

Pinckney High School Loses Opening Game

Milford Takes Them Into Camp By A Score of 34 to 0. Team is Out-Classed but Fights Gamely

Pinckney high school opened their season at Milford last Friday and were defeated 34 to 0. Milford had a much heavier team and were better versed in the game, having more experienced players. On the Pinckney team Capt. Howard Read was the only player in the lineup who was classed as a regular last year. Lloyd VanBlaricum, Bill Baughn, Charles Smith and Cy Atlee were playing for the first time.

Milford opened up with wide end sweeps and a forward passing attack and swamped Pinckney the first half scoring 21 points. In the second half Pinckney began to get their bearings and held Milford to two touchdowns and one extra point. In the first half Pinckney used a running game which failed because their line could not hold the heavier Milford line. In the second half they started forward passing and completed several for good gains although some of these were nullified by penalties for off side. Capt. Read was the most successful pass receiver and Edsall Meyer made the most gains by carrying the ball. The boys played hard throughout not withstanding the Milford flying start and were still fighting hard at the end of the game. Capt. Read a senior, played a nice game making many tackles as well as receiving several passes very successfully. In the games to be played in the future the team will improve in their tackling and blocking but will probably continue to meet teams which outweigh them.

The teams biggest trouble is that there is no replacements. Their second stringers are: Gerald Vedder, E. Berquist, R. Martin, D. Thorpe, E. Amburgey. These are all 9th graders and pretty light.

Just what has become of all the material available in previous years is a question. It was not long ago that enough men were out to make three teams. Now apparently the number of promising players quit school last year and several from the country have not been able to come out.

Next Friday Pinckney plays at Hartland. Last year they beat this team by means of some nice backfield running by Marsa Ledwidge. They will try and repeat this year.

Pinckney School Notes

The Pinckney High School Athletic Association has organized with the following officers: Pres., Tel. Bourbonnais; Vice Pres., John Carpenter; Sec., Cyrus Atlee; Treas., Ralph Otwell. They will have charge of the work of raising funds to carry on the high school athletic program.

The following Pinckney graduates are attending colleges: Mercedeas Merrill, Mich. State Normal at Ypsilanti; Lois Kennedy and Julie Stacktable, Cleary Business College at Ypsilanti; June Lamb, Detroit Business Institute, Detroit.

Now that the first home football game is scheduled for Oct. 8, with Manchester Pinckney needs a cheer or yell team to cheer them on to victory. They have not had one for a year or so. In the old days Dorothy Carr, Gertrude Tupper, Marion Durkin, Berdella Euler and Wilhelmus Bourbonnais proved very good leaders and officiated at all games, including those away from home.

Peter Conway Passes Away

Lifelong Resident of this Section Passes to Great Beyond the Past Week. Funeral Largely Attended

Peter W. Conway was born in Webster township, Washtenaw county in 1852. He married Lila Whitcomb and moved to a farm in Hamburg township where they lived happily for over 35 years when death came and took his companion. One son, Ruel J. was born to this union. Later Mr. Conway was united in marriage to Miss Viola Bergen of Hamburg township. After her death he sold his farm and moved to Pinckney where he has since resided. Up until about a year ago he was employed as a clerk in the Teeple Hardware. Several weeks ago he was taken ill and removed to the home of his son, Ruel, in Ann Arbor where he passed away on September 23. The deceased was a member of the Maccabees and Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M., being the oldest member in point of years. On his 80th birthday the lodge honored him with a chicken dinner and a birthday cake 24 inches in diameter.

Besides his son, Ruel, he is survived by two grandchildren, Ruel and Mary, all of Ann Arbor and several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held at the Pinckney Congregational church Sunday afternoon. Rev. Zunt, officiating. Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M. attended in a body and exemplified the Masonic burial service at the grave, Floyd Randall, past master of the Lansing Lodge No. 33, F. & A. M. and a nephew of Mr. Conway giving the funeral oration in accordance with a promise he made a number of years ago. Burial was in the Placeway cemetery. The pall bearers were: J. Hooker, Henry Kice, Rex Burnett, J. Fred Teeple, Will Blades and L. J. Henry, all old neighbors.

RED HEN TAVERN GETS LIQUOR LICENSE

Monday night the Putnam township board met and approved a license to sell hard liquor by the glass for the Red Hen Tavern and dance hall at Portage Lake. It is operated by Mrs. Lawrence James. The license set September 19 as the final date on which townships, cities and villages may approve liquor licenses. After that they must be approved by a vote of the people. Mrs. James's application was considered at a vote previous to that date. The Red Hen is located near the Livingston-Washtenaw county line. We are informed by township officials that this license approval will put nearly $240 in the township treasury.

"Real" Hourly Earnings in Manufacturing, 1920-36

The above chart illustrates the improvement in "real" hourly earnings of manufacturing workers that took place from 1919 to 1937. Earnings moved upward, while the cost of living went down, making it possible for workers to buy more for their money. This is particularly noticeable in the recovery period since 1932. It should be kept in mind, however, that the average number of hours worked has been substantially reduced in recent years. On the other hand, the buying power of the consumer's dollar has increased somewhat more than is indicated because of improvement in the quality of goods and services used in the cost-of-living index.

Current Comment

For one who evidently aspires to the Republican nominee for president in 1940, Senator Vandenberg is handing out a queer list of talk. In his speech he favors a new realignment of political parties with both Republican and Democratic names dropped and the forming of a new party with neither name composed of those who do not like the policies of President Roosevelt or those who are disliking the policies of the Republican party. Senator Vandenberg, recovering from a recent defeat when he was pumped up against the New Deal in New York City, endorsed Senator Vandenberg's idea in a speech at Dexter last week and expressed a desire to meet him. The general idea is that the malcontent will not go from the Democrat to the Republican party but may be dislodged to join a new party. This is a flimsy and was proposed so in 1912 by Teddy Roosevelt and again later by Senator La Follette the elder and Senator Wheeler. When 1940 rolls around the Democrat and Republican parties will again be striving for supremacy without any serious opposition from any third party. Another reason is that both conservatives and liberals of both the parties are confident of getting control of these parties in 1940. After the elections in 1940 it will be too late for the defeated faction of either party to attempt anything.

The attorney general has ruled that legislative investigating committees can draw no funds for their work after the legislature adjourns. This makes the special committee investigating gambling very wrathful. This investigation was a farce anyway. No county has to have an outside agency come in to tell them where their gambling or vice dens have been closed. It is impossible for them to exist without the officers of the county informed of it. Why in many cases they are allowed to exist is another matter. Your guess is as good as ours. The whole thing is a nut shell that counties that do not want these vices do not have them.

There is undoubtedly a large element, a very large element, who think that welfare, and better times and large pay envelopes and a larger more equidistant share in things is found up with government. The Republicans are to blame for that. For years and years they taught the lie that good times were bound up their pants. Now they pay the penalty. The blame is from an editorial in the Lansing State Journal. The trouble with his statement is that it will never be believed as it puts Wm. McKinley, Teddy Roosevelt, Warren Harding and others in the Baron Munchausen class.

A letter in the Detroit News in regard to the Judge Black appointment is set as follows: "No public official should be permitted to hold office who belongs to the Klan, Masons, Odd Fellows or Knights of Columbus or other fraternal organizations where the members call each other brother. If this had been observed in the last 150 years or so just who would have been elected president as from George Washington down most of the presidents belonged to some of the above named organizations.

The recent American Legion convention at New York City was expected to issue a declaration in regard to general pensions for veterans. So the disabled and mangled and bonuses. History of pension legislation in the past shows that a vote on general pensions usually comes about 20 years after the war which would make this last war general pension fall due about 1940. Following the wars of the past that injured were first given pensions, then those with disabilities, then the needy and finally all who served. 160,000 widows are now drawing pensions. 30,000 from the world war, 45,000 for the Spanish, and 80,000 from the civil war. The number of children and dependents drawing pensions is 150,000, mostly from the world war.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Wall Street and the securities market generally have been undergoing a bad case of the jitters. It has been several years since those dealing in money and shares of stock have been so uncertain as to the future and this uncertainty obviously is the cause of the jitters among all people who dabble in the stock market, whether the dabbling be small or large, on margin or for cash.

It seems a proper time, therefore, to examine the picture and try to see what lies beneath. And, let me hasten to say at the very outset that anyone who makes a positive statement about the securities market these days must be either a fool or a superman—and thus far the supermen who have lived on this earth number only one.

But that fact does not destroy the value of an examination of a condition which exists as a fact. Indeed, I think a review of the various factors and influences at work now can provide a clarification of general conditions even though it may fail utterly to show why men and women act as they do with respect to stock market investments.

First, it should be said that Wall Street, as the term is commonly used, is not unanimous within itself. The violent fluctuation of market securities in the last several weeks might easily be said to be due to the war crises in Europe and in the Far East. Only, those fluctuations are not traceable to war conditions. Rather, the war conditions are used by some individuals as an excuse—an alibi to themselves because they fail to fathom the various influences and factors now at work.

I said that Wall Street lacked unanimity within itself. That is true because within Wall Street there are all kinds of selfish groups operating. For example, an influence like inflation is highly pleasing to the brokers and dealers in shares while the same influence frightens bankers and likewise gives a sickening feeling to those who must buy raw products. Bankers and sound investors as well as tax payers generally would be quite happy to see the Federal Treasury's budget balanced because if that were done there would be a much greater sense of security, of safety for those investments.

A dozen other illustrations could be given to thus illustrate the point and show why

Black Case Involved

Wall Street cannot agree. They do not show, however, why there is so much uncertainty and why the bulls or the bears have been unable to adjust themselves to the future probabilities. The reasons, therefore, must lie deeper. It is possible that the appointment of Hugo Black of Alabama as an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States has had more effect on the business world than any of us realize. I have heard a number of corporation executives say that they hope they will never be involved in litigation which will carry their corporations before the court on which Mr. Black sits. If they entertained that fear before, undoubtedly the fear is deeper-seated and more widespread now that Mr. Justice Black has been publicly accused of holding a life membership in the Ku Klux Klan. Certainly the expose of the typhoon that is swirling around the head of the new associate justice cannot have any soothing effect upon the minds of those business men who, as corporation executives, are trustees of vast sums of the people's money. Undoubtedly, unless Mr. Black can prove that he is not affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan, few litigants will feel safe before the Supreme court.

Then, there comes the resignation of James M. Landis as chairman of the securities and exchange commission which regulates operations of the great stock exchanges. Mr. Landis has been regarded as rather fair, rather just, in his dealings relating to stock market operations. His retirement to return to a professorship in Harvard, of course, opens up the question as to his successor. This is to say that most of the financial world is hoping and praying that the new chairman will not go off at a tangent; that he will avoid extreme radicalism and that he will not blame the whole financial structure for the crookedness of a part of it.

Thus, it becomes easy to see how this minor factor may have weight with some individuals dealing in corporate shares and bonds. William O. Douglas, a member of the commission, has been slated to become chairman but developments in recent weeks give considerable doubt over that result. Mr. Douglas is recorded as being a radical. Bankers and investors in many parts of the country fear that if he is made chairman he will become not unlike the famous bull in a china cabinet. But, according to the undercurrent of gossip around Washington Mr. Douglas has done something to offend Postmaster General Farley, and no man can draw an appointment as important as the chairmanship of a great commission without Mr. Farley's approval.

Aside from personalities, various phases of President Roosevelt's monetary policies continue to be disturbing and in addition to these there is the certainty that new taxes must be levied. That is, new taxes must be levied if we are ever going to balance the federal budget and begin paying off the gigantic national debt which now amounts to more than 38 billion. With a debt at the highest point our United States ever has known, a great many people, including bankers, have become fearful of what they might get for United States bonds that they now hold. It is obvious that this influence adds to the general uncertainty although it is difficult to measure the exact influence of this condition, or to see whether it is a major or a minor factor.

Having enumerated a few of the influences known to be at work, we come now to that condition which heretofore always has been basic.

Business Conditions

I refer to general business conditions. New Deal press agents have tried valiantly to make it appear that business is booming; that prosperity is here instead of around the corner; and that the country has nothing to fear. Careful examination of official figures, however, show the prosperity statements to be true only in parts. The official statistics disclose very definitely how some lines of business are enjoying a volume of trade or production higher even than 1929. They show on the other hand a vast number of failures, an increasing number of big businesses which are barely getting by—which can continue providing their present volume of business is maintained. If the volume of business slips, however, that category of business is going into a tailspin as sure as the sun shines. If a part of the business of the country begins to sink—well, a part of it began to sink in August, 1929, and within two years the whole structure had fallen like a house of cards.

I am not saying that we are confronted with another depression. I do say, however, that we are facing a condition that is not at all satisfactory—a condition that can lead to a depression as easily as it can lead to sound prosperity in commerce and industry.

Astute observers and business men in the larger centers decide their courses upon the outlook for the whole country, not for any particular line of business or any particular section. The number of individuals who see the picture I have attempted to outline in the above paragraph is increasing. As that number increases obviously the wave of uncertainty expands.

So, if one is compelled to make a guess why Wall Street is so concerned or so jittery, it would seem that the explanation must lie in the combination of circumstances. No one of them, except possibly the adverse business outlook, could accomplish as much doubt about the future.

Anyone talking with a hundred different individuals will hear these various factors and influences mentioned. He will hear different weight given by each individual to each factor.

We have been dealing with causes. Let us look at possible effects. It will be remembered how President Hoover was blamed for the depression. He and the Republican party were punished on that account and badly licked in the elections. It ought to be said in Mr. Hoover's behalf that the conditions which led to the depression had their beginning long before he was elected President. Indeed, they had their real beginning in the World war.

President Roosevelt came into office as a result. He started doing things and gaining the confidence of the country to such an extent that he was re-elected last year. Probably he was re-elected largely because of the bulk of the voters feeling he was restoring prosperity. I doubt, however, that Mr. Roosevelt was any more responsible for the return of a superficial prosperity than Mr. Hoover was responsible for the depression.

But we are coming to another election. If conditions should become worse and business should decline perceptibly again, Mr. Roosevelt will be held responsible just as definitely as was Mr. Hoover. He will be charged with having made a mess of government and any attempt on his part to prove the condition was natural will be regarded as an alibi. The whole thing seems to be in the lap of the gods and no amount of political strategy or attempts to amend the law of supply and demand will alter events.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—George Wingfield, who has been rolling "snake eyes" for the last seven or eight years, is now making six or eight straight passes. I don't know whether the news has reached the East, but the word from Los Angeles is that he has regained ownership of the Golden and Riverside hotels in Reno and is again looking out from behind a tall stack of blue chips.

The one-time buckaroo and faro dealer who gained a fortune of $50,000,000 and owned and operated the sovereign state of Nevada for quite a few years, quietly faded out in 1933, told the court he was broke and relinquished the state with a sportsmanlike gesture. He implied that the croupier had stood him on his head. His friend, William H. Crocker, had a mortgage of $800,000 on his two hotels. He owned mines and ranches all over the state, in the somewhat metaphysical way in which people owned things then, but his equities came to just a couple of white chips to be tossed into the kitty. He did this gracefully and started out to get another stake, Senator Nixon of Nevada told me how he got his start.

"He walked into my office," said the senator, "and tossed something on my desk. It was a diamond ring. I haven't any idea how much it was worth. He said he had located a good-looking outbreak south of Goldfield and wanted me to grubstake him on the ring."

"I'm not running a hock shop," I said. "There's a three-ball joint around the corner."

"He picked up the ring and started out. Before he got to the door, a sudden hunch hit me like a mule kick. I called him back and gave him $300 on the ring."

Wingfield had already staked his claim, and started a prospect hole.

A little more digging, and there was the Consolidated mine, and riches for both Wingfield and Nixon. Also the start of Goldfield, a ghost town now, half-buried in sand, but a roaring desert metropolis for a few years. Wingfield's winning streak was on in those days and it was only a few months later that he broke the bank at the Tonopah club.

He joined the Montezuma club, got himself some nice clothes, polished up his grammar and moved into circles of finance where the house percentage is doubtless stiffer than that of faro. But it seems that he is beating even that.

A FRIEND of this writer, who lived several years in Japan, suggests that, if, by accident, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota should find himself dressed in spats and pin-stripe trousers, but with an Oriental robe instead of a morning coat, he would find a middle way and solve the dilemma of Japan's half feudal, half modern industrial state.

"He hates his morning coat and striped pants," said my friend.

"When he gets home at night, he never loses a minute in getting into Oriental clothes."

In the dress of an accidental diplomat, he works like one, as wily as the best of them, given to strategy and trick reasoning. At home, in a beautifully embroidered Japanese gown, he reads Confucius, as a pupil of the aged scholar, Mitsuru Toyama. I cite this duality of mind and dress merely as symbolic of the internal contending forces of Japan, vestigial feudalism and Twentieth century industrial imperialism. In a very literal sense, this dead center of old and new epochs accounts for much in current Japanese statecraft that is bewildering to the modern mind.

"Hirota is not of the Samurai caste," he said, "but he stems from romantic old Japan and goes only part of the way with the Mitsui and Mitsubishi of the great industrial dynasties who think they can shoot their way through to a vast Asiatic empire. In his youth, he was a zealous leader of the 'Zen' sect, tansured Buddhists, whose gospel was humility, pacifism and turning the other cheek. Suddenly, he switched to the 'Black Sea' society, a fire-eating outfit of militarists and jingoes."

"HE WAS a stone mason's son, apprenticed as a stone cutter, and educated by the Geneyosha, a fervid patriotic society, with 'simplicity' for its motto. In his first effort, he failed to pass his examinations for entrance to the Imperial university, but tried again and was successful. He began as a government clerk, was advanced, entered the diet and finally the cabinet. He is an intelligent man, keenly aware of the anomalies and anachronisms of Japan's politics and social structure."

The Happiness Trio

PRIDE goeth with Fall and glamor, too, Milady, when you wear distinguished fashions by Sew-Your-Own! Today's trio gives youth a chance to express itself in an individual manner; gives the adult figure an opportunity to display a new high in chic, and last—but we wouldn't say least—a utility model that's as right for daughter as for mother, as attractive on cousin Emma as it is on Aunt Grace.

Swank 'n' Sweet.

Young and inspired is the little two piece that just stepped into the picture at the left. The topper is one that will set a vogue in this woman's town and make you the swankiest of the whole lot of Laff-a-Lots. If you're asked to picnic in the colorful Autumn woods, wear this number in henna-colored wool for real satisfaction and that perfect harmony that makes picnicking a pleasure.

For Kitchen Capers.

And before you go, there'll be sandwiches to make, potatoes to peel, and lemons to squeeze—that's where and when the gingham gown in the center comes in. Of course, its novel yoke-and-sleeve-in-one construction makes it a most attractive model to sew as well as to wear. The skirt has flare enough for cutting those kitchen capers one has to when minutes are few and work plentiful. Make this simple five-piece frock in two versions and be sure of everyday chic at minimum cost.

Style Success.

While we go picnicking and places, don't think Mommy isn't going to swing out in style, too. She's certain of success when she

Yes, Somebody Else

When a speaker abuses mankind in general, his hearers approve because they know somebody else "who is just like that." Laugh at the world, and the world will laugh with you.

You don't have to fool all of the people all of the time. A majority of one is enough.

To every young maiden marriage is a solemn thing; and not to be married still a more solemn thing.

We're Still Americans

With all the pecking and nagging at wealth no American yet feels that he would be ashamed to be rich.

You can't dishearten a man who believes in luck. With a dime in his pocket he will enter a restaurant and order oysters, hoping he will find a $200 pearl in them.

We wish "to be understood," of course, but perhaps not too completely.

A Kind of Valhalla

After slang is no longer in general use it gets into the dictionary. "The dear old farm" is the place that those who lived on it seldom had time to enjoy.

Airplanes "drone" and "zoom," but no word seems to be perfect in its application to an airplane's noise.

They Made It

Weeds are harder than useful plants because they have had to make their own way in the world. The girl who tries to keep several men on the string may find presently that she has a knotty problem to solve.

People need pretty good individual characters to make public opinion of any account. A farmer thinks physical culture is idiotic. Much of it is.

goes to her Club; she's sure of well-groomed elegance for Sunday best in the slenderizing frock at the right. It does wonders for the figure that needs it, and it is equally becoming to sizes 18 and 20. So, Mommy, no matter what your size or the color of your hair, you'll be young enough and slim enough in this frock to feel like the very essence of fashion.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it. When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

 YOUNG AND OLD!

Reading Newspaper (or Fine Print) 150 to 300 Watts
 Studying 100 to 150 Watts
 Old Eyes—300 Watts
 Sewing—300 Watts

The fast tempo of modern living has exacted an appalling penalty from human eyes. One child out of every five in our public schools, 40 college students in a hundred, and half the people over 35 have defective vision. We make demands on our eyes that were unheard-of a century ago. Books, magazines, newspapers, cards, the movies . . . all lay heavy burdens on our eyesight. Today more than ever, we need to do everything in our power to protect priceless vision.

Light Conditioning helps to protect eyes young and old. The eyes of a child are immature and easily strained . . . they require frequent examinations and abundant light of good quality. Old eyes need more light because from middle age on, the pupil of the eye grows smaller and admits less light to the retina. The older people in your family need more light than the young people.

It is a simple matter to Light Condition your home. Without charge, one of our Home Lighting Advisers will measure your lighting with the Sight Meter, and make recommendations for improved lighting for comfort and beauty. Phone for a survey of your lighting today.

Conservation Dept. Notes

Michigan's new hunting and trapping licenses go into effect on Oct. 1. After Sept. 30 gun permits will be issued only to those holding hunting licenses.

Camp "Paradise" is the name of the new CCC camp established on Whitefish Bay near Lake Superior.

The CCC camps will lose 4,000 young men on Sept. 30. New enlistments of boys from 17 to 23 will be accepted.

Prudent animal bounties totaling $3,845 were paid during August. 4,000 acres of land suitable for recreation will be offered for sale by the dept. The auctions will be held at Big Rapids, Cheboygan, St. Ignace and Escanaba.

Michigan deer hunting licenses may be procured as soon as they are placed on sale and not 20 days before the season opens.

Plans for construction of a training school for conservation officers at Higgins Lake are announced. It will be 140x25 and include dormitory, mess hall and class rooms.

A special service for farmers and others interested in conservation has been started at Mich State College. Fifty species of wild duck as well as Ross's geese and swans cannot be shot in Michigan. They are canvasbacks, redheads, wood ducks, ruddy ducks and buffleheads.

As an experimental game food project $1,000 hardwood and shrub seedlings are being planted in Crawford county deeryard. In addition to these 500 basswood, 200 soft maple and 100 Chinese elm seedlings are being planted.

No cisco permits will be issued this fall until Nov. 1.

The most extensive ring of venison bootleggers has been broken up by the arrest and conviction of 11 men in Tuscola county. The men from West Branch, Flint, and Akron. They were fined $100 each and $23 costs.

500,000 pine seedlings were planted in two days by CCC workers from 12 camps. 12,000,000 will be planted.

NEW PEAK REACHED BY AUGUST GAS TAX

August gross gas tax collections by the Department of State for gas sold during July were the highest for any one month in the history of the tax. Leon D. Case Secretary of State, has announced. The figure was $3,096,489, topping the July collection total of $2,808,499.

The increase in collections is being watched with interest by state officials directly concerned with budget balancing as the 1937 legislature provided a $5,000,000 a year maximum appropriation to the state highway department, to match federal aid grants. The new law provides that the state will provide up to $5,000,000 annually any sum by which gas collections fall short of $32,000,000 a year. Thus, as gas tax collections increase, the amount payable to the highway department from the state's general fund diminishes.

The state's gas tax of 3 cents a gallon, is devoted exclusively to highway purposes.

FORTY-FIVE YEARS A TEACHER

Forty-five years a teacher in the Pinckney public schools is something of a record. Indeed something to be proud of. Yet how modestly Miss Jessie Green, who has served nearly half a century in Pinckney schools, passes over that enviable record as just part of a day's work. If we stop to think of how many pupils have gone to school to her, have cried in her arms in the primary grades and that felt the urge of her teaching; of how her pupils' children, and her pupils' children's children have gone to school to her, we are sure that there is much satisfaction and happiness that have been crowded into these fruitful and eventful years.

After serving for 45 years in the primary grades as teacher, Miss Green has tendered her resignation, to the board because of failing health. As a teacher and trainer of children she has been outstanding and has in every way proven a true exponent of her chosen profession. Many hundreds of her pupils arise to express regret at her retirement. Pupils into the third generation speak with reverence and respect of a work well done and worthy of every reward that life and people may offer. Liv. Co. Rep. press

Greatly Expanded Production Required for Full Recovery

By HAROLD G. MOULTON
President, The Brookings Institution

WASHINGTON — Recovery in the United States has gone far, but it has been marked by two striking characteristics—slowness of the gains in the durable goods industries and the persistence of a great volume of unemployment. At the Brookings Institution, we have made a comprehensive analysis of the American situation which included a detailed study of the production requirements for full recovery. The production task ahead—if standards of living are to be restored even to their former level—is found to be as follows:

1. To make good the actual deterioration of plant and equipment sustained during the depression.
2. To increase productive capital in line with the growth of population.
3. To expand the output of consumption goods in accordance with this growth of population.

The study was made under a grant from the Falk Foundation of Pittsburgh. In it, we sought to estimate how great an increase in output would be required to restore by 1941 a per capita level of production and consumption equal to that of 1929. The results of the survey of the situation in the fields of housing and other forms of durable goods, steam railroads, public utilities, industrial enterprises, etc., are striking. It would be necessary to produce such durable goods at the rate of approximately $3 billion dollars annually from 1937 through 1941, as compared with actual production of only 21 billions in 1936, and of 25 billions annually in the boom period between 1925 and 1929.

In other words, to make up for what it did not produce in depression years, and to provide for the needs of an expanding population, the nation would have to produce annually 60 per cent more durable goods than in 1936. Three times as much housing construction would be necessary. In the field of non-durable, consumption goods which are such things as food, clothes, and amusements, such a large expansion would not be needed.

Labor Shortage Might Result
The production program required in the field of durable goods would necessitate—at present working hours—the employment of from 8 to 9 million additional laborers. Making allowance for additional workers needed to produce consumption goods, it appears certain that unless working hours were lengthened, there would be shortages of both skilled and unskilled labor.

Since standards of living cannot be restored to former levels unless productive output is restored, any further shortening of the working week will restrain the expansion of output and thus restrict the raising of standards of living. It should be borne in mind that working hours have been reduced since 1929 by approximately 20 per cent, as compared with only 13 per cent in the preceding 30 years.

The present recovery movement has been marked by steadily increasing wage rates as compared with prices, and this has increased purchasing power among the masses. The employment of more workers as production has expanded has increased the flow of money to the working population; and at the same time those already employed have been able to buy more with their wages. During the same period, profits have been greatly increased from low depression levels as a result of the expansion of output and an increase of efficiency. This efficiency increase has been about in proportion to wage rates.

The recovery movement between 1934 and 1936 was thus soundly based. Production was steadily mounting, purchasing power was being spread broadly among the masses, speculation was not excessive, business men had not stocked up with heavy supplies of goods, and the general balance between production and consumption was satisfactory.

At the end of 1936, therefore, the stage seemed set for a period of great expansion. Production requirements were adequate to absorb all the unemployed. The recovery movement was steadily broadening; the economic system as a whole was in reasonably good balance, and at the same time the possibility of the government balancing its budget appeared somewhat brighter.

Further Expansion Threatened
In recent months, particularly since February, the situation has changed in one vitally important respect. Rapid increases in raw material prices and in wages have laid the basis for an old-time vicious spiral of inflation. While the particular labor groups who receive higher wages may stand to gain for a time, and while the industries in question may temporarily pass on higher costs to consumers, further broad expansion of business activity appears to be threatened.

The advance in the prices of such basic products as iron and steel and other metals, building materials, etc., may hamper expansion of production in certain very important lines. Only recently have the railroads gotten into a financial shape that would permit them to spend much money on new equipment and the building of better roadbed and track. Now, with the price of steel rising, and with wage increases also in prospect, it is doubtful whether the railroads will be able to carry out the extensive programs of rehabilitation which they have planned. Similarly, the building of new houses, apartment houses, etc., may be held back by the rising prices of building materials. If this turns out to be the case, it will check the reemployment of idle workers, and the attainment of the higher standards of living which are so greatly desired.

Large sections of the population would soon suffer as a result of a rapid rise in prices. Among them are farmers who do not work for wages, individuals on fixed salaries, and those living on incomes from investments. These constitute more than half the total population. Perhaps the most serious phase of the problem is the possibility of a new disparity between industrial and agricultural prices which may result if wages force industrial prices upward.

Stimulation Only Temporary
The adverse effects upon production may be considerably delayed, because a rise in prices usually stimulates business for the time being. With prices going up, business men and others hasten to place orders and buy extra quantities in order to be ahead of the price advance. This speeds up business activity and for a time increases the demand for labor. Such expansion of demand in turn serves to increase the demand for products and to raise prices the more rapidly. In due course, however, price relationships are so disturbed that certain groups of people lose purchasing power. This, in turn, sets in motion forces which tend to reduce prosperity.

Fortunately, the dangers inherent in this situation appear to have been recognized, and efforts are being made by both business and the government to restrain price advances.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Armada Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in" hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reyburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Sam adds them to the cast of his play. Later Inspector Harrison of the local police visits Mark and is informed about the missing will and silver. As Harrison leaves, Lola arrives. She announces that she and her new husband, Bert Hunt, have started a neighborhood fling station. Mark almost makes a break about the missing will and Brooke is suspicious. Returning home, she sees Lola talking covertly to Henri. "Mr. Micawber," Mrs. Dane's pet parrot is missing.

"Cricket! I forgot! Jerry Field is coming to dinner. Thought we could all go to rehearsal together. Do you mind, Brooke?"

"Of course not, Lucette. Did you tell Henri to set a place for Jerry?"

Lucette nodded before she greeted Jerry Field.

"How are you, stranger?"

"Little girls shouldn't be sarcastic, Lucette." He unfolded a green waxed paper. "For you, Brooke."

"Gardenias! I've never seen more perfect ones. What wax-like petals! What lovely leaves! Thanks billions, Jerry."

Brooke turned to the mirror and pinned on the flowers. She saw Jerry Field watching her as he said:

"I strive to please. Sam, you slave-driver, why did you call a rehearsal again tonight? We've been working every evening this week."

"What does that prove? Call what you've been doing working? I call it playing. We'll run through the three acts tonight, and, m'lud, for the love of Mike, put some punch into your part, even if we are rehearsing with no props."

The dining-room was cheery with firelight and the flames of tall yellow candles, which matched to a tint the acacias in the bay window. The blue of bachelor buttons, the soft pink of carnations, the yellow of Souvenir roses in the golden bowl on the table repeated the colors in the rare Persian rug. The flickering lights threw fantastic patterns on the walls and smudged the butler's face with shadows as he drew out Brooke's chair. She smiled at her brother who sat opposite.

"Cheerio, Samuel. Something tells me that 'Islands Arise' will be the hit of next season. Picture your adoring family in a box at the opening, fairly swooning with pride when the audience yells:

"Author! Author!"

The telephone interrupted. Henri answered it and returned to the dining-room.

"Probably someone panicky for fear she can't get tickets to the great and only show of the season, Sam," Brooke said on her way to the door.

In the living-room she answered the call:

"Brooke Reyburn speaking."

"This is Mark Trent. I want to show you something. Make an excuse to stay at home from rehearsal, will you?"

"Yes."

"Get Henri and Clotilde out of the house. Can you?"

"It's movie night in the village. They'll go."

"Phone me as soon as they start."

"I will."

"Good-by."

What could Mark Trent have to show her? His voice had been drenched with mystery. Brooke was projecting and rejecting answers to the question as she went back to the dining-room.

She wrinkled puzzled brows as she looked across the table at her brother.

"How many of what, Sam?"

"Has the little old memory gone blotto? Didn't you say the call was about tickets?"

"Don't beat me, Sammy. I thought it was only a—an insurance agent who has been on my trail. How did the market behave today, Jerry?"

Field reported jauntily and in detail on the rise of certain of his pet stocks, and the shuttlecock of conversation was in the air again.

As Brooke poured coffee in the living-room after dinner, she planned to plead a letter to her mother as an excuse for staying away from the rehearsal; as property woman she wasn't important yet. She was positively tingling with curiosity. What had Mark Trent to show her? Why had his voice been hushed as if he feared he might be overheard?

"Boy, you wouldn't think old Micawber making his getaway would leave such a hole, would you? It's almost as if someone in the house had died." Sam's voice interrupted her thoughts. "When we get back from rehearsal we'd better make this find-the-parrot-night. Suppose he's hiding up in a tree on the grounds, Brooke?"

"If he is, Henri will get him. He was white when he told me he had lost the parrot. I'll slip into a coat, go out and whistle for him myself when you've all gone to rehearsal."

"What's the big idea walking out on us, Brooke?" Jerry Field demanded in his most spoiled-boy tone as he held Lucette's coat in the hall. "I told you, a letter to Mother, and sandwiches to make. Bring the cast back here after rehearsal, Sam, for a bite to eat."

Lucette dashed out with the two men at her heels. As she watched from the porch, Brooke saw Jed Stewart join them from the Other House. Their voices and laughter drifted back. Did Jed know that Mark Trent had phoned? She waited, drawing in long breaths of the cold salty air, until the rear light of the car was but a red spark in the distance.

When she returned to the living-room, Henri was collecting cups and saucers. She watched him in the mirror while she pretended to be absorbed in fastening the two gardenias more securely to the shoulder of her lace frock. He stopped on the threshold, holding the silver tray.

"Anything more this evening, Miss?"

"Nothing, Henri, except that I wish you would impress it upon Clotilde—I can't seem to—that when I order Rocquefort cheese dressing for a salad, I mean that, and not mayonnaise. This is the third time she has made the mistake."

"She thinks mayonnaise more suitable. You don't like Clotilde and me much, do you, Miss Reyburn?" His smile was an ugly thing, having under it the suggestion that it would be to her advantage to like them.

"I don't!" was on the tip of Brooke's tongue, but she caught the words back. With the production of the play so near, this was not the time to change servants. After that she would get rid of the couple if it meant doing the work herself. She temporized:

"Because I insist upon having my orders carried out, doesn't mean necessarily that I don't like you, Henri. Can anything more be done about finding the parrot?"

"I'll look round before I go to bed, Miss, but I think in the morning we'll find him huddled in a corner near the house."

"This is movie night in the village, isn't it?"

"Yes, Miss, though if you are to be alone and mind—"

"Of course you are to go, Henri." Brooke had an instant of panic. Suppose he insisted upon staying at home? "I shan't be alone long. Mr. Trent and Mr. Stewart will be here with the cast after rehearsal for a little supper."

"Will the supper keep up till late?"

"Probably, but we will take care of the dishes."

"Thank you, Miss."

"Have you put plenty of ginger-ale and seltzer water on the ice?"

"Yes, Miss. The mint is chopped and the fruit juices are ready for the drink just as you told me." Henri's eyes seemed but sparks in cavernous depths.

"Excuse me, Miss, you'd better like Clotilde and me. We could put you out of this house if we wanted to. Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

"Anything more?"

Brooke was too indignant to answer. What did the man mean by the threat he had inserted so casually between two sentences? What did he know? Had Jed Stewart and Mark Trent confided to him their suspicions as to "undue influence"?

Were they grooming him to testify for them? Had they set him spying upon her? Should she repeat his threat and demand to know the truth when Mark Trent came? No. Better cool down. She was too furious now. She would wait until after Sam's play. That must go smoothly; it might be his big chance—after that—well, after that she would investigate a few things, she would find out why Mrs. Hunt and Henri were so friendly, to begin with.

With eyes wandering to the tall clock, ears strained to hear the chug of the servants' flivver on the drive, inhaling the scent of gardenias with every breath, her thoughts returned to Mark Trent's message. Why had he phoned? Perhaps she was dramatizing his voice, perhaps it hadn't been mysterious except in her imagination.

"There they go! I'd know the wheeze of their car if I heard it among a million. I'll wait five minutes before I phone Mark the Magnificent. Must be something in the air. First I have a hot chill and then a cold chill, I'm so excited."

She watched the clock. Dialed. Waited. Probably Kowa had gone to the movies. He—She put her mouth close to the transmitter.

"Mr. Trent? Brooke Reyburn. They've gone."

"Okay. I'll be there like a shot."

Brooke replaced the telephone. His voice was excited. It had set her nerves tingling. She would be at the front door to open it before he had a chance to ring.

In the hall she listened for his step on the terrace. Why did he take so long? His "like a shot" was more like an hour.

"I'm here," a low voice announced behind her.

In her surprise, Brooke leaned back against the door and looked up at Mark Trent. She never before had realized how tall he was, nor how black his gray eyes could be.

"How did you get in?"

"The connecting door upstairs. Took the quickest way. Lock that door. Give me the key. I'll put it in my pocket. Queer things are in the air. We won't take a chance at being locked in or out."

That didn't sound as if Henri were his tool, Brooke thought, as she entered the living-room.

"Where is Mr. Micawber?" Mark Trent demanded, his eyes on the empty cage.

Brooke told him what Henri had told her.

"Um, lost him, did he? The plot thickens."

His voice was uncompromising, his eyes unflinching and direct as, hands in the pockets of his dinner jacket, his brows knitted, he looked at her.

"Oooh, I'd hate to battle with you," Brooke thought. "It would be like trying to dent a steel wall."

Aloud she said:

"What is the mystery? It is a mystery, isn't it? I've been jittery ever since you phoned."

His smile was a flash of white teeth below his small dark mustache.

"Glad I got my Big Moment over. Can't have Sam monopolizing all the drama in the neighborhood. Sure the Jacques have gone?"

"I heard their car go out. One couldn't mistake its wheeze. I told Henri that we would have supper here for the cast after rehearsal and that he would not be needed."

"Fair enough." He caught her hand. "Step on it!"

Why was Mark Trent afraid to have Henri, his tool—if he were his tool—know what he was doing, Brooke wondered, as, side by side, they hastily mounted the winding stairs. She felt as if she were in a dream, as if at any moment she might waken to find herself snuggled in the wing chair before the fire. But the squeak of a tread was real; Mark the Magnificent's muttered execration at the sound was real; so was his grip of her hand. Why was he so careful about being heard? He appeared friendly with her; was that part of his plan, his and Jed Stewart's?

On the second floor before the door which opened into his house, he stopped.

"Look," he whispered. "I tried this, had a hunch I might get through quickly this way. When it opened, that key was in your side."

He turned the knob. "Better leave it where it is. We don't want anyone to know that we have seen it. Come."

He followed her into the hall of his house and closed the door gently behind him.

He pressed a button which switched on a light in the floor above and ran up the stairs.

She followed slowly. Where was he taking her? It seemed hours since they had left her living-room. Suppose Henri slipped back and found her gone? Would he suspect where she was? Of course he had left the key in that connecting door. Who else would have done it? What business had he in Mark Trent's house? Did he come for instructions?

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

To Soften Sugar.—When brown sugar becomes hard or lumpy, place it in a shallow pan in the oven for a few minutes.

Shiny Windows.—A few drops of kerosene added to the water when washing windows will make them shine brightly.

For Baking Cakes.—The center of the oven usually has the most even heat and is therefore best for cake baking.

Salad Eggs.—Hard boil the required number of eggs, then remove the shells. Arrange the eggs in a dish on a bed of fresh, crisp lettuce leaves, then sprinkle with mayonnaise and grated cheese. Garnish with sliced tomatoes and a ring of cucumber. Serve with cheese straws or cheese-flavored biscuits.

For the Seamstress.—Before stitching heavy materials, like khaki, duck or canvas, rub hard soap over the hems and seams. The needle will then penetrate the material more easily.

Inexpensive Fish Savory.—With a smoked haddock, make this savory fish dish. Remove the flesh from the haddock, pick out skin and bone, then chop the fish finely. Season with a pinch of pepper, and parsley and mix with a little butter and two tablespoons of milk. Stir over a gentle heat until hot, add a few drops of lemon juice, then serve on hot buttered toast.

Heat-Retaining Tea Caddy.—When next you make a tea caddy, try lining it with chamois leather. The leather retains the heat so well that the tea will keep really hot in the teapot to the very last drop.

Discouraging Ants.—Prompt disposal of garbage and other waste materials around the home will aid in the control of ants.

Cleaning Black Frocks.—Black frocks which have become marked with powder may be cleaned quite easily by being rubbed with crumbed, dry, stale bread.

PERFECTS SCORE TO RATE ANNUALS

For the first time in history of gardening there is a scorecard for field judging annual ornamental plants, due to the ingenuity of C. E. Wildon, in charge of the floriculture studies at Michigan State College.

Recently he submitted a simple form to the Michigan State Florists association which members promptly adopted for use in garden and field judging. The association was seeking such a scorecard to assist members in selecting "All American" annuals. The scorecard is used for all types of flowers which fall into the annual and ornamental class. At the present members of the society of American Florists are considering adoption of the same system of field scoring.

Two divisions are permitted in the scorecard. One allots total possible points on the different judging angles for cut flower beds, while another set of total possible points are allotted to bedding plants.

For the cut flower specimens, Wildon allows as much as 20 points for color, 10 for form, 5 for distinctive color or form, 20 points for stem, 15 for foliage, 15 for substance, 10 for floriferousness and 5 for uniformity.

For the bedding plants Wildon has arranged his scoring differently. He permits 20 points for color but only 5 for form, 5 for distinctive color or form, 15 for habit of plant, 10 on the form, 10 on foliage, 5 for substance, 15 for floriferousness and 15 for uniformity.

TAX SALE PREPARATION REACHES PEAK LOAD

The eyes of Michigan business leaders turned to Michigan's capitol today as the Auditor General's Department reached its peak load in preparation for the tax sale next May.

Auditor General George T. Gundry has organized a great force for work on what authorities believe is the greater single clerical job ever undertaken by a state official. It is estimated by departmental experts that better than nine million entries must be made in the Tax Record being prepared for the tax sale in May. Work is coming along nicely. Mr. Gundry stated, though he said the lack of housing facilities for his staff hampered them somewhat. It was explained that completion of each county's Tax Record must be completed and in the various county court previous to May, 1938.

ATTENTION DRAWN TO COUNTY AUDITS

Calling attention to the fact that all county audits made by representatives of his department are open for public inspection, Auditor General George T. Gundry today explained methods employed in making these audits.

Under the Central Uniform Accounting Act the Auditor General is required to make an annual audit of all counties in the state. The auditor known as county examiners, work in teams of two men each and Gundry's direction examines the books of all county officials. It usually takes a month to complete an audit of an average sized county.

There are seven auditing teams at work in the county at the present time.

Continuity of Benefits

SOMETIMES we hear people say, "when they have just received some concrete benefit, that it cannot last; and that they will soon suffer some calamity to counteract the good received. This is the result of ignorance of the cause, nature, and purpose of the beneficial effects which we experience. It is due to the false belief that evil is as real and powerful as good."

John tells us (1 John 2:17), that "he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever." Now the prospect of abiding forever would not be very satisfactory if we had to continue forever experiencing calamity, discord, and suffering. Evidently John's sense of immortality included health, joy, harmony, that is, perfection, not intermittently but continuously. In real being there is a steady and uninterrupted manifestation of that which is wholly beneficial. Whatever else seems to have existence appears only a mistake, a misconception. The spiritual universe, incarnate in man, is maintained and governed by the ever-operative divine Principle, the source of all that is beneficial. Mary Baker Eddy says (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, p. 124), "Spirit is the life, substance, and continuity of all things." Since Spirit could not be the source of aught that is harmful or oppressive, it is apparent that disorders are illusions, not actualities.

Christ Jesus was always willing and able to benefit mankind in whatever way seemed necessary, and his acts were in accord with spiritual law and order. He was able to heal the sick, give sight to the blind, and raise the dead, because he refused to recognize any interruption in the harmony, order and continuity of harmony and perfection. The Bible tells us (Proverbs 28:10) that "the upright shall have good things in possession;" so Jesus cast out evil from human thought, and wrought untold benefits for humanity. Health, peace, joy, and prosperity are natural, and their manifestation in experience is inevitable when we consistently express the qualities which support them, namely, honesty, goodness, righteousness, and spiritual understanding. It is our privilege to protect ourselves and our affairs by knowing that there is no law operating in opposition to our well-being; that there is no power apart from eternal Love; that perfection is an established and provable fact.

We may deprive ourselves of a great many benefits by a misconception of our true spiritual nature. God is the creator of perfect man, and this spiritual man is the indestructible and ceaseless expression of omnipresent Soul. Everything man possesses or reflects he derives from immortal Life and Love. Mrs. Eddy states (Science and Health, p. 325).

MARKETS

In our present economic system the buying and selling markets are followed all over the country by telephone and telegraphic communication. They have a definite influence on the prosperity of each of us. High prices and higher cost of living go hand in hand, but back of all these prices the basic law of supply and demand operates, whether it be grains, live stock, or securities. When supply is large and demand small the price is low; When supply is small and demand small, low prices prevail when supply is great and demand is great, prices will tend to remain at a low level or slightly increase. Buyers compete against buyers, and the sellers against sellers to make markets active.
