who flow gambling to flourish in their counties. Gambling on a large scale as pretty well curbed for a time in his state but with the opening of the short season it seems to have come back in some places. We see by the late press that sheriffs and state police have been seizing slot machine in various places. The trouble row and the past that these raids are periodical.

We see that the sugar beet factories are preparing for a big campaign this year, some 27,000 acres of sugar beets having been planted. The weather has been favorable for their growth. The sugar factories start operations in Sept. and run until Jan 1st. This section has never raised many sugar beets. Numerous attempts have been made to introduce this crop but they have all been unsuccessful as the soil is unsuitable.

The City of Detroit has announced that its trailer ordinance aimed to do away with the trailer cities in Detroit will be vigorously enforced after a reasonable time has been given to the trailer residents to find other homes. The ordinance allows them 90 days in 12 months to live in a trailer. All trailer camps must get a license and trailer camps parked on the property of friends must report to the police. The big complaint against these cities is that they do not observe the laws of sanitation.

Child brides still continue to be a source of front page news and about every week there is a writeup in the press concerning some child marriage equally in the southern states. These marriages are apparently nothing new and have been taking place for years in the poor and uneducated classes here they are accepted as a custom. Educational facilities are lacking such stricts and it is only by education that these child marriages can be abated.

At the present time Senator Vandenberg of Michigan is undoubtedly the leading candidate for the presidential nomination on the Republican ticket in 1940. Of course it is three years until then and much may happen on but no less astute political prophet than James Farley, Democrat national chairman, stated last week Vandenberg would be the nominee. There is reason to believe that Vandenberg could have been the nominee in 1936 had he so desired. However he saw small hope for a G O P victory and refused to make a campaign for the nomination not entering his name in any of the state primaries. Evidently he did not like the outlook and realizing that a defeat could wash him up decided to wait until 1940 and even refused the vice-presidential nomination.

Miss Donabella Patton of Howell spent several days with her grand parents Mr. and Mrs. Claude Soper.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Mercey and son of Webberville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mason.

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—The government's silver policy again is attracting attention. Several things have caused it. First among these things is the matter of rising prices for foods and other necessities of life, but attention seems to have centered on the silver question again as a result of the Treasury's newly arranged agreement to trade some of its gold for some of the Chinese silver.

Silver Question

Probably the silver question is not as widely discussed as it might be because it is a complex subject and there are not too many people who understand it and its implications. I cannot refrain at this time, however, from recalling that when the silver act of 1934 was passed, I wrote in these columns a prediction that the country sooner or later would regret that legislation. I repeat the statement now and I do not believe it will be long until the average citizen will recognize what the silver policy is doing to most of us. I mean by that, it will not be long until Mr. John Q. Public will understand that the silver policy has a lot to do with the high prices he is paying for his pound of bacon, his slice of beefsteak or a thousand and one items that he buys at the grocery store. He will feel it, too, when he seeks to buy a new suit of clothes or a new pair of shoes. There can be no argument about it: The affect of inflation brought about by a perfectly ridiculous silver policy is upon us.

Early in July, the Chinese minister of finance visited Washington and called personally at the Treasury to express the appreciation of the Chinese government for the satisfactory conclusion of negotiations that enable the Chinese to give the American Treasury silver for gold. It was the usual diplomatic courtesy. At the same time, however, the visit of the Chinese minister served to awaken America to the fact that the Treasury has been going along, buying silver from foreign countries in order to maintain an arbitrary price which the Washington administration contended should be the world price for silver. This price is forty-five cents an ounce, and it is a most profitable price for silver producers in Mexico and Canada and some other foreign countries. It is not as profitable, however, as the price the Treasury pays to American producers—which is seventy-seven and one-half cents an ounce.

But, one may ask, what has this thing to do with the cost of beefsteak, ham and eggs or shoes? I hope I may be able to explain it as I have watched the picture unfold and to explain it in a manner that those unacquainted with high finance may see the thing in its true light.

How It Works

First of all, the policy of the administration that has brought billions of gold into the Treasury to be stored as so much dead weight has resulted in many thousands of shares of stock in American corporations or their bonds being bought by foreigners who gave gold in payment. President Roosevelt early in his administration insisted that gold should not be in circulation as money. Consequently, the Treasury has so much gold that it has had to build separate storehouses to protect it. Now, we are sending some of that gold to China in trade for China's silver. I think most everyone will agree that the silver is just as useless because we have no need for it in our currency structure. People do not want to carry silver dollars around in their pockets.

Assuming that the exchange was simply an even trade of two objects, neither of which was usable to us, one probably could dismiss the matter with a wave of the hand. Regrettably, such is not the case. The additional silver frankly is adding to our troubles because of the Silver Act of 1934 which permits the Treasury to issue currency—silver one-dollar bills—against it.

So, instead of being sterilized and stored away in vaults, the silver accession results in a prompt increase in the amount of currency in circulation. That action tends to increase the excess reserve—unused money—of the banking system. As this money becomes available for circulation, its value necessarily and obviously is cheapened. Or, to say it another way, the things you buy with money become of greater value because it takes more of these pieces of currency to buy the same quantity of food or clothes or shoes.

Authorities will disagree with the above statement to the extent that all kinds of currency have not been expanded (which means inflated) by the issuing of silver certificates. That is true. But we must be realistic and recognize that a silver certificate occupies exactly the same place in our currency structure as does a bill that is backed by gold or one that is issued by the Federal Reserve banks. Therefore, it seems to me to be a fair statement to say that the whole currency structure is tainted by this deluge of silver certificates now and heretofore coming from the Treasury. And it is equally a fact that prices of every kind are going to increase exactly in accordance or in ratio with the new money that is put out from the Treasury.

I do not know how long it will be until the voters wake up to the necessity for repeal of the silver act. It probably will not be long before there is a wave of public indignation against the policy if the average person realizes that the program is actually a tax upon the American public. Surely, if the silver policy were labeled, "tax to support the silver program," the attitude of the country would change overnight. That really should be the name of the Silver Act of 1934 because that is its effect. The tax results from the fact that the Treasury is paying foreign producers as well as American producers prices for silver that are higher than the value of the silver warrants. This means that any article of silver that you buy in a store costs you more than it would if silver producers abroad and in the United States were not being subsidized. The additional cost is a tax on every buyer just as much as though you had paid the tax directly into the Treasury.

It may be interesting to know that the Treasury has issued nearly eight-hundred million in silver certificates. In addition something like seven million silver dollars have been coined, and these still remain in the package in which they were wrapped at the mints. Besides all these, there is silver bullion that cost $375,000,000 piled up in the Treasury. Silver certificates can be issued against this.

The silver act of 1934 provided that the Treasury could buy one dollar's worth of silver to three dollars' worth of gold for what is called reserve purposes. On the basis of the gold now held, the Treasury can buy under that law a total of $4,125,000,000 in silver. At the present time Treasury records show we have silver reserves amounting to around $2,600,000,000. These figures show, or ought to show, how much inflation lies ahead—how much higher prices may go—unless something is done to restore a sound currency policy in the United States.

Some Democrats who are not too friendly with Postmaster General Jim Farley, along with the Republicans, are having fun these days with the Democratic National committee. They are also succeeding, it appears, in making President Roosevelt's political seat uncomfortably warm. Nothing will come of it except that the subject will fill many newspaper columns of attack and defense as the politicians shoot back and forth.

To review the situation, it should be recalled that the Democratic National committee found itself in debt to the tune of about $650,000 at the end of the 1936 campaign. Some bright mind in the Democratic National committee conceived the idea of selling Democratic campaign handbooks to corporations at $250 per book, or more, as a means of raising money.

To make the book attractive, a single sheet bearing the autograph of Franklin Delano Roosevelt was inserted. Hundreds of corporations were solicited, and hundreds bought the books—theoretically, because of the autograph of the President. Mr. Roosevelt stated he did not know he was autographing the blank sheets for the purpose for which they were used.

Republican Leader Snell, of New York, introduced a resolution in the house of representatives, proposing an investigation of the sale of these books to corporations. He contended that it was a violation of the corrupt practices act.

Mr. Snell remained determined, however, and sought to harass the New Deal further by asking Attorney General Cummings for an official opinion. At the same time, he read on the floor of the house a long list of corporations who had bought the "souvenirs" of the 1936 campaign, together with a list of prices they had paid.

These facts cut deeply into the Democrats who are seeking to protect Chairman Farley and the Democratic National committee wiggled and squirmed. Nevertheless, Mr. Snell may as well have butted his head against a stone wall since he got no further than Representative Rayburn, the house Democratic leader, would have gotten, if Mr. Snell had been majority, instead of minority, leader.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parion

"Spiritual Salesman" Aids the Oxford Movement.

NEW YORK.—Word keeps drifting into this office that the Oxford movement is gaining momentum in the trouble zones of labor, diplomacy and incipient war and carnage. The story persists that its emissaries, having converted powerful Chinese, brought about the rescue of Chiang Kai-Shek when he was kidnaped and prevented civil war; that their followers now include high officials of Japan and that they are working zealously, and with hopes of success, to calm the quarrel between China and Japan.

No verification as to specific accomplishment can be obtained, but this writer is reliably informed that they have enlisted powerful political and business leaders in Europe and the Orient and that they are concentrating on certain dangerous situations.

Frankly, they are evangelists to the rich and powerful, as they say the hope of the world lies in inducing a spiritual change in those who own and operate it. That possibly may go into the files of history as something new.

In the news this week is Rev. Samuel Moor Shoemaker, who has been talking over in America as Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the movement, is busy with the world organization. In London, he is prominent in the proceedings of the convocation of 400 Oxford movement leaders in thirty-five countries. From the conference come stories of employers and labor leaders making concessions under the leadership of the "Christian revolutionaries" and averting strikes.

Dr. Shoemaker is pastor of Calvary Protestant Episcopal church of New York. For the last few years he has been preaching that the old evangelism had failed and that a new dynamic creed was necessary. He became active in the Oxford movement in 1932, since then a vigorous expounder of its faith.

He insists that only by an enlightened and aggressive mobilization of spiritual forces can civilization be saved. He is a good looking, highly urbanized cleric, usually wearing a modish gray business suit. He calls himself a "spiritual salesman." This might convey the erroneous idea that he is an "Elmer Gantry." He is quite the contrary, never seeking personal publicity, and building a reputation as one of the church's leading scholars, with his authorship of nine books in the field of religious research and polemics.

He was born and reared in Baltimore, attended Princeton university, later taking his doctorate in theology. In his earlier years he was a teacher and evangelist in China and it is understood that this experience has made him particularly effective in the peace and regeneration activities in China.

Soviet Liquidator.

IN ONE way, at least, Soviet Russia is like traditional America. The postmaster is the patronage dealer. Nikolai Ivanovich Yezhov, receiving the order of Lenin after his management of the recent "liquidations," has a three-fold office which includes control of posts and telegraphs, the selection of personnel for important posts and command of the secret political police. He is regarded as second only to Stalin in power and the prevailing conjecture among many observers is that he may be Stalin's successor.

His predecessors in office were grim, scowling men. He was elevated in September, 1936, with national acclaim as "a man who knows how to smile." Forty-two years old, he has been tagged by the correspondents as a "mystery man," just now unveiled by the newspapers as a handsome, personable citizen who looks as if he had just been picking daisies, rather than doing a rush job of "liquidating."

He is a certified proletarian, a factory worker at fourteen and military commissioner with various Bolshevik units in the revolution. In 1929 and 1930 he was vice-commissioner of agriculture, and in 1934 became a member of the central committee of the Communist party and of the powerful party control commission.

But, for the most part, he has worked quietly behind the scenes, rarely seen, saying little, adroitly gathering strands of power. His control of posts and telegraphs dates from 1928, his other offices having been added later. He is one of the party's five secretaries and a candidate for membership in the Politburo, the high peak of power in the party organization.

City in Great Britain

A town in Great Britain or Ireland is not called a city unless there is a cathedral in it. But occasionally a place in which there is no cathedral is made a city by royal order, as, for example, Plymouth, England, with a population of 220,000, in which there is no cathedral, was made a city by order of the king.

Malaga, Spain, before shot and shell marred its beauty.

Civil War Makes World Conscious of Modern Changes Felt in Spain

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

CIVIL war in Spain signalizes the startling changes which have swept that ancient land in recent years.

In the swift rush of daily news, more is said of military leaders and their campaigns, of statesmen and changing governments, than of the deep social and economic transformations behind the news, or the character of this land and its people.

Long before King Alfonso fled, these changes were of course under way, and because of them his monarchy failed.

These transitions have gathered momentum, until today this once romantic land of duennas, monasteries, bullfights and leisurely pastoral life has written a new and dramatic chapter in its long history. Where centuries-old country lanes and mountain trails used to wind, fine new concrete roads now streak over the hills. To a large degree, men have exchanged their saddle mules for flivvers, and the high-wheeled, clumsy oxcart yields to the whizzing motor truck.

Senoritas Bob Their Hair.

From the Bay of Biscay down to the blue Mediterranean, traditional peasant costumes are being discarded and men are dressing in plain blue overalls. Black-eyed senoritas today lay away the time-honored mantilla, get their hair bobbed and hunt city jobs as typists, telephone girls and shop clerks, as do their sisters in many lands.

New thinking, as well as new machines, changes the way of Spanish life. Bullfighting still goes on, but now the intrepid toreadors belong to a labor union! You may still find guitars and fandangos, for Spaniards are ever a music-loving people, and possibly you may find here and there a lovesick couple mooning at each other through an old iron-barred window. More and more, however, the radio supercedes the guitar and the girl has come out from behind the historic grillwork and gone to the movies with her sweetheart—or to the street barricades to fight with him!

One fact to grasp, in understanding the social muddle here, is that Spain is divided into 50 provinces; and not so many years ago it was commonly said that it also had 50 different national dances and costumes, together with almost as many dialects.

Comparatively sudden advent of new high-speed roads, faster vehicles, speeches and news broadcast by air, and the breakdown of church influence, all combine now to dissipate this old conservative provincial spirit. Thus has Spain been turned into a milling, restless land. For the first time country and town life are freely blended, and the peasant can hear the exciting talk of city radicals and revolutionaries that yesteryear came only as a remote murmur.

Spain is now becoming so modernized that busses of every kind and color race along from village to village, from town to city. Till a few years ago, many country people never journeyed more than 20 miles from home in their lives. Now by cheap, or even free, rides in war times, they travel all over the country!

Political Parties Are Many.

With the rise of the republic came, of course, more liberty of speech and action; but, born of the 50 provinces and their 50 different ways of thinking, came also wide division of opinion and action.

Political parties of all shades sprang up in great variety and number. Certain factions held that progress should be attained gradually through education of the masses—masses as yet untrained in the art of government. This is obviously a slow process and one would suppose that in a romantic "land of manana" a slow process would be acceptable.

But the manana idea is another of those old Spanish customs so rapidly disappearing; many now demand a quicker approach, a faster progress.

Thus a peek at Spain of today reveals a startling modernity of thought, civilization and up-to-the-minute comforts and contrivances, superimposed upon the stubborn survival of many local ways and prejudices that bend or break but slowly.

Irrepressibly, however, the cities put on a more modern dress and quicken their pace. Consider, hastily, some of the cities and towns that have figured in recent war news.

The New York of Spain.

Take a look at Barcelona, the New York of Spain. It is the largest city in the country, the most important financial and industrial center and by far the busiest seaport.

The sun shines in air crisp and exhilarating as you stroll down the Paseo de Gracia, Barcelona's most important thoroughfare and indeed one of the most interesting and modernistic streets in the world. Fine motorcars (no trucks allowed on this wide avenue) stop and go at modern American traffic signals.

At the foot of the Paseo is the very heart of Barcelona—the Plaza de Catalunya—a large open space filled with statues, fountains, flower beds, paved paths, and benches.

Always animated, human streams flow in and out of its subway entrances. The Plaza, too, is the center of fierce turmoil in every political upheaval. It is surrounded by large, ornate structures—banks, hotels, and new telephone office building with copper-green tower, a Yankee skyscraper indeed in a Spanish metropolis!

Flying at another corner is a welcome sight for American eyes—the Stars and Stripes—indicating the splendid offices of the United States consulate general.

Use American Cash Registers.

Big signs advertise American automobiles. Indeed, three-fourths of all cars in the Plaza are of familiar make. There is a large American bank a few doors up the street; in bookstores are displays of American fountain pens, and in the tobacco shops even chewing gum!

All these business houses use American adding machines and cash registers, and the offices hum with American typewriters. Many of the fine new apartment buildings are equipped with American doors and electric refrigerators. Here "foreign trade" is a pulsing thing far removed from the dry statistics of our commerce.

"Rambla" really means a dry ravine, but in Barcelona the word is used to designate a wider street or boulevard. The original fascinating Rambla of Barcelona is like no other thoroughfare in the world! It is a long, straight avenue with a wide promenade for pedestrians in the center and is lined with tall plane trees.

Busy stores flank the Rambla from end to end, interspersed with theaters, cinemas, an ancient church or two and a large number of cafes. Under bright, wide awnings that canopy the sidewalks and shade the little tables, idlers sit and watch the lifeblood of the metropolis stream up and down its main artery—streaming at a much quicker tempo since recent shooting started!

Like the Paris boulevards, each section of the Rambla bears a different name. First come ornamental kiosks displaying an amazing variety of newspapers and magazines in every European language. Then comes the bird market. Arranged in cages of all sizes along the promenade is a bewildering show of yellow and brown canaries, gray parrots from western Africa, green ones from Brazil, tiny parakeets, all setting up a lively chatter.

New World Gives Way.

The next section is the brightest of all—the Rambla de las Flores. Here open-air flower stalls, bossed by black-haired peasant women, offer flowers of every color and shade. Love of flowers is one point at least upon which all divergent political parties can agree!

Following the flower stalls come more kiosks where one may procure ice cream or soft drinks. Buildings begin to look older now—the New World gives way to the Old—and finally we come out into the wide water front, with its ornate customhouse, the tall statue to Columbus, and the palm-lined Paseo de Colon. To the right, in the shadow of the huge, somber stone barracks, is a long double line of bookstalls.

Sloping up on the right of the harbor is the high hill of Montjuich, with a sinister old fort upon its crest. In turbulent days of riots and strikes, executions of ringleaders take place here.

Embroidery Adds That Smart Touch

Embroidered flowers that promise to be the "life" of your frock are these that you'll want for immediate stitching. They're fun! They're easy to do! They're entirely in lazy-daisy and single stitch; the pretty floral border is a grand finisher for neckline.

Household Questions

Clear Blueing.—To prevent blueing from streaking clothes on washday, dissolve a tablespoon of soda in the "blue" water.

Washing Linoleum.—Dissolve a lump of sugar in the water when washing linoleum or oilcloth, and a brilliant polish will result.

Removing Tar.—Tar is easily removed from the hands and clothing with lard, followed by warm water and soap.

A Refreshing Drink.—Rhubarb juice makes a good beverage of pleasing tart flavor. Clarify the juice with water and add sugar to taste. It may also be combined with fruit juices.

Heat the Nail.—Before hammering a nail into the wall either heat the end over a gas jet or hold it in boiling water for a few seconds. If the nail is treated in this way the plaster will not crumble and the nail will hold firmly for a far longer period than otherwise.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and speed the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging headache, dizziness, nervousness, itching of the skin, swelling, under the eye—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder trouble may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. The Doan's Pills have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

HOMEMAKERS CORNER

Grouping furniture for usefulness such as reading, sewing, or writing makes the room inviting because it suggests what one may do when he enters, say extension specialists in home furnishing at the Michigan state College.

The furniture should be grouped for a purpose, and separate pieces should not be left alone. Single pieces isolated and useless, as few persons sit down and do nothing. Desks are useless without a chair and a lamp, and so are tables unless they are near a person who is sewing, reading or working on a hobby, say the extension specialists.

Activities of the various members of the family should be considered when one is planning the various furniture groups, suggest the home furnishing specialist. For instance, the living room may have one or more reading groups. These reading groups usually consist of two chairs turned toward each other with a table and a lamp between them. Accessible book shelves are necessary of course. Low home made shelves of simple construction often fit into the furniture arrangement better than the larger ready made type.

Besides the reading group, the homemaker should consider a play corner for the children.

Every living room needs a day bed or a couch, or a davenport to enable one to rest without having to use the regular bed. If there is no spare in the living room, the day bed may be placed in the dining room, or even in the corner of the kitchen.

In addition the appearance of order and neatness, grouping the furniture has the effect of added space.

TAX SALE

The compiling of sales records on certain counties of the state was to be started today by Auditor General George T. Gundry.

The compilation is done on a staggered schedule so as to coincide with and in the hands of the county office records the date of the sale. Mr. Gundry explained that the records of all counties must be completed in the hands of the county office six to eight weeks prior to the opening of the circuit court. Gundry commended county treasurers of the state in making their returns of payments so promptly.

Gundry continued: Posting of payments are progressing rapidly for all counties. The work in some counties further behind than others but the general thought is to complete the work on a schedule according to the terms of court in various counties during the next month. Several additional counties will be started by the middle of September.

CASE HOLDING CHECKS

Leon D. Case is custodian of about 500 checks averaging $4 each, which the state of Michigan has been trying to return to their rightful owners for more than three years.

In 1934, the legislature reduced the weight tax rate on passenger cars from 55 cents to 35 cents per hundred. But before the act was passed, thousands of motor car owners had already bought their license plates. Refunds were in order and accordingly the checks were made out and mailed to those entitled to receive them. After three years, delivery has still been impossible in some cases.

Only occasional a check is claimed, but much more frequently people apply for refunds which they think they never got until their signatures on cancelled checks are turned up from the records. The great bulk of refund checks originally returned unclaimed in 1934, were claimed next year: car owners when buying 1935 plates noticed the cost was less, inquired concerning it and in hundreds of cases were presented with their refund checks.

The checks are always good, but from all appearance virtually no more will ever be claimed.

"We are immensely pleased with its economy..."

OWNERS SAY:

"We are very enthusiastic in praise of our range... and immensely pleased with the economy of electric cooking. It hasn't cost as much as the way I used to cook."

"We have many times recommended the electric range to our friends. You know it is not expensive. Why not advertise the fact?"

NINE AT-A-TIME

Sandwich toasting at its easiest and best—helps make entertaining easy! This is only one of countless things you can do in your electric oven. A woman writes: "The oven is marvelous! Everyone remarks how lovely my roasts are. I wouldn't go back to my old stove under any conditions."

NO GUESSWORK

A housewife writes: "I can't say enough for the oven of my electric range. I never have baking failures, and the oven control ends all guesswork."

Another says: "It is grand in every way. My cakes and biscuits are so much better and my roasts are nicer. I would never have anything but an electric stove." * * * (See the new electric ranges on display at department stores, electrical dealers and all Detroit Edison offices.)

THERE IS NO More Human Place THAN A Bank

In spite of the large amount of business it must comply with in a day, and in spite of its usual marble and metal, brick or stone appearance, the average bank is an exceedingly human place. Bank safes are stores of hopes, ambitions and safeguards. Checking facilities are more than conveniences; necessities, in fact, to going businesses and to those individuals whose health or occupation makes it impossible for them to get around to pay bills in person. Safe deposit boxes alone could tell a powerful story of treasured keepsakes, memories, homes protected by insurance. All in all, a bank is closely mingled with the lives of men and women who make it their financial home. This bank is one where you are as welcome as in your own home.

To Delinquent Tax Payers

According to the law enacted in this 1937 Legislature, the State of Michigan plans, through the County Treasurers, to conduct a Tax Sale, for all 1932 and prior years, as well as the 1933-1934 and May 1935.

To withhold your property from this Tax Sale, it will be necessary to make certain required payments on your Taxes. The first three tenths of the 1932 and prior years' Taxes. And the 1933-1934 and 1935 Taxes in full, or by placing them on the ten year plan; Which in order to do, it is necessary, First that the 1936 Tax be paid in full, and then the first three installments of the 1932 and prior years' taxes be paid then the first one tenth on the 1933-1934 and 1935 taxes paid.

The past due installments, or the entire taxes of 1935 and prior years' Taxes, on the First Tuesday of 1935 taxes may be paid BEFORE September 1, 1937 with only a 2% collection Fee. No interest is charged.

On September 1, 1937, the moratorium provided for by Act 23, P.A. 1937 is waived and all 1935 and prior year taxes are to be collected, with 4% collection Fee and the interest at 9% per year figured from the date that the Tax was returned Delinquent to the County Treasurer.

PINCKNEY TRIUMPHS AGAIN

The Pinckney soft ballers won the game at Brighton last Friday night 10 to 7. No regular pitcher failed to show up so Edsil Meyer went into the box and pitched a fair game, Julius Aschenbrenner caught. Pinckney scored twice in the 1st by means of an error, and singles by J. Lavey and E. Meyer. They got 2 more in the 5th when Aschenbrenner doubled and Jack Reason hit a home run. A double by H. Read and another home run by Meyer gave them two more in the 6th. They scored 4 in the 7th when the Brighton team made several obbles. Brighton rallied in the 7th and scored 3 runs giving them a total of 7. Brighton will play a return game at Pinckney Friday night. This game will be started at 6:30.

PINCKNEY HELD TO 3 HITS

Lambarth, Saline, held Pinckney to three hits Sunday and they lost 4 to 1. Harlo Haines also pitched well. Pinckney got a run for him the first inning when Bob Smith walked. Edsil Meyer scored him with a hit to center field. Haines got himself out of several tight spots and up to the 7th inning held a 1 to 0 lead. In this inning he struck out Lambarth and Bondy grounded out, Kuebler doubled and scored Saline's first run on a hit. Saline got a run in the 8th when Roe was hit and scored on LaBelle's overthrow to first after fielding a grounder. The first two Saline batters were retired in the 9th on a grounder to short and a foul to the catcher. Kuebler hit to short. It got through Maycock and LaBelle fielded it but his throw pulled Smith off the bag. Hamilton was hit in the head when a wild throw by Haines was executed and time was called but he continued in the game. Schmidt hit over second scoring Kuebler. Rock's grounder got past Maycock, scoring Hamilton. Hoft fled to Dickinson. In the last half Ward, Meyer and Lamb all grounded out.

Although Pinckney failed to hit they fielded nicely. Bob Smith made a double play unassisted. Dickinson fielded Crittenden's hit and threw Hoft out at the plate when he tried to score from third. Kuebler, Saline first sacker, leaped up in the air in the 8th, caught Ed Meyer's liner in the 8th and pulled Meyer's liner and doubled Ward at third. This killed a Pinckney rally.

Next Sunday Pinckney will play Dexter at Dexter.

In the other League games Ann Arbor beat Chelsea 5 to 0. The Hamburg-Dexter game broke up when Hamburg left the field and refused to continue to play. Both teams now claim a forfeit. Dexter because Hamburg left the field and Hamburg because Dexter used two players not on their eligibility list.

DOG QUARANTINE

LIVINGSTON COUNTY

The fact has been established that dogs affected with an infectious and communicable disease known as "rabies" have recently been at large in the city of Brighton and the township of Brighton and other localities in Livingston County Michigan and are known to have bitten persons and animals and may have come in contact with dogs as yet unknown.

Notice is hereby given that any dog which is owned, kept or harbored within Livingston county Michigan, shall be securely chained or properly confined under the control of the owner or custodian of such dog to prevent the aforesaid dog from biting any other animal or any person. No such dog shall be allowed to run at large during the period of this quarantine.

The attention of all owners or keepers of dogs in the above named territory is hereby called to the following sections of the Michigan State Laws relating to the Bureau of Animal Industry which provide a penalty for violations of this quarantine order and read as follows:

Sec. 6. Said commissioner shall also have power to declare and enforce a quarantine on dogs in any district of this state in which there is an outbreak of rabies, hog cholera, hoof and mouth disease, or any other contagious or infectious disease among the livestock; and may order that all dogs in said district shall be securely chained or otherwise confined. Any dog found at large in contravention of terms of such a quarantine or order may be killed. It shall be the duty of the sheriff of each county in the district affected and of his deputies, constables and other municipal police officers to see to it that such quarantine and orders are enforced. Any officer killing a dog pursuant to the provisions of this act shall not be subject to any liability therefor.

Sec. 23. Any person violating, disregarding or evading any of the provisions of this act, or any of the rules, regulations, orders or directions of the Commissioner of Animal Industry (Commissioner of Agriculture) made pursuant hereto, shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor and by conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than six months, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. The doing of any act herein decided to be unlawful or herein forbidden shall be deemed to constitute a violation hereof.

This quarantine order shall be in full force and effect from and during the period between June 16, 1937, and Aug. 31, 1937.

Dated June 24, 1937. Thomas E. Baker
Acting Commissioner of Agriculture

C. H. Clark
State Veterinarian

An article disclosing how the sole survivor of a notorious band of train and bank robbers, which helped make American history, passed away, respectable, is one of the many human interest articles which you will find in the American Weekly, the great weekly magazine, with the August 15 issue of the Detroit Sunday Times. Last of the Dalton boys dies with boots off. Sole survivor of the notorious train and bank robbers passes away—respectable. An interesting article in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with EXT SUNDAY'S CHICAGO HON.

J. Aschenbrenner of Detroit was Sunday caller at the home of Mrs. Bowman. His daughter Barbara had home with him following an and with her grandmother.

Miss Dorothy Wilson was in Detroit last week.

Mrs. Robert Mitter and daughter of Stockbridge spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Art Bullis.

WITH BANNERS

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and develop a deep affection for her. Mark disposes that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her.

"Do you dislike Mark Trent?" "Don't dislike him. Just don't want to think about the man, that's all. My sister Daphne went cock-eyed about him and he turned her down hard. Like a perfect gentleman, of course, but it got my goat."

"Are you sure he turned her down?" "Sure. I'm not blaming him, I'm ashamed for her, that's all. He was probably fed up with her type. His ex-wife was never quite sober, I've heard. Daphne felt for him the minute she saw him, she had worried me by her crazy ideas of freedom for a girl, she'd picked up a post-war germ somewhere—all talk of course—and when Trent came along, she stopped drinking and staying out till morning at night clubs. I was relieved. Then he side-stepped. Forget it. I don't know why I told you. Nice street this, isn't it?"

Brooke nodded assent as they passed houses whose polished windows, violet-paned some of them, screened by laces of unbelievable fineness, regarded her with inscrutable calm. Thoroughbred dogs, proudly conscious of their gay collars and smart breast-straps, decorously escorted their young masters. Shining limousines waited before charming old doors. In the distance rose the faint, far sound of traffic, murmurous as a mighty flood which never rolled nearer.

"Here we are at your door. Sure you won't change your mind and go stepping?" The boyish quality was back in Field's voice. "Grand old house. Pity it was turned into apartments. Do you realize that you never have invited me to meet the family? What's wrong? Ashamed of your home—or me?"

"Neither. What a beastly suggestion, Jerry. If you must know, I haven't told them about our friendship. I have the finest family in the world, but their bump of humor is over-developed, it isn't a bump, it's a coconut."

"What is there about me that's a joke?"

"Nothing; don't be so touchy. I decided to be a little mysterious, that's all. Sam resents it if I ask him a question about his friends, thinks I am treating him like a boy when he is almost two years older than I; and since I got Lucette the chance to model and she is financially independent, she scorns my interest."

"Is your mother like that?"

"No, Mother's a dear, but she is so bound up in her children that she has no real life of her own. It's a pity because she is a comparatively young woman."

"She sounds old-fashioned and motherly to me. Grade A in mothers. I like that kind. Can't I come in and meet her? I had planned to celebrate with you. Now that you've turned me down, I haven't any place to go."

"You carry off that aggrieved, little-boy pose well, Jerry, but it leaves me cold. You, with your Crowd-capital C—, having nowhere to go! That's the funniest thing I ever heard. I intend to devote the next two hours to making plans with the family. But when we're settled, I'll invite you to Lookout House. Good night. Sorry."

The front door slammed with a force which shook the house. Sam, of course. The atmosphere tingled when he appeared. He was whistling as usual. Good-looking boy! His horn-rimmed spectacles added a touch of distinction. She patted his sleeve as he stopped beside her. "Had a nice day, Sammy?"

"Not too good. They're taking off the play tomorrow. Our dear public wouldn't see it."

He pulled open the elevator door. "Hop in." As it clanged shut, he asked:

"All through being a working girl?"

Brooke swallowed a lump in her throat and nodded.

"It will seem queer being a lady of leisure."

"Leisure! You don't know the first letter of the word. I can see you wondering what you'll do next. Leisure isn't your line. You'll plunge into classes and sports. There won't be hours enough in a day for you."

The elevator stopped. A voice seeped through the cracks around the apartment door. Sam Reyburn grinned.

"Say, listen! Lucette's on the air—and how."

"Oh dear, what's her grievance now?" Brooke whispered, and put her key into the lock.

She tried to appraise with the eyes of a stranger the high-ceilinged, large living-room she entered. A connoisseur of portraits would know that Grandfather Reyburn over the mantel had been painted by a great artist; that the portrait of his daughter on the opposite wall was a choice bit of work; that the duchess of Argyle in her sables, green satin, and emeralds was a masterpiece. Always she had wanted to decorate a room as a background for the picture. Now she could. The duchess was hers. The mahogany and maple were sadly in need of rubbing up, but no amount of wear and tear could disguise its period and value.

Her eyes lingered on her mother perched on the arm of a couch. She did young things like that. Her hair was a sheeny platinum; her eyes were dark; her skin was clear and smooth; her figure in the amethyst crepe frock was round without in the least suggesting fat. There was a quizzical twist to her lovely mouth as she looked at her younger daughter, who, with legs thrust straight out before her, was slumped in a chair. Her red beret, which matched the belt of her slim green plain frock, was on the floor. Her hair was black and wavy; her eyes were brilliantly dark; her painted lips drooped at the corners. Brooke recognized the symptoms. Sam had been right, Lucette was on the air. She said as she slipped out of her lapin coat:

"Do You Dislike Mark Trent?"

"In the Valley of Despond again, Lucette? Had a nice day, Mother?"

Mrs. Reyburn smiled and nodded. She would make her home-coming children think she had had a nice day, if the heavens had fallen. She was like that. Lucette answered her question.

"You'd be in the Valley of Despond, if you had had the day I've had, Brooke Reyburn. I'm dead to the world. A woman came into the sports shop with three daughters, and kept me showing clothes all the afternoon. Gosh! My feet ache like teeth gone nervy."

"Did she buy much?" "Not that baby. She bought that little blue number only. For Pete's sake, why does Sam have to whistle when he's under the shower? The walls of this apartment are regular sounding boards."

"Bear up, Lucette, you will be out of it soon. If we can't sublet this apartment, we'll shut it up."

"Spoken like a lady and a multi."

Brooke darling. And after that what?"

"You won't have to model for fussy women and you'll have a dressing room of your very own. Mr. Stewart has told me that I may take possession of Lookout House as soon as I like. Mark the Magnificent has given the Jovian nod. He won't contest the will. I'm going there tomorrow with a plumber. A bath for every bed will be my battle-cry."

Silence followed her words, a silence fraught with significance. Brooke caught her sister's look at her mother before she sat up straight and tensed. She knew that posture, she was preparing for a skirmish. Lucette said defiantly:

"Glad you brought up that subject, Brooke. News flash! I'm not going to the sticks with you, not if you offer me a gold tub with diamond settings. I spent one night at the home of the late Mary Amanda Dane, and, so far as I am concerned, the name means look out and not go there again. That sealed door in her living-room gave me the creeps. Sam isn't."

She dashed to the hall as the telephone rang.

"Lucette Reyburn speaking," she answered eagerly.

"Yes—yes—he is. I'll call him."

Her voice was as flat as de-bubbled champagne. She pounded on the bath-room door.

"Phone for you, Sam—How do I know? It's the girl who always calls just as you've stepped under the shower.—All right."

She returned to the phone. "Hold the line. He'll be here in a minute."

Back in the living-room she dropped into a chair. With elbows propped on her knees, chin in her palms, she stared at the floor.

In bathrobe and slippers, Sam answered the phone.

"Can't make it—No. It's not another girl, it's a family confab. Sam Reyburn signing off. Good-by!"

He slammed down the receiver.

"And I know of no reason why I should explain to you what I'm doing," he growled under his breath.

"Hi! Sammy! What's the shower-dame's name?" Lucette called.

Her brother scowled at her.

"There's about as much privacy in this apartment as there is in the bandstand on the Common."

"Cheerio, darling. You'll have privacy, and how, if you live with Brooke. She's going house-owner in a big way. If there's to be a bath for every bed, of course there will be a sound-proof telephone booth with every room. What did you say the girl friend's name was?"

"It's none of your business, kiddo, who calls me." Hands deep in the pockets of his hectic bathrobe, Sam paced the living-room floor.

His mother laughed softly. She patted the couch.

"Stop walking the floor like a hungry lion and sit down, Sam. Lucette started something just before the phone rang. She should have known better than to start anything in the Reyburn family before it has been fed, but now that she has, you'd better finish it."

"What d'you mean by started, Mother?"

Brooke perched on the arm of a chair at the desk. She faced them all. Most of the time she could tell quite well what they were thinking. She answered her brother's question before her mother could.

"She means that Lucette announced that she did not intend to live at Lookout House with me, and that you—"

"Were not going either, Sam," Lucette finished triumphantly.

"Aren't you, Sam?"

"Say listen, Brooke. Don't you see how it is? I have to be at the theater early; I'm late when I get through; rehearsing all the morning. Twenty miles is a long way to commute."

"I had planned to buy you the snappiest convertible coupe on the market."

"Don't make me feel like a brute. Don't you see—"

"Of course I see, Sammy. You want to be on your own. I do understand."

"Don't worry about his being on his own, darling," Lucette cut in bitterly. "No one can be on his own in this family. The Great Adviser intends to stay right here to look after his little sister."

Brooke's eyes met her brother's; he nodded. Lucette flamed on:

"And Mother's going to stay to look after both of us."

"Mother!" Brooke echoed the word with shocked incredulity. "But I've planned the most wonderful things for Mother. Is it true?"

Celia Reyburn's eyes shone through a mist as they met her elder daughter's. Her lips curved in a lovely, tremulous smile.

"When you say Mother, Brooke, I think it the most beautiful word in the world. But I will not make my home with you—at present. First, because Lookout House is yours and you should assume the responsibility and direction of it. You will do it more easily if I am not there. Second, I want to stay in the city, not so much because of the children, but because now that your financial future is assured, I shall feel that I may use a little of the money your father left me. I want—I want to be in the heart of things. I'll have an experienced maid, I'll have the right clothes, and—and I'll go places, I'm dying to go places."

Her impassioned voice broke. "Perhaps I'm selfish, perhaps you children think I'm a silly old woman."

Sam flung his arm about his mother. "Hooray for the Spirit of '36! Sorry, I shouldn't have mentioned your age, Celia Reyburn. Don't worry that you won't get enough of your family, Brooke. I'll have to drag these two giddy girls off to the country for rest occasionally. Aren't sore at us, are you, Brooke? Don't feel that we have let you down to go on alone?"

"Of course I don't, you old dear. Why shouldn't each one of us do as we like, now that there is some money back of us? Because I feel that I must carry out Mrs. Dane's wishes is no reason for dragging the rest of you into the country. Let's get busy planning. If you are all sold on staying in the city, we'll have a bigger apartment. I may want to spend a week-end away from the sticks myself."

Best Hunting Dogs

"The best hunting dogs," pointer owners say of the breed. They have much to back that statement. Pointers are equal to any dog in intelligence, speedier than any other bird dog and easy to teach. Their duty is not to kill or retrieve. They merely scent out birds and point them out to the hunter. They do this by standing rigidly still, nose pointed directly at the game and tail out, pointed straight as a ram-

ROSE MEETS UNCLE AMOS

By Clarissa Mackie

WNU Service.

TOMMY ATKINS was calling upon the lady next door. Tommy was five years, strong and hearty, and the lady was sweet and twenty, and pretty as her name, Rose.

She was disconsolately bouncing a tennis ball on her racket when Tommy wandered along, a new clay pipe dangling from his rosy lips.

"Oh, Tommy, boy, come and kiss me," called Rose invitingly.

When the kiss had been bestowed with several accolades, Tommy Atkins cocked a wicked eye at the lady. "Do I smell very terbackee-kee?" he asked carelessly.

"Horribly," sighed Rose, then she added: "Who are you this afternoon, dear?"

"Uncle Amos."

"Uncle Amos?" repeated Rose perplexedly, for the Atkinses were new neighbors and she had not heard Tommy's parents speak of such a relative.

"He is my uncle—and father's uncle and mother's, too—it's what they call him."

"Isn't it nice to have a great-uncle, Tommy?" asked Rose, making conversation. "I have a great-uncle James and I love him dearly just because he is so nice."

"My Uncle Amos is nice, too, and he could beat you playing tennis, Miss Rose."

"I am surprised," cried Rose in mock astonishment, then, to her momentary embarrassment, Tommy added gleefully:

"Can't you, Uncle Amos?"

"Of course I can," called a cheery voice across the lawn and instantly Tommy had scrambled down and was racing across the grass to meet three people—his parents and a very tall young man, brown and muscular, who swept Tommy Atkins up into his arms.

SO ROSE was blushing like her namesake when they all met and Amos Harlow was presented to Miss Bloomer.

They played tennis the rest of the day. Uncle Amos played execrably, and Mrs. Atkins complained bitterly that a state champion should do better than that, and poor Amos was dumb with mortification.

It was while they were having tea under the trees, and Mrs. Bloomer was talking to Tom Atkins and his wife, that young Tommy and the huge rubber ball that Uncle Amos had brought came rolling across the grass to stop at Rose's pretty feet. She was listening with a rapt air to Amos Harlow, who was speaking.

Tommy, all eyes, ears and questions, catapulted himself into the conversation.

"Where's your begagement ring, Miss Rose?" he cried.

Amos involuntarily glanced down at the white ringless hands and looked away.

After that the delightful conversation between Amos and Rose languished.

"Engaged," grumbled Amos that night as he went to bed.

Rose went to sleep listening to his voice rumbling along, broken by long silences, and there was a lovely smile on her lips.

But morning brought disaster. When small Tommy raced over to bear the news that Uncle Amos had gone to town that morning, all the light went out of her eyes.

AMOS HARLOW had run away from the girl next door. It was the first time in his strong, busy life that he had ever turned his back on danger. "But a woman is different," he mused that first evening at his deserted club, "no use in deliberately falling in love with a girl when her heart is set on another man."

Another man wandered into the smoking room and scouted among the empty chairs looking for a possible acquaintance. At last he discovered Amos and was gloomily pleased.

"Ah, Harlow, is it you? Haven't seen you in a year. How're things with you?" George Weed dropped into the adjoining chair and summoned a waiter.

Amos smiled affably as he smoked and listened to George Weed. George had been a classmate of his and was the most fearful bore—a good-looking boy—but wishy-washy! The handsome, gloomy youth was soon confiding the story of his life—he had been turned down by a girl who had accepted him and after one week had broken it off declaring that she had made a mistake, she didn't love him, never could, etc., etc. Suddenly Amos arose in the midst of it and shot out of the room. He was heard in the lobby shouting for a taxi, and half an hour later if anyone had followed his movements he might have been seen driving his own car along the Post road trying to think of some rational excuse to offer his sister and her husband for his sudden reappearance.

Saturdays and Sundays take the lead in the number of accidents by automobiles. The weekend congestion of traffic, especially on highways and on crowded city streets, is responsible for this record. People are very anxious to get out of the city on Saturday and in their hurry frequently forget the safe practices and common sense rules. In hurrying home on a Sunday night, carelessness again overtakes them and as a result more accidents are reported.

It is a fine thing to have weekend picnics and camping parties. Let us not mar these outings by being careless in our driving habits, but let us pay special attention to the rules of the road and continue to enjoy these pleasures.

burg remarked that someone ought to think about balancing the Federal budget or the American people will be crucified on the cross of high cost of living. If the house concurs with the senate the administration of the act will be placed under the Department of the State without creating a new governmental agency.

Prominent Witness

Mayor LaGuardia of New York is one of the prominent witnesses before the House Banking and Currency Committee during the week. He outlined the work that New York has line to eliminate or improve slum areas and told the Committee, the former property owners in Russia would be only too glad for a chance to pay taxes for some such legislation now. The New York mayor declared it is not possible to evaluate in dollars and cents, a project that is intended to increase and improve the health and happiness of the Americans.

Court Solution

In the second Saturday session in succession and the third weekend meeting this year the senate without a record vote approved a court bill as a rider to a minor house bill. The bill provides for an immediate appeal for lower courts in cases where the constitutionality of Federal statutes is in doubt with provision for the Attorney General to intervene and a requirement for three judges including one circuit judge, to declare a law unconstitutional. The amendments proposed by the senate judiciary committee concern only the lower federal courts attached as amendments to the house bill the senate action will require a conference discussion.

Sweet Argument

Without a record vote the house approved a sugar bill that limits the amount of refined sugar that may be shipped into continental U. S. by the three island groups. While other amendments were rejected which would have increased the local production quota at the expense of Cuba or other islands the majority of the house ignored the advice of Administration leaders to approve the bill that now goes to the senate. President Roosevelt previously threatened to veto any bill that discriminates against any group of American citizens.

Gun Customers

China and Japan were the biggest customers for arms and ammunition in the U. S. during July according to the report of the Secretary of State. China paid $409,870 for all manner of armament including machine guns, tanks, bombs, etc. Japan paid $203,178 for the same purpose. The nation exported $1,700,204 worth.

Fair Trade

Attached as a rider to the D. C. tax bill was approved by both houses of Congress and will be sent to the president this week. The bill eliminate the sale of merchandise below cost as a merchandising subterfuge. At a conference the president declined to comment on the future of the bill.

With the fall season coming on rapidly we begin to wonder what kind of business is in store for us all. Judging from current conditions we can look for improvement in all lines. Farmers will be getting good prices for most products, employment will be stabilized due to strikes becoming less frequent. The steady pay check will help the retail trade.

Babson Reports state that a 10% increase will not be unlikely for the general business. Of course, this will mean a slow creeping upward in living costs and commodity prices.
