Preacher Got His Man
Lorenzo Dow, an itinerant preacher of more than a century ago, promised to find out who had stolen his friend's ax. In the midst of his sermon, he held out a large stone, and brandishing it, thundered, "Some one here stole my friend's ax. I am about to hurl this stone at the thief, and if he doesn't dodge it will hit him square on the forehead!" One man was observed to dodge his head violently—the thief, of course.

I LEARNED TO 'BEAT' ACID INDIGESTION
ONCE LIFE WAS MISERABLE. NO APPETITE... LITTLE SLEEP... UNTIL THE DOCTOR SAID 'ALKALIZE'

BUT NOW—AT THE FIRST SIGN OF ACID-INDIGESTION I USE PHILLIPS' AND I FEEL LIKE A NEW PERSON ALMOST IMMEDIATELY!

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkaliizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready. Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonsful of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," "over-acid stomach" are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

HE CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps; when your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love. Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man. A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three decades of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "smiling through."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—Some weeks ago when the Treasury was parading a lot of names of well known individuals before a joint congressional tax committee, I discussed the purposes of the investigation and reached the conclusion that the whole affair was staged. If I remember correctly, I called it a vaudeville stunt, designed by the Treasury to save its face for having made bad guesses as to tax collections. The tax collections, as everyone knows, were much below New Deal estimates and somebody had to be the goat. So, it was natural to make rich men the goat by calling them tax evaders.

At the same time, I reported to you the fact that there was a difference of opinion among Treasury subordinates. Some of them wanted to make a great show of names of individuals who had resorted to practices not prohibited by law in order to reduce their taxes.

I did not know at that time how serious the disagreement was within the Treasury. It has only lately come out into the open. As a result, two important Treasury officials have quit their jobs and have gone back to private life. I refer to Morrison Shafroth and Russell I. Ryan, chief counsel and assistant chief counsel, respectively, of the bureau of internal revenue. These two men know more about tax evaders and tax avoiders than anybody else in the Treasury but they had one grievous fault. They wanted to be honest about the whole situation. That was a fault because being honest did not make possible a flamboyant hatred for taxpaycovering that hearing who felt he tried to do the job fairly. So now Morrison Shafroth and Russell Ryan are back in private life and in their places are men picked by Mr. Oliphant, men who are likely to obey orders regardless of the whims of Mr. Oliphant and Secretary Morgenthau.

Indicates Bad Trend
Another instance of official action that seems to indicate a bad trend in government lately has occurred. This incident was propagated by the federal power commission, one of the numerous federal agencies that is supposed to be largely judicial in character but which is equipped at the same time with administrative powers.

The facts are these: There was a group of men who served as directors of the Associated Gas and Electric company. These same individuals were directors for numerous corporations that are subsidiaries of that same company.

The federal power act provides that the commission may require directors of one power company to divest themselves of connection with any other power companies—one of the strongest features of the law. The commission is empowered to make its own investigation of these interlocked directorates and then on its own motion may require such directors to appear and give the commission satisfactory reasons why they are holding places on the boards of more than one corporation. This also is a sound provision of law and undoubtedly works to the benefit of all consumers of light and power.

Before I proceed further, let it be definitely understood that I have not a great deal of respect for the Associated Gas and Electric company. Its record does not warrant my respect as an observer. Undoubtedly, however, its management complies with the terms of its corporate charter but as a great public utility it has obligations to the public beyond the terms of its charter and it is my opinion that the moral obligations are such that this age demands full observation of them.

This brings us to the crux of the power commission action. Late in September Vice Chairman Seavey of the commission had ordered the group of directors referred to above to show cause why they should not be compelled to relinquish various positions on other boards of directors. A hearing date was set. A few days before the hearing date, the directors in question resigned the positions to which the commission objected and then their attorney issued a statement which said, in effect, that they had resigned because they were convicted in the minds of the commission before the commissioners had heard the case. He used rather strong language, perhaps too strong in expressing his views.

Upon publication of the attorney's statement, Vice Chairman Seavey promptly ordered him to appear before the commission to give his reasons for the statement and to defend himself against disbarment from practice as a lawyer before the commission.

Now, lest I be misunderstood, I do not know the attorney, Mr. Paxson; I know nothing about the merits of the case in question. But it is significant that an agency of the government suddenly decides that it can prevent a man from earning his living because he criticized members of that agency.

Just a Big Laugh
Occasionally, situations develop in national politics that provide a real laugh. One of them is now at hand. It results from the nasty controversy that swirls around the head of Hugo Black of Alabama, newly appointed associate justice of the Supreme court, who is charged with being a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Terrible as is the charge and worse if it eventuates that Mr. Justice Black still is subject to the oath of the invisible empire, there is humor in the way a lot of senators and other government officials are running to cover. It has been almost a scramble among Democratic senators to let the public know by issuing statements that they would not have voted for Senator Black's confirmation as a member of the court if they had known he was a klanman. It makes one laugh again when one recalls how carefully the majority of the Democrats in the senate refused to hear evidence or hold any sort of a hearing concerning Mr. Black's qualifications. They did this by voting down a motion for hearings.

It is not pleasant to contemplate how the senate so many times passes on judicial appointments with the carefree abandon of a boy on his way home from school.

Fall Fashion Parade

BE THE first to wear the new Fall fashions in your group—let Sew-Your-Own help you to step right out in front, in the parade of new Fall Fashions. Today's trio gives you wide choice. Your first occasion frock if you are young and slim is a good looking basque model; for run-around a pretty yoke model that is as easy to make as it is to wear; and if you are full bodied a jabot model that takes away inches.

The Popular Basque Dress. If you are twenty or thereabouts, you'll adore this pretty basque dress with its flaring skirt. The slim wasp waist and short puffed sleeves above a swing skirt are as young as the morning. Have it in a pretty dark print banded in velvet ribbon for every afternoon festivity. It's a dress that you'll wear all through the winter.

Yoke-Style House Frock. Every woman will be quick to see the advantages of this frock, in style and wearability. The round yoke buttons at front and gives a fresh, young look to this design. Best of all, it is cut in one piece from neck to hem so that you can make it in practically no time at all. The waistline is darted for snug fit. You'll look and feel years younger in this model—wear it round the house and for afternoon, too.

Look Slim and Sleek. The newest fashions give you a slim, sleek look even if you are not blessed with a svelte figure. The jabot model in the illustration is designed to make even the woman who is a bit on the plump side look sleek and inches slimmer. Make this dress in one of the new thin wools and see how you'll stand out in your crowd as a fashion leader.

The Patterns. Pattern 1257 is designed for sizes 12 to 40. Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material and 11 yards of ribbon to trim.

Pattern 1380 is designed for sizes 34 to 48. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1373 is designed for sizes 34 to 50. Size 38 requires 3 1/2 yards of 54 inch material and 3/4 yards of 39 inch material for jabot in contrast.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

"Buying a new LAMP?"

One of the most important things you can do is look for this reflector!"

You may think it doesn't matter what kind of a lamp you buy, so long as it is attractive and matches the decorative scheme of the room. But if you are buying a lamp to give LIGHT—for reading, sewing, studying, playing cards, or any other close-seeing task—then you want only one kind of lamp: the reflector lamp. These famous lamps were developed to help guard against eyestrain. They are made in hundreds of attractive styles by many different manufacturers.

For example, a reflector lamp corrects the evils of glaring, spotty or insufficient light. A translucent bowl under the shade diffuses the light, giving it good distribution both upward and downward. The bowl controls the quality of light by diffusing and preventing glare. Part of the light is reflected to the ceiling to provide general illumination. A reflector lamp furnishes soft, even, restful light that enriches the color and beauty of a room and its furnishings, and helps to prevent eyestrain.

There is a reflector model exactly suited to your needs—styled for your home and to fit your pocketbook. See the wide assortment of these smart new lamps today.

Conservation Dept. Notes

Hunters are being warned to beware of stock fences charged with electricity. Several such fences have been reported carrying a large enough charge to knock a man down. Do not dress your game in the field. The game laws forbid it.

The trout trolling season on Lake Michigan ends on October 9th.

Conservation officers had a perfect score during the month of August, making 344 arrests and getting the same number of convictions. 246 of these arrests were for violating the fishing laws. The fines assessed were $1,656 and costs, $2,279.44.

Only two Michigan hunters are ineligible to get small game licenses. One resides in Detroit and the other in Ann Arbor. One shot a duck and the other a rabbit out of season.

The dept. has purchased 3,345 acres more of wild land with the $1.50 deer license. It is in the Fie lake district.

3500 acres of oil and gas leases will be sold at auction at Lansing on October 8th.

Hunters should not use the blank form attached to their licenses to report last year's kill. This year's should be filled out on a separate sheet or use a blank sheet of paper.

A formula to keep deer out of the crops is given by Charles Guild of Muskegon. He says, "Place a pair of blue jeans in the field."

Private roadside zoos will now be under strict supervision by this dept. The cages must be sanitary and large enough for exercise.

Beginning October 29 no species of small game, except raccoon, may be legally shot before sunrise.

Old geological surveys prove that all black bearskins taken in this country between 1850-60 were sent to Russia to make head gear for the Czar's officers.

HOUSE TRAILERS NOW TOTAL OVER 8,000

For the first time in the history of motor vehicle registrations, statistics indicating the number of house trailers licensed in Michigan will be available for 1937. No distinct license application form was provided for this type of vehicle until this year.

According to the records in the office of Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, there were 8,549 house trailers in Michigan registered for the first eight months of this year.

Although there can be no comparison with the number of house trailers registered for the corresponding period in 1936, the total combined registration of house and commercial registrations on Sept. 1, 1936 was 107,863 as compared to registrations on Sept. 1, 1937 was 117,739 being an increase of 9,876.

House trailers are licensed at the regular 35c a hundred passenger car rate. The total revenue this year from this source, up to Sept. 1, is $45,000.

SCHOOL LUNCH AFFECTS STUDY

Michigan's million school children are back under the wing of the state's 80,000 public school instructors.

To better utilize the state's educational facilities, Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, has issued a plea that more attention be given to hot meals and lunches provided by schools.

He agrees with dietitians at Michigan State College that proper lunching means better health and better grasp of the education that is available in schoolrooms.

"Probably one fourth of the grade and high school students eat lunch from home at noon," the superintendent states. "Many of our teachers are aware of the need for better food that they dig down in their own purses to help provide warm milk and warm foods for their students. Even further than that, it is too evident that some of the millions of children do not have proper meals at other times of the day breakfast for instance."

Poor breakfasts seem to be typical of too many American homes. When those are combined with inadequate lunches at noon, there is an evident loss in health and in ability to concentrate in class.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY VIRGINIA FRANCIS

The modern homemaker wants to spend less and less time in the kitchen; she wants time to enjoy life, time to study, time to relax. She has said good-bye to drudgery and "more power" to her! But Mrs. Homemaker is learning to budget her time just as wisely as she budgets her housekeeping expenses. In this particular instance, however, she has taken a leaf from Grandmother's book (who knew a thing

Modern Miracles

How do Baked Pineapple Doughnuts and Ginger Puffs sound to you? Don't they make you just a bit hungry and anxious to try them? Well, that's the way they affected us, and we were delighted with the way they came out of the moisture-controlled electric oven of our Hotpoint range. They were both as feathery-light and tender as new spring peas, and they had risen just as puffily high as a doughnut or ginger puff could expect to be elevated. And all we did was to pop them in the oven, set the automatic temperature control to 400°, and close the door for approximately 20 minutes. And presto, we had dessert and between-meal munchies for 2 or 3 days!

Baked Pineapple Doughnuts (Makes 6 Doughnuts)

2. Cut in 5 tablespoons shortening with pineapple juice and press together.

5. Place on oiled baking sheet, 1 inch or more apart, and bake. Temperature: 400°. Time: Approximately 20 minutes.

Ginger Puffs (Makes 12 Puffs)

1. Mix and sift 1 1/2 cups cake flour, 1 1/4 teaspoons ginger, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon baking powder.

2. Add 1/2 cup light brown sugar and blend thoroughly.

3. Combine 1/2 cup sour milk, 1/4 cup molasses, 1 egg (beaten) and 1/4 cup shortening (melted). Pour ingredients slowly into the flour mixture. Beat lightly.

4. Pour into well greased muffin tins and bake.

Temperature: 400°. Time: Approximately 20 minutes.

The Pineapple Doughnuts are delicious just served unadorned; however, the Ginger Puffs feel more dressed up with a topping of whipped cream, ice cream, or an orange sauce.

WILL NOT PRESS ISSUE

It seems to be generally assumed that revelations of Justice Black's connection with the Ku Klux Klan are manna from heaven for the Republican party. There has been widespread speculation as to how the G. O. P. can make the most effective use of them. The authoritative answer is that those who now control Republican destinies have no intention whatever of pressing the Klan issue. Individual Republicans can of course say what they please, but so far as the party as such is concerned the Ku Klux Klan question does not exist.

Why pass up the golden opportunity? Top flight Republican leaders privately cite realistic political considerations. They point out that of the major anti-Klan groups, the Catholics are politically strongest in large cities—New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, etc.—and that in these cities the Catholic vote is mostly Democratic. The Jewish vote is valued only in New York City, where it is normally Democratic also. The colored vote was traditionally Republican until Mr. Roosevelt took office but has switched its allegiance en masse.

G. O. P. chiefs frankly do not believe they could break up these well cemented party ties by a display of anti-Klan histrionics—if the disclosures themselves haven't turned the trick. Nat. Observer Lansing State Journal

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Armande Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in" hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not wish to marry her. Mrs. Dane's servants, he says, he is not interested in an offer of Brooke to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to go shopping with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reyburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Sam adds them to the cast of his play. Later Inspector Harrison of the local police visits Mark and is informed about the missing will and silver. As Harrison leaves, Lola arrives. She announces that she and her new husband, Bert Hunt, have started a neighborhood filling station. Mark almost makes a break about the missing will and Brooke is suspicious. Returning home, she sees Lola talking covertly to Henri. "Mr. Micawber," Mrs. Dane's pet parrot, is missing. Henri is ugly and warns Brooke she had better like him and Clotilde.

She reached the question and a door at the same time. As Mark Trent opened it, a slightly musty smell, a blend of camphor and old books and ancient furniture, stole out. He motioned with the flash in his hand. Brooke's eyes followed the light. She set her teeth hard in her lips to keep back an exclamation of astonishment. On a large table, illuminated by the spotlight, surrounded by boxes and trunks and storeroom litter, was a massive tea-service and perhaps a dozen dishes and pitchers of silver, tarnished to a light copper color. A scrap of paper drifted to the floor.

"It's a great hide-out, isn't it?" She nodded in answer to the low, amused question.

"When did you discover it?"

"I heard strange sounds upstairs when Jed and I were waiting for you in the living-room the other afternoon. The Japs' rooms are in the L on the first floor, and when I had this house opened I told the caretaker not to touch the third. After you and Mrs. Gregory left, I investigated and found this silver. I've been on the watch ever since to discover who put it here. This afternoon someone slipped a cog, and left both keys; must have been left purposely so that a second party might have access to the loot."

"Who put the loot, as you call it, in that room?"

"That's what you and I will find out."

That "you and I" was fust to dynamite. Brooke leaned back against the balustrade.

"You will, you mean, you and your sleuth Jed Stewart. You and he are spies, aren't you? Amateur detectives. 'Mark, to you,' you say to Sam, and all the time you are spying on his sister and accusing her of 'undue influence,' of hypnotizing an old woman into leaving her a fortune. I ought to have known what you thought of me when you said that. I do now. Find out who stole the silver. You've put Inspector Harrison on the case, haven't you? I wish you luck."

She jerked her wrist free and ran down the stairs. She stopped at the foot of them. A tirade like that she had just delivered took one's breath for a minute. Why, why had she let Mark the Magnificent know that she suspected his reason for occupying the house? She, who had prided herself on her self-control in business? Why couldn't she be diplomatic? Her outrageous temper was the answer. Thank Heaven she had had sense enough not to tell him of Henri's threat that he could put her out of Lookout House.

A sound! Someone had touched the knob on the other side of the door! Had the person remembered that both keys had been left? Now—now Mark and she would find out who had taken the silver.

Stealthily she touched the button and plunged the top floor into darkness. She raced up the stairs. Caromed into Mark Trent coming out of the storeroom. She clutched his sleeve; whispered:

"Shut the door! Quick! Someone is flumming at the hall key. Perhaps he'll come for this one."

He held her by one arm as he noiselessly closed the door. In the dark he drew her into another room. Side by side they waited. Brooke's heart shook her body. How could the man so near her help hearing it thump in the tomblike silence?

A spot of light. Creeping up! Creeping up! Her breath caught in a gasp. An arm slipped round her shoulders and held her so close that the scent of the crushed gardenias was sickish.

"Sach! Mustn't let him know we are here!" Mark Trent whispered.

The spot of light illumined the key in the door, illumined the black-gloved hand which gently turned it and as gently drew it out.

Mark Trent felt the hard beating of the girl's heart as his arm tightened about her shoulders, the softness of her skin against his hand. He didn't dare release her for fear she might make a sound and reveal their presence to the unknown person in the hall. What a good little sport she was. She had followed him into his house with no embarrassment, but with a modern girl's interpretation of propriety, her ignoring of outworn conventions. Just the same, he wished fervently that she was back in her own living-room in that chair before the fire, for there was no dodging the fact that black-gloved fingers had withdrawn the key from the lock. To whom had they belonged? The words on the scrap of paper he had picked up from the floor of the storeroom and replaced on the table teased his mind.

"Make X on cover when—"

That was all. What cover? Much as he wanted to know, he couldn't let Brooke Reyburn get mixed up in the mess. When he had discovered the silver, his first thought had been of her and the thrill she would get from seeing it. If he hadn't brought her, he would be on the man's neck by this time.

It seemed hours that he stood rigid, listening, with the only sound the underground roar of a great city, the faint wail of the distant siren, and the girl's unsteady breathing. He strained his ears. Was a door being closed cautiously, or was his imagination playing tricks? He must find out. He couldn't stay here forever. He put his mouth close to Brooke's ear. He felt the softness of her hair against his face.

"Don't move. Don't speak. I'll come back."

Whenever in after life he smelled the fragrance of a gardenia, he would remember this night, he told himself.

He took a cautious step into the hall. Listened. The house was so quiet that he could hear the tick of the old clock on the stairs. He tiptoed to the door of the room in which he had found the silver and ran his fingers lightly over the knob. The key was gone.

He felt his way down; he didn't dare use the flash. The lamp in the lower hall provided a faint light. Gently he turned the knob of the connecting door. It was locked. Someone had followed him down the stairs! He felt a presence. Fool, not to have suspected that an accomplice might be hidden in the dark. He shouldn't have left Brooke. He must get back to her no matter who was between them.

He wheeled with pantherlike agility. Raised his flashlight to bring it crashing down on a head.

"Mark! Mark!"

It was Brooke Reyburn's voice, her hand on his arm. The stiffening went out of his knees. Relief was submerged in a mighty rush of anger as he gripped her shoulders.

"What do you mean by coming down when I told you not to move? What do you mean? I might have struck you!"

"But you didn't, Mark. I felt like a quitter hiding in the dark while you came down alone, so I crept after you. What did you see?"

"Nothing here—but the door is locked."

"A black-gloved hand did pull the key from the storeroom door, didn't it? I didn't dream it, did I?"

"If you did, I was in the same dream, Brooke. Wonder when they intend to remove the stuff."

"You think someone is planning to take it away?"

"Why else should it be there? It probably was moved from Lookout House to this one, which has been unoccupied for years, before I came back here to live. After Aunt Mary Amanda went, I was the only person who would know about the silver, and I was far away in South America. That's why Henri's face turned chalky when he saw me enter your living-room on Thanksgiving day."

"Then you noticed it too? I thought it might be my imagination."

"He was white, all right. Come on, we can't get back to Lookout House through this door. We'd better beat it downstairs and out that way. Lucky I pocketed your key."

"Hurry! Hurry! Suppose it was Henri who left those keys in the doors? Suppose he remembered that he had left them and stole back from the movies? I told him that you and Jed Stewart would be with us for supper after rehearsal. He may be looking for me now to see if I was telling the truth."

In the lower hall, which was slightly scented by the smoky aroma of open fires, Mark laid a detaining hand on her shoulder.

"Wait! Listen!"

The stillness of the high-ceilinged rooms was accentuated by the low moan of the wind at the corner of the house, by the muted thunder of the sea, by the sharp crackle of a burning log; was haunted by the weird wail of the distant siren, but no human sound intruded.

"Coast's clear. Let's go. Hold on!" Mark Trent frowned at her bare arms and throat, ivory tinted above the lace of her frock. "You need a wrap."

"To go from one door to another! Don't be foolish. If we don't hurry, Henri may get there before us."

In the green-walled living-room at Lookout House, Mark Trent threw a log on the smoldering fire and poked it into flame.

"Come here and get warm, Brooke. You are still shivering."

"If I am, it is from excitement, not cold." She toasted her fingers at the blaze. What do we do next?"

"Watchful waiting seems our best bet."

"You would say that."

"I don't like the implication, but we'll let that ride—for the present. What move would you suggest?"

"I don't know, but let's do something. I hate sitting on the sidelines. I hate waiting. First we must find out who took the key from the storeroom door. If you hadn't held me, I would have dashed at him and found out."

"I had a hunch you would; that's why I grabbed you. Afraid I crushed your gardenia."

Brooke put her hand to her shoulder. "They're gone! Where could I have lost them?"

"Don't make a tragedy of it. I'll get you another."

Mark Trent had never seen brown eyes so flamingly gold, cheeks so red as Brooke's.

"I'm not making a tragedy of it, and I don't want another gardenia. For an amateur detective—amateur is the word with a capital A—you are dense, Mark Trent. Suppose the person in the attic went back for something and picked them up? Wouldn't he know at once that he was being watched?"

"I thought of that so—I brought this along." He held a flower in the palm of his hand. The once waxen petals were brown at the edges, but they had the feel of velvet in his fingers. "You don't want it now, do you?" He slipped it back into his pocket. "I'll keep it as a souvenir of our late dive into the underworld."

"I do want it and the other too."

"Because Field gave them to you? I don't know where the other is; didn't realize that there were two. You dropped this as you came into this house. Better let me keep it. Would you want him to know that it had been crushed out of shape against my shoulder?"

"Just why should Jerry assume that it was your shoulder against which the gardenia was crushed? You are not the only man in my life, you know," Brooke reminded disdainfully.

"I intend—to keep the flower."

Mark Trent felt the color surge to his hair and recede. He had caught back "to be" in time.

"I haven't had a chance, Brooke, to tell you how ridiculous Mrs. Hunt's suggestion was—that that I had any thought of trying to keep Aunt Mary Amanda's money in the family by—"

"Why stumble over it? Why tell me again that you wouldn't marry me? This is the second time. First in Jed Stewart's office and now here. To save a third attempt to impress the fact on me, I'll tell you that I wouldn't marry you if you were the only man in the world. Divorced men leave me cold. Sometime perhaps I'll have the privilege of refusing to marry you."

He knew now the sensation of a knife being plunged into his heart. He drew the gardenia from his pocket and dropped it into her lap. "Here it is. Water may revive it."

She twirled the stem in her fingers.

"It is past recovery." She flung it into the wastebasket. "I don't care for rejuvenated gardenias any more than I care for warmed-over love. That sounds like a car. Can they have come so soon?"

"Better not speak of what we discovered," Mark suggested hastily, as she started for the hall.

She left the room without answering. He salvaged the flower and thrust it into his pocket. He was not keeping it for sentimental reasons, he assured himself, but as a reminder of how near he had come to forgetting that all he had to offer a girl was "warmed-over" love.

Sam Reyburn entered the living-room and flung his blue covered script to the table. He dropped into the wing chair with a groan. Voices in the hall thinned in the distance. Mark Trent could distinguish Jerry Field's laugh, Lucette's rather high-pitched tone, Brooke's questioning murmur, and Daphne's drawl. He looked at the dejected figure in the chair, at the long legs outstretched.

"What's wrong, Sam? Aren't you home early?"

"What's wrong with you, you're white as a sheet?"

"I'm okay, it's these artistic lights that play the dickens with one's color. Didn't Stewart and the rest of the cast come with you?"

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—Jack Doyle, the Irish crooner and heavyweight boxer, sometimes known as the "mild Irish rose," said the other day he had quit fighting. But now word comes from San Francisco that the mauling minstrel wants to get back in the ring and that he has signed Harry Brodie of San Francisco as manager. However, his fiancée, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, insists that he stick to his singing. Fighting, she says, is too brutal. Mrs. Godde is a daughter of the late Horace E. Dodge, automobile maker, and an heiress of the Dodge fortune.

At fourteen, Jack Doyle was heaving a 15-pound shovel on the coal docks at Queens-town. At fifteen, he was sailing before the mast on a Finnish vessel. At sixteen, he was in the Irish guards, doubling in the characteristically Celtic pastimes of singing and fighting.

He is six feet four and one-half inches tall and weighs 217 pounds. With his wavy black hair and still unmannered features, he is rated as the handsomest fighter in the business. He once smacked down ten big bruisers all at once—but that was in Hollywood, when he was trying out for the screen, two years ago. He didn't screen well and picked up his fighting again, dumping Buddy Baer neatly in one round.

In 1930, he was champion of the Irish guards. Last April, he gave Kingfish Levinsky a handsome 12-round drubbing. As yet he hasn't any very notorious scalps on his belt, but he is still only twenty-four. Judith Allen, film actress, divorced him last April, and he awaits a final decree before marrying Mrs. Godde, whose divorce from Timothy Godde, London and Paris textile exporter, is also coming through. He has been here two and one-half years and writes home that he's having a wonderful time.

This writer thought the articles about the telepathy experiments at Duke university were one of the most interesting magazine serials of recent years. Dr. J. B. Rhine, with a large staff of assistants, made what appeared to be the first scientific laboratory examination of thought transference. They reported it a fact of everyday life. Their finding was that minds can communicate over long distances. Now it is announced that Dr. Rhine's book, "New Frontiers of the Mind," will appear soon. It will cover the Duke university experiments.

Dr. Rhine qualifies as a disinterested observer, having vigorously assailed fake occultism in the past. Mrs. Rhine has been his co-worker and collaborator in exploring the world beyond the senses. They both took their doctor's degrees at the University of Chicago, later pursuing studies of abnormal psychology. In 1928 and 1927, they conducted in Boston an examination of "Margery," the famous clairvoyant. They reported that "the whole game was a base and brazen trickery, carried out cleverly enough under the guise of spirit manifestations."

Commenting recently on his work at Duke university, Dr. Rhine said: "Our results have a bearing on the general problem of the survival of life after death. They show that the mind has powers not dependent upon the senses, an assumption that is made under the theory that life can exist apart from the body."

Dr. Rhine is head of the unique parapsychological laboratory of Duke university. His telepathy explorations included 100,000 experiments in which he recorded thought transference over a distance of 1,000 miles. He said their validity, as against chance, was in the ratio of 100,000,000,000 to 1.

The Paraguay rebellion is one more reminder that there are no halfway stations on the road to totalitarianism.

President Rafael Franco, Gran Chaco war hero, was driven out several weeks ago, because he wanted to meet Bolivia half way and make concessions in the war settlement. Now the rebels are trying to bring him back.

When he set up his dictatorship last October, Hitler was his model. He invoked the "noble ideal of democracy," but proclaimed his own personal iron-fisted rule. He announced an extreme of both regimentation and freedom. It didn't work, but he may be president again and have another try at it.

Old General Estigarriba chased him out in February, 1936, calling him a communist. By February 20, he was back in power, chasing both the old general and the communists. He is now forty years old, trained in the army, withdrawing in 1934 and back in for the war.

able for luncheon and buffet sets as well as doilies while the largest, a 22-inch doily, is just the thing for in-between cloth on many a table. Use string or mercerized cotton—they'll stand long usage and be decorative too. Pattern 1462 contains directions for making the doilies shown; illustrations of them and of all stitches used; material requirements.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membrane and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefit obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness of disquiet, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been making new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

This week is fire prevention week. Every home, office, factory and farm should take active steps to formulate a permanent fire prevention program.

15,000 people are burned to death in this country every year.

65% of these victims are women and children.

It costs this nation nearly $300,000,000 each year for the up-keep of fire departments and waterworks for fire extinguishment.

Smoking and careless use of matches is a common cause of fires. Make arrangements to clean and repair chimneys.

Make an inspection of your establishment today—80% of all the fires are caused by carelessness.

Red Coral Always Priced

It has been proved that red coral has been used for centuries for jewelry and medicine, but as a charm to bring safety, health and success. As revealed to the world by Dr. J. B. Zuse, the world's red coral comes from the reefs off the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post and is obtained chiefly by Italians.

A UNIVERSAL DESIRE

The profession of funeral directing was developed as a response to the universal desire to pay all possible respect to the remains of those who have passed on. The modern funeral director is a man of specialized training and long practical experience. His function is to give necessary counsel and advice, as well as actual service to those bereaved. The members of this organization are fully prepared to serve in such a manner.

WHY WRITE CHECKS? / 7

We urge our customers continuously to save by opening regular Savings Book Accounts. However we would like to point out another way to save. Many people pay bills in cash and file receipts away. Such procedure is not infallible. The merchant may be busy and overlook the proper credit on his books. When this happens another bill is presented. "I know I paid that bill" is the common answer. "I have the receipt to prove it." Search may not produce the receipt and thus the bill stands good.

The same bill paid by check definitely foregoes the embarrassment to both merchant and debtor. Checks are filled and take up little space. Cancelled check shows the merchant's endorsement (acknowledgement of payment) and the check was paid by the bank. Check is positive evidence of payment.
