TWO DETROIT POLICEMEN ARE SLAIN SATURDAY

Two Detroit policemen were slain by a negro bandit at Forest and Hamilton avenues in Detroit Saturday night. The dead policemen were Seymour Lawler and Herman Reno. Lawler leaves a wife and four children and Reno is survived by a wife. The two dead officers in company with two other policemen, Martin Greiner and Robert Finn had arrested a call to Forest and Hamilton where a negro was robbing the store and the other two officers stayed in the car. The bandit had, however, gone after obtaining $83. While Greiner and Finn were in the store, the man sought came from between two houses and stepping to the police car killed Lawler instantly behind the wheel of the car and also Reno who was in the back seat. Finn and Greiner, hearing the shot hurried out of the store and started after the fleeing negro. Another police car with two officers appeared and they loaded him off. Greiner and Finn fired several shots each and the negro fell. He died an hour later in the Receiving Hospital. The bandit appeared in the store and ordered the proprietor and customers to hold up their hands. Jack Driver who was intoxicated refused and suffered a fractured skull when he was hit over the head by the bandits gun.

Martin Greiner is a former Pinckney boy, being the son of the late George Greiner and a brother of George Greiner Jr. of Pinckney. His wife was also a Pinckney girl, being formerly Stella Clinton, daughter of the late Richard Clinton. He has been a member of the Detroit police force for a great many years.

CIRCUIT COURT NEWS

The March term of circuit court adjourned last Thursday night until Monday of this week, no more cases being ready.

In the injunction suits of R. Lord vs Paul Borgeman, a settlement was made out of court as was the one of Genevieve Dubeck against John MacLennan. In the partition suit of Wm. Chambers vs Martha Nabors and J. Skinner, the property was ordered divided among the litigants.

John Marut, charged with assault against Lois Webb, school teacher was given 8 to 10 years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan. Stanley Ward who pled guilty to a sex crime at the Hillcrest barbecue near Brighton was given 7 and one half to 8 years in Ionia.

Monday the divorce of M. J. Titus vs Bobbie Lucile Titus and Otis Miller vs Mary Miller were to be tried.

Annual Township Election Next Monday

Prognosticators Predict a Close Election in Putnam Township at This Time. Interest is High in Contest for Supervisor

Indications are that the election in Putnam township next Monday, April 4th, will be unusually close. Putnam township usually has a normal Democrat majority of about 60 votes but Norman Reason, former Democrat, ran for supervisor on the Republican ticket last year and won over his Democrat opponent by about 10 votes. This of course was due mostly to a Democrat split. His opponents still admit that Reason has considerable strength this year but claim they have healed up the sore spots this year to elect their candidate, Frank Bowers. At the present time all candidates are at work, very hard and a big vote and a close contest is expected. The two tickets are as follow:

Democrat
Supervisor ..... Frank Bowers
Clerk ..... Eleanor Ledwidge
Treas. ....... Claude Palmer
High. Com. .... John L. Connors
Justice ..... R. G. Webb
Board of Review ..... N. Pacey
Constables—John Spears, Bert Wylie, Asher Wylie, Louis Wagoner.

Republican
Supervisor ..... Norman Reason
Treas. ....... Winifred Graves
High. Com. .... George Long
Justice ..... Edward Parker
Board of Review ..... Claude Soper
Constables—Fred Fish, Norman Miller, Edmund Haines, L. J. Henry.

A human interest angle has developed in the Putnam township election this year. In 1937 Stanley Dinkel who suffered amputation of his left arm, following an automobile accident was nominated and elected township clerk on the Republican ticket despite a Democratic plurality of about 60 votes. This year Dinkel refused to accept the nomination when the Democrats nominated for their township clerk, Mrs. Elinor Ledwidge a widow with 13 children. Chiefly through Dinkel's efforts the clerk nomination on the Republican ticket was left vacant and Mrs. Ledwidge is practically assured of being elected. Dinkel is extremely popular here and noted for his generosity and sympathy. He graduated from Pinckney high school in 1933 where he starred in athletics winning letters in football, baseball and basketball. Later he caught for and managed the Pinckney team in the Tri-County League for two years, in 1936, finishing in second place with his team. At the present time he is operating a gas station in Pinckney. Mrs. Ledwidge is the widow of Max Ledwidge who died last February. She is the mother of 15 children of whom 13 are living. Mr. Ledwidge was prominent in politics for many years, serving several terms as township treasurer. Last year he was the Democrat candidate for the supervisor but lost to Norman Reason, the incumbent by 10 votes.

Our neighboring townships, Hamburg and Unadilla are also expected in close races for supervisor. In Hamburg, Arthur Shahan, former supervisor is opposing Dan Noecker, incumbent, in Unadilla, Roy Shellhart, is Democrat nominee against Ralph Glenn, incumbent. According to the voters of both townships, the result of the election will be a tossup.

TO THE VOTERS OF PUTNAM TOWNSHIP

I wish to inform the voters that there is a report going around that I received $1200.00 for being the supervisor. All I wish to say is that your total township expense including supervisor, clerk, treasurer and all expenses as you will see in our annual report in your paper is only $1530.80.

Now remember, figures won't lie, but liars will figure. Please use common sense, and if in doubt come and look at your township books which are open for your inspection at all times while I am your supervisor.

Yours truly,
Norman Reason, supervisor.

TEACHERS HIRED

At a school board meeting all the teachers of the Pinckney School were hired for another year except John Wise and Robert Seekel. We understand they expect to go elsewhere. Supt. J. P. Doyle who has headed the school here since 1913 was given a one year contract. He reconsidered his decision to retire at the end of the present term.

Saturday the five acre plot of ground bought by the school board for a playground and athletic field was surveyed and a blueprint will be made of it. Wm. Slavin and the school board looked over the property. We understand a PWA project to get the plot staked and graded will be submitted. It will hardly be possible to get the grading and seeding completed this year, however. The new plot adjoins the school on the west and will contain a base ball diamond, football field and tennis court.

NOTICE

The next regular meeting of the Pinckney Circle of Kings Daughters will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Henry on April 7th, at 2:00 o'clock. Members bring all aprons with patches. A prize will be given to the one whose apron contains the most money. Committee will serve the lunch.

Annual Past Master's Banquet Held Friday

About 200 Attend Banquet Honoring Past Masters of Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M. Some 40 Different Lodges Represented

Livingston Lodge held their annual banquet, honoring their past masters last Friday evening and the usual large attendance was present. A corn beef and cabbage banquet was served by the ladies of the O. E. S. to which the 200 diners did ample justice. The Howell Masonic Orchestra played before the banquet and also for the community singing which was led by Bill Hodge of Howell.

The tables were decorated with Masonic Emblems and a large banner above the speakers table bore the words, "Welcome Past Masters". 10 of the 14 living past masters of Livingston Lodge were present. They were as follows: John R. Martin, Paul Clark, Axel Carpenter, J. H. Hooker, P. W. Curlett, Russell Livermore, C. W. Hooker, Glen Slayton, Herman Vedder and Percy Ellis. Livingston Lodge has had but 27 past masters during her 83 years existence.

The invocation was given by Past Master John Martin. Ford Lamb, the master of Livingston Lodge extended the welcome to the past masters, the grand lodge officers and brothers and Glen Slayton responded to it on behalf of the past masters. Dr. Francis Lymbie of Midland, then took charge of the program. Homer Newton, secretary of the grand lodge, spoke first and talked of the coming grand lodge session and matters to come up at that time. Paul Strawhecker followed and touched upon the Masonic situation in Europe as it affects the American masonry. He was followed by Dewey Hesse of Saginaw who talked on the reminiscent order and told incidents of his previous visits to Pinckney. Dr. Albert Hughes of Detroit, grand lodge tiler, followed. He is a former Fowlerville boy and he mentioned his boyhood in this section and visits to Pinckney as a boy. On one occasion he stated he read a paper at a Sunday School convention here. Floyd Randall, a former resident of this section and the chairman of the Central Michigan Past Masters Association described the aims and purposes of his organization. Following his speech, Jason Austin, organizer of the Genesee county past masters association was introduced. Uncle Bob Campbell, director of the U. of M. Fellowship team and former mayor of Ann Arbor was introduced and spoke briefly.

Mrs. Ethel Hodge favored with 5 solos and Bud Kenner, Howell gave several impersonations of movie stars.

The address of the evening was given by William O. Parker of Otisville, grand master of the Michigan grand lodge. His speech was on grand lodge business and on the problems confronting it. He also gave his views of the purposes and innerworking of Masonry and paid his respects to the past masters, masters of the lodges and membership in a forcible manner. Mr. Parker is an able speaker and drew his remarks home. Then the different visiting lodges represented were called on to stand and were introduced by their masters. The following lodges were represented: South Lyon, Howell, Brighton, Fowlerville, Williamston, Dexter, Chelsea, Grass Lake, Pontiac, Capitol and Walter French lodges of Lansing, Golden Rule, Fraternity and Ann Arbor of Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids, Midland, Saginaw, Roseville, Flint, Otisville, City of Straits, Friendship, Westgate, University, Acadia, Ashlar, Wolverine, and Composite of Detroit, Mason and Maistique.

Following the conclusion of the introductions the assembly preceded to the lodge room where the retiring master, Percy Ellis was presented with his past masters apron, Past Master John Martin making the presentation.

This was the ninth annual past masters banquet held by Livingston Lodge No. 76 F. & A. M. all of which have been very successful.

MRS. HANNAH HALSTEAD

Mrs. Hannah Halstead, 89, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Norman Reason, Wednesday morning, following a paralytic stroke. The funeral will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reason Friday at 1:30 p.m. with burial at Parma. Previous to coming here the deceased lived in Parma and Leslie. Her husband died many years ago and for the past 25 years she has lived with her daughter who is her sole survivor.

CURRENT COMMENT

By the editor

Now that the opening of the baseball season is near at hand, the question is what about Schoolboy Rowe? Reports from the South are not reassuring. In his first game he was not imitative. Some fans cannot see why so much stress is laid on the Schoolboy. The answer is that with Rowe in his old time condition Detroit is a pennant contender. Without him they are not. He is to Detroit what Babe Ruth was to the Yankees, Walter Johnson to Washington, and Ed Walsh to the old Chicago White Sox. In his first two years he pitched Detroit into two pennants, then he was hurt and their pennant hopes went glimmering. Bridge and Auker are top notchers but they are not the Schoolboy.

Fred Bailey, coach of the Class "D" state championship Brooklyn high school basketball team is getting lots of publicity over his success. He is a graduate of Scott high school in Toledo and the Ypsilanti Normal where he was a three letter man graduating last June. He was a teammate of Louis Devine of Dexter and played several games with the Dexter team in the Tri-County League last year against Pinckney. This is his first year as a high school coach. He will have to go some to equal his record of this year when his basketball team won 23 out of 25 games.

There is no doubt that in a short time Michigan's school system will be revamped. Already state funds are running low and some sort of emergency relief will be necessary to enable many schools to finish their term. Gene Elliott supt. of public instruction favors a reduction of the number of schools. There are over 5,000 at the present time in the state and he would reduce the number of schools to a little more than 500. Of course this would mean the abolition of the old time district school, to which the rural districts out of sentiment cling zealously to although it has long been outmoded. The cost of education has advanced in recent years, due to increased wages etc. The high mark was in 1930 when the cost of educating a pupil rose to about $127.95 a year. In the depression year of 1933-1934 the cost dropped to $61.66 per pupil. In 1936 the cost rose again to $78.05 per pupil.

The first state wet dry test comes up in Branch county on April 4th when that county votes on the adoption of local option. This election was forced by the filing of petitions carrying 3000 signatures. Doc Wingfield Bronson, local prior proprietor has started action to stop the vote on the grounds that the election is illegal as under the law no special election can be held before 1940 and the April 4th election is a regular and not a special one. As only 11,000 votes were cast last year and 3000 signed the petitions asking for a vote on local option the drys are confident of success. The judge turned down the petition of Wingfield so the vote will be held April 4.

Editor Gannett of the Gannett chain of news papers has started a League Against Governmental Reorganization. This is the measure sponsored by Roosevelt to do away with outmoded and governmental departments no longer needed. Publisher Gannett is said to have raised some $200,000 by donations to finance his fight. The administration wants to know where he got the money and has ordered his secretary to appear with his books. This has caused Mr. Gannett to howl to the high heavens of dictatorship, personal liberty violation etc. He does not want the list made public. There is a sneaking suspicion that the list of donors would resemble that of the underwriters of the defunct Liberty League organized to fight Roosevelt in 1936 which backfired and went in to reverse to the sum of 48 to 50.

Washington Digest
National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building
Washington, D. C.

Washington.—It is often the trick of political spokesmen to let their real feelings become known by a statement that makes no definite reference to the broader policies in which they are interested. Such a statement was that made lately by Sen. Pat Harrison, Mississippi Democrat, with reference to what the senate will do on the pending tax bill. At least, nearly all of the observers here who know the lovable Pat Harrison were quite convinced that, when he said the senate would grant business relief from unfair taxes, he actually was proclaiming congressional independence of President Roosevelt.

Taxation
Problem

This question of taxation is one with which the New Dealers are gravely concerned; they are just as much concerned as is business and the country as a whole. But they are concerned for a different reason. Sane minds throughout the country long ago began to beg congress and the administration to make changes in the tax laws to permit business to go forward with employment and production. New Dealers attacked anyone who said that as an "economic royalist" or "tory" or some other one of the various things that the New Dealers profess to hate. After so long a time, however, the New Dealers conceded some changes were necessary—and then began the greatest face-saving maneuvers yet to be tried by the wishful thinkers.

When word went to the house ways and means committee that it could make modifications in the two pet New Deal tax laws, the ageing Chairman Doughton, of that committee, followed instructions. Of course, there were seventeen Democrats and seven Republicans on the committee, and that enabled the New Deal to carry out its plans for "modification" of tax laws—and to save faces. Regular Democrats and Republicans in the committee membership still were in the minority in the house of representatives, and the New Dealers had their way. The tax bill debate in the house nevertheless told of more slaps at the administration that lay ahead.

At this point in the developments, Senator Harrison enters upon the stage. He is chairman of the senate committee on finance. His statement, therefore, that the 1938 tax bill is going to give some basis upon which business can break even, at least, can be taken as indicative of the final form of that law when it emerges from congress. The house, under the lash of White House lobbyists, managed to hold part of the ways and means committee draft in its original shape while losing other parts of it. Thus, when the senate has acted and the bill is sent to conference committees for adjustment of the differences, it is rather plain to see how Democrats and Republicans are certain to override New Deal face-saving.

I have written much in these columns about present tax policies heretofore. There is little need to repeat the facts which continue to be important factors in the development of the Roosevelt depression. The assinine tax on undistributed earnings, fathered by the radical Prof. Herman Oliphant of the Treasury staff, has not allowed any corporation to build up a reserve. It took all of the earnings of last year, a period in which some corporations did make money in a limited way. Now that the depression is on us again, corporations obviously are scared stiff. Wage cuts are cropping up here, there and everywhere, and every time there is a wage cut the nation's buying power is reduced to that extent. But what is an employer going to do? Go broke, in order to keep his payroll up? That is hardly human, it seems to me, since everyone desires to protect whatever funds he may have, be it a dollar or a million.

So, when Senator Harrison spoke out boldly that something was going to be done to eliminate some of the obstacles which wishful thinking New Dealers have built up in their experimentation, it means, I believe, that Senator Harrison proposes to do just that.

The politics of the situation is another matter. That phase is equally important and significant. Senator Harrison would not have spoken out a few years ago, or even a year ago, as he has done lately. The house a year ago would never have rejected what has been called the "third basket" of taxation. (The so-called third basket was a new type of tax that would have made the rates sky-high on corporations held by only a few stockholders, family-owned corporations like thousands of small companies usually are.) No, the house would not have killed that a year ago, but it did this year. And, when Senator Harrison dared to say congress will do thus and so, Senator Harrison was simply voicing a fact. He was saying, in effect, "Whether you like it or not, Mr. President, we will write the tax law in the interest of the country as we see it."

In the course of the tax bill debate in the house, there was a curious disclosure, a rather biting piece of debate. Representative Treadway, who would be chairman of the ways and means committee if Republicans were in the majority instead of being only a handful, told the house that the father of the surplus earnings tax had never come before the committee since the time he laid out the silly scheme which led to its enactment. Professor Oliphant has been so silent about his sponsorship of the plan that it has become almost thunderous. And Mr. Treadway thought it was unusual that a parent should shrink from acknowledgment of parenthood. He obtained no answer or explanation. The surplus earnings tax, in a modified form, was still in the bill as reported to the house, however, and there was sufficient New Deal strength in the house to hold it there. It will be different in the senate, and the speech by Senator Harrison simply is an announcement in advance.

Healthy
Sign

It has been interesting to me to review these facts because I am inclining to the opinion that the situation in congress is more or less a reflection of the opinion in the entire country. The November elections lie ahead. Mail from home is pouring in, and the character of that mail is always closely studied by the politician seeking re-election. That is to say, the average house member or senator is keeping very close tab on what the feeling is back home. They were not put to that necessity during the first four years of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. All that was needed was for a member to say that the President wants this or that, and vote that way. So clearly has all of this been made apparent that few who so desire are afraid any longer to assert themselves—to say what they think even if that is in administration opposition. It is a healthy sign. It means that congress, while going along with Mr. Roosevelt many times, will put more and more checks on his proposals that have had their birth in the little red house, of Georgetown's section of Washington, where all of the New Dealers congregate. It means further—in the opinion of some of the real Democrats—that the New Deal has played out. They are, therefore, getting back into their harness as Democratic leaders.

And, in this light, there has been another development that should not be overlooked. I refer to the collapse of Robert H. Jackson's candidacy for governor of New York. When Mr. Jackson, who lately was made solicitor general of the United States, was "going to town" as the expression is, left wing press agents had him all but elected in New York. A big banquet was tendered him in New York city. Mr. Roosevelt was quite instrumental in that banquet plan. He lent aid in stirring up attendance. It was notable, however, that the banquet created no excitement. That is, there was no excitement of importance, and just there the candidacy began to sag.

I do not know what the real reason was for Mr. Jackson's subsequent statement that he would not seek the New York governorship. It is just possible, however, that the absence of Postmaster General Farley from the banquet sponsorship had something to do with the flop—for flop the dinner and candidacy surely did. Now, everyone around Washington knows that Mr. Roosevelt no longer takes the postmaster general into the executive confidence, even though Mr. Farley is chairman of the Democratic national committee. Indeed, it was printed in several widely read columns that Mr. Roosevelt actually distrusted Mr. Farley. I would not be able to report on that detail, but I can not overlook the fact that left wingers, especially the long-haired group, have been sniping at Mr. Farley for months. It is just possible, then, that they have persuaded Mr. Roosevelt to the point of conviction. He has listened to that group a very great deal and they may have made him feel that Mr. Farley is undermining the President.

In any event, one may follow the tax pronouncement by Senator Harrison right on through the significant silence of Mr. Farley. One may find how Mr. Farley has had numerous and sundry conferences, or chance meetings, with a good many powerful old-line Democrats.

But to examine the thing from a congressional angle again, I am pleased by the defection, the establishment of the line of demarcation between Democrats and New Dealers. Not that I care who runs the government, or is charged with responsibility. My interest lies deeper. I know from having watched the wheels go 'round that too great a majority of one party in congress produces bad laws. It can not be avoided.

Calcium
Builds Will Power

There is a close relationship between calcium and sound, healthy nerves. And this precious substance likewise helps us to concentrate mentally—it strengthens our will power—and assists us in acquiring that "do or die" attitude toward life, which is essential in an age when we must all struggle or go under.

Yet despite its importance, it is estimated by that outstanding authority, Henry C. Sherman, Professor of Nutrition at Teachers College, Columbia University, that one-half of the American people—even those with plenty of money—are literally starving for calcium, because they do not know the food sources of this vitally important mineral.

Where to Obtain Calcium

The foremost sources of calcium are milk and cheese, which is milk in concentrated form. It is chiefly to provide adequate calcium that homemakers must follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child, and a pint for each adult.

Vegetables, such as spinach, lettuce, celery, asparagus, string beans, cabbage, carrots and cauliflower are also a good supplementary source of calcium. And some fruits, such as oranges, figs, strawberries and bananas likewise supply significant amounts.

Indispensable Phosphorus

Like calcium, phosphorus is required by the body in relatively large amounts, and like calcium, it is especially important in the diet of children, because it is deposited in the bones, along with calcium, as calcium phosphate.

Phosphorus is indispensable for all the active tissues in the body and plays an important part in regulating the neutrality of the blood. It can be obtained from whole grain cereals, eggs, dried beans, cheese, lean meats, and root and leafy vegetables.

C. Houston Goudiss
Describes the Precious
MINERAL SALTS

That You Must Have in Order to Build
Strong Bones, Sound Teeth, Healthy
Nerves, Rich Red Blood

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 30th Street, New York.

THE human body is often compared to a machine, but it is far more wonderful, far more complex, than the most intricate machine ever designed to run without stopping, day in and day out, for upwards of 70 years, is also a fully equipped chemical laboratory. For if a chemist should grind a man to bits and analyze the pieces, he would find at least 18 chemical elements, and possibly traces of several others.

In addition to oxygen, carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen, the body contains a wide variety of mineral materials, which are necessary to its proper functioning—and even to life itself. The list includes calcium, phosphorus, potassium, sulphur, sodium, chlorine, magnesium, iron, manganese, iodine and copper.

Minerals Necessary to Life

It is vitally important that the homemaker should understand the function of these various salts and where they can be found. For if certain minerals are lacking in the body, the heart will stop beating. Without others, the bones cannot form properly. Still others are responsible for the rich red blood that makes the difference between a healthy person and a sickly one. Laboratory experiments have proved that if you leave out the smallest trace of the mineral known as manganese, you destroy the love of a mother for her child. And nutritionists—but unfortunately not mothers—are well aware that less than a thousandth of an ounce of iodine makes all the difference between a normal man and an imbecile.

Calcium—Captain of Minerals

Calcium deserves its ranking position as the captain of the minerals, because it builds the bones, or body framework. And the bony skeleton is to the human being what steel is to a building. Calcium is also the chief constituent of the teeth and upon healthy teeth rests the health of the digestive system and, in turn, the entire body. For food that is improperly masticated is imperfectly digested and fails to nourish properly.

About 99 per cent of the calcium in the body is found in the teeth and bones. If the body does not receive an adequate supply of this mineral in pre-natal life and during the growing years, the bones will be porous, distorted and easily broken, and the teeth will develop cavities and eventually may fall out.

In addition to being the principal material for making and maintaining the bones and teeth, calcium increases the strength and pulsations of the heart and helps the blood coagulate in case of injury, thus keeping you and your loved ones from bleeding to death. That is why an extra supply of calcium is fed to patients just before an operation.

Calcium Builds Will Power

There is a close relationship between calcium and sound, healthy nerves. And this precious substance likewise helps us to concentrate mentally—it strengthens our will power—and assists us in acquiring that "do or die" attitude toward life, which is essential in an age when we must all struggle or go under.

Yet despite its importance, it is estimated by that outstanding authority, Henry C. Sherman, Professor of Nutrition at Teachers College, Columbia University, that one-half of the American people—even those with plenty of money—are literally starving for calcium, because they do not know the food sources of this vitally important mineral.

Where to Obtain Calcium

The foremost sources of calcium are milk and cheese, which is milk in concentrated form. It is chiefly to provide adequate calcium that homemakers must follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child, and a pint for each adult.

Vegetables, such as spinach, lettuce, celery, asparagus, string beans, cabbage, carrots and cauliflower are also a good supplementary source of calcium. And some fruits, such as oranges, figs, strawberries and bananas likewise supply significant amounts.

Indispensable Phosphorus

Like calcium, phosphorus is required by the body in relatively large amounts, and like calcium, it is especially important in the diet of children, because it is deposited in the bones, along with calcium, as calcium phosphate.

Phosphorus is indispensable for all the active tissues in the body and plays an important part in regulating the neutrality of the blood. It can be obtained from whole grain cereals, eggs, dried beans, cheese, lean meats, and root and leafy vegetables.

An Invaluable Aid
To the Housewife

IN THIS issue you will find the fourth of the series of articles written by C. Houston Goudiss, famous food expert whose books, radio talks and lectures have made him known all over the country.

In this article Mr. Goudiss discusses the vitally important subject, "Mineral Salts." He shows the necessity of these materials in the diet, and their relation to the building of a strong heart, healthy nerves, rich red blood, strong bones and sound teeth. He also gives the food sources of these salts.

Read each one of these articles as they appear weekly in this newspaper. They will prove invaluable to the housewife in assisting her to keep the entire family mentally and physically fit.

is her solemn responsibility to provide these four in abundance. For only then can you insure optimal health in children, develop vigorous health in adults, and maintain the highest possible tone of every organ in the body.

A Splendid "Service" for Floors

Floors receive rougher treatment than any other part of the home—and it is floors that show up to poorest advantage when neglected—best advantage, when properly cared for! Up to now, attractive floors have required some little time and attention, but this is no longer necessary. For into the field of domestic preparations has come "self-polishing wax"—liquid-smooth, simple to apply, lovely to see. This remarkable preparation goes on easily, quickly, and dries in 20 minutes! Its results are 4-fold: The floors are protected—they are preserved—they stay freshly-clean longer—and they are beautified! A quality self-polishing wax protects and preserves, by forming a film over the surface—hard enough to withstand friction and grinding wear-and-tear. It induces floors to stay clean longer, because dirt and grease cannot become imbedded in the wood. It beautifies, because it is shimmering, transparent, and brings out the natural beauty of the wood. And what more could the home-maker ask for? There are, however, various qualities of self-polishing wax available. Only the best should be used, for both the appearance and condition of the floors. But the finest self-polishing wax is a joy to use—its lasting results a joy to see!

There is no excuse for cheating yourself or your children of a full measure of iron, for this mineral can easily be obtained from liver, egg yolk, whole grain cereals, molasses, dried fruits, dried peas and beans, nuts, lean meats and green vegetables.

FLOORS
POLISH THEMSELVES

...with O-Cedar Self-Polishing Wax. No rubbing—simply spread it on and let it dry—then watch your floor sparkle! Non-slippery, long-wearing—eliminates scrubbing—dusting alone keeps floors clean. Full qt. only 85¢.

Worthy of Respect
Bow to him who bows not to the flatterer.—Lavater.

BE SURE OF
YOUR SEEDS

YOUR seeds need not be one of the uncertainties of gardening, thanks to the work of the unique Ferry-Morse Seed-Breeding Institute. Here's how the Institute's seed experts produce dependable, prize-winning Ferry's Seeds:

First—seed stocks are perfected by generations of breeding and selecting to develop desired characteristics and to eliminate weaknesses.

Second—every year, before Ferry's Seeds are packaged, 50,000 tests for germination are made—and samples are tested for truthness to type.

Choose vegetable and flower seeds you can be sure of—from the Ferry's Seeds display in your favorite store. These seeds have been selected as suitable to your locality. So a packet and up. Ferry-Morse Seed Co., Detroit, San Francisco.

THE GOOD EARTH...

Sun... Soil... Rain... and Electricity

for farms and is recognized as one of the lowest average rates for electric service in the United States. This rate includes without extra charge lamp and fuse renewals, and minor repairs to appliances, as part of the same low rate. And the more you use the less it costs per unit.

Farm applications of electric power are almost unlimited: On farms served by us, electricity milks cows and cools the milk, separates cream, heats water for sterilizing dairy utensils and for other uses, grinds feed, pumps water to stock, provides running water for irrigation and for all farm uses, brings chicks into the world, warms them under the electric brooder, warms their drinking water and keeps it at the right temperature, provides light to stimulate egg production and plant growth, shells corn, grades fruit, washes vegetables, hoists hay, fills the silo, saws wood, heats soil in hotbeds, sharpens tools and does many other chores. Electricity does these things better and more economically than they can be done otherwise.

One of our farm customers who keeps accurate records saved $363 last year by using $53.17 worth of electricity instead of doing his work by hand. Carefully detailed figures were published in THE MICHIGAN FARMER and included all items of interest and depreciation on equipment.

Sun and soil and rain... These are the elements that have brought bountiful harvests to farmers since the early Egyptians tilled the rich land along the Nile. Now, with these age-old elements, electric power is contributing to better farming. For thirty years rural areas have been served by The Detroit Edison Company. Since 1928 groups of farmers have been able to get Detroit Edison service without any charge for line extensions, provided there are more than a minimum number of farms per mile: In 1928 this figure was 10 per mile; in 1933 this was reduced to 7 1/2 per mile; and since 1935, 5 per mile.

Today, 27,157 farmers are served by 6,414 miles of Detroit Edison farm line; 87.8 per cent of the farmers in the older Detroit Edison territory are now connected to our lines. In the two years since we began serving the Thumb area, the farms there which we serve have trebled.

Farm electrification has been a reality in Detroit Edison territory for ten years.

The Detroit Edison Company

STATE BOOK PRICES LOWEST, CASE CAUTIONS

The department of state calls attention to the prices at which various publications are available, in view of the fact that at least one publishing firm is offering them for less than the state charges. The only source private publishers have for state publications is the state itself, and there is no profit in a number of books which are bought at the price available elsewhere. The state's prices are the lowest; in instances where prices are charged, with credit payments available, it is the Michigan D. Case, Secretary of the Department of State, who is the difference in prices to be publicly known.

The department of state will send, charge, to any point in Michigan, and charge collect elsewhere, for publications. Prices of those most in demand are: Compiled Laws of 1929, $15; Public Acts of 1931, 1933, and 1935, $1.50 each; Public Acts of 1937, $1.75; Michigan Manual, 1937 edition, $1.75.

APPETITE FAILS TO GUARD HEALTH

How does this menu sound to you? Wheat cakes, maple syrup and coffee for breakfast. Baked potato, roast pork, apple sauce, cucumber salad, hot rolls, pine apple sherbert and cakes for dinner. Spaghetti and meat balls, a gelatine salad, gingerbread, and tea for lunch or supper.

The three meals above constitute only about one third of the daily minimum of vitamins.

Protective foods can be found in such foods as whole grain cereal, an egg or cheese, a pint of milk, citrus fruit or tomatoes and some of her fruit and two yellow green vegetables.

Suggestions to the three meals which sound so appetizing and just in science are found to be inadequate are comparatively simple.

A few changes are in order. Add an orange to breakfast. Use a cooked green vegetable and celery and carrot sticks instead of cucumber salad at dinner. For lunch or supper, serve cheese soufle, tomato and green salad, whole wheat rolls or bran muffins and jelly, with milk for a beverage.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

"The little trader!" she murmured. "He came floating down the river dead in his canoe. I put him out before your lodge. On the grass before your lodge. With these hands, I put him out. You leave me alone when there is whiskey and—"

That was all they wanted from her, now. They turned away, with much to tell, not heeding her chatter of explanation. Little Duck had come, saying Shaw was dead. It was a time of death. Flat Mouth's son was dead and now their friend, the trader, was dead.

They spoke rapidly and loudly; word ran from group to group until it reached the knot of hunters about Rickman, smoking his tobacco but contemptuous of a man who had been driven out of his lodge. The story of how Shaw had spent the night waiting for the company trader to return had been about. All day they had watched Rickman, concealing their contempt and wonder, because he gave them tobacco. Now Shaw was dead and they kept their wonder about that to themselves as well. This company trader did not meet their eyes. He breathed quickly when he heard of Shaw's death but he did not look at them.

Then, after a time, he began to talk. He was their friend, he said. If the little trader was dead, the band would not lack a fort for trading. He would welcome them to his lodge; they would find his hands full and his heart generous. But he licked his lips as he said these things and looked continually at an island down the lake as a hungry man will look and soon afterward put out in his canoe and started for the company post.

Conrad Rich had put in a day of desperate suspense. His mind accustomed to figures and thoroughly comfortable only when concerned with figures, had been whipped to a frenzy by the multitude of fantastic happenings since last night.

He had fussed about, watching the lake, eagerly listening to those men who came and went and had contact with others and who might have learned something that would shed light on the many matters which baffled him. But none brought news which did else than add to his bewilderment.

In late afternoon he abandoned attempts at puzzling matters out and sought solace with the familiar. Ledgers and invoices spread before him, he tried to work but he was so harried that his mind would not even find peace in the familiar. He just sat before the table in the trading room and stared at the wall, heart quick and aching with suspense.

So he was in a fit mood to be startled when Annette spoke to him from the doorway.

"Oh!" she cried. "Did I frighten you?"

"Fright—Lord, ma'am! Lord, ma'am! Annette!" he gasped and went to her quickly and took both her hands and drew her within the room.

"I heard what Rickman said to you here 'nd what you said to him." She flushed but he did not notice. Tears stood in his eyes as he stumbled on: "Things 've happened so's a man can't wonder straight for any minute after 't's next un and if it hadn't be'n for Capes bein' here I'd thought Rickman was after you 'nd—"

"Why, Conrad! You're in a state!"

She stroked the back of one old hand.

"State! How could a man be another way? You're here 'nd fire are set which ain't expected for to burn and madmen run in and out 'nd hellish schemes are hatched under a body's nose that can't be understood complete nor half. State? I'm to say, I'm in a state."

"But you hadn't ought to be here!"—craning his neck to look through the doorway in the direction of the stockade gate. "Tain't no place for you! You'd ought to know after what you heard last evenin'. If he should come in 'nd find you—"

"There, Conrad! You're more alarmed than even I, and I must confess that it has not been a tranquil day for me."

"But Burke is at the medicine encampment. The men saw him there within the hour. He has been there since early morning."

"I have come for your help," she said. "Oh, just counsel!"—as he stirred and gulped, plainly with an awareness of his own inadequacies. "I'm alone here, now, Conrad. I encamped last night near Lieutenant Capes. I attempted to persuade him to stay on until Rodney should at least be warned of the threats made against him. But the major's orders were beyond mistaking. The lieutenant was distressed to leave me, but I assured him that with Rodney Shaw here I was in no danger."

Again the flush showed in her lovely cheeks and she dropped her gaze.

"But I have been unable to see Rodney. All the day he has been absent from his post—"

"All night he was here! All night he waited, ready to shoot Burke like a man 'd shoot a wolf!"

"Conrad? Do you suppose he's in danger now?"

"Danger's all about. But Rickman, he's with the Indians. He's be'n there all day."

"True. It comforts me. I . . . You see, Conrad, it is necessary that I talk with Rodney at once. There are so many things for me to say. I harmed him grievously and I want him to know it and my regret from my own lips. And, also, he must be warned of the threats Burke makes against him."

"It's no warnin' he needs! Why, they've be'n like hostile dogs ever since Mackinac. Rickman's tried Shaw once and last night Shaw comes here ready to blast our trader into kingdom come."

He broke short, jaw sagging. Over his shoulder he could see Rickman entering the gate.

"He's comin' now!" he rasped. "Rickman! At 't' gate!"—dragging her from the doorway. "If he found you here, there's no guessin'!"

Here! This window! Outside, and leave him to me 'til you get a chance to slip away!"

He lifted her, thrust her feet through the window in the rear wall and let her down outside against the building, turning to confront Rickman as he approached the doorway.

The trader stopped on the threshold. He put one hand against the logs and smiled at his clerk.

"Shaw," said Rickman, "Shaw is dead!"

Shaw was dead? Rodney dead? Annette averted against the wall, coldness enveloping her, and raised hands to her mouth to stifle the cry her throat could not stop.

"He's dead, I tell you, Rich, and there's none to babble that I had a part in it. The trader's mine, now. It's mine, at last, for the company."

He's no bourgeois to collect his furs! His Basile's like a faithful dog, but he's no head for trade. . . . But that's a bauble, a trinket, Rich! There are other things a man values higher even than this trade and—go for one of these now!"

He reached beneath his bed and dragged out a jug and lifting it to his lips drank deeply. . . . Annette slipped around the building and fled for the gate.

"I'll pull her claws, now!" the trader boasted. "Impose a fraud on me, eh? She's here, alone with her boatmen. Capes is gone and all day, Rich . . . all day I've waited . . . waited."

He drank again, lingeringly, and the liquor mingled with the intoxication engendered by his passion and his sense of achievement.

"Capes is gone and Shaw is dead and she's a woman without a protector in the interior!"

"Sleep with the men, Rich. Tonight, this—with a sweeping gesture—"becomes a bridal chamber!"

As Annette ran through the gateway her boatmen, lounging by the canoe, rose. But she did not go to them. She stood a moment, staring up the lake, shielding her eyes from the descending sun. She saw men gathered before Fort Shaw, saw others running from the stockade with burdens and began again to run herself.

She neither staggered nor sobbed, now. Her feet were firm beneath her, and though her breathing was ragged, her eyes were dry. She ran as she had never run before, lightly and swiftly.

From the head of the last little cove she must skirt before reaching Shaw's fort she saw them launch a canoe and cried out. They did not hear. She slowed to a walk for breath to scream more loudly, but it did no good. Her heart's beating crowded her throat, her blood's roaring was loud in her ears. Walking did no good, and she ran again.

So, just as he settled himself in the stern, to Basile's ears came a strangled hail, his name, the admonition to wait.

"We cannot wait!" he called. "Shaw has been shot down. We go!"

"Where? When?"

She was in the water, to knees, grasping for the moving canoe.

"Yonder! If he lives, he has lain alone since noon. We go to—"

"I go . . . with you!" she sobbed, all but collapsing into the canoe.

"Oars!" Basile growled, and the four blades caught the water in unison.

Good men at the paddles; the best the fort boasted, with Basile at the steering oar, goading them on.

Annette's hands were clenched in her lap, her face white, and, rousing after a time, she stared ahead, unmindful of the occasional slap of spray which came scudding past the men to drench her face. On they went into the sunset, into the cool of evening.

Basile had called the stroke and barked for speed. Shoulders and backs and arms worked in swift cadence; the canoe leaped and lunged on its way. But it was not enough.

"Faster!" the girl called suddenly, half rising to her knees, throwing a look of appeal upward at the startled Basile. "Faster! He may be yet alive but dying for want of your speed!"

And the backs bent further, the arms swept harder; they boiled on their way. They grunted under the strain to which she forced and held them.

In the stream, though, they slowed their stroke, groping through darkness, cautious of snags and shallows. A deer splashed from the water before them; ducks rose with a clatter of wings.

"It was beyond the marsh, their lodge."

"No. Below, I remember."

"Still three bends to go."

So, the boatmen, arguing in whispers.

Stars shone above them, river mists enshrouded them.

"Hold! I see!" Basile, standing, could catch the loom of the lodge against ghostly birch trunks.

"Ay! We arrive!"

The canoe grated the sand and it was Annette's foot that first trod the bank.

"Rodney?" Her voice, that, pinched and shrill, like the cry of some hurt bird. It made the men mutter. "Rodney . . . Oh, Rodney!" Her call caught in a sob as she went forward, and then she gasped. "Here! Basile!"

She was on her knees beside him, as they pressed about, her palms on his cheeks.

"Rodney! Rodney! We have come! Can you not hear? . . . Oh, he lives!"

She sat there, feverishly chafing his wrists as the remains of fire were found, as lustrous breaths blew life into the ash-covered coals.

Shaw turned his head and moaned heavily.

"We cannot all return with him," Basile murmured.

"Return? With him?" Annette, hands busy with Shaw's shirt, questioned in contempt. "When the spark in him is duller than the spark was in the fire? You'd carry those coals back to the fort to blow life? No . . . Here! I know. From my aunt, I have learned much."

She taught them much, those averted and bungling men. They brought boughs and built a bed. They carried robes from the Indian lodge to cover it.

They pegged a blanket to the ground and secured its other edge to a pole held lashed to two saplings to shelter him; on the opposite side of the fire they raised another blanket to throw the heat against his couch. This much they knew how to do.

Rocks were rolled into the fire to warm at Annette's order, his leggings and moccasins stripped off and hard hands set to chafing the flesh, as cold as the flesh of the

She arranged the camp, she announced the routine. Never before had those engages taken orders from a woman; but never, also, had they encountered a woman such as this.

She did not direct them to do this or that without reason. She demonstrated for such a task she was far better equipped than they, and they obeyed without dissenting look or word.

Old Basile, when not thinking about his unconscious master, pondered deeply in his simple way on this girl. She had come to them from the company fort. From no other place could she have come.

Few American Mirrors Made in 18th Century; the Best Work Was Imported

Save for a few crude examples some of them home-made, there is little indication that mirrors were made in America to any extent before the second half of the Eighteenth century, writes Richmond Huntley in "American Collector." Even then, though the silvering process might be done here and probably was, the glass itself was imported.

Although American glass houses were early on the scene, they made neither the plate glass nor the thin clear mirror glass of a later day. After the Revolution much French glass was imported; and when in 1812 the unpopular embargo laws interfered, John Doggett, of Roxbury, Mass., gallantly stepped into the breach for his section of the country and quicksilvered native window glass.

But back to the Seventeenth century colonist and his "large looking glasses" just over in the frail boats of less than 200 tons burden. These same boats had from the beginning brought artisans and craftsmen of all sorts. Many of the cabinetmakers were versatile men, able and willing to do anything for their patrons from taking down and setting up beds, making and repairing furniture, to fashioning the coffins for their last journey. One is not surprised to find men among them who knew how to resilver mirrors, copper wheel-cut a design with diamond dust; or make and carve a frame.

"Looking glasses of all sorts," read an advertisement in the Boston News Letter, April 25, 1715, "old glasses never silvered. Done and sold by William Rundle at the sign of the Cabinet, a looking-glass Shop in Queen Street." Further mirror styles had changed. The glass dead. But he was not dead; not yet. From time to time he moaned lightly.

Carefully, tenderly, Annette soaked the bloodied shirt from his skin and bared the gaping wound in his back and its companion close to where neck and chest joined.

She straightened, still on her knees. A hand went within her gown, in against her bosom. Her fingers twined and she tugged, ripping out tatters of soft cloth, soft and clean from washing, clean and warm from her clean, warm body.

She pressed them against the wounds, holding them close, calling out to him that she would stay the ebbing life, that she had arrived in time.

For an hour she sat so, Shaw's head in her lap, pressing the cloths that had been her garments against the bleeding wounds. Then, satisfied, she bound them close and turned him to his back.

Heated stones were wrapped in skins and placed at his feet and his sides; the fire was kept going with meticulous steadiness. At first Shaw was restless, mumbling, trying to turn, to shove himself erect, but Annette called out to him, held him close, telling him that to move would start the bleeding afresh. He gave no evidence of hearing, of understanding, but sank back and after a time slept heavily.

Yes, she remembered much from those heedless days when life was life and there was no death; when her old aunt went about, caring and curing, and muttering betimes because a girl's thoughts could only be of light, inconsequential affairs. Another, that must have been; another to be so heedless. It was she, Annette, her true self, who had remembered what, tonight, stood her in such stead!

Two men put out for the fort to fetch a tent and blankets and utensils and the dozen other items which Annette demanded.

And to deliver orders, whispered at length by Basile. When they were gone Basile, turning to her, said:

"Ma'm'selle must rest. I will watch."

"Rest?"—startled. "Oh . . . rest?"—contemptuously as though rest were the least important item. She did not rest. She moved away into the shadows. She was gone for long and Basile, bending to peer beneath the shelter, saw her on her knees under the birches, face up-lifted, lips moving as she begged for aid . . .

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THIS pink and white chintz apron with pink gingham frills should inspire anyone to make long strides towards the kitchen. It is easy to cut. The material required is 1½ yards of 36-inch-wide chintz or cotton print and one yard of plain material.

For the skirt of the apron, cut a piece of paper or cloth 27 inches wide and 23 inches deep. Fold this lengthwise through the center, as at A, then measure down from the top of the fold and in from the corners the distances indicated in the diagram and mark the dots. Using the dots as a guide, mark the outline of the apron skirt as you see it in the diagram. The dimensions for shaping the bib are given in the diagram at B. The pocket is a 5-inch square with lower corners rounded as shown here at C. The apron ties are cut 6 inches wide and 38 inches long. The strip for the belt should be cut 2½ inches wide and a facing strip the same width should be cut for it. The shoulder straps are cut 4 inches wide and then creased lengthwise through the center.

The strips of the plain material for the ruffles are cut 6 inches wide. The ruffle material before it is gathered should be 2½ times the length of the space it is to fill after gathering. Use the machine hemmer foot shown here at the lower left for hemming the ruffles and the machine ruffer for gathering them.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' latest book—Gifts and Embroidery number—is now ready. Available to readers who will send name and address and enclose 25 cents (coin preferred). Just address Mrs. Spears, 210 So. Desplains St., Chicago.

Strange Facts

Curtain of Fire Stops Radio

A CURTAIN of fire is one of nature's great electrical mysteries. In northern latitudes at certain times beams and flashes of dazzling brilliance play across the sky. Sometimes it is like giant searchlights from beyond the rim of the world. The discharge of light is 50 to 100 miles above the earth. With it comes a noise, a low crackling sound like the rustle of silk, believed to be made by the aurora borealis.

On January 25, 1938, the people of London came running from their houses believing that the whole city was afire. All over Europe fire engines rushed to put out non-existent fires. Even Windsor castle was thought to be burning to the ground as the fire department raced to the scene. On that night from 8:30 to 8:30 p. m. the most brilliant display of aurora borealis in 50 years was seen over a wide area of northern Europe, extending even to Italy and Portugal. Between New York and Europe short-wave radio went dead.

The cause of nature's most beautiful, mysterious and at times most terrifying phenomenon is unknown. Scientists believe the rays are due to discharges of electricity in the upper atmosphere, and are in some unknown way related to sun spots. Sun spots are dark spots on the face of the sun, seen only through a telescope. They look like cavities and from the rim of these cavities rise whirling flames. Some scientists believe the sun spots are giant fiery whirlpools that move across the face of the sun. They seem to cause magnetic storms which in turn disrupt radio communication and also, some scientists believe, affect the weather on the earth.

Philathea Notes

A goodly number of our class members were present Sunday for our last lesson with Mrs. Zues as teacher. She leaves with our thanks for her faithful service, and our good wishes as she goes to the new field. Mrs. Elliott has charge for next Sunday.

A rising vote of thanks was given the Zueses by the Sunday School for their splendid help and co-operation during their years with us.

We are apparently continuing our studies in Mark during this new quarter. The topic for next Sunday is, "Serving Other Races", Mark 7:24

This will be missionary Sunday in our school. If you are unable to stay for the lesson perhaps you can leave your contribution or bring the Cent a Meal.

Rev. Dawe will again be with us on this Wednesday evening for the Church night and pot luck supper at 6:30. He is always a welcome guest.

Washington News

Letter

By Congressman Andrew J. Tamm

Spring Arrives

While Washington's famed Japanese cherry trees were defying experts and blossoming ten days in advance of the earliest predictions, Congress greeted the advent of spring with a week of intensive study in which the House passed the augmented Navy Bill and the Senate voted an investigation of the TVA and cleared the decks for a final vote on the Government Reorganization Bill early this week. President Roosevelt fired the Chairman of the TVA for continued refusal to cooperate in an executive investigation and then started south for a short vacation during which he warned Southern employers that a persistent low wage scale for Southern industrial workers would eventually react against the South and at present retarded genuine prosperity by depriving labor of its rightful purchasing power.

On Monday last week the House by a vote of 291 to 100 passed the augmented Navy appropriation with your Congressman voting with the minority. It was pointed out that physical limitations of our shipyards will prevent the start on this increased program for at least another year. Two battleships approved several months ago have not yet been begun. Opponents of the billion dollar increase agreed that they believed in and would vote for adequate naval defense but to them the problem of finding work for our millions of unemployed outweighed the necessity of making provision for an enlarged Navy possible only in the indefinite future.

Senate Surprise

The senate vote on the elimination of the Comptroller General in favor of an Auditor General was a distinct surprise to opponents of the plan who had counted on that issue as the bulwark of their defense against modernizing the executive machinery of Government. By a 47 to 36 vote the Senate rejected an amendment that would have exempted the Comptroller General from the reorganization plan. By general agreement the Senate declined to permit the attachment of the anti-lynching bill on the reorganization measure as a rider when a vote is finally called last week. The last stand of the opponents will see a marshalling of every possible vote for a motion to recommit the bill to Committee for further study. The opposition of Wm

Green, president of the AFL to the Reorganization Bill was disposed of by Senators supporting the plan when they produced a 900 page record of Committee hearings to refute Green's statement that the Committee hearings were superficial.

General Compromise

By combining three resolutions demanding investigation of the TVA the Senate finally approved an official probe by a joint House and Senate Committee of 10 members. Though Senator Norris, "TVA Father" held out for a Senate investigation without including the House, Majority Leader Barkley flatly told the Senate that if this resolution was approved then the House, would on the following day pass its own resolution for a House investigation. Senator Barkley said two investigations held simultaneously by the House and Senate of the same Government agency would be chaotic. The Speaker of the House will appoint the five House members to act on the Committee after the House passes a similar resolution to conform with the Senate. Vice President Garner will appoint five Senators on the Committee. President Roosevelt be fore starting south for a ten day rest, dismissed Dr. Arthur E. Morgan as Chairman and one of the directors of the TVA. In an explanation to Congress the President stated that Morgan had refused to cooperate in an executive investigation of serious charges he had made against the other two directors and the dismissal was in accordance with the President's Constitutional Authority to see that the laws are observed. Harcourt A. Morgan was named the new head while the created vacancy was not immediately filled.

Boomerang Effect

As the President in Georgia was criticizing low wages as a boomerang reacting against sections and industries that adopt and follow such policies, the House Labor Committee was trying to obtain cooperation of labor leaders in drafting a wage and hour bill that will meet the approval of Congress and be satisfactory to labor unions. Thus far efforts to obtain any kind of a agreement among the spokesmen for labor have been futile with termination of intra union disputes creating a situation that seriously threatens any progressive legislation to regulate hours and wages for the working people of the nation. Committee sessions of most of the major Committees of the House and Senate continued last week to consider a variety of legislative appeals. The senate Finance Committee promised to report a bill to the Senate this week with several major alterations of the Tax Revision Bill previously passed by the House. In the House Foreign Affairs Committee the President was asked to confer medals for valor on the British Naval officers who rescued the Panay survivors in China.

UNITED STATES

SAVINGS BONDS

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the total maturity value of United States Savings Bonds sold through the close of business March 7, 1938, amounted to $1,584,462,875. This total was purchased by more than 1,260,000 investors, and represents an average sale for each business day since the 1st of March 1935, when these bonds first were sold.

A record for one day's sale of Savings Bonds was set on Monday, January 10, of this year, when $10,029,775 of these bonds were reported sold on this single day. Sales by post offices throughout the country on that day represented $9,025,350 maturity value of bonds, and direct by mail orders were received in the Capitol for Savings Bonds of a maturity value of $1,004,425.

The sale of Savings Bonds for the calendar year 1937 was 34.2 percent greater than for 1936, and the year 1936 extended the ten months sale of these bonds in 1935 by 82.8 percent.

The total maturity value sale for the calendar year 1937 amounted to $635,419,175 with approximately a 600,000 purchasers, and an average sale for each business day of $2,090,200.

Detailed analysis of the daily sale at each of the post offices throughout the country authorized to sell Savings Bonds was begun on September 1st, 1936, and for the year ending August 31, 1937 showed that there was a maturity value sale of $636,748,500, or an average sale of $2,101,505, for each business day for the first year these records were kept.

"When My Ship Comes In"

That much used phrase has caused the financial ruin of untold numbers of people. Too many people are content to rest idly by while their ship is still below the level of the horizon. It is wishful dreaming.

Every individual while working can bring his or her ship nearer the port by planning. A portion of income saved out of each pay check is a step. History shows that almost all great fortunes in America have arisen from small savings. Carnegie, Schwab, Rockefeller, Edison, Ford, Firestone all had small beginnings. Of course, their ship turned out to be bigger than most people can hope for, but small savings incorporated with well founded ideas brought to them fame and fortune.
