

Catnapping Case Is Solved

Famous Gregory Catnapping Case Attracts State Wide Attention But the Cat Comes Back

While as far as we know this county has never had a kidnapping case it made the front pages of the daily papers last week by means of a catnapping case in the nearby town of Gregory. It seems that Samuel Denton, the blind telephone operator and merchant had a bob-tailed Manx cat which was priceless and loved by the whole town on account of its great mice and rat catching ability. The snatch took place Sunday, January 30, when two men in a sedan grabbed the cat in the business section and throwing the valuable animal into their car made a very successful getaway. However, the finger of suspicion was directed against the men as they had attracted attention to themselves a short time previously by creating a disturbance and being ejected from a business place. The sheriff's dept. was called and got on the job with their customary zeal.

After looking over the scene of the crime and taking testimony which seemed to implicate the men, whose car number had been taken, the officer got on the trail which was still hot. The getaway car was traced to Ypsilanti and the two catnappers picked up by Washtenaw county officers and turned over to Sheriff Kennedy and deputies. After some cross questioning, Elbert Briggs, one of the suspects admitted the crime and pled guilty. He was fined $25 and $3 in costs by Justice Knapp of Howell. This cat, however, was not recovered. The catnappers claim it jumped out of the car and got away from them on M-36 between Gregory and Pinckney. The officers doubt this and believed the cat was murdered like other such victims in the past when the catnappers thought arrest was near. However they were mistaken as the cat came back last Sunday night half starved and foot sore and resumed her accustomed place in the Denton establishment to the joy of the entire town.

HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Last Saturday evening about 7 o'clock cars driven by Miss Dede Hinchey and Harlo Haines came together on M-36 in front of the Pinckney fire hall. Miss Hinchey had just left Lavey's oil station and started for home. Harlo Haines was also going the same way being on his way to his home in Gregory. It was foggy and raining, and he did not see the Hinchey car and struck the rear of it. The back end of the Hinchey car was smashed, also the rear axle, fenders etc. The Haines car, a DuSoto sedan sustained injuries to the radiator, fenders and bumper. Miss Hinchey was taken to Howell by Mrs. Alta Meyer when Dr. Hollis Sigler dressed her wounds. Broken glass was removed from a cut in the back of her head and it took three stitches to close it. She also suffered a gash behind one ear and other sprains and bruises. Haines was unhurt. Miss Hinchey teaches in the Burgess school district. Haines is employed in Detroit.

COOK TO BOX SPEARS HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Dave Cook of Pinckney will engage in a "grudge" fight against, "Donnie Spears" also of Pinckney this Friday night at the Pinckney Community Hall at 8 o'clock p. m.

Dave has held the inter-state county Lightweight title for two years and has had some opposition. Although his title is not at stake Friday night he feels that winning this battle will add to his reputation of victories.

Spears is confident that although he hasn't engaged in boxing extensively that Cook is an easy mark.

Both boys are waiting for this one chance to show the other he is the supreme one.

This boxing program is the "largest ever presented in central Michigan."

There are nine other bouts listed, among them some good heavyweights. This promises to be the battle of the Century.

Although there will be no admission charged a silver collection will be taken up to help defray expenses.

Detroit Edison Plans Big Expansion

Light and Power Company Will Start Huge Expansion Program This Present Year

A construction program, calling for the expenditure of about $18000 000.00 is planned by the Detroit Edison Company for 1938. This is the largest construction program since the depression and compares with $14,000,000.00 for 1937. The plant expansions have been ordered to meet the constantly increasing demands for light and power in the 7,600 square miles of territory served by The Edison Company.

The Company plans to install this year a 75,000 kilowatt turbo generator set, with the necessary boilers in an addition to the Delray Power Plant near Fort Wayne. This will be the largest single generating plant unit on the Company's system. Another 75,000 kilowatt machine has been ordered for delivery in 1939. Delivery will be taken in 1938 on a new 60,000 turbo-generator set to be installed in the Connors Creeds Plant, replacing a 45,000 kilowatt unit installed in 1918.

All this additional plant capacity is required on account of the ever increasing use of electric light and power. The number of residence customers added to the Company's lines increased by 27,895 during 1937 and the annual sales for residential service rose from 827 to 910 kilowatt hours per customer. To extend the advantages and conveniences helped by electricity to the rural population in its territory, the Company constructed 1,047 miles of farm lines during 1937.

Prior to 1928, The Detroit Edison Company had built 1,300 miles of farm lines in its entire territory. In 1928 it started an aggressive program to bring electric service to as many farmers as possible, constructing of hundreds of miles of farm lines each year. By the end of 1937 it had constructed more than 6,400 miles of

GRAVES-MUSSON

Miss Evelyn Graves and Gerald Musson were married Tuesday, Feb. 1, at the home of Rev. Dr. Noble in Howell at 4 o'clock.

They were attended by Nyra and Walter Graves, sister and brother of the bride. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Lake Chemung to 12 guests after which the newly-weds left for a short trip north.

The bride is an honor graduate of the Pinckney high school and was the president of her class. She later graduated from the Jackson Business University. For the past three years she has been employed in the office of the register of deeds at Howell. Mr. Musson is one of Howell's best young men and they will reside in a home which the groom has in readiness for the bride.

GETS TRYOUT IN

THE TEXAS LEAGUE

Jack Dilloway, star Pinckney athlete has signed a contract with the Beaumont team of the Texas League and left for the spring training camp there this week. Beaumont is a Detroit Tiger farm and is managed by Jack Zeller, Tiger scout. Hank Greenberg, Schoolboy Rowe and many other Tigers got their training there.

Jack played on the Pinckney high school teams in his junior and senior years. He attended Brighton his first two high school years. He was a three letter man here winning letters in football, base ball and basket ball. In 1935, his last year in football he scored three-fourths of the teams points. This was Pinckney's last big winning year. They lost to Millford but beat Brighton, Chelsea, Fenton, Ann Arbor, Res. and Stockbridge and tied Howell in a practice game. He pitched for the ball team the following spring. The rest of the season he played short stop on the Pinckney team in the Tri-County League. Last year owing to an operation he did not play much.

Auditor General, Gundry, Explains What Was Necessary To Be in the Matter of the State Tax Sale

The frank and straight forward statements made in a speech by Auditor General George Gundry before the state convention of supervisors at Lansing recently earned him the applause of that body and seem to have quashed the charges made by certain persons and papers unfriendly to him as to the inefficiency of his office in the coming tax sale. He stated that when he took the office he found millions of tax receipts still unopened & piled in the auditors' office. Settlements with the counties were 18 months behind. He was forced to add more help and his staff disposed of 1,025,000 of the stored receipts in 1937. Also for one half of the 88 counties, all receipts were due July 1, 1937 were extended. There were six years of back taxes to put in the tax sale and also many tax payers had come under the ten year plan which made about 60 times the amount of work necessary. So it was necessary to begin preparing the records for the tax sale last July. It was necessary to begin publishing the sale previous to the opening of the term of court before May 3 which in some counties was as early as December. His severest critic he said was the Oakland county treasurer yet that man still holds in his possession about $1,500,000 in delinquent tax money for which he has not issued tax receipts.

ADAPTED SEED MUST BE USED IN PROGRAM

Seed for alfalfa and red clover seedings for which payment will be requested under the 1938 Agriculture Conservation Program must be adapted seed, according to Earl Grubb, Chairman of Livingston County Agriculture Conservation Committee.

This means that the seed should be northern grown. The best seed for Michigan is that which is grown in Michigan, Wisconsin, or the northern States and Canada.

When farmers purchase seed this Spring, they should have executed the special seed form to establish evidence to be used in claiming payment under the program. This form can be obtained at the county office at 110 and one half North Michigan Ave., Howell, Michigan, and is to be signed by the person from whom the seed was obtained, whether it was purchased from a dealer, a grower, or was seed used by a farmer who produced his own.

These forms are also available for dealers at the county office, and may be obtained upon request. Some dealers, in using these forms, are giving one copy to the farmer and keeping one copy in their files.

All outstanding seeding slips should be returned to the county office immediately.

Washington News

Letter

By Congressman Andrew J. Transue
Housing Law

Enactment of the Housing Law designed by the Banking and Currency Committees of the House and Senate to stimulate home building throughout the nation, was the major accomplishment in Washington last week. As the capitol was visited by approximately 1,000 representatives of the "little business" called into conference by Secretary of Commerce Roger to solve and eliminate the business recession. The housing law held a preferential status that interrupted without displacement of the anti-lynching debate in the Senate as the southern senators carried a filibuster against the anti-lynching bill into the second month.

President Roosevelt quickly signed the Housing Law after the Senate by a 42 to 40 vote approved the Conference Committee report which eliminated the controversial "prevailing wage" amendment. The President explained that it is not the intention of the Administration to fix wages of all kinds, but merely enough through wage and hour legislation establish a floor for wages and a maximum of hours.

Oratory Unlimited

Late in the week the Senate refused by a vote 52 to 34 to set aside consideration of the anti-lynching bill and thereby give the right of way to other items of important legislation. The vote was taken upon motion of Virginia's senator, Carter Glass to consider the appropriations bills that had been sent to the Senate by the House. The preceding week the Senate had refused to invoke the rule of cloture that would have brought the anti-lynching bill to a vote after 96 hours which would have given each senator one hour to debate.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley in voting against the Glass motion explained that cloture would have meant probably another month of discussion on the anti-lynching bill and the refusal of the senate to invoke this lenient time limit meant unlimited debate. He declared the Senate in this week, probably on Wednesday, will consider the Farm Crop Control Bill that received a Conference Committee approval late last week. After the Farm Bill is disposed of Barkley said that he would confer with opponents and advocates of the anti-lynching bill to determine whether the Senate wishes to continue in session in "futile debate on this measure."

Dummy Needed

Filibusters are extremely monotonous. Most of the time there has been only a handful of Senators and a quarter filled gallery listening to the speaker. Frequently there is only the Senator who has the floor and the temporary presiding officer on the floor of the Senate as the fight against the time goes on. Thus far none of the obstructing senators have completed a ventriloquist in talking only to himself as the clock ticks on. Under the current interpretation of the Senate rules the longwinded speaker may not have the respite afforded by calling for a quorum to compel a majority of the Senate to sit up and listen while the speaker talks and talks. Quorum calls now mean giving up the floor.

Crop Control

A compromise farm control bill was approved late last week by the Conference Committee having deliberated for one solid month in attempting to reconcile the differences between the Farm Bills passed by the House and the Senate at the special session of Congress. Many important features in the bill will be considered by the

CONSIDER AGRICULTURE COURSE IN LOCAL SCHOOL

A meeting of the school board Monday night, S. B. Thomas, county Agriculture agent, appeared before the board and explained what would be necessary to install an agriculture course in the school. Under the Smith Hughes act schools putting in agriculture get a Federal and State appropriation. Stockbridge, Howell, Hartland and Brighton have such courses which include manual training. Supt. Doyle stated that if this course was selected, a domestic science course should also be put in. No action was taken but other meetings to consider it will probably be held.

Current Comment

(A conference of the little business men visited Washington D. C. last week. Some 700 invitations were sent out but many crashed the gate who were not invited at all. Each and every delegate had his own particular cure for the present business slack which ranged all the way from conducting a national lottery to cutting taxes to the quick. Of course they opposed the wages and hours bill, tax on business etc. Nearly 1000 proposals were presented. They went to a joint committee who combined and reduced them down to 23. They favored balancing the budget but on the other hand asked that a system be devised for the making of loans to small business men. The reason given for this is the increasingly stiff attitude of the banks against ordinary business loans. In this way it appears that their viewpoint is not unlike the two other classes, big business and labor. Big business has long received aid in the form of subsidies of some form or other. Work relief and social security was for the labor class.

Dr. Edward Lindemann of the New York School of Social Work was in Detroit three days last week and spoke before a number of groups. He predicted speedy business recovery and said the present day recession bares little resemblance to the depression of 1930-1932. All that is needed to overcome it is increased confidence on the part of business men. Today he stated there is no banking crisis and no over speculation. Farm income was good the past year and the present recession is strictly industrial. He also advocated a diversification of industry. That is, one cities industrial life should not be devoted to one industry. Such is the case in Detroit where industry is almost completely tied up with the automobile. For this reason it is probably the hardest hit city in the nation. We are informed by a friend who travels on the road that the other cities such as Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis have not been hit hard like Detroit and there have not been any such wholesale layoffs there.

Here are a few names of those that attended the small business men's conference at Washington last week. We understand those who had written to Washington offering advice were the ones invited: John Cox, of Michigan; Oil Co., Marshall, John Airey, King-Seely, Ann Arbor, Ray Corliss, Parma News, Charles Ellinger, used car dealer, Pontiac, John Priehs, merchant, Mt. Clemens; Norman Bardeen, Lee Paper Co., Vicksburg, Gerald Lomansy, Flint News, Frank Joyce, Trailer Coach Co., Alma, Clarence Alvordson, Whitman-Barnes Tool Co., Detroit.

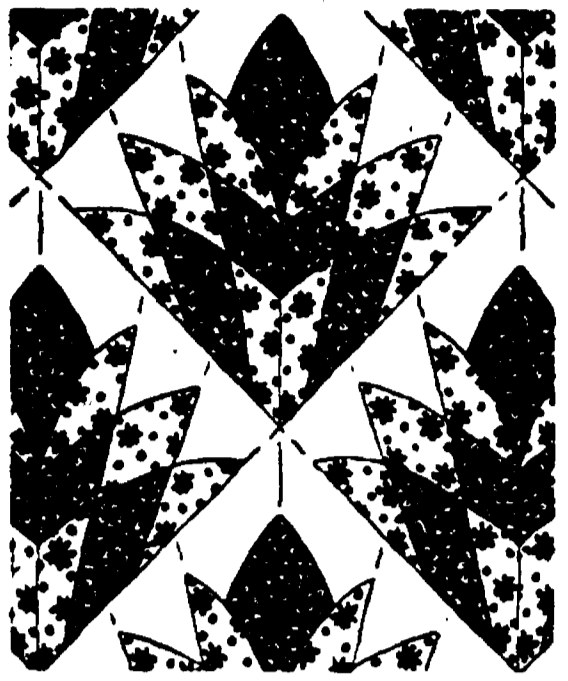

By the end of the week both Harry Toy and Frank Fitzgerald, will be definitely in the race for the Republican nomination for governor. Toy was the headliner at a banquet in Detroit Tuesday evening at which Judge Louis Fead was toastmaster and Ex-Governor Grosbeck spoke. Fitzgerald was the speaker of the evening at Elton Eatons mush and milk and salt pork banquet at Plymouth tonight. Toy's candidacy appeals to those who believe the GOP cannot win without they can make a dent in the Wayne County Democrat vote. Fitzgerald, however, is favored by the rural voters. Just where Melville McPherson comes in is hard for the wisest ones to figure out. Some say he is in to help Toy and cut Fitzgerald's outstate vote while others say he is a stalking horse for Fitzgerald to prevent outstate candidates from entering the race and will withdraw just before the primaries. A few hold that he honestly believes he is the only candidate who can be elected on the GOP ticket. We string with the last group. We have met Mr. McPherson and know he is a canny vote-chaser determined in his way and has had the governorship buzz in his bonnet for some time. However, we doubt that he will ever be able to ride into the office on the wings of his bonnet for some time.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Congress has been doing a deal of talking about helping business to get on its feet, but it has not yet accomplished much.

Much Talk, No Action
The house ways and means committee, it is true, is making some headway and a number of senators, including the powerful Senator Harrison of Mississippi, are asserting the necessity for a reversal of federal policy. But, again, there is much more talk than action, and in the meantime the country's business is sliding lower and lower.

The difficulty in the present situation and the thing that probably has been more responsible for the business slump than anything else is that business heretofore has been unable to tell what the federal government is going to do. It has become evident already that with a somewhat changed atmosphere in congress, there are many business men who are more hopeful than a month ago. Business men, big and little, are quick to note that there are senators and representatives who think the time has arrived for business to receive some consideration. And it ought to be added that unless business does get some consideration, this current depression is going to be as bad as the last one. The federal government must give attention to the agricultural problem and it must fit that job into some consideration of the other half of American life, namely, the commerce and industry outside of agriculture.

It will be recalled that during the first two years of President Roosevelt's administration there was a flock of laws passed that were of great value to the country. Many of them were of a temporary character and were enacted on that basis. That would have been fine if the administration had stopped there. But it did not. The roaming herd of so-called thinkers who were scattered far and wide in federal jobs had to have their innings. At least they thought they had to have a turn at bat. All of their pet theories had to be tried out. The result: many laws that were purely experimental, dangerous, damaging and a burden to business.

With many millions of others, I expected at that time to see these queer looking laws shaken down, corrected, or repealed where it was found necessary. That has not happened. Again, the result: the country's business from the smallest general store at a cross roads to a garage or a gasoline station to the greatest corporation, like General Motors or Pennsylvania railroad, has had to suffer under the heavy heel of the national government. The reason that congress is showing signs of a movement that will revise the tax structure is because these smaller businesses out through the country have now got their fill of government red tape, complex reports, visits of investigators, new tax forms and levies, or what have you. Those people are making themselves heard here in Washington.

So if congress takes some action looking to a fair deal for business, just as it is quite determined to do something for agriculture, I entertain no doubt about the response it will get from the business interests. As far as business has made itself felt, it is apparently asking only to be treated equitably with labor. Every one knows that the last three or four sessions of congress have been frightened to death every time a labor leader showed up on Capitol hill. The reward given congress was the C. I. O. sidown strikes, violence and a general mess. The condition has left a goodly number of senators and representatives a bad taste in their mouths.

Messing in Business
There is plenty of dirty linen in the business closet. It has a hard wash day ahead to restore it to the respect of the bulk of the people. Business has been smug. It has thought too little, in many instances, of its obligations to the public at large. But surely there is a point beyond which federal punishment ought not go since there is a responsibility also in the other direction. Unless business gets a reasonable chance to stand on its own feet, how is it going to re-employ workers and reduce the relief rolls?

Every individual wants to earn some money. He wants a return for his labor. He dreams some day of a retirement, a lay off when he can watch the world go by. I can see no reason why the federal government should not encourage, rather than discourage, such a thing. It is the conviction of a very great many, an increasing number of people that the federal government is messing too much into business.

But aside from that phase. There are a number of things happening that are difficult to understand. At a time when business is sliding off like a snowball going down hill, the President steps out and orders an investigation by the federal trade commission into "high prices." The inquiry, of course, is directed at monopoly. I have no doubt at all that there will be a blast from some government official pretty soon in which "big business" again will be told it is crushing the "little fellow" and that the public is suffering from the high prices maintained by a "trust." There may be even a fireside chat because a President's voice penetrates everywhere.

At a time, too, when the prices of bonds and shares of corporation stock are sinking like they have double pneumonia, out bursts Chairman Douglas of the securities and exchange commission with a small cargo of dynamite about crooked dealings underneath in the stock exchange of the country. Fortunately for the hundreds of thousands of small investors, the stock exchange quotations did not fall much further as a result of Mr. Douglas' learned remarks. The prices already had fallen below the knees. But the Douglas statement certainly gave confidence to those who were beginning to believe that congress would try to undo some of the wrongs previously done.

Just about the same time and during frequent appeals from the senators and representatives that the tax laws had to be overhauled, the President sent a report to congress. It was a report by the New York Power authority, charging the power interests with some weird misdoings. I happen to know some of the folks on the staff of the power authority and I feel that they know just about as much about the power problem as I do—which is to say they are pretty dumb about the situation. Of course, those alleged economists have brilliant ideas about reforming America, and I am dumb about that, too.

Further: While this power authority report was being em-bazoned upon the front pages of newspapers, President Roosevelt was holding long conferences with Wendell Wilkie and Fred Carlisle, who personize the "power trust." If there be a power trust, Mr. Roosevelt was talking with those men in an effort to get the large power interests to go ahead with construction and expansion programs to provide work for unemployed.

The political strategy of blaming everything on "big business" worked well for a time, just as the old demagoguery about "Wall Street" used to inflame thousands when a politician orated and slapped his legs with widely swinging arms. But the picture is different now.

The attack on business has become a mill stone on business and it has crushed little as well as big—and since there are so many more smaller ones than there are trusts and monopolies, members of congress are hearing about it from men whom they went to school with at home.

But what is to be done? Let congress repeal about five hundred laws that force business to pay more for the privilege of doing business than it gets out of its whole volume; reduce or revise the direct taxes and bring the thousand and one items of tax out in the open so the people can see and know what they are paying; cut out forty or fifty of the silly experiments that were worked up by the coterie of individuals who are constantly feeding Mr. Roosevelt half-baked and cockeyed schemes for spending money and thereby reduce the federal expenses—these and many more of honest purpose can be done. If they are done, business again can employ workers and as it employs workers, they come off the relief rolls, and as they get wages, they buy. This means profits and profits mean tax receipts by the treasuries of state and nation.

To show how some of these taxes come about, I am told that Herman Oliphant, general counsel to the secretary of the treasury, promoted the ridiculous tax on undistributed profits of corporations. When it was pushed through congress Mr. Roosevelt said it would force corporations to declare dividends of all of their earnings and he was for it. It did just that. But when the corporations had distributed everything to their shareholders and their volume of business fell off, they had no money left to tide them over until business picked up again. Hence, some of them are on the verge of bankruptcy. I do not know where Mr. Oliphant got the idea, or how he sold it to Mr. Roosevelt. I do not know of any business connection that Mr. Oliphant ever had with any important corporation. It is important, however, to note that Mr. Oliphant has made no move whatsoever to defend this brain child that turned out to be such an unwanted baby. (And while writing about Mr. Oliphant, it may be noted that until Secretary Morgenthau came onto the scene, there was never any need for a general counsel to the secretary of the treasury.)

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK—If President Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina of the Dominican republic persists in his impromptu war with Haiti, and spurns President Roosevelt's offer of mediation, it is possible that they might buy him off with a fast black shortstop and a couple of outfielders.

President Molina is a rabid baseball fanatic, and only last June he was accused of stealing many of the best players of the American negro teams. The charges, quite violent and vehement they were, were made by the National Negro League of America, comprising six teams, and were backed up by Ferdinand Q. Morton, New York civil service commissioner, who is the Judge Landis of the league.

It was asserted that agents and emissaries of the President did repeatedly by trick and device, snatch an ebony ball player wherever they might find him; that they had thus cashed some of the best talent of the negro league. The Pittsburgh Crawfords were especially loud and insistent in their complaint.

The dictator of Santo Domingo learned fighting and ball playing with the United States Marines, with them eight years, until the end of the period of occupation in 1924. When he took over the country in 1930, by double-crossing old President Velasquez, his enemies said, he made baseball a major detail of his planned economy.

He helped build up the Central American league and brought through quite a few pennant winners. He throws big parties for the visiting teams at his palace in Ciudad Trujillo. He'll practically call out the army to surround a good ball player.

He was a farm boy when the marines came along. He worked up in the Dominican army from private to brigadier general, gaining the presidency by a clever coup d'etat. In 1933, he liquidated a strong opposition by putting it in jail. Several thousand exiles have for several years maintained a junta in New York city, led by Dr. Angel Morales, former Dominican minister to Washington. They have accused President Trujillo of wholesale killings and of ruthless suppression of all political rights and civil rights.

When Sergei Bensome, former secretary of war, was murdered in New York in April, 1935, the political enemies of the dictator said his agents had committed the crime. When he became president in 1930, at the age of thirty-seven, he was the youngest ruler of any sovereign state.

THE Republicans, like the Democrats, go to the Grove of Academe when they are short on ideas. Word from Washington is that they are sounding out Harris Willis Dodds, president of Princeton; James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard; James R. Angell, president emeritus of Yale, and Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, for the work of drafting a comeback program for the party.

A former member of the Republican National committee, who still keeps a few pipe lines open, tells me chances favor President Dodds, as to both choice and acceptance of the chairmanship of the program committee.

President Dodds, who looks and works like Woodrow Wilson, is a specialist in government. He has a generally liberal slant, but has been vigorously outspoken against bureaucracy and has steadily cried down the juggernaut state. The curse of "statism," he says, is the world's greatest menace. He would appear to fit into the picture of a rejuvenated and realistic party reorganization.

He has for years been known as an expert on plebiscites, electoral practice and municipal government. He was a technical adviser in the Tacoma-Arica boundary dispute and refereed the Nicaraguan election of 1928. Later he saved New Jersey $14,000,000 by a 150,000-word digest of a governmental reorganization survey.

He is a native of Utica, Pa., educated at Grove City college, Pa., and Princeton, with a doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania. He lectured on political science at Western Reserve, Pennsylvania and Swarthmore and became a traveling student of Latin America, finding there a useful laboratory of political techniques.

Princeton made him a lecturer on politics. It all sounds pretty dry, but he is always alert to the human equation and stipules his desiccated thesis with a dash of color.

Sew-Your-Own Joins Santa

DID you know, Milady, that Santa Claus and Sew-Your-Own have joined forces to make this the brightest, charmingest Christmas you've ever known? Yes, it's a fact! And you who've tried so hard to be good (and never a little naughty) are going to be rewarded to the full. Gifts by Sew-Your-Own from Santa Claus to you. Here's what you may expect (but remember, "Do not open until Christmas").

Festive Fashion.
You're in line for personalized gifts this year, lucky lady, and what could be closer to your heart's desire than a velvet housecoat—nothing indeed (Sew-Your-Own knows every girl's weakness). So keep your fingers crossed and say a little prayer that December 25th will find you merry, cozy and beautiful in this festive young fashion.

For Miss Keep-the-Home-Beautiful we've specially designed a pair of really different aprons. One is the kind to wear when actually doing kitchen chores, the other is a dressy model—so pretty you'll make a darling hostess. Sew-Your-Own sends these out in one package but Santa may split them up, so don't feel slighted, Miss K-T-H-B, if your stockings give forth only one—either the tea time model or the all-around-the-clock style.

For the Very Young.
If you're a very young lady you may find Gift No. 1393 or Gift Set No. 1423 packed neatly in your stocking one fine morning soon. The former, a dress plus dainty shorts, will be a peachy combination to wear to parties when you want to be "dressed up swell." The Temple Trio, a hat, scarf and muff set, was designed to put a little "Hollywood" in your Christmas. It's as bright and cheerful as you could wish for. Hope you're the winner, little lady!

The Patterns.
Pattern 1210 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 (full length) requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material; in medium length 5 1/4 yards.
Pattern 1422 is designed for

A ROOM with a very low ceiling—such as a basement recreation room—presents a special lighting problem. The lighting fixtures used in a room of ordinary height may hang as much as 12 to 18 inches from the ceiling. These are obviously impractical here.

There are three solutions—any or all of which may be used, depending on the size of the room to be lighted. A recessed glass panel almost flush with the ceiling will provide good general illumination, when used in conjunction with other lighting and eliminate any danger of bumping one's head on the usual projecting type of light fixture. Wall brackets are another possibility. Graceful new plastic wall urns are an attractive variation of the usual shaded bracket, and supply a good quality of indirect illumination. Finally, there are floor lamps and table lamps with a reflector bowl under the shade to diffuse the light. These have the advantage of being portable, and may be used alone or in combination with the other two types of lighting fixtures mentioned above.

For helpful suggestions on your home lighting, call in a Detroit Edison Home Lighting Advisor. He will show you how to measure your lighting with the Sight Meter and help you with any lighting problem you may have. If you wish, he will make a complete lighting survey of your house and give you expert advice on types and arrangement of lamps, fixtures, etc. No charge or obligation! This is part of our service.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY AGRICULTURE PROGRAM

During the week of February 7, 1938, meetings will be held throughout the state to instruct county committeemen, county agents, and county office chief clerks on the same subjects presented at the Regional and State conferences.

The county committeemen and the county agents will receive definite information relative to the 1938 Agriculture Conservation Program, in order that they may hold instructional meetings for farmers throughout the State.

According to Earl Grubb, Chairman of the Livingston County Agriculture
With joy and courtesy go my way.
Conservation Committee, as soon as local meetings have been arranged for each county, there will be a schedule of meetings in the paper, in order that the farmer may attend and, less the provisions of this Program, how they will affect his own farming operations. It is the interest of the planning committees to have the necessary information reach the farmers throughout the State.

ANOTHER HAT IN THE RING

We have received a press release to the effect that a group of Young Republicans met at Saginaw Thursday and endorsed O. L. Smith of Gratiot county for governor. The letter says the GOP wants a house cleaning and that both Fitzgerald and Toy are of the same caliber. Fitzgerald is a McKay man it further states and Glen Dunn, former McKay right hand man is Toy's lieutenant now. Then it gives Smith credit for defeating Dunn for chairman at the GOP convention last year. This is not strictly according to Hoyle. Dunn thanks to Wayne county had enough votes to win but Ed Bernard Wayne's boss got careless and let enough delegates walk out before the vote was taken so that when a poll of the Wayne delegation was demanded there were not enough there to put Dunn over.

BETTER TO SPEND TO LEARN SAVING

To give a child money "to save" is not giving him money at all, according to child guidance that point out the way to learn to use money wisely is by handling money early in his life. A five or six year old with five cents allowance per week will be on the road to learning how to handle larger sums later.

More doling out of money to the child has no magic for teaching the "value of money". If he merely handles money and gives so much to the Sunday School, and puts so much in his bank under the direction of a grownup, it may be convenient but cannot be confused with learning to spend wisely.

"But I don't want my child to waste money on foolishness," objects one mother. Another reported her worries since her 10 year old son spent 50 cents out of a 10 cents a week allowance, for three fox tails to tie on his bicycle. The pleasure this boy had in acquiring such an article, in his eyes, was an important socially as money spent by his mother for a new hat or bridge prize.

"Allowances are a part of the routine income of the child, by virtue of his membership in the home", says Alice Hutchinson, specialist in child development at the Michigan State College.

The amount of the allowance will depend upon the child's share and the size of the family income. It should as it is increased it should cover the cost of school supplies, some savings part of the clothing and the free spending for fun.

STATE GUARDS 5,000 "LOST" AUTO TITLES

Nearly 5,000 auto titles lost by their owners in the last 12 months are being held by the Department of State, until their owners realize their loss and ask for them as they will shortly, when they start to buy their 1938 license plates.

If correct addresses were known these titles would of course be sent to their owners, but the file of the lost titles contains only those which postal authorities haven't been able to deliver because of faulty addresses given by applicants for the titles.

Leon D. Calkins, Secretary of State points out that thousands of people are annually frustrated for a time at least, by frantic searches for their car titles which they must present when they apply for license plates.

With well over a million motor vehicles still without their 1938 license plates and the deadline set for midnight, Monday February 28, Calkins points to an inevitable jam at every Department of State officers in the state at the end of this month. He suggests that those deferring their purchases through necessity, make certain at the time that they have their title available.

Experience indicates that the large bulk of "lost" titles now held by the Department, will be claimed before the license plate deadline. It may not be possible, in every case, however, to get the titles back to their owners before the deadline, because of the volume of business created as March 1st approaches.

"So we're off to be married! That's all right with me," Jerry Field approved fervently.
Brooke, whose face was pressed against the back window of the roadster, twisted round in her seat.
"Don't be foolish, Jerry. Of course we're not. That was a red herring drawn across our trail."
"Just why the red herring?"
The ironic note in his voice gave her a chill tremor of dismay; she didn't care for the way in which his eyes narrowed as they peered through the wind shield. She protested:
"Don't speak like that, it makes me shivery, and goodness knows my teeth are fairly chattering now." She turned to peer from the rear window. "No car in sight yet. Can you go a little faster?"
"Not without a risk of skidding off the causeway and breaking our necks. Can't you see how the snow is plastering the wind shield. The squeegee barely moves. Why the haste?"
"While I'm telling you I'll keep watch. The excitement began upon my return from the play."
She told him of leaving her town car in the garage, of stopping in the purple gloom under the hemlock to look at the lighted windows of the stone houses crouched on the ledge; her breath quickened as she repeated the words of the man who had produced the newspaper clipping.
"It's the picture of the dame who said: 'He was a swell-dressed fellow.' I'll have to date her up."
"That was what the Cassidy girl said about the man they suspect robbed Mrs. Hunt!"
Field's voice was sharp, his personal problem was submerged in a mounting tide of excitement. The car shot ahead like a whippet unleashed.
"I know that now. The certainty as to who he was flashed through my mind while I was dressing, and the suspicion that he might be at the Other House tonight to lift—that's the technical term, isn't it?—Mrs. Gregory's gorgeous diamonds."
"Why didn't you phone the police?"
"With Henri in the house? I may be a slow thinker but I'm not absolutely dumb."
"And the suitcase?"
"A touch of theater. I thought if one of the gang saw us starting, he might suspect he had been discovered, but if he heard what I told Taku he would feel secure. Elopements happen every day."
"Not in my young life," Jerry Field retorted crisply.
They maintained a breathless, alert silence until the roadster turned a corner into a street which had an air of lonely spaciousness. Just ahead bulked the combination jail and police headquarters, gloomy and ponderous.
"Shall I come in with you?" Field asked, as he stopped the roadster before a heavy iron door and cut off his engine.
"Yes, I may need you to corroborate my story. When I burst in upon them in this gown, they may think I'm crazy. Hurry! We don't know what is going on at the Other House."
Field slipped his arm within hers as they mounted the snowy steps.
"I'll stick around and wait till you call me. Don't shiver, sweet thing. You're not afraid of the inspector, are you?"
"Afraid! No. Haven't I been cross-examined by him almost every day since what Sam calls 'our late unpleasantness'? It's just the Reyburn temperament."
Her satin sandals skidded treacherously in the corridor as she confronted a policeman whose nose, criss-crossed with a network of fine veins, had the effect of a red "stop" signal.
"Where's the inspector? I must see him. Matter of life and death," she confided breathlessly. In her excitement she caught the man's arm and shook it. He scowled at her, looked beyond her at Jerry Field; his expression mellowed.
"Inspector's just come in. He's in the radio division. Go through those swinging doors up them stairs to the tower."
Brooke was through the doors before the man had finished speaking. Three or four men leaning over a great U-shaped table looked up as she entered the room. With a muttered exclamation, the inspector left them and came forward.
A man sitting at a telephone said something in a low voice to an officer before a microphone. Tubes in the broadcasting apparatus crackled into life. He said slowly and distinctly into the mike:
"Calling car 3131. Car 3131. Car 3131. Go to K and Tenth street."

CHAPTER XIV

Brooke commanded breathlessly: "Listen to me, Inspector. The man who robbed Lola Hunt is serving supper at the Trent house on the point!"
Inspector Bill Harrison smiled, a curious smile.
"Wish I'd known this before, Miss Reyburn. I've just come from the point, following a tip I had. What's the dope on this bandit? Is it the same guy you saw at the Supper Club?"
"It must be, Inspector. Tonight—Before she had finished telling of the alleged waiter's remark about Maggie Cassidy's picture, machinery was crackling again and the man at the microphone was broadcasting distinctly:
"Calling car 1942. Car 1942. Car 1942. Go to Trent house on point. Inspector will meet you. Calling car 6784. Car 6784. Go to Trent house on point. Inspector will meet you."
Inspector Bill Harrison was out of the room before the man at the microphone had completed the call. One of the officers turned over two discs on the U-table; the other frowned at her with the bluest, most Irish eyes she ever had seen as he answered her unspoken question:
"We don't dare be more explicit over the mike, Miss. The thugs pick up the messages."
"I hope they get there in time, Sergeant?"
"Time for what, Miss?"
"I think—I think he's there to get Mrs. Gregory's diamonds—she's—she's simply plastered with them tonight."

Jerry Field was pacing the lower corridor when she reached it.
"It's about time you appeared, Brooke! I was just coming up to look for you. What do we do next?"
"Back to the party of course."
The wind whirled her short hair, clutched at her satin skirts, tugged at her velvet wrap as they went down the jail steps. As Jerry Field tucked the robe about her wet feet he looked up. Snow had settled in the brim of his soft hat, whitened his shoulders.
"Let's make a break for town, sweet thing, and make that yarn you told Taku the truth."
The expression in his eyes, the break in his voice hurt her. She said unsteadily:
"Please, Jerry! I can't care for you that way. Take me back quickly, will you? We mustn't miss Sam's party."
"Oh Sam! Sam is your white-haired boy. He's all that you Reyburn women think of or care about. I believe you'd sell your soul for him!"
After one look at his grim mouth and gloomy eyes, Brooke snuggled into her corner of the seat.
They sped in silence through the night. Toward the east the drab, heavy clouds were thinning before a spreading radiance.
"I believe the snow is letting up, Jerry. Look! The moon is trying to break through! Drive faster. I can't wait to know what has happened."
"Don't worry, you'll get to the party all right."
Brooke ignored his gruffness. "Of course I want to get to the party. Then I shan't feel guilty that I dragged you away from the fun and congratulations. Leave me at Look-out House. I must change these soaked sandals before I join the festivities. Here we are."
From the top of the steps she looked down at Field who was looking up at her.
"I'm sorry, Jerry," she whispered softly, before she entered the house and closed the door behind her.
"He doesn't really love me, he's a spoiled boy who wants what he can't have," she reassured herself, as in her boudoir she changed her wet sandals.
She readjusted the rhinestone and emerald clip on her white frock, sprayed perfume on her hair, powdered her nose, accented her lips. She shook her head at the looking-glass girl.
"Stalling, aren't you, Brooke Reyburn? You dread to face Mark Trent with that will you've kept back for two days, don't you? Get going!"
She crossed to the desk, found the key where she had hidden it.
"Zero hour," she said aloud, and unlocked the drawer in which she had placed the will.
She looked down.
The drawer was empty.

CHAPTER XIV

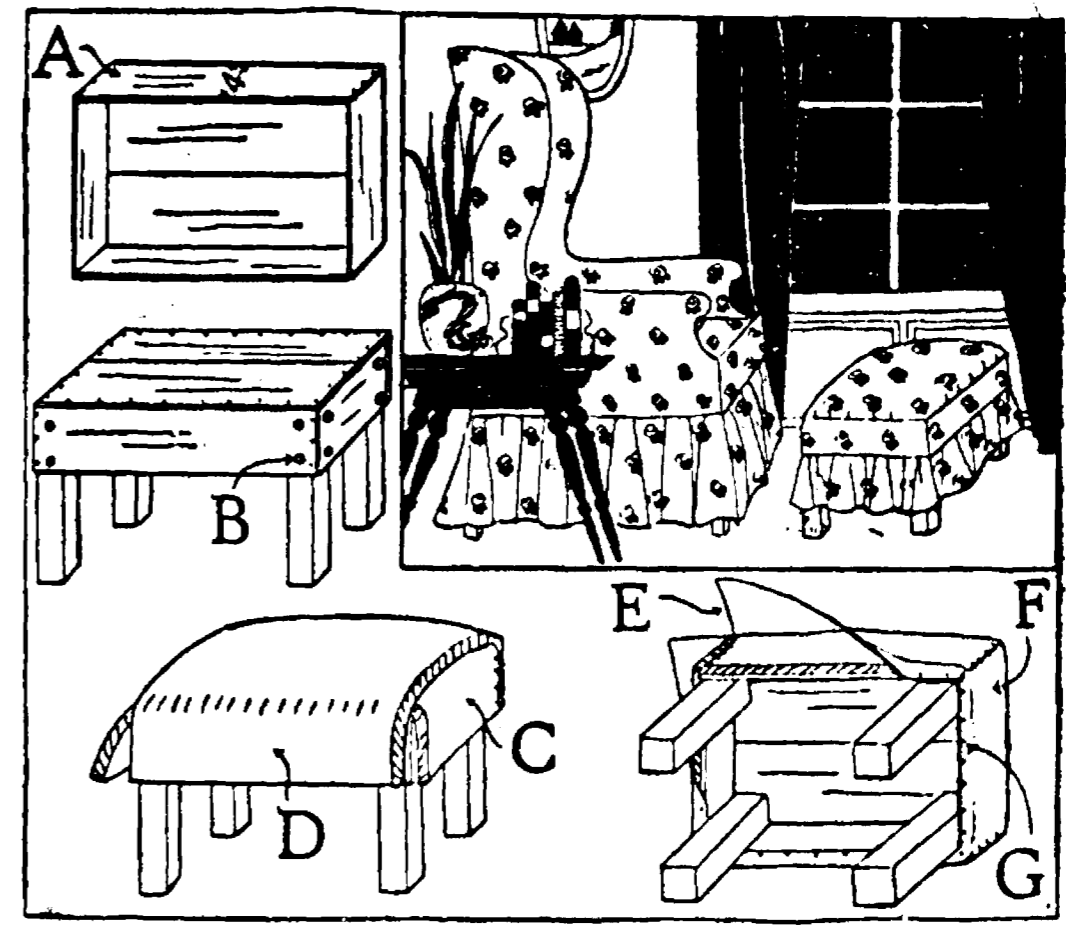

People coming, but not going; music never stopping. It was that kind of a party.
To the accompaniment of the hum of voices, the stimulating beat and throb of the orchestra, the distant faint tinkle of silver and glass,

Sam Reyburn made slow progress through the gay, colorful crowd on the lower floor of the Other House, grinning at girls in lovely evening frocks who cooed over him; frowning at men who tried to detain him.
From where he stood on the lowest step of the circular stairway, Mark Trent watched him. "All this praise is heady stuff for a boy," he thought, and then reminded himself that Sam wasn't a boy. Why wasn't Brooke with him to share the honors? She had been the first to leave the hall, the man in charge of the parked cars had told him. Where was Jerry Field? He hadn't appeared either.
A curious premonition turned him cold. Of course Brooke hadn't meant it when in answer to his sarcastic suggestion she had said she would end Field's torment. Hadn't she? There had been infinite determination in her crisp retort:
"I will. Tonight."
"Seen Brooke, Mark?" Sam Reyburn inquired as he approached. "I want her to be the first to know that I'm to get a contract; that I have an option in my pocket and a check."
Mark Trent laid his hand affectionately on his shoulder.
"Great stuff, Sam, great stuff. I was sure that the New York producer was hooked when he spoke to me."
Sam grinned. "Offered you the lead in a Broadway production, didn't he? He's a publicity hound. Think of the headlines:
"Leading Insurance Executive Leaves Lucrative Business for the Stage." Will you do it?"
"What do you think? How's the party going, Mrs. Gregory?"
Mark Trent smiled at the woman whose blazing tiara on her marcelled white hair, and plastron of diamonds on her purple velvet gown dimmed what sparkle life had left in her tired eyes. She answered crisply:
"Listen to the hubbub and you won't ask the question. Your party has brought out tails and white ties, Mark, that's a triumph in itself. I always know what guests think of my parties by the way they dress for them." She patted Sam's sleeve.
"My boy, your play is the sweetest, loveliest, most heart-wringing thing I've seen on the stage for years. Where's your sister? I want to tell her what I think of it."
"That's what Mark and I were wondering. She left the hall before the rest of us; she told me before the first curtain was rung up that she would dash home to change for the party."
Mrs. Gregory's face grew a shade less colorful. "I don't like her not being here, I don't like it. I've been uneasy about that girl every moment since she testified at the inquest about the strange man who passed through her room the night of the filling station hold-up. The man hasn't been caught. She knows too much. They may try to put her out of the way."
The strong lenses in Sam's horn-rimmed spectacles magnified the horror in his eyes.
"What an awful suggestion, Mrs. Gregory! What a gosh-awful thought!"
It was an awful thought, but improbable, most improbable. Mark Trent assured himself. With difficulty he cleared his voice of hoarseness before he accused:
"You've been reading mystery stories, Empress, confess now, haven't you? Just the same, we'll start on Brooke's trail at once. What is it, Kowa?"
He spoke sharply to the servant who had wormed his way through the crowd of dancers who overflowed from the library to the hall.
"Much obliged. Madame Gregory's car here. Chauffeur say to tell her storm bad, very bad. She better get home. He know she not like to be out in storm."
"Tell him to wait. I won't go till I know where Brooke is," Mrs. Gregory snapped.
"Did you see Miss Reyburn come in, Kowa?" Mark Trent inquired. Of course, the suggestion that she was in danger was absurd, but it was getting under his skin.
The Jap's slanting eyes narrowed to mere slits. He put his lips close to Mark Trent's ear and whispered:
"Miss Reyburn tell Taku she and Mr. Field go to marry, thank you. She carry suitcase, sir."
"What?"
Had he shouted the word? Mark's eyes flashed from Mrs. Gregory to Sam Reyburn. Both were regarding him anxiously, but apparently neither had caught the content of Kowa's whisper.
"Has anything happened to Brooke?" Mrs. Gregory's lips twitched, tears filled her eyes. Sam caught Trent's arm.
"What did Kowa say? What did he say?"
Mark Trent steadied his mind. He must reply to their questions. What should he say? He couldn't blurt out the truth here. Perhaps Brooke had flung that remark at Taku for dramatic effect. But the suitcase—
"Mark! Mark! Why don't you answer?"
He looked down into Mrs. Gregory's eyes, terrified now.
"Brooke is perfectly safe. She—There's Field! Ask him where she is. He saw her last. Go get him, Sam! Go get him!"
"No need, he's coming as fast as he can push through the dancers, and Jed Stewart is at his heels. They are white as sheets. What's all the mystery? The air is full of it. My skin's turning to gooseflesh. For Pete's sake, where's Brooke, Jerry?"

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Make This Attractive Ottoman.

GET a wooden box from the grocer. It should be about as long as the width of the chair with which the ottoman is to be used. The depth of the sides should be four inches as shown here at A.
The legs should be made of two by two's or you may have a set of nicely turned legs from an old table or other piece of furniture that may be cut down to the right length. Fasten in place with long screws through the corners of the box as shown here at B.
About half a bat of cotton will be needed. Put five or six layers of the cotton on the top, cutting the first layer about four inches smaller all around than the top of the box. Place it in the center. Cut the next layer a little bigger and the others still bigger until the last one is the same size as the top. Now, cut a layer of cotton to go over the top and down over the ends as at C and another to go over the top and down the sides as at D.

Cut a piece of heavy muslin to fasten tightly over the cotton. Cut the corners of the muslin as at E. Sew with heavy thread as at F and then tack as at G.
To make the cover, stretch the top tightly over the muslin and sew it along the sides through the muslin, then make a straight four-inch band to go all around and add the ruffle to it.
Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

A Little Learning Is a Wonderful Thing

Many stories, some true, some—well, not quite so true, are told about the remarks of schoolboys.
A well-known headmaster vouches for the accuracy of this one.
A certain twelve-year-old was about to be caned for some trivial offense. The headmaster asked him how he preferred to receive his punishment.
"Well, sir," said the boy quickly, "if you please, I'd like it like the Greek style of penmanship."
"What on earth do you mean?" asked the master.
"Please, sir, the upstrokes heavy and the downstrokes light," said the bright lad.

Witty Dr. Holmes

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous essayist, author and physician, father of the late justice, met a man who had devoted himself to lecturing throughout New England, without much ability for the task. In other words, he was much of a bore. "What are you about now?" asked Dr. Holmes. The answer was, "Oh, lecturing as usual. I speak at Dedham this evening." "Good," said Holmes, "I'm delighted to hear it. I never liked those Dedham people."

23 Suggestions

Approximately 1,000 representatives of "little business" met in the auditorium of the Department of Commerce last week at the invitation of Secretary Roper. The delegates were from 40 states traveling to the Capitol at their own expense to contribute their share to business recovery. After a confusing start the delegates in smaller committees compiled a 23 point program that a selected group presented to the President. Among other remedies suggested were tax revision and an advisory council to assist the government. The business representatives pointed out that small units of business do more than 90 percent of the total business volume in the United States and they and their families and employees constitute a major part of the national purchasing power.

Harmony Suggested

Congress on favoring wage and hour legislation have launched a drive to unite both the AFL and the CIO back of a wage and hour bill. It was proposed that both labor or federation select a committee of 3 or five members to confer on labor legislation that will accord with President Roosevelt's plan.

While the House of representatives whittled away at the appropriations and other items on the docket far in advance of the Senate that is held up by a filibuster, The House Banking and Currency Committee resumed daily sessions to consider a suggestion to aid recovery by balancing consumption and production. The deliberative Committee sessions will be continued this week.

Fog Reputation

Fog lights on automobiles are as necessary as horns or brakes in the Capitol which has the fog but not the reputation of London for heavy atmosphere. When the thick fog rolls along the lowlands near the Potomac River motorists drive slowly to keep on the road. Last week when one of the densest fogs in Capitol history was on one driven missed the road.

THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY

such lines, then by making electric service available to 93 per cent of all the farms in its old territory and to 42 per cent of the farms in the Thumb area, where the service was taken over by Detroit Edison only two years ago from the former Michigan Electric Power Company. In the Thumb alone the Company has constructed 1,500 miles of farm lines in two years and is now serving electricity to more than 6,800 farm customers in that area.

In spite of this great activity on the part of the Edison Company, a few persons in the Thumb have formed a cooperative association for the purpose of building an electric generating plant in the Village of Uby and selling electricity to the farmers not yet served in that vicinity. This cooperative expects to borrow $2,000,000.00 from the Federal Rural Electrification Administration with which to construct its plant and necessary lines. Of course, this money must be repaid to the Government by those who belong to the cooperative. Construction work has already been started on certain cooperative lines, but they do not expect to begin actual service until the summer of 1938. In general cooperative lines will not parallel Detroit Edison lines so that farmers will not have the option of getting service from either service. They must make their choice in advance with little possibility of subsequently changing to the other company, if they should change their minds.

In the Livingston District of the Company, a total of 8,048 customers were being served at the end of 1937 an increase of 923 during the year. Last year 54 miles of farm lines were built in this district and it is expected that 40 more miles will be added in 1938. This will give the Livingston area a very high percentage of rural electrification.

Work has started last year on the installation of a 3,00 KVA synchronous condenser in addition to the substation located at Howell and a new substation was built last year in the village of Fowlerville.

Several line rebuilding jobs are contemplated in the Livingston District for 1938. These will require the expenditure of several thousand dollars and will insure continuity of service to the customers depending on them for service.

It is hopes of Spring that keep our hearts warm during the Wintertime. Our ceremonies of distinction show a human interest that mark each as a Service of Sincerity

SPECIAL NFLA STOCK-HOLDERS MEETING

All farmers of Livingston, Monroe, Washtenaw, and Wayne counties who have federal land bank or commissioner loans will be invited to attend a special national farm loan association stockholder's meeting to be held at Ann Arbor.

Secretary-Treasurer, R. A. Pence is now preparing letters which will go to every association member and commissioner borrower, inviting him and his wife to attend and be guests of the association at lunch on that day. Every invited farmer will be provided with a post card on which to reply whether he will attend or not so that adequate preparations can be made for a large enough hall and for the lunch.

Secretary-Treasurer Pence says he plans to have a free-for-all discussion during the afternoon session and hopes that many farmers will come to the meeting with the definite purpose of taking part in the round table talks. CONSERVATION DEPT. NOTES

The shanty towns on the lakes in the northern part of the state occupied by fishermen were badly damaged & smashed by the blizzard last week, especially the one at Boyrie City.

About 200 more gas and oil drilling permits were issued in 1937 than in 1936. A total of 973 permits were issued as compared to 777 in 1936. There were 307,629 barrels of oil produced as compared to 73,045 in 1936.

According to Dr. R. A. Smith, state geologist, there is slight danger from another ice for at least 30,000 years to come. Instead the glaciers have been receding. What gives more alarm is the tilting of the great lakes which has been going on since 1860. The north ends have been becoming shallower and the south ends deeper. However it will be thousands of years before this becomes dangerous.

Good fishing and winter sports are sending attendance figures at the winter parks soaring. Ludington leads in the figures.

Only about 210,000 hunters have complied with the law to send in the report cards of the game they killed. About 550,000 bought licenses.

More than 8,000,000 pine trees have been given away the past four years from the Higgins Lake reserve to individuals, organizations etc.

820 pelts taken from fur and game law violators have been sold for a total of $1,047. There were 508 muskrats, 200 coyotes, 16 beaver, 7 racoon 5 possum, 2 mink and a weasel.
