Pinckney Beats Hartland 6 to 0

 Wins Second game from Livingston County Team by Same Score as
First Contest. Part of Contest
Played in Twilight

Pinckney won the second game of their season last Friday by defeating Hartland 6 to 0. This is the same score by which they won from Hartland several weeks ago. The largest crowd of the season was present. The Hartland team came over in a school bus, broke down at Howell and did not get here until 5:30 p. m. As a result floodlights would have come in handy for the last half of the contest which was played in twilight.

Hartland has about the same weight team as Pinckney and the game was close all the way. Pinckney having a slight advantage on account of the successful forward passing. They got four completed and Hartland none.

Pinckney received and made two first downs right of the reel on end runs with Read and Meyer carrying the ball. This took the ball to the 20 yard line. Here Pinckney drew a 15 yard penalty and a minute later a five yard one. This deprived them of a touchdown.

Hartland made several first downs through the Pinckney line but attempted several passes all of which were incomplete. The half ended in a score of 0 to 0.

In the second half Austin went in for Hartland and gained considerable ground for them by line plunging. He hit the line hard and McClellan and Roubannis both were forced out of the game, the former hurting his left knee and the latter his nose. AtLee and Berquist replaced them. Hartland gained the ten yard line and attempted to forward pass over the goal line. Lisack intercepted it and ran it back ten yards for Pinckney. This was Hartland's only scoring chance.

Pinckney was unable to gain by a running game consistently on account of their weak line. Read and Meyer each made some nice gains but not enough to score.

In the last half with the ball on the 40 yard line Read got a pass from Meyer for 10 yards and carried it to the ten yard line. Two line plays failed to gain. Then Meyer got a pass to VanBlaricum over the goal line.

It was short but Van Blaricum threw himself on the ground and got it by diving. The attempt at a point failed.

There was only two minutes to go at this time and neither team was able to do anything.

VanBlaricum is fast developing into a first class player. He has the scrappiness essential for a successful athlete. Meyer and Read continued good playing and Baughn made several tackles. The line played hard but just hasn't got the weight to hold their opponents back.

Next Friday Pinckney plays the Ann Arbor high school Reserves who will have their colored star, Mal Thomas, in the lineup.

They have not been going so good as Manchester recently beat them by forward passing 32 to 0. This is the last game of the season and a good crowd should be present.

Halloween Affair Is Held Here

 Village Council Sponsors Halloween
Party for Children of the Community. Was Held Monday Night

Halloween was quietly observed here this year with the exception of Saturday night when we understand considerable damage was done to outbuildings. Most of these are wired for lights and this wiring was ruined in a number of cases.

Sunday evening some windows were soaped and autos raced around town dragging old auto parts and tins cans, making much noise but doing little damage.

Monday night the village council sponsored a party for the children under the direction of P. H. Swarthout. This started with a parade led by the village fire engine and followed by decorated bicycles and boys and girls in costume. After parading through the business section the line of march led to the north woods where a marshmallow roast was held and games played.

Many cities and villages are sponsoring these Halloween parties and making them a yearly event in order to get the children's minds off the destruction of property. In Dexter a pavement dance was held and various contests for which prizes were given. Howell held a party at the athletic field.

VERNON SPENCER HELD

Vernon Spencer, 40, Wixom farmer, is held in the jail at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, in connection with the death of his companion, Miss Helen Grier, 28, Pontiac stenographer who was found dead in the hunting cabin the two occupied with a 22 bullet through her temple. Spencer claims he found her dead when he returned from a hike.

Spencer is well known in this section as he was a former professional baseball player, playing two years in the outfield with the New York Giants 1925-27. He previously had played with Toledo in the American Association and Toronto in the International. While playing with Los Angeles, California in the Pacific Coast League he married Gertrude Swanbeck, daughter of a financier and retired from professional baseball to a 300 acre farm at Wixom.

In 1929-30 when Jim Moran was pitching for Pinckney he played several times here, being in the lineups of Harry German's Northville team and Gus Eck's Dexter big leaguers.

APPRECIATION

The O. E. S. wish to express their thanks to those business men who so generously donated prizes for our dancing party last Friday night.

The following are responsible for the success of the party, as they donated the door prizes.

SEARCH COTTAGE AT HALFMOON LAKE

According to the Detroit Times the cottage of Mrs. Sophie Ballets of 7636 Horger Ave., Detroit at Half Moon Lake in Livingston county was searched by state police Saturday and articles of mens and womens apparel found there were viewed by members of the families of Mrs. Artie Mabie, Mrs. Margaret Redden and Thomas Lorimer of Melvindale who disappeared more than two weeks ago. No trace of them has been discovered. Mrs. Ballets reported her cottage had been broken into and articles of apparel left there indicating that several people had stayed there for some time. The apparel was not identified, however.

We Hope His Aim Is Bad

Hamburg Factory Is Completed

 New Factory to Start Production in December. Has Large Contract with Chicago Firm

The new Hamburg factory is completed as far as the structure goes but wiring and plumbing still remains to be done. The building is 60x150. The footings and floors are of cement while the walls are composed of steel window frames and glass. The roof is supported by steel girders. We visited the place Sunday and talked to Mr. Johnstone one of the owners of it. He expects the size of the factory to be doubled in a short time and says Hamburg will soon take on city aspects. Machinery for the new building will start to arrive this week and production will start next month. They will make tools for Sears Roebuck & Co., Chicago.

Speed and efficiency has certainly been shown in the construction of this factory. In less than a month after the announcement was made the factory was built.

Gregory Bank Pays 95 Percent

 Neighboring Bank Comes Close To Paying 100 Percent on Its Bank Deposits

The Gregory Bank which went under in 1932 with many other such institutions has just wound up its affairs. It has already paid 80 cents on the dollar and on Nov. 6 will pay another 15 per cent which will make the total payments 95 per cent.

The receivership of this bank was handled altogether different than the Pinckney Bank. A depositors committee was appointed by the depositors themselves to handle the affairs of the bank. The committee appointed by the depositors was Charles Runciman, Henry Howlett and Wm. McRobbie. Mr. Howlett died in the Kerns hotel fire and Frank Oviatt was appointed to take his place. These men only drew $1050 for their five years of work. They paid only $145 attorney fees. The total cost of settling the affairs of the bank was $2,487.40. They collected $62,584.97 and paid back to the depositors $60,106.57.

Mr. McRobbie, the secretary of the depositors committee informed us that the committee was able to pay this high per cent on the dollar by making their time and giving bonds a chance to remain some of their original value. A little further delay would have enabled them to pay as high as 100 cents on the dollar as some of the bonds have greatly increased in value since they were sold. However the depositors did not want to wait any longer.

The bank building has been sold to the Stockbridge State bank.

SUNSHINE CLASSE MEETS

The Sunshine Class held a Halloween party in the church parlors Saturday October 30th. The group started gathering at 2:00 o'clock. Games were played during the afternoon after which followed the election of the officers.

They then adjourned to the dining room for refreshments. Everyone leaving for home saying they had an enjoyable afternoon.

MANY NEW LAWS NOW EFFECT

A number of new laws go into effect this month. Here are some of them.

Home grown seeds must be inspected and labelled as to variety, percentage of germination, grower and variety.

Pet and livestock food must contain a more detailed analysis. Manufacturers of commercial feeds have their choice of paying a license fee of $20 or 75c a ton.

A third law provides for inspection and grading of farm products. The potato marketing act embraces the federal grading system as a standard for this state.

Another law provides for county wide tests, if requested by boards of supervisors, for control of the Bang's disease by cattle.

Herbert Hoover made his radio broadcast last Wednesday night and it seems to have been received in a variety of ways. Again he advocated a Republican convention to be held next year to draft a platform and a set of principles. The politicians are opposed to this as they do not desire to commit themselves at the present time and think such a meeting would lead to bickering and quarrelling. Jay Hayden of the Detroit News says Senator Borah is opposed to such a convention and will probably remain so unless both Mr. Hoover and Landan are thrown overboard. W. K. Kelson, commentator, says Hoover is all right as far as a principle but a party must have a leader and without him principles are null. Such a convention may or may not take place but in the meantime the party is getting a lot of publicity out of it and that is probably desired.

The 1934 legislature reduced the price of auto licenses for Michigan passenger cars about $7,500,000. Judge Kelly Seal of Gratiot county has ruled this new law unconstitutional. The attorney general will appeal this decision to the supreme court for an early decision. An effort will be made to have Governor Murphy include it in his call for the special session.

The new marriage law requiring a doctors certificate was no doubt the cause of the big increase in marriages for October. We don't think this is any reflection on the license applicants. Most of them undoubtedly, could have passed the examination with flying colors. The reason for their haste in dodging the new regulations is that they are impatient of any delay and only consider the new law a lot of useless red tape.

The Duke of Windsor seems to be in the way of becoming a racket. We read that he is coming over here to become a movie actor, just where he got the experience necessary is not stated; then he is to become a movie producer and get Will Hays' job. The latter part of that has become intensely popular. He is to be made emperor of Germany by Hitler. This is in order to give England, P. T. Barnum the great humbugger must be turning over in his grave on account of this vast ballyho which even surpasses his best efforts. An advertising agency is handling his trip to this country and are leaving no stone unturned to make his visit here both pleasant and profitable.

If the federal jury demands that Anthony Cletoritis be hanged and this penalty is inflicted, he will be the second white man ever to be hanged in Michigan. The one and only white man ever hung in this state was W. G. Simmons of Detroit on Sept. 24, 1830. He killed his wife during a drunken rage. The sheriff Thomas Knapp, resigned rather than inflict the penalty. Uncle Ben Woodworth, a hotel and saloon keeper volunteered to take the sheriff's place. He built a grandstand around the jail yard then located in Library Park and the people came from far and near. The doomed man bore up with great composure. Prayed long and loud and delivered a temperamental lecture in which he blamed his crime on drink and warned all to beware of it. Then marched to the gallows singing hymns. It made a great impression on the people. Two more white men sentenced to be hanged were reprieved by the governor and then the law was repealed.

Chebatoris, The Midland bank robber who was sentenced to death for killing a truck driver in connection with the robbery attempted suicide by slashing his wrists and throat with a razor blade last week. Doctors worked hard to save his life as he might be legally killed by the law later. Now just why did they go to all this bother. If he is slated for death why not let him go out by the suicide rout if he desires and save the state the trouble and expense of executing him.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

There May Be Many Reasons for Making Quilted Chair Pads.

IF ALL the reasons for quilted chair pads were lined up in order of their importance the most intangible reason of all might head the list. Yes, it is quite likely that any decorator, amateur or professional would place atmosphere at the top. But then it is also possible that first rating might be given to the reason that the pressure of slats across the backs of chairs is softened by quilted pads. Then, though it might not be mentioned, it is a known fact that worn out cane seats are sometimes replaced with inexpensive composition seats which may be disguised by gay quilted pads.

Chintz, calico or gingham chair pads are in fact one of the simplest and most inexpensive ways of adding color and charm as well as comfort to a room. Such pads are often used on the backs of chairs and not on the seats, and especially for side chairs, the seat pads used without any back covering. In making such small things as these it is quite easy to do the quilting on the machine. Or, if you wish to take the other point of view about it, the work of quilting them by hand would not consume an unreasonable amount of time. There is no doubt that handwork has a certain quaintness that machine work lacks.

The pads shown here are made with one layer of sheet wadding between the two layers of the chintz. The edge bindings and ties are made of bias tape. Cut the three layers of the pad material exactly the size and shape you want them to be when finished. Place the sheet wadding between the two layers of covering material as shown here at A. Either pin or baste in this position, and then quilt as shown here at B. Make the ties by stitching the lengthwise edges of the bias tape together, and then tack them to the corners of the pad as at C before it is bound. Now, bind the edges, sewing the ties right in with the binding as shown here at D.

Towel Holders. — Either a spring-type clothespin, or the paper clamp from a loose-leaf notebook, properly nailed to the wall makes a satisfactory towel hanger for the basement.

Cooking Doughnuts. — Doughnuts will crack and brown before they are thoroughly cooked inside if they contain too much flour or if the fat in which they are fried is not hot enough.

Save Stale Bread Crumbs. — Bread that has become hard and stale can be ground into crumbs, browned in the oven, and used for improving the flavor and appearance of many dishes. Store in an airtight tin.

Uses for Beef Marrow. — Beef marrow is very nutritious. Add it to the suet for meat puddings and forcemeat, and to stews and soups. Mixed with tinned tomato puree, or haricot bean puree, you get excellent mixture for a savory toast.

Tomato Marmalade. — Half cup vinegar, one cup sugar, one quart chopped tomatoes, one teaspoon mixed spices, one teaspoon salt. Cook together until thoroughly dissolved. Pour into shallow pan and cook in slow oven for one and a quarter hours. Turn into sterilized jars and cover with paraffin while hot.

When to Add Salt. — Salt will curdle new milk. In preparing porridge, gravies, etc., salt should not be added until the dish is prepared.

Keeping Boards From Warping. — Warping of long boards can be prevented to a considerable extent by standing them on end or on one edge so both sides are equally exposed to the weather.

'Tis Said Arithmetic
Is a Science of Truth

"Figures can't lie," said the professor earnestly. "For instance, if one can build a house in twelve days, twelve men can build it in one."

"Yes," interrupted a quick-brained student. "Then 288 will build it in one hour, 17,280 in one minute, and 1,036,800 in one second. And I don't believe they could lay one brick in that time."

While the professor was still gasping, the smart one went on:

"Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in six days, six ships can cross it in one day. I don't believe that either; so where's the truth in arithmetic?"

Washington
DigestNational Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington. — In this so-called modern civilization of ours when we are supposed to keep pace with progress, every one of us is confronted every day with some sort of government regulation or restriction. We are told what to do and what not to do and a good many politicians want to increase the number of things we are told to do.

Included in this modern civilization is a perfect network of spies who bear official titles of one kind or another, and probably the most insistent of these spies are the agents of government who look after taxes. All of which is necessary because tax payers undoubtedly will dodge a little if they can get away with it. The federal government has a good many thousands of them; state governments have them and county and city governments maintain a veritable army of employees whose job it is to check up on taxpayers. They do their job thoroughly. Make no mistake about that. If the taxpayer does not come through in accordance with the orders of the tax collectors, there is plenty of punishment.

Which brings us to the point of and the reason for this discussion. It sets the stage for the question: If the government, national, state or local, is so punctilious about tax collections, the gathering in of people's money, why is it that government is not equally punctilious about the way the money is spent? This question is very much to the forefront now. It is a question of paramount importance because of a proposal for governmental reorganization which President Roosevelt insists must be considered by the forthcoming session of congress. The federal government must be reorganized. The reason for this reorganization, according to the President's argument, is that the present structure is inefficient, wasteful, and generally quite unwieldy.

It is to be granted, I think, that much of the present federal government structure is inefficient, wasteful and unwieldy. Throughout the government one will find various agencies charged with the same responsibilities, doing things in opposite directions, winding and binding red tape around the citizens until some of them scarcely can get a hand free to mark their ballots. The whole thing needs a thorough going over but, as I see the picture, this going over should be done with a view to making governmental machinery workable and rebuilding only where hastily conceived governmental agencies and functions have demonstrated that they are acting as a deterrent rather than an encouragement to the nation as a whole.

I have no quarrel with Mr. Roosevelt concerning the need for changing some parts of the governmental machine. I have a very definite objection, however, to some of the changes he proposes. I object strenuously, for example, to his move to destroy the present setup for protection against improper spending of the taxpayers' money. Specifically, I can see no possible excuse for Mr. Roosevelt's demand that the general accounting office be made subservient again to the whims of politicians by placing that agency under the control of a political appointee, namely, the secretary of the treasury. That is exactly what is proposed, and if the President's governmental reorganization program is accepted by congress in its present form, the President of the United States, whether Mr. Roosevelt or his successor, again will be able to determine to a large measure how the taxpayers' money is spent.

That may appear to be an exaggerated statement. One may ask about the constitutional provision which requires that all appropriations shall be made by congress. This would seem to prevent executive mismanagement of the taxpayers' money. Such, however, unfortunately is not the case because we have had proof under President Roosevelt's administration what can be done when one political party has such complete control of the machinery of government. Congress appropriated billions. True. But had there been no general accounting office in existence, I doubt anyone could have even guessed what would have happened to those vast sums of money.

It has been my privilege to watch operation of the federal government almost 20 years. Because of that experience, I think I am able to say that I am more conversant with the tricks to which politicians resort in getting money out of the treasury than persons who have not had an opportunity to study the government as it actually functions. And because of that experience, I am going to make the unequivocal statement that unless congress repels Mr. Roosevelt's plan to destroy the curb on trick and illegal spending, this nation and its citizens will pay for the folly in waste not now conceivable.

Someone might arise and say that my statement is unjustified because there was not such a tremendous drain on the treasury before 1921 when the accounting, auditing of bills and checks, was done by individual agencies of the government. The difficulty is that, except for war time agencies, the cost of running the federal government before the general accounting office was established was only about one-seventh of what it is now. None of the federal agencies then in existence were as large then as they are now; none had as much authority nor as great a scope of operations, and the bulk of the new agencies have been born in legislation that is haphazard and undigested to say the least. The older agencies of government have scores of workers who know how to handle their business. Regrettably, it must be said that most of the new agencies are controlled by, completely filled up with, men who are unfamiliar with the gigantic problems their jobs entail.

Public sentiment is a thing difficult to understand. For example, millions of people became wrought up when President Roosevelt sought to increase the membership of the Supreme court of the United States by the addition of six judges of his own choosing. They rightfully fought back against the destruction of our judicial system. Fighting words characterized the criticism of Mr. Roosevelt and his New Dealers who sought to break down the system of checks and balances created in our government by the founding fathers when they provided for executive, legislative and judicial divisions of governmental authority.

So, I am wondering why thus far there has not been an outburst of vehement criticism of Mr. Roosevelt with reference to the proposed destruction of the check on spending. I am wondering, too, why people who complain so violently against spies in the form of tax investigators should not demand of their government equal protection for the funds after they have been taken away from the taxpayers.

There are two other agencies of the federal government which Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization plan will eventually destroy. Each has a record of service to the nation and protection for individual citizens that cannot be ignored. I refer to the interstate commerce commission and the federal trade commission.

The ICC has supervised the railroads nearly half a century. It has compelled them to be fair when some individuals in the railroad industry were inclined to cheat or take advantage of an unorganized segment of the population. Sometimes there has been criticism of the commission for placing the railroads in a strait-jacket, but the good that the ICC has done far outweighs any damages it has caused.

Yet, it is proposed in the President's reorganization plan to take away the independence which has characterized the history of the operations of this agency. The President wants to place over the commission a political appointee responsible only to the Chief Executive.

Through all of the years I have worked in Washington, there has been a never-ending effort on the part of politicians to get their hands on the agency that controls the railroads. It takes no stretch of the imagination to see what would happen if the politicians were able to succeed in this direction. I am quite convinced that if the ICC is subordinated to the political philosophy of a presidential appointee, every one of us who uses the railroads will be paying toll. The toll will not go to the railroads but to the politicians.

With respect to the federal trade commission much the same can be said. Like the ICC, the trade commission is quasi-judicial. It is an independent agency. Times unnumbered, it has stepped on crooked business and has forced business of this stripe to play the game within the regulations. On occasion, I have criticized specific actions by the commission as lacking in judicial consideration. By and large, however, I think no one can say unqualifiedly that the federal trade commission has failed to do its job in the interest of individual citizens — which, after all, is what government is supposed to do.

ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps, when your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love.

Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man.

A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

"The accident was caused by glaring lights of a passing automobile." So reads an accident report.

Every motorist in the country knows well what that statement means. It is dark and a motorist driving carefully is suddenly blinded by the glare of an approaching car. From that instant, it is as if he were without eyes. He cannot see the road ahead, judge the speed or decide definitely the position of the approaching car. He may slow down or come to a stop, but in that time in his blindness he may drive off the road into a ditch or into a railing.

Courtesy is the answer to the elimination of these accidents. If all drivers would dim their lights, this glaring condition would be eliminated. It can be done if we all cooperate, and it is certainly our duty as citizens to protect the other fellow and be protected.

Dim your lights!

50,000 OF YOUR NEIGHBORS

HAVE Switched TO ELECTRIC COOKING

You CAN afford it!

A few years ago, an electric range cost several times as much as an ordinary stove. Today, an electric range costs no more than the average stove of comparable size and features: the price is just about the same. . . . And look at the VALUE you receive in an electric range!

An electric range is built to serve you many years. Twelve years is the average length of time a family keeps a stove. That means that the stove you buy today will be cooking for you in 1949 . . . "Electric cooking is MODERN cooking — it is the latest thing" — that is what many women say when they switch to electric cooking. During the past year 10,000 women in and around Detroit have switched to an electric range, and today 50,000 of your neighbors cook with electricity.

Consider these advantages of an electric range — features that no other stove or no other cooking method can give you: Absolute CLEANLINESS, with pure heat from a glowing wire — heat as clean as sunlight. BETTER FLAVOR — meats and vegetables cooked in their own juices to melting tenderness. Healthful WATER-LESS COOKING, with precious minerals and important food values sealed-in. And best of all, the ease with which you can keep your kitchen bright and clean and sparkling . . . because an electric range does not burn fuel and therefore walls and curtains stay clean and utensils remain bright. There are no matches or flame in the kitchen.

When you buy a new stove, GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH! If you are paying the same price, choose the stove that will give you more. Only an electric range has these extra advantages of electric cooking!

Conservation Dept. Notes

More than half a million dollars has been taken in by the state so far this year in oil leases. The leasing of 25,000 acres this month brought the total number of state acres under lease to 259,984 acres. The leases are from 50c to $1.00 on an acre.

The state conservation commission has allotted $2665,000 for the purchase of new state parks and additions.

Two new wildfire sanctuaries have been designated in Crawford and Charlevoix counties and a third in Grand Traverse county have been enlarged. The Crawford county reserve comprises 840 acres, the Charlevoix 54 and the Grand Traverse 260.

The fire loss in October is 14, 193 acres with 1,067 fires reported.

Hunters who expect to transport deer, legally killed must obtain a special permit before leaving the state.

Michigan's forest game and public recreational areas now include 502, 721 acres of which 60 percent are state owned.

Thousands will get their deer this year but nearly 500 hunters will leave their guns on the rack. 495 will be ineligible to hunt this year because they were found guilty in the last three years of violating the major deer law.

Several instances of power service disruption because hunters damaged power lines with their shots have been reported. In Lapeer county a critical operation was interrupted because a hunter shot off a glass insulator.

21 species of trees can be found on Isle Royale of which 13 are deciduous and the rest evergreen.

PUBLIC ACTS OF 1937 TO BE HUGE BOOKS

Laws cost money; the more a legislature passes the greater the cost to print the volumes of Public Acts at the end of each session.

There are indications that copies of the 1937 Public Acts may break several records. Each of the 13,500 volumes will contain approximately 1,000 pages, almost twice the size of the Public Acts of 1935. The 1937 book will include the four statutes passed at the special session of the legislature which followed the regular session immediately.

Paper for the 1935 volumes cost the state $2,439; printing, and binding, $9,995. The books for years have sold within Michigan for $1.50, postage paid. According to the Leon D. Case Secretary of State, the size of the 1937 volume may involve an increase in the customary price because of the greater costs of paper, binding and postage.

The books will be available on December 1st.

POTATO TRICKS

Potatoes often blacken and discolor when cooked. Yet cooks and homemakers can be let in on a few secrets and tricks recommended by the home economics division at the Michigan State College.

Freshly dug potatoes, least liable to blacken often are not available in Michigan homes either because of season or price. Because Michigan this year has jumped into second place in the production of the principal or fall harvested crop of this important food, the tricks of cookery will improve table appearances as well as help dispose of the crop in the state.

Research workers in Wisconsin have discovered that for plain boiled potatoes the blackening can be avoided by soaking the peeled potatoes in cold water for two and a half hours before cooking. The potatoes are to be drained and cooked in fresh water.

Cooking without previous soaking also can be done. A mixture of half milk and water is found to do the trick.

TELEPHONE SERVICE HAS INCREASED IN VALUE; RATES HAVE DECREASED

Michigan today is enjoying really remarkable values in telephone service.

The Company's material and labor costs have increased substantially since reductions in rates were made in 1934, 1935 and 1936. In 1934 rates for service to farmers and for long distance service were reduced; in 1935 the long distance night rate was made effective at 7 o'clock every night and was extended to all day every Sunday; in 1936 further reductions were made in the rates for long distance and for various other services and items of equipment, and the charges for installing and moving telephones were drastically cut.

At the same time the average individual's income has improved, and prices asked for many other items and services have gone up.

Yet telephone service is still available at the reduced rates; the quality of the service never was higher; and its value to the community is increasing daily, as indicated by the increasing number of calls made per telephone.

Model for Silver Coin

The model for the head of Liberty on the peace dollar of 1921 was Mrs. Anthony de Francisci, the wife of the sculptor who designed the coin. The sculptor has declared that the face on the coin is a composite face typifying something of America.

Miss Anna D. Williams of Philadelphia was the model for the profile of Liberty on the silver dollar minted from 1878 to 1904; no silver dollars were coined from 1905 to 1920. The number of stars appears to have no particular significance, except that as there were 15 states in 1794 when the first silver dollars were minted, 15 stars appeared on these coins. In 1797 a star was added for Tennessee, but later dollars had only 15 or 13 stars.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

"Well, it was like this. I had said good-night to Mark and gone into my room. I had pulled off my coat, had yanked off one shoe when I began to ruff. He reddened. 'Perhaps it's effeminate but I like a lot of 4711 in my tub, and I asked myself, 'Who's been using my bath crystals?' I heard sounds in the bathroom. It sort of took my breath for a minute and my brain whirled like a pin-wheel. Then I grabbed up a flash from the table beside the bed and tiptoed to the door. I banged it open. Water was gurgling out of the tub, dripping from the shower, my shaving things were scattered everywhere, and—a shoe was going out of the window.' Stewart pulled out a handkerchief and mopped his red, moist face.

"A shoe!" Brooke and Sam exclaimed in unison.

"I presume there was a foot in it. For an instant amazement paralyzed me. I made a strategic error. Instead of beating it after that shoe, I poked around. The razor was gone. That fact gave me a nervous chill. 'Why would a man take that? Who could it have been? Kowa?' I asked myself. 'But he has his own bath; why should he use mine?' Then I came to and realized I was wasting time."

"I'll say you were and you're fairly spilling it now. Keep going! You did go after him, didn't you?"

"I did, Sam, but first I shouted for Mark. I hadn't much hope that he would hear me but I didn't dare wait to make sure. I squeezed my boyish figure through that window and wriggled to the balcony. I listened. I could hear only the pound of the surf and the crack of frost in the trees. Cautiously I peered over. Nothing moving. A sound! After this I'll never doubt that hair can rise. Mine felt like that green stuff you see growing up straight on one of those terra cotta heads. I listened. Sounded like a curtain flapping. Then I noticed that the window next to mine was open. Had the man gone in instead of over?"

"I knew that it was a Lookout House window, Brooke, but I didn't know whose room. I couldn't be fussy about that. All the horrors I'd ever heard rushed through my mind as I thought of the missing razor and of what might be happening to you and Lucette and Sam."

He ran his fingers under his collar. "It chokes me even to think of it. Where was I? Oh, yes, I squeezed through and dropped softly to the floor. I stopped to lock the window and draw the shade—my late visitor might have a pal, I reasoned—before I tiptoed into the adjoining room. It was a bedroom unlighted. Behind a hanging I reconnoitered. A mirror over a desk in the next room reflected a boudoir with flower panels; then I knew that the room was Brooke's. All the lights were on. No one there. I crept in. A desk drawer was on the floor, its contents scattered in all directions. A chair was overturned. I lived years crossing that room. What could I see? What would I find on the other side of that door? The hall was dark. The man—

"Call him the Bath-Crystal Bandit and be done with it, but get him out of this house, Brooke's eyes will pop out of her head in a minute."

"Don't interrupt, Sam. Go on, Jed. Did you see anyone?"

"Couldn't see anything. Didn't dare use my flash for fear I might be spotted. I figured that the man had heard me enter my room, had beat it to the balcony, had seen the open window of this house, had crawled in planning to make his getaway from the lower floor. I gunshod down holding my breath at every creak of a stair board, expecting every minute that I'd be sniped at."

"In the hall I stopped to listen. Sounds upstairs. Faint sounds. I hunted for the light switch. Found it. It seemed years that I waited in the dark with my finger itching to press that button. The house was so still I could hear my brain working. Stairs creaked! Back stairs! A door swung! He was coming! A chair crashed! I had him! I shouted:

"Don't move! I've got you covered! Snapped on the hall light. When I saw you two blinking and staring like owls, you could have knocked me over with a toothpick. That's the end of my installment of the serial. Now, perhaps you'll explain why you were prowling round this house?"

With her arms in the big green mandarin sleeves crossed on the white porcelain table, her eyes deep shining pools of excitement, Brooke leaned forward and told him. Stewart's lips and cheeks puffed and deflated at second intervals as he listened.

Suddenly, Sam raised his hand in warning. "Listen, folks! Footsteps! Stealthy! Outside! Who's coming?" Jed Stewart sprang up. He caught his chair before it could crash, and swung it experimentally as Sam pressed the light switch and plunged the room into ghostly gloom.

The back door opened softly. Brooke held her throat tight in one hand to stifle an exclamation.

The light flashed on. She closed her eyes. Opened them. Was that Henri, Henri standing in the middle of the floor, with the blinking green parrot making queer noises under his arm, or was this more nightmare? She was awake. Sam was real, as he stood with his finger on the switch. Jed Stewart was real, as he puffed his lips in time to the swing of the chair he clutched. Henri's ghastly face, distended eyes, and the savage invectives which gritted through his chattering teeth, were real.

"Cut that line!" Sam took a step toward the butler. "You should appreciate this little surprise party instead of acting as if you'd stepped into a nest of scorpions. It wasn't but a couple of hours ago I saw you in this very kitchen dressed—or undressed—for bed. Why did you go out?"

Henri made a desperate attempt to steady his quivering mouth. He looked like an innocent prisoner haled before an accusing judge; his expression was incredibly grieved as he huddled the parrot under his arm and twisted his soft hat in one hand. He appealed to Brooke.

"I don't know why your brother should speak to me as if I was a criminal, Miss. Haven't I the right to go out at night, even if I had started for bed?" He attempted to inject the virus of defiance into his uneven voice.

"Of course you have, Henri, but the papers are so full of burglaries and hold-ups that when we heard you stealing in we didn't know but what it was our turn. Where did you find Mr. Micawber?"

"That's why I went out, Miss. Couldn't go to sleep, had him on my mind. Quiser where I found him. Everything's queer tonight," Henri shuddered. "Nothing strange has been happening in this house, has it?"

"Nothing at all, Henri, nothing at all," Sam assured quickly. "We sat up talking and got hungry again."

"I'm glad of that, Mr. Sam, that nothing strange happened, I mean, because I—I found things terrible wrong outside."

"Now, Don't Be Frightened, Maggie."

"Wrong!" Not until she felt Sam's foot on hers was Brooke conscious of her explosive exclamation. She noticed that the butler's long cruel fingers shook as he passed them over his slack mouth.

"I don't wonder you're upset, Miss; you'll be more so when you hear that the old madame's limousine is gone."

"Gone where?" Sam demanded. Henri shrugged this sloping shoulders. "That's what I asked myself when I opened the garage door and the big car wasn't there."

"What did you do after you discovered that Mrs. Dane's car was missing?" asked Brooke.

"I ran to the Other House—you'll excuse me, Miss, for going to Mr. Mark first; I've always thought of him as being the heir, you see."

"Don't stop even to explain, Henri. Can't you see that we are frightfully excited? Perhaps something more than the car has been stolen. Did you find Mr. Trent?"

"No, Miss, and there's something queer there too. That Jap, Kowa, came rushing to the door when I kept my finger on the bell, and he shouts:

"Where's my boss? I been over house, one, two, 'rree time. Boss gone! He been kidnaped, I tink! Loud noise. Mr. Jed's room. I run there quick. Green parrot in bathtub, sw'ring fine."

"I ran upstairs for the parrot, thinking the Jap had a bad scare on and I'd see Mr. Mark somewhere. But I didn't. The Jap and I looked everywhere but he was not there."

Tense silence in the white and green kitchen. Chilled and exhausted by his foray into the outside world, the parrot huddled within the curve of Henri's arm making sounds in his throat like a tribal dialect. The faint scent of bacon lingered in the stillness, a stillness haunted by tragic conjectures and possibilities which turned Brooke's blood to ice. Sam laughed from sheer nervous tension. Jed Stewart lashed at him furiously:

"You would do that! It's all theater to you Reburns, isn't it, and side-splitting theater at that. Where's Mark? That's the only thing I want to know. Where's Mark?"

"Present."

Mark Trent answered from the doorway. Brooke's heart stopped, raced on. What had made that deep welt across his forehead? His face was colorless.

Henri's thin quavery voice broke the spell.

"Have you been hunting for the parrot too, Mr. Mark?"

Mark Trent's hand was unsteady as he held a lighter to his cigarette. His eyes reflected the flame as he looked at the butler.

"Not for the parrot, Henri. I'm hunting now for the man who killed Mrs. Hunt."

CHAPTER X

Mark Trent flinched as he approached the white cottage. It seemed days since he had driven away from this very house in the limousine filled with his aunt's silver; days since the message had come to Cassidy's garage from the police that Mrs. Hunt was dead and he had left there in a flivver with Mike at the wheel. They had stopped at Lookout House to make sure that the Reburns were safe before they had burned up the road to get here. But it hadn't been days, not much more than an hour had passed. No use waiting, he must go in.

As he entered a small living-room, Inspector Harrison was kneeling by the fireplace. His piercing eyes glittered as he looked up and nodded to Mark.

"They got her all right."

Mark Trent stepped forward, blindly for an instant. He sunk his teeth deep in his lips to steady them before he looked down.

Lola, the woman who had been his wife, lay on the floor. She was dressed for the street—had she been about to drive away the limousine full of silver? The question flashed through his mind only to be instantly submerged in a flood of pity. She looked so young, so shabby, so hapless. Her shabbiness hurt him most, she had been so exquisite. He was glad that he had made her that allowance. Her hat had fallen off. A current of air stirred a lock of her dark hair. Her hands were still now. One gripped an open bag, the fingers of the other were bruised. He dropped to his knees beside the inspector.

"Can't something be done? Can't we move her to a couch?"

"No! No, not until the coroner comes."

"What happened?"

"They got her rings. She had rings, hadn't she?"

"She had when I saw her—a few days ago. Valuable rings. Other jewels too."

"Then I guess we got the motive. Better come away, boy, you can't do anything," Inspector Harrison suggested in his persuasive voice.

"Life hasn't seemed as smooth as a trotting park to me to date, Bill, but tonight it seems a terrifying, horrible thing."

"I know, boy, I know. Bring her in, Tim." The inspector spoke to the policeman with ears like clinging bats, who appeared at the door.

"It's the Cassidy girl," he explained to Mark. "Kinder tough to bring her into this room, but there don't seem to be any other place. We've waited till her father got here before questioning her. Mike's a grand fella and me friend since we were lads together. Here you are, Maggie!"

The hint of joviality in his soft voice missed its mark, for the sixteen-year-old girl, who entered the room as if dragged by unseen hands, regarded him with terrified Irish blue eyes.

The inspector placed a chair with its back to the still figure on the floor.

"Sit here, Maggie."

As she sat down, Mike Cassidy laid his heavy ham-bone hand on her shoulder. The inspector cleared his throat.

"Now, don't be frightened, Maggie. Ain't I just the same Bill Harrison who's been chumming round with your dad ever since you was a little girl, and ain't I got kids of my own? All you got to do is to tell me what happened in this house tonight."

"Course, I ain't afraid of you, Inspector," the girl replied, more at ease. "I'll tell what I know. I sleep in the attic, it's got a dormer back and front. I was dead beat when I went to bed, what with the housework an' havin' to run out to fill tanks. The boss was sick till afternoon an'—

"Drunk, wasn't he? Tell it straight, Maggie."

"All right, Inspector, he was. I don't know what time it was when I was woke up by a car stopping at the garage; sounded like a classy car. We don't have much late trade—an' the boss told me today that the crowned heads here, that's what he said, 'crowned heads,' had put him out of business—so I got up and looked out to see what 'twas all about. I can see into the garage from my back window."

"Check up on that, Tim."

"Yes, Inspector." The policeman with the ears vanished into the hall.

Friendly Talk

BUT after all, the very best thing in good talk and the thing that helps it most is friendship. How it dissolves the barriers that divide us, and loosens all constraint—this feeling that we understand and trust each other, and wish each other heartily well! Everything into which it really comes is good. It transforms letter-writing from a task into a pleasure. It makes music a thousand times more sweet. The people who play and sing not at us, but to us—how delightful it is to listen to them!

Yes, there is a talkability that can express itself even without words. There is an exchange of thought and feeling which is happy alike in speech and in silence. It is quietness pervaded with friendship.—Van Dyke.

OUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Mental Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

A Valuable Lesson

Last week I started the story of the school literally surrounded by milk but none for children to drink. The reason came out when in answer to my question one child said:

"My Dad sends all our milk to the city."

On the surface, then, it was a matter of income. But, obviously, it went deeper than that. Milk was being regarded as a mere commodity rather than as an essential food for growing children.

To get on with the story, the teacher bought canned milk from her own funds. She used it herself at noon in sight of the children. Naturally, they asked questions. It was her opportunity. She launched a class study of milk, emphasizing especially the advantages of plenty of fresh, pure milk for health. As its value were learned, the children became interested. They wanted to try it and gradually the whole class was enlisted, the teacher still supplying the milk.

After awhile an interesting thing occurred. Apparently, the children had carried the message of milk into the homes, for one day a small group of mothers waited upon the teacher with a message which was, in effect, that the farmers, who were also the fathers, had decided to supply the school with good fresh milk throughout the year, enough for each pupil to have one glass at noon. This was, indeed, a case of "casting bread upon the waters," to have it return a hundredfold.

"School Companions" will be the subject of Dr. Ireland's next article.
