Two Pinckney Residents Pass to the Great Beyond the Past Week

MILDRED SYKES SICLER

Mrs. Mildred Sygler, widow of the late Dr. Claude Sygler passed away on Saturday, January 29, 1938.

Mildred Emmaline Sykes, daughter of Casper and Emmaline Finch Sykes, was born in Pinckney on the 27th day of November, 1872. She received her education in the public schools and graduated from the Detroit Conservatory of Music. Returning to Pinckney she taught music until her marriage to Claude Leland Sygler then a student at the University of Michigan Medical School. To this union were born two sons, Hollis L. of Howell and Donald C. of Detroit. Besides her sons in her immediate family she leaves a niece, Isabel Sykes of Detroit, her husband, parents and brother, Carl Sykes, having preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held at the Community Church on Tuesday, Feb. 1st at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. H. Zuse officiating. Burial was in the Pinckney cemetery. The O. E. S. attended and took part in the services at the church.

MISS CARMEN LELAND

Carmen Leland, foster daughter of Wales and Frankie Leland, was born in Detroit, June 14, 1893, and passed away at Howell Hospital on January 27, 1938, at the age of forty-four years, seven months and 13 days.

She was an honor graduate of the Pinckney High School and held a degree from the Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti. For several years she had engaged in the teaching profession, having served her home school and at Trenton, Grand Ledge and Dundee. When stricken with her last illness she held the position of instructor in geography at the Ferguson school, River Rouge.

The deceased was a member of the Community Congregational Church at Pinckney, taking an active part in the various interests. She was also a member of the Kings Daughters' circle, and of the local chapter, O.E.S.

Immediate survivors are her foster-mother, Mrs. Frankie Leland, her father, William Beugrand, of Pontiac; and one sister, Mrs. Ruth Frost Skinner, of Detroit. She also leaves two uncles, Ernest and Albert Frost of Pinckney.

Miss Leland was one of Pinckney's best-loved daughters. She was possessed of rare qualities of mind and heart, an inborn dignity and quiet grace which endeared her to all her acquaintances. Her memory will always linger as a beautiful blending of life's best virtues—a will to serve one's generation faithfully and well; a broad and understanding mind; a pure and gentle heart.

Funeral services were held on Sunday of the 30th, with services at the house at one o'clock and 2 p. m. at the church. Reverend Zuse of the Community Cong'l church officiating. The O.E.S. took part in the service at the church. Burial was made in the Pinckney cemetery.

WORTHY CAUSE

Washington along with the rest of the nation danced Saturday night in observance of the President's Birthday so that victims of infantile paralysis might walk. The dancing of thousands were augmented considerably when arrangements were made to allow government employees to "charge" the $2.50 tickets until Monday, which was payday. The tickets were honored at any and all of the six largest Washington hotels. In the "March of Dimes" started by Eddie Cantor, the White House mailing staff was swamped, when 30,000 dimes arrived the first day and truck load after truckload of mail was carried into the White House with great demonstration of mass philanthropy.

110 couple attended the Presidents Birthday Ball at Howell last Saturday night.

NOTICE

The regular meeting of the Kings Daughters will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Read Thursday afternoon. The county board will be present.

Second Sex Crime Suspect Held

Wayne County Probationer Is Held at County Jail Charged with an Attack on a Young Brighton Woman

A second sex crime took place in this county last week and the first one in Green Oak some weeks ago it was committed by a man with a criminal record in Wayne county. The suspect is Fred Ward, 31, of Detroit and he was employed at the Jewish Fresh Air Camp at Lake Blaine near Brighton as caretaker. Ward was arrested some time ago in Detroit on a robbery charge and put on probation. He is also said to be wanted for deserting his wife and three children. Ward spent Thursday evening at the Hillcrest bar and grill station on Grand River near Island Lake. This is next to the Hillcrest Tavern, formerly called Devil's Den. The bar is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Hill. Mrs. Hill is the daughter of Wayne McNutt, owner of Hillcrest Tavern, and is 23 years old. Ward is said to have played cards for some time with Mr. and Mrs. Odell and Mrs. Russell Hope who is employed by them. About 3:00 A. M. Friday morning Odell took Mrs. Hope home. Ward also left but returned shortly when Mrs. Odell was alone with her two year old daughter. She resisted and he beat her into unconsciousness and left. She managed to get to her mother, Mrs. McNutt in the tavern and the state police were called. They arrested Ward at Plaine Lake. He was arraigned before Justice Knapp at Howell and bound over to trial in circuit court, without bail.

The Hillcrest or Devil's Den has been in the limelight several times in the past. In 1931 Arthur McNutt the owner shot and killed one Chas. Salisbury there. He was tried in the circuit court and acquitted after the jury was out all night. Later McNutt and his wife, Myrtle, were divorced and she has since run the business. Last spring Mrs. McNutt caused a sensation when she charged that men posing as government agents tried to extort money from her when she applied for a liquor license. Brighton township approved her license. The county officials did not. The case was taken to the honor commission and it was granted a license.

He Studied Not in Vain

State Tax Publication in this Issue

This Issue Carries the First of Five Publications of the Delinquent Tax Sale for Livingston County

The first of five weeks of publication of the Livingston County tax sale to take place next May appears in this issue. There are nearly 8000 descriptions published in this county. However not all of these will be sold. On account of the great amount of delinquent tax it was necessary to start tabulating the descriptions several months ago. So many taxes have been paid since then that it has been impossible for the treasurers to tabulate all of them.

Many more will be paid before May 1938. Previous to the sale in May the list will be checked over and all description of property on which the taxes have been paid will be marked off. So if you have paid your taxes and find your property advertised for sale for taxes do not be alarmed.

The great volume of work which was made necessary by the fact that there has been no tax sale for the past 6 years made it impossible for treasurers to keep up their work. We have some extra copies of the tax sale supplement which are available at this office. The Pinckney Dispatch was the only paper designated in Livingston county to publish the tax sale.

GUNDY TALKS WITH TREASURERS

After completing a series of meetings that included interviews with nearly all of the 83 county treasurers in the State, Auditor General George T. Gundry, today stated that he believed the tax sale next May would in most instances cause little confusion.

Gundry pointed out that one difficulty remaining unsolved was the publication of some descriptions as delinquent when payment of taxes had been made. This situation is unavoidable it was explained, and has developed as a result of the law that demands publication of delinquent lists five weeks prior to the tax sale.

As a result the lists in some counties are published months in advance of the sale and tax payers make payments while the lists are being compiled and published.

Gundry said published descriptions on which payment has been made would be withheld from sale by the County Treasurers.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS

If your property is listed for sale in the May 3 delinquent tax sale you have paid your taxes do not become alarmed as the descriptions from which these lists were published were not checked since 1936. All property on which taxes up to May 3 have been paid will be withheld from the May tax sale.

The 1938 dog tax is now due and payable. After March 1, 1938, a penalty will be charged. Male and unsexed dogs $2.00, Female dogs $4.00. Jennie Eastman, Co. Treas.

Philathea Notes

The Sunday School services were short this week, the lesson being a companion one to that of January 23 and covering Christ's ministry to Spiritual needs. Next Lord's Day the topic is "Challenging the Social Order". Mark 2:13-22. This is one pertinent "Problem for Discussion".

If we are to follow new leaders in the crusade for a Christian society what qualities must we be certain they possess.

The second Wednesday in February is our regular time for our social and business meeting. Consult Mrs. Zuse or Mrs. Elliott as to the meeting.

Next Sunday is Missionary Day in our Sunday School. The Benevolence first payment on our quota for this year, and would be grateful for as large an offering or as many personal gifts as possible. Ninety dollars is quite a sum to look forward to. May we depend on you, our readers, to help.

The sympathy of our class goes to the homes recently saddened by the death angel.

DEBATE UNLIMITED

President Roosevelt's request for an $800,000,000 appropriation to improve the national defense and the defeat of a cloture attempt in the senate to force a vote on the anti-lynching bill were new highlights of the last week in Washington. The house of Representatives progressed with appropriation and D. of C. legislation with a sad interruption caused by the accidental death of Hon. Edward A. Kenney, New Jersey representative who fell from the 6th floor of a Washington hotel. The week ended on a philanthropic note with thousands attending the President's birthday parties and the "March of Dimes" engulfing the White House correspondence staff.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee immediately introduced a bill to comply with the President's request for an adequate national defense. Roosevelt explained in his special message that one quarter of the world's population is now engaged in war and that other nations are armed to the teeth. In such circumstances it is only the policy of self preservation to keep the United States national defense capable of coping with any invading foe or combining force of enemies.

MORE POWDER

Included in the President's proposal were provisions for additional anti-aircraft equipment amounting to a $8,800,000 and items to improve the Army reserve Corps and $2,000,000 for additional Army munitions and $9,080,000 for new dies, gauges and Army material together with an increase of 20 percent in the Navy construction program. This increase will include building three new ships of 35,000 tonnage, two aircraft carriers and a gross total of 69 ships with gross tonnage of 400,662.

As a supplement to the defense message the President suggested that Congress consider legislation to take all profit out of war and provide for the equalization of burdens, which was interpreted as an endorsement of universal draft legislation. The president stated: It is necessary for us all to realize that unfortunate world conditions have resulted too often in the discarding of those principles and treaties which underlie international law and order. Adequate defense means that for the protection not only of our coats but also for our communities far removed from our coasts, we must keep any potential enemy many hundreds of miles from our continental limits. It is our duty to further efforts toward peace in every way but at the same time to protect our nation. That is the purpose of these recommendations.

CLOTURE FAILS

Requiring a two thirds majority to open the filibuster against the anti-lynching bill and to limit debate on the question, supporters of the anti-lynching legislation could muster only 37 votes in the Senate last week while 51 Senators voted against applying the gag on unlimited debate. McNair's senators divided on the question. Senator Brown voted for cloture and Senator Vandenberg voted against the only sure method of (Continued on last page)

TENDERS RESIGNATION

Rev. C. H. Zuse, pastor of the Pinckney Congregational Church tendered his resignation last Sunday. We understand that he has accepted another appointment. Rev. Zuse came here from Battle Creek four years ago.

CURRENT

For some years past, the unfortunate people who have been forced to apply for welfare aid have been held up to ridicule by that portion of the press to whom the economic royalists are sacred. They have repeatedly asserted that the people on welfare are perfectly satisfied with being on the dole and would not accept a job if offered. They have repeated this statement so often that they believe it themselves. Probate Judge Malcolm Hatfield of Berrien county doubted this statement and he and his wife determined to try out the $2 a week welfare allowance. They found it could not be done and in addition the judge and his wife lost four pounds each in weight and got mighty sick of the diet which was mostly beans. A Detroit caterer suggests beef knuckle soup for seven days but this diet would be as monotonous as the judges beans.

The Republicans are getting a lot of fun out of the fact that the face of Thomas Jefferson, patron saint of the Democrats will be put on the new five cent piece which will replace the buffalo nickel. That is all that the Democrats care for Jefferson and his policies they hint. However they should bear in mind that it was the Taft administration that put the head of Lincoln on the lowly penny.

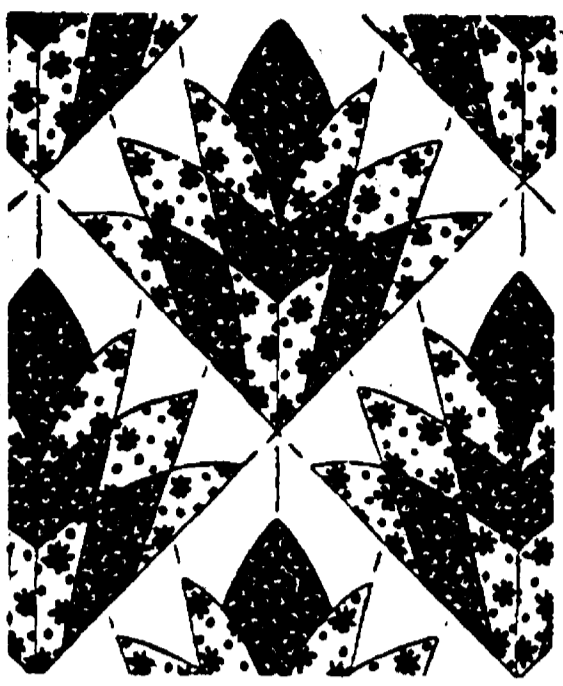

A sensation was caused last week when Mrs. Clark Van Auker, Democrat national committeewoman for Michigan attended a meeting of the Republican Women in Detroit last week. However the press points out, that this is not extraordinary. The late Horatio Abbott often attended Republican meetings and James Davidson, Republican committeeman has been seen at Democrat gatherings. The most humorous occurrence of this kind occurred back in the prohibition days. The wet forces then had elected Rev. Pengelly of Flint as their candidate for congress in the old 6th district. A monster wet banquet was planned for him in Detroit. Some wag sent Rev. Holsapple, leader of the Anti-Saloon League an invitation to it and he attended. Henry M. Joy, angel of the wet forces was so flabbergasted he nearly had a stroke of apoplexy. The banqueters did not know what to do so they did nothing and the Reverend Holsapple stayed until the end. The Reverend Pengelly failed to win the nomination and the ridicule caused by this event may have played its part.

The state supervisors met in convention at Lansing last week with 60 of the 83 counties represented. The Chairman, Melville McPherson got his amendment favoring the old welfare system adopted 400 to 8 but still did not declare himself a candidate for governor. He had a booth outside the convention hall in charge of C. K. Runciman of Lowell advocating his candidacy and members of the Kent county board of supervisors announced they were sending out 50,000 pledge cards to voters of the state asking them to nominate McPherson for governor this year. McPherson succeeded in getting a special committee appointed to work against the new welfare plan. He also asked the state legislature to appropriate $15,000,000 for relief to be apportioned among the counties according to population. Resolutions were presented asking Governor Murphy to call a special session to consider welfare aid, school aid, road aid, and to remove the sales tax from food and substitute an income tax or some other form of taxation.

The liquor business in Michigan is again under fire and the wise ones claim the dry sentiment is increasing daily. The chief complaint seems to be that there are too many liquor dispensing places and too many of them are being granted to undesirable applicants. This was the same condition that prevailed in the old saloon days. Nobody but the cities and townships are to blame for this condition. The liquor commission, except in Wayne county cannot grant a license unless the local body approves it. Eagerness for their share of the liquor license money has caused many cities and townships to approve licenses for unsuitable applicants. This holds true all over the state and the governing units which permits this condition to exist are too blind to see that they are killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon appears is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomfort from the menstrual disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife! Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "smiling through."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, a sense of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disease may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. The Dose's Pills, Dose's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Congress has been doing a deal of talking about helping business to get on its feet, but it has not yet accomplished much.

Much Talk, No Action
The house ways and means committee, it is true, is making some headway and a number of senators, including the powerful Senator Harrison of Mississippi, are asserting the necessity for a reversal of federal policy. But, again, there is much more talk than action, and in the meantime the country's business is sliding lower and lower.

The difficulty in the present situation and the thing that probably has been more responsible for the business slump than anything else is that business heretofore has been unable to tell what the federal government is going to do. It has become evident already that with a somewhat changed atmosphere in congress, there are many business men who are more hopeful than a month ago. Business men, big and little, are quick to note that there are senators and representatives who think the time has arrived for business to receive some consideration. And it ought to be added that unless business does get some consideration, this current depression is going to be as bad as the last one. The federal government must give attention to the agricultural problem and it must fit that job into some consideration of the other half of American life, namely, the commerce and industry outside of agriculture.

It will be recalled that during the first two years of President Roosevelt's administration there was a flock of laws passed that were of great value to the country. Many of them were of a temporary character and were enacted on that basis. That would have been fine if the administration had stopped there. But it did not. The roaming herd of so-called thinkers who were scattered far and wide in federal jobs had to have their innings. At least they thought they had to have a turn at bat. All of their pet theories had to be tried out. The result: many laws that were purely experimental, dangerous, damaging and a burden to business.

With many millions of others, I expected at that time to see these queer looking laws shaken down, corrected, or repealed where it was found necessary. That has not happened. Again, the result: the country's business from the smallest general store at a cross roads or a garage or a gasoline station to the greatest corporation, like General Motors or Pennsylvania railroad, has had to suffer under the heavy heel of the national government. The reason that congress is showing signs of a movement that will revise the tax structure is because these smaller businesses out through the country have now got their fill of government red tape, complex reports, visits of investigators, new tax forms and levies, or what have you. Those people are making themselves heard here in Washington.

So if congress takes some action looking to a fair deal for business, just as it is quite determined to do something for agriculture, I entertain no doubt about the response it will get from the business interests. As far as business has made itself felt, it is apparently asking only to be treated equitably with labor. Every one knows that the last three or four sessions of congress have been frightened to death every time a labor leader showed up on Capitol hill. The reward given congress was the C. I. O. sitdown strikes, violence and a general mess. The condition has left a goodly number of senators and representatives a bad taste in their mouths.

There is plenty of dirty linen in the business closet. It has a hard wash day ahead to restore it to the respect of the bulk of the people. Business has been smug. It has thought too little, in many instances, of its obligations to the public at large. But surely there is a point beyond which federal punishment ought not go since there is a responsibility also in the other direction. Unless business gets a reasonable chance to stand on its own feet, how is it going to re-employ workers and reduce the relief rolls?

Every individual wants to earn some money. He wants a return for his labor. He dreams some day of a retirement, a lay off when he can watch the world go by. I can see no reason why the federal government should not encourage, rather than discourage, such a thing. It is the conviction of a very great many, an increasing number of people that the federal government is messing too much into business.

But aside from that phase. There are a number of things happening that are difficult to understand. At a time when business is sliding off like a snowball going down hill, the President steps out and orders an investigation by the federal trade commission into "high prices." The inquiry, of course, is directed at monopoly. I have no doubt at all that there will be a blast from some government official pretty soon in which "big business" again will be told it is crushing the "little fellow" and that the public is suffering from the high prices maintained by a "trust." There may be even a fireside chat because a President's voice penetrates everywhere.

At a time, too, when the prices of bonds and shares of corporation stock are sinking like they have double pneumonia, out bursts Chairman Douglas of the securities and exchange commission with a small cargo of dynamite about crooked dealings underneath in the stock exchanges of the country. Fortunately for the hundreds of thousands of small investors, the stock exchange quotations did not fall much further as a result of Mr. Douglas' learned remarks. The prices already had fallen below the knees. But the Douglas statement certainly gave no confidence to those who were beginning to believe that congress would try to undo some of the wrongs previously done.

Just about the same time and during frequent appeals from the senators and representatives that the tax laws had to be overhauled, the President sent a report to congress. It was a report by the New York Power authority, charging the power interests with some weird misdoings. I happen to know some of the folks on the staff of the power authority and I feel that they know just about as much about the power problem as I do—which is to say they are pretty dumb about the situation. Of course, those alleged economists have brilliant ideas about reforming America, and I am dumb about that, too.

Further: While this power authority report was being embellished upon the front pages of newspapers, President Roosevelt was holding long conferences with Wendell Wilkie and Fred Carlisle, who personify the "power trust," if there be a power trust. Mr. Roosevelt was talking with those men in an effort to get the large power interests to go ahead with construction and expansion programs to provide work for unemployed.

The political strategy of blaming everything on "big business" worked well for a time, just as the old demagoguery about "Wall Street" used to inflame thousands when a politician orated and slapped his legs with widely swinging arms. But the picture is different now. The attack on business has become a mill stone on business and it has crushed little as well as big—and since there are so many more smaller ones than there are trusts and monopolies, members of congress are hearing about it from men whom they went to school with at home.

But what is to be done? Let congress repeal about five hundred laws that force business to pay more for the privilege of doing business than it gets out of its whole volume; reduce or revise the direct taxes and bring the thousand and one items of tax out in the open so the people can see and know what they are paying; cut out forty or fifty of the silly experiments that were worked up by the coterie of individuals who are constantly feeding Mr. Roosevelt half-baked and cockeyed schemes for spending money and thereby reduce the federal expenses—these and many more of honest purpose can be done. If they are done, business again can employ workers and as it employs workers, they come off the relief rolls, and as they get wages, they buy. This means profits and profits mean tax receipts by the treasuries of state and nation.

To show how some of these taxes come about, I am told that Herman Oliphant, general counsel to the secretary of the treasury, promoted the ridiculous tax on undistributed profits of corporations. When it was pushed through congress Mr. Roosevelt said it would force corporations to declare dividends of all of their earnings and he was for it. It did just that. But when the corporations had distributed everything to their shareholders and their volume of business fell off, they had no money left to tide them over until business picked up again. Hence, some of them are on the verge of bankruptcy. I do not know where Mr. Oliphant got the idea, or how he sold it to Mr. Roosevelt. I do not know of any business connection that Mr. Oliphant ever had with any important corporation. It is important, however, to note that Mr. Oliphant has made no move whatsoever to defend this brain child that turned out to be such an unwanted baby. (And while writing about Mr. Oliphant, it may be noted that until Secretary Morgenthau came onto the scene, there was never any need for a general counsel to the secretary of the treasury.)

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK—If President Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina of the Dominican republic persists in his impromptu war with Haiti, and spurns President Roosevelt's offer of mediation, it is possible that they might buy him off with a fast black shortstop and a couple of outfielders.

President Molina is a rabid baseball fanatic, and only last June he was accused of stealing many of the best players of the American negro teams. The charges, quite violent and vehement they were, were made by the National Negro League of America, comprising six teams, and were backed up by Ferdinand Q. Morton, New York civil service commissioner, who is the Judge Landis of the league.

It was asserted that agents and emissaries of the President did repeatedly, by trick and device, snatch an ebony ball player wherever they might find him; that they had thus cashed some of the best talent of the negro league. The Pittsburgh Crawfords were especially loud and insistent in their complaint.

The dictator of Santo Domingo learned fighting and ball playing with the United States Marines, with them eight years, until the end of the period of occupation in 1924. When he took over the country in 1930, by double-crossing old President Velasquez, his enemies said, he made baseball a major detail of his planned economy.

He helped build up the Central American league and brought through quite a few pennant winners. He throws big parties for the visiting teams at his palace in Ciudad Trujillo. He'll practically call out the army to surround a good ball player.

He was a farm boy when the marines came along. He worked up in the Dominican army from private to brigadier general, gaining the presidency by a clever coup d'etat. In 1933, he liquidated a strong opposition by putting it in jail. Several thousand exiles have for several years maintained a junta in New York city, led by Dr. Angel Morales, former Dominican minister to Washington. They have accused President Trujillo of wholesale killings and of ruthless suppression of all political rights and civil rights.

When Sergei Bensome, former secretary of war, was murdered in New York in April, 1935, the political enemies of the dictator said his agents had committed the crime. When he became president in 1930, at the age of thirty-seven, he was the youngest ruler of any sovereign state.

THE Republicans, like the Democrats, go to the Grove of Academe when they are short on ideas. Word from Washington is that they are sounding out Harris Willis Dodds, president of Princeton; James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard; James R. Angell, president emeritus of Yale, and Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, for the work of drafting a comeback program for the party.

A former member of the Republican National committee, who still keeps a few pipe lines open, tells me chances favor President Dodds, as to both choice and acceptance of the chairmanship of the program committee.

President Dodds, who looks and works like Woodrow Wilson, is a specialist in government. He has a generally liberal slant, but has been vigorously outspoken against bureaucracy and, has steadily cried down the juggernaut state. The curse of "statism," he says, is the world's greatest menace. He would appear to fit into the picture of a rejuvenated and realistic party reorganization.

He has for years been known as an expert on plebiscites, electoral practice and municipal government. He was a technical adviser in the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute and refereed the Nicaraguan election of 1928. Later he saved New Jersey $14,000,000 by a 150,000-word digest of a governmental reorganization survey.

He is a native of Utica, Pa., educated at Grove City college, Pa., and Princeton, with a doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania. He lectured on political science at Western Reserve, Pennsylvania and Swarthmore and became a traveling student of Latin America, finding there a useful laboratory of political techniques.

Princeton made him a lecturer on politics. It all sounds pretty dry, but he is always alert to the human equation and stipulates his desiccated thesis with a dash of color.

Sew-Your-Own Joins Santa

DID you know, Milady, that Santa Claus and Sew-Your-Own have joined forces to make this the brightest, charmingest Christmas you've ever known? Yes, it's a fact! And you who've tried so hard to be good (and never a little naughty) are going to be rewarded to the full. Gifts by Sew-Your-Own from Santa Claus to you. Here's what you may expect (but remember, "Do not open until Christmas").

Festive Fashion.
You're in line for personalized gifts this year, lucky lady, and what could be closer to your heart's desire than a velvet housecoat—nothing indeed (Sew-Your-Own knows every girl's weakness). So keep your fingers crossed and say a little prayer that December 25th will find you merry, cozy and beautiful in this festive young fashion.

For Miss Keep-the-Home-Beautiful we've specially designed a pair of really different aprons. One is the kind to wear when actually doing kitchen chores, the other is a dressy model—so pretty you will make a darling hostess. Sew-Your-Own sends these out in one package but Santa may split them up, so don't feel slighted, Miss K-T-H-B, if your stocking gives forth only one—either the tea time model or the all-around-the-clock style.

For the Very Young.
If you're a very young lady you may find Gift No. 1393 or Gift Set No. 1423 packed neatly in your stocking one fine morning soon. The former, a dress plus dainty shorts, will be a peachy combination to wear to parties when you want to be "dressed up swell." The Temple Trio, a hat, scarf and muff set, was designed to put a little "Hollywood" in your Christmas. It's as bright and cheerful as you could wish for. Hope you're the winner, little lady!

8 simple rules

FOR GOOD

"HOME-MADE LIGHTING"

To make sure you have proper light in every room of your home, you can prescribe your own home lighting by following these eight simple rules:

- 1 Use the right size lamp in the right fixture. Too large or too small a lamp can definitely cause eye discomfort. When you exchange burned-out lamp bulbs, make sure you get the size lamps suited to your needs.
- 2 Have enough light for each seeing task. Your eyes need more light for such tasks as sewing, mending, reading fine print, etc., than they do for relatively simple occupations such as dining, conversation, etc. There are definite recommendations to guide you in the amount of light required.
- 3 Avoid bare lamp bulbs... they cause glare. Raw lighting is poor lighting—even if there is plenty of it. Shaded lamps are always preferable.
- 4 Eliminate harsh contrasts (brilliant light and dark shadows). You can do this by having general room wide light to supplement local lighting. It is bad practice to have bright pools of light in a dark room. It makes the room appear spotty and is a cause of eye discomfort and fatigue.
- 5 In your floor or table lamps, choose the type of lamp with a reflector bowl. The bowl helps to diffuse the light, assuring a soft, pleasant quality of illumination. Some of the light goes to the ceiling and is reflected back. Wherever possible, choose shades with a white lining. They provide more light for the electricity used.

6 Wipe lamp bulbs frequently with a dry cloth—also the reflector bowl of your floor and table lamps. Dust and dirt sometimes reduces by one-third the amount of light you get from a lamp.

7 Always bear in mind the decorative fitness of your lamps and fixtures. There is style in lighting just as in household decoration, and the selection of lamps is important. Curtains and draperies that are suited perfectly to an ensemble in one room may be quite wrong for another, and the same thing is true of your floor and table lamps.

8 If in doubt about any phase of your home lighting, call in a Detroit Edison Home Lighting Advisor. He will give you helpful advice on your lighting problems. There is no charge for this service.

Conservation Dept. Notes

According to the conservation dept. Scott Boyer, 84, of Charlotte who trapped muskrats and mink this year is the oldest operating trapper in the state. He has been active at it for 74 years.

Three more wild life sanctuaries have been established. One of 120 acres in Menominee county, one of 150 acres in Emmet county and 430 acres in Crawford county.

Three of Michigan's state parks may not be opened this year unless an emergency allotment of $35,000 is granted.

Loss of contracts with the state which permits trappers to trap for bounty animals is the penalty which awaits trappers found guilty of violating the game laws.

The new fish hatchery at Lake Goble will have an output of 30,000, 000 well eyed pike fry this year.

The beaver trapping season is on from March 17 to March 31 in the lower peninsula. The trapping is designated as north of town 16 and west of Saginaw Bay, plus Mecosta, Montcalm and Midland counties.

4,046 game, fish and fur law violations were prosecuted in Michigan in 1937.

One Singer pled not guilty in the court of Justice Knapp of Howell to trapping in muskrat houses. When the justice went out and took a picture of the house he changed his plea to guilty.

Another sub-station for the housing of fire fighting equipment is on contract at Kalkaska.

This book, not fiction, but a mercurial statement of facts that has aroused a violent controversy in Europe, is now appearing daily in the Detroit Times.

USED CAR OWNERS SHOULD OWN TITLES

People who must transfer titles of cars to themselves before purchasing them should not delay at action longer, State officials warned.

While a record for titles transfers was made in 1937 there is every indication that people who have purchased used cars are still holding up title transfers until ready to buy the new plates in belief they will avoid the $1 fee for transferring. However this charge cannot be evaded.

Frank W. Carney, Director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the Department of state of Michigan points out that those selling cars to purchasers should see that the titles are transferred. Legal responsibility rests with the recorded owner. Figures show that more than a million cars will lack plates for 1938 and the deadline at March 1st. Those who involve plate purchases with title transfers will slow down the whole process for themselves and everyone else the people are reminded.

GUIDE BOOK to GOOD VALUES

When you plan a trip abroad, you can take a guide book, and figure out exactly where you want to go, how long you can stay, and what it will cost you.

The advertisements in this paper are really a guide book to good values. If you make a habit of reading them carefully, you can plan your shopping trips and save yourself time, energy and money.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

"So we're off to be married! That's all right with me," Jerry Field approved fervently. Brooke, whose face was pressed against the back window of the roadster, twisted round in her seat. "Don't be foolish, Jerry. Of course we're not. That was a red herring drawn across our trail."

"Just why the red herring?"

The ironic note in his voice gave her a chill tremor of dismay; she didn't care for the way in which his eyes narrowed as they peered through the wind shield. She protested:

"Don't speak like that, it makes me shivery, and goodness knows my teeth are fairly chattering now." She turned to peer from the rear window. "No car in sight yet. Can you go a little faster?"

"Not without a risk of skidding off the causeway and breaking our necks. Can't you see how the snow is plastering the wind shield. The squeegee barely moves. Why the haste?"

"While I'm telling you I'll keep watch. The excitement began upon my return from the play."

She told him of leaving her town car in the garage, of stopping in the purple gloom under the hemlock to look at the lighted windows of the stone houses crouched on the ledge; her breath quickened as she repeated the words of the man who had produced the newspaper clipping:

"It's the picture of the dame who said: 'He was a swell-dressed fellow.' I'll have to date her up."

"That was what the Cassidy girl said about the man they suspect robbed Mrs. Hunt!"

Field's voice was sharp, his personal problem was submerged in a mounting tide of excitement. The car shot ahead like a whippet unleashed.

"I know that now. The certainty as to who he was flashed through my mind while I was dressing, and the suspicion that he might be at the Other House tonight to lift—that's the technical term, isn't it—Mrs. Gregory's gorgeous diamonds."

"Why didn't you phone the police?"

"With Henri in the house? I may be a slow thinker but I'm not absolutely dumb."

"And the suitcase?"

"A touch of theater. I thought if one of the gang saw us starting, he might suspect he had been discovered, but if he heard what I told Taku he would feel secure. Elopements happen every day."

"Not in my young life," Jerry Field retorted crisply.

They maintained a breathless, alert silence until the roadster turned a corner into a street which had an air of lonely spaciousness. Just ahead bulked the combination jail and police headquarters, gloomy and ponderous.

"Shall I come in with you?" Field asked, as he stopped the roadster before a heavy iron door and cut off his engine.

"Yes, I may need you to corroborate my story. When I burst in upon them in this gown, they may think I'm crazy. Hurry! We don't know what is going on at the Other House."

Field slipped his arm within hers as they mounted the snowy steps.

"I'll stick around and wait till you call me. Don't shiver, sweet thing. You're not afraid of the inspector, are you?"

"Afraid! No. Haven't I been cross-examined by him almost every day since what Sam calls 'our late unpleasantness'? It's just the Reyburn temperament."

Her satin sandals skidded treacherously in the corridor as she confronted a policeman whose nose, criss-crossed with a network of fine veins, had the effect of a red "stop" signal.

"Where's the inspector? I must see him. Matter of life and death," she confided breathlessly. In her excitement she caught the man's arm and shook it. He scowled at her, looked beyond her at Jerry Field; his expression mellowed.

"Inspector's just come in. He's in the radio division. Go through those swinging doors up them stairs to the tower."

Brooke was through the doors before the man had finished speaking. Three or four men leaning over a great U-shaped table looked up as she entered the room. With a muttered exclamation, the inspector left them and came forward.

A man sitting at a telephone said something in a low voice to an officer before a microphone. Tubes in the broadcasting apparatus crackled into life. He said slowly and distinctly into the mike:

"Calling car 3131. Car 3131. Car 3131. Go to K and Tenth street."

Brooke commanded breathlessly: "Listen to me, Inspector. The man who robbed Lola Hunt is serving supper at the Trent house on the point!"

Inspector Bill Harrison smiled, a curious smile.

"Wish I'd known this before, Miss Reyburn. I've just come from the point, following a tip I had. What's the dope on this bandit? Is it the same guy you saw at the Supper club?"

"It must be, Inspector. Tonight—Before she had finished telling of the alleged waiter's remark about Maggie Cassidy's picture, machinery was crackling again and the man at the microphone was broadcasting distinctly: "Calling car 1942. Car 1942. Car 1942. Go to Trent house on point. Inspector will meet you. Calling car 6784. Car 6784. Car 6784. Go to Trent house on point. Inspector will meet you."

Inspector Bill Harrison was out of the room before the man at the microphone had completed the call. One of the officers turned over two discs on the U-table; the other frowned at her with the bluest, most Irish eyes she ever had seen as he answered her unspoken question:

"We don't dare be more explicit over the mike, Miss. The thugs pick up the messages."

"I hope they get there in time, Sergeant!"

"Time for what, Miss?"

"I think—I think he's there to get Mrs. Gregory's diamonds—she's—she's simply plastered with them tonight."

Jerry Field was pacing the lower corridor when she reached it.

"It's about time you appeared, Brooke! I was just coming up to look for you. What do we do next?"

"Back to the party of course."

The wind whirled her short hair, clutched at her satin skirts, tugged at her velvet wrap as they went down the jail steps. As Jerry Field tucked the robe about her wet feet he looked up. Snow had settled in the brim of his soft hat, whitened his shoulders.

"Let's make a break for town, sweet thing, and make that yarn you told Taku the truth."

The expression in his eyes, the break in his voice hurt her. She said unsteadily:

"Please, Jerry! I can't care for it that way. Take me back quickly, will you? We mustn't miss Sam's party."

"Oh Sam! Sam is your white-haired boy. He's all that you Reyburn women think of or care about. I believe you'd sell your soul for him!"

After one look at his grim mouth and gloomy eyes, Brooke snuggled into her corner of the seat.

They sped in silence through the night. Toward the east the drab, heavy clouds were thinning before a spreading radiance.

"I believe the snow is letting up, Jerry. Look! The moon is trying to break through! Drive faster. I can't wait to know what has happened."

"Don't worry, you'll get to the party all right."

Brooke ignored his reassurance. "Of course I want to get to the party. But I shan't feel guilty that I dragged you away from the fun and congratulations. Leave me at Look-out House. I must change these soaked sandals before I join the festivities. Here we are."

From the top of the steps she looked down at Field who was looking up at her.

"I'm sorry, Jerry," she whispered softly, before she entered the house and closed the door behind her.

"He doesn't really love me, he's a spoiled boy who wants what he can't have," she reassured herself, as in her boudoir she changed her wet sandals.

She readjusted the rhinestone and emerald clip on her white frock, sprayed perfume on her hair, powdered her nose, accented her lips. She shook her head at the looking-glass girl.

"Stalling, aren't you, Brooke Reyburn? You dread to face Mark Trent with that will you've kept back for two days, don't you? Get going!"

She crossed to the desk, found the key where she had hidden it.

"Zero hour," she said aloud, and unlocked the drawer in which she had placed the will.

She looked down.

The drawer was empty.

CHAPTER XIV

People coming, but not going; music never stopping. It was that kind of a party.

To the accompaniment of the hum of voices, the stimulating beat and throb of the orchestra, the distant faint tinkle of silver and glass,

Sam Reyburn made slow progress through the gay, colorful crowd on the lower floor of the Other House, grinning at girls in lovely evening frocks who cooed over him; frowning at men who tried to detain him.

From where he stood on the lowest step of the circular stairway, Mark Trent watched him. "All this praise is heady stuff for a boy," he thought, and then reminded himself that Sam wasn't a boy. Why wasn't Brooke with him to share the honors? She had been the first to leave the hall, the man in charge of the parked cars had told him. Where was Jerry Field? He hadn't appeared either.

A curious premonition turned him cold. Of course Brooke hadn't meant it when in answer to his sarcastic suggestion she had said she would end Field's torment. Hadn't she? There had been infinite determination in her crisp retort:

"I will, tonight."

"Seen Brooke, Mark?" Sam Reyburn inquired as he approached. "I want her to be the first to know that I'm getting a contract; that I have an option in my pocket and a check."

Mark Trent laid his hand affectionately on his shoulder.

"Great stuff, Sam, great stuff. I was sure that the New York producer was hooked when he spoke to me."

Sam grinned. "Offered you the lead in a Broadway production, didn't he? He's a publicity hound. Think of the headlines: "Leading Insurance Executive Leaves Lucrative Business for the Stage." Will you do it?"

"What do you think? How's the party going, Mrs. Gregory?"

Mark Trent smiled at the woman whose blazing tiara on her marcelled white hair, and plastron of diamonds on her purple velvet gown dimmed what sparkle life had left in her tired eyes. She answered crisply:

"Listen to the hubbub and you won't ask the question. Your party has brought out tails and white ties, Mark, that's a triumph in itself. I always know what guests think of my parties by the way they dress for them." She patted Sam's sleeve.

"My boy, your play is the sweetest, loveliest, most heart-wringing thing I've seen on the stage for years. Where's your sister? I want to tell her what I think of it."

"That's what Mark and I were wondering. She left the hall before the rest of us; she told me before the first curtain was rung up that she would dash home to change for the party."

Mrs. Gregory's face grew a shade less colorful. "I don't like her not being here. I don't like it. I've been uneasy about that girl every moment since she testified at the inquest about the strange man who passed through her room the night of the filling station hold-up. The man hasn't been caught. She knows too much. They may try to put her out of the way."

The strong lenses in Sam's horn-rimmed spectacles magnified the horror in his eyes.

"What an awful suggestion, Mrs. Gregory! What a gosh-awful thought!"

It was an awful thought, but improbable, most improbable, Mark Trent assured himself. With difficulty he cleared his voice of hoarseness before he announced:

"You've been reading mystery stories, Empress, confess now, haven't you? Just the same, we'll start on Brooke's trail at once. What is it, Kowa?"

He spoke sharply to the servant who had wormed his way through the crowd of dancers who overflowed from the library to the hall.

"Much obliged, Madame Gregory's car here. Chauffeur say to tell her storm bad, very bad. She better get home. He know she not like to be out in storm."

"Tell him to—where Brooke is," Mrs. Gregory snapped.

"Did you see Miss Reyburn come in, Kowa?" Mark Trent inquired. Of course, the suggestion that she was in danger was absurd, but it was getting under his skin.

The Jap's slanting eyes narrowed to mere slits. He put his lips close to Mark Trent's ear and whispered:

"Miss Reyburn tell Taku she and Mr. Field go to marry, thank you. She carry suitcase, sir."

"What!"

Had he shouted the word? Mark's eyes flashed from Mrs. Gregory to Sam Reyburn. Both were regarding him anxiously, but apparently neither had caught the content of Kowa's whisper.

"Has anything happened to Brooke?" Mrs. Gregory's lips twitched, tears filled her eyes. Sam caught Trent's arm.

"What did Kowa say? What did he say?"

Mark Trent steadied his mind. He must reply to their questions. What should he say? He couldn't blurt out the truth here. Perhaps Brooke had flung that remark at Taku for dramatic effect. But the suitcase—

"Mark! Mark! Why don't you answer?"

He looked down into Mrs. Gregory's eyes, terrified now.

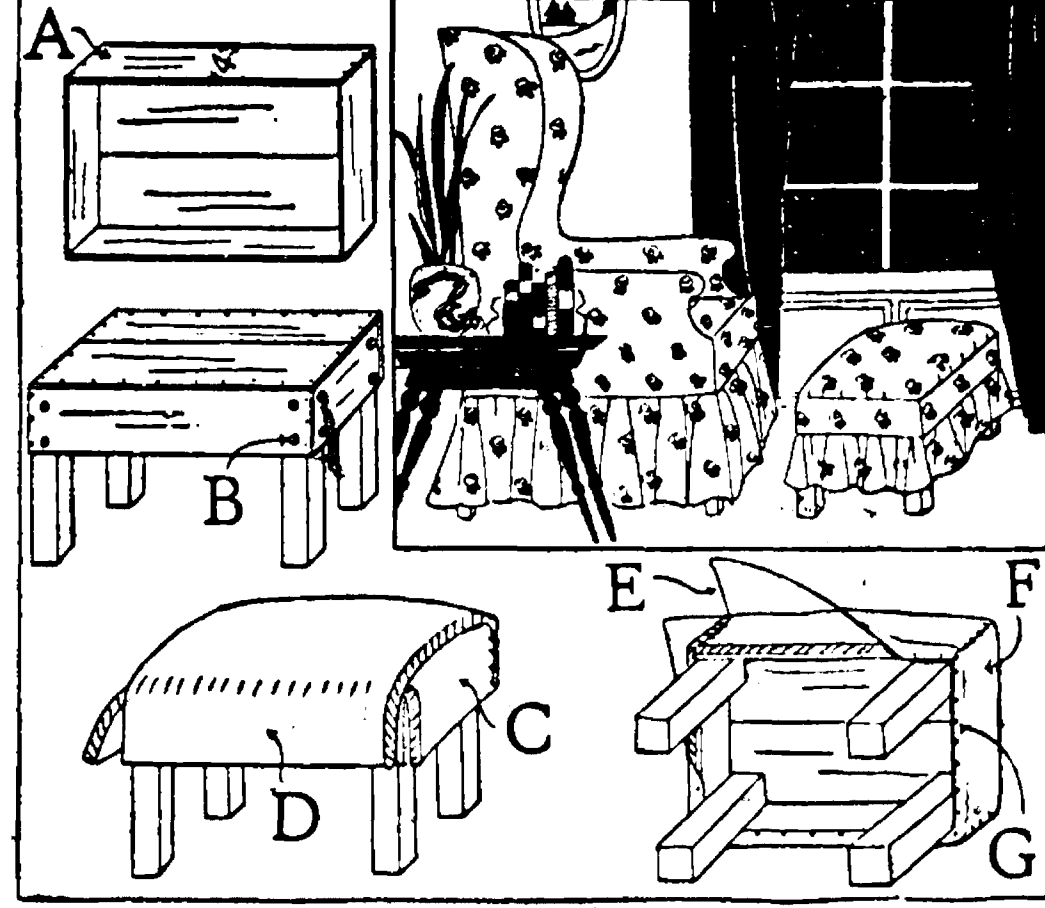

"Brooke is perfectly safe. She—There's Field! Ask him where she is. He saw her last. Go get him, Sam! Go get him!"

"No need, he's coming as fast as he can push through the dancers, and Ted Stewart is at his heels. They are white as sheets. What's all the mystery? The air is full of it. My skin's turning to gooseflesh. For Pete's sake, where's Brooke, Jerry?"

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Make This Attractive Ottoman.

GET a wooden box from the grocer. It should be about as long as the width of the chair with which the ottoman is to be used. The depth of the sides should be four inches as shown here at A.

The legs should be made of two by two's or you may have a set of nicely turned legs from an old table or other piece of furniture that may be cut down to the right length. Fasten in place with long screws through the corners of the box as shown here at B.

About half a bat of cotton will be needed. Put five or six layers of the cotton on the top, cutting the first layer about four inches smaller all around than the top of the box. Place it in the center. Cut the next layer a little bigger and the others still bigger until the last one is the same size as the top. Now, cut a layer of cotton to go over the top and down over the ends as at C and another to go over the top and down the sides as at D.

Cut a piece of heavy muslin to fasten tightly over the cotton. Cut the corners of the muslin as at E. Sew with heavy thread as at F and then tack as at G.

To make the cover, stretch the top tightly over the muslin and sew it along the sides through the muslin, then make a straight four-inch band to go all around and add the ruffle to it.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplains St., Chicago, Illinois.

Witty Dr. Holmes

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous essayist, author and physician, father of the late justice, met a man who had devoted himself to lecturing throughout New England, without much ability for the task. In other words, he was much of a bore. "What are you about now?" asked Dr. Holmes. The answer was, "Oh, lecturing as usual. I speak at Dedham this evening." "Good," said Holmes, "I'm delighted to hear it. I never liked those Dedham people."

Be considerate! Don't cough in the movies. Take along a box of Smith Brothers Cough Drops for quick relief. Black or Menthol—5¢.

Smith Bros. Cough Drops are the only drops containing VITAMIN A. This is the vitamin that raises the resistance of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat to colds and influenza.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

bringing the question to a vote in the senate. According to Senate history the cloture rule, which terminates debate and forces a vote after a stipulated period for argument and discussion, has been invoked only 3 times while the senate has seven times refused to shut off unlimited discussion. Under the Senate rules any Senator may speak twice on the anti-lynching bill but may introduce as many amendments as he wishes and speak twice on each amendment. For practical purposes this regulation, when not limited by cloture, means unlimited debate. One Southern senator last week offered 37 amendments which were ordered printed. These amendments from one source would allow every senator who wanted to speak on the amendments a chance for 74 addresses in addition to as many amendments as he wished to offer himself. The only limitation would be the physical endurance of the speakers.

Privileged questions, such as reports of conference committees of the House and Senate including the Housing Bill that had been approved by the House, may be taken up by the Senate to displace temporarily the anti-lynching question. But if any bill, not of privileged class is considered the anti-lynching would lose its preferred status and resume a regular place on the senate calendar to be called up only by majority request. Senate leaders during the week end were considering the substitution of the Housing Bill for the anti-lynching debate early this week.

HENRY F. KICE

A sense of great personal loss was felt by the entire community in the passing of Henry F. Kice, the last of a family of eight children born to Jacob and Angeline Kice who were among the sturdy early pioneers of this county. Preceding him in death were the parents, were Elizabeth, Sarah, Johnnie, Addie, Nellie and Myrtle, also one half brother, Charles Smith and a half sister, Mrs. Mahala Kice Brown.

Mr. Kice was born in Hamburg township, Livingston county, Michigan on December 29, 1856, and kept a keen interest in life and its activities through the years, alone with a genial smile which typified the cheery dauntless spirit within.

He was united in marriage to Belle M. Rolison on Thanksgiving Day in 1885, and together they passed their 43rd wedding anniversary while still living at the same farm on which Mr. Kice was born. This union was blessed by one daughter, Florence, (now Mrs. Earl Baughn of Portage Lake) in whose home he had resided for the greater part of the time since his wife's death on January 12, 1935, and where he was tenderly cared for during his last illness.

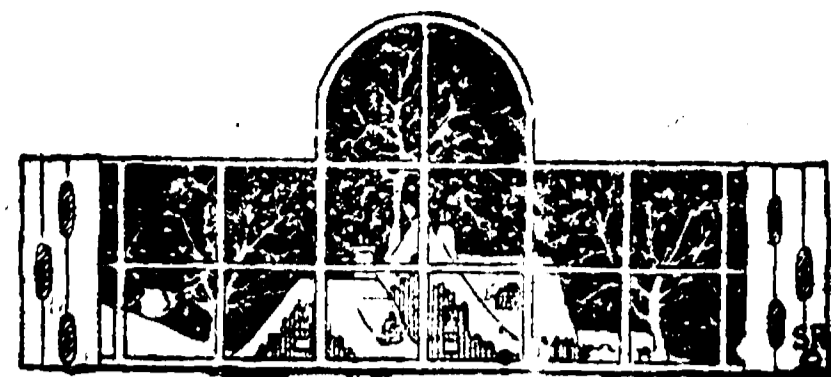

In December of last year he was installed as chaplain of Livingston Lodge No. 76, F. & A. M. and was also a life member of the local OES chapter.

He helped to lay the cornerstone of the North Hamburg church, of which he was a member and often told of riding horseback to the house of God, where he faithfully sang in the choir until the services there were discontinued. Later he and Mrs. Kice united with the Community-Congregational Church of Pinckney, Michigan and he continued in this willing service to his master.

At the time of his last illness, he was a member of the Congregational choir, a deacon of the church, and a faithful attendant of the Baraca SS Class. Always he has been a true community builder.

The sterling worth of his character, his innate sense of humor and his loyalty to the highest ideals, remain a splendid monument and example for us who are left behind.

He slipped away to be with God on the afternoon of Tuesday, January 25, 1938, at the age of 81 years and 27 days leaving the only daughter, and six grandchildren, together with
