

TIPS to Gardeners

Combinations
TO INCREASE yield from the vegetable plot, the home gardener should grow "combined cultures."

The theory is to plant in closely spaced adjacent rows vegetables harvested at widely different times, using one before the other begins to mature.

Combine cauliflower, lettuce and radish, for instance. Plant cauliflower early in rows three feet apart. Between the rows plant lettuce, and between lettuce and cauliflower rows plant radish. Radishes are harvested early, then the lettuce, and later the cauliflower.

Following are several other combinations recommended by Harold Coulter, Ferry Seed Institute vegetable expert:

Carrots and parsnips in alternate rows two feet apart; radishes between first two rows; lettuce between second and third rows, and spinach between third and fourth rows.

Spinach rows two and one-half feet apart; radishes between spinach; pepper plants set between spinach when radishes are pulled.

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?

Men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is lovable for three weeks of the month—but a half-wit the fourth.
No matter how your back aches—don't take it out on your husband.
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tune up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure.
Make a note NOW to get a bottle of Pinkham's today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit.
Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—To have a clear understanding of the discussion that is to follow, I think I must first find a definition of the word "contumacy."

The TVA Controversy

It ought to be properly and officially defined because it is going to be a very important word in this country. So, I read from the dictionary here on my desk the following definition:

CONTUMACY, contemptuous disregard of authority; insolent disregard of authority; incorrigible obstinacy.

Next, it should be set down that there are—rather, there were two men with the surname of Morgan as officials of the Tennessee Valley authority before President Roosevelt removed one of them from office for contumacy. The fact that there were two Morgans must be remembered because each one figures prominently in a continuing controversy and for the reason that neither one of the Morgans is connected with "the House of Morgan" to which so many demagogues refer when they talk about economic royalties.

In the third place, we should know something about David E. Lilienthal, who, like the two Morgans, also was a director of the TVA. Mr. Lilienthal continues to be a director, as does Harcourt Morgan. The Morgan who no longer has official connection with TVA, according to President Roosevelt, is Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, founder of the famous Antioch college at Yellow Springs, Ohio. Arthur Morgan was removed as chairman of the TVA because the President said he was guilty of "contumacy," and Harcourt Morgan was made chairman.

The removal took place by executive order after Mr. Roosevelt had personally held three hearings for the purpose, he said, of determining who was wrong in an old-fashioned cat and dog fight that has been going for months among the three directors of TVA. Arthur Morgan had made accusations against the other two directors, charges of a libelous nature, charges of dishonesty—in short, charges that the other two directors were guilty of enough things to cause their removal from office. Arthur Morgan had openly urged a congressional investigation of the TVA as well, and when Mr. Roosevelt made his own investigation and Arthur Morgan refused to offer one iota of evidence to support his previous charges, he was guilty of contumacy and the Chief Executive removed, or just plain fired, him.

And so, we come to another phase. In urging a congressional investigation, Arthur Morgan followed what he thought was the proper course. He held that the TVA was a creature of congress which placed in its law, its legal charter, that none of the directors could be removed unless on charges that they had played political favorites in TVA appointments. He thought that the White House investigation was a means of checking a congressional investigation which had been so vigorously opposed by Senator Norris of Nebraska, father of the TVA and Roosevelt supporter. That is to say, Chairman Morgan didn't believe President Roosevelt had any authority to call in the three directors and there, in the presence of all, compel the chairman to substantiate his charges. So he stood pat. But Mr. Roosevelt believed he did have authority and he used it. He removed Arthur Morgan and promoted Harcourt Morgan to the TVA chairmanship.

Well, there had been a lot of hemming and hawing around the senate over the general TVA investigation proposed by the fighting young Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, who was joined in the battle by Sen. William H. King of Utah. Senator Norris succeeded in stalling the investigation for quite awhile. But after the White House investigation which Senator Bridges contemptuously referred to as a "comic opera trial," things began to happen in the house of representatives as well as in the senate and so now there is scheduled an investigation in which house and senate will join, an inquiry that will go into every phase of TVA to see what makes it tick.

There can be no doubt at all that instead of satisfying the country, especially congress, as to the merits of the TVA row, the White House investigation had the effect of bringing about a far-reaching investigation in congress. Many bitter words have been uttered about the White House course in firing Arthur Morgan, observations that Mr. Roosevelt had "railroaded" the chairman out of the TVA job; assertions that it constituted an American version of the famed French "Dreyfus case," assertions that "contumacy is a crime only where dictators operate," etc. Try as they may now, the public ownership advocates, socialists and others who believe in the state owning everything, are due to have the varnish removed from

TVA. The country at last is going to have a look at the real wood; they will get some facts that hitherto have been concealed or hushed up. That is, these things will come out for an airing unless the presidential lash whips enough committeemen into line to develop a whitewash.

Aside from the tragedy of having Arthur Morgan's name smeared, the TVA row and the White House investigation probably will be good for the country. Anybody who knows Arthur Morgan's record, must agree that it is one of which any man could be proud. It is too bad, therefore, that he has to be the goat in the case. But I repeat that the affair will result in considerable good if the whole TVA record can be brought into the open and the goings-on of public ownership advocates can be exposed for once insofar as TVA is concerned.

There is, however, something much more significant, much deeper, in this situation than just justice or injustice to one man. In this I refer to the use of authority by the President to make an independent official do the bidding of the Chief Executive. It is a case comparable in many respects to the removal of the late William E. Humphreys as a member of the federal trade commission. That was done, President Roosevelt said at the time, because Mr. Humphreys failed "to see eye to eye" with the Chief Executive. It is to be remembered, too, that the Supreme Court of the United States held unanimously that Mr. Roosevelt did not have the power to remove Mr. Humphreys. Thus, there is again a legal question whether the President had the power, although Homer S. Cummings, the attorney general, advised Mr. Roosevelt that such power was vested in him as President. Undoubtedly, Arthur Morgan will try out the matter in court.

The disturbing thing is, however, that if President Roosevelt has that much authority now, how much more authority will he have to do that sort of thing, and many, many others, if given authority to reorganize the government agencies as he sought in the original government reorganization bill. Of course, much of his demanded authority has been shorn from the bill, but I believe there is ground for alarm at what remains. Whether Mr. Roosevelt continues to be President indefinitely or whether some other man is President, I think congress has no right to give away such power.

But to get back to the case of Arthur Morgan, and his "contumacy." The meaning of the word is clear. Arthur Morgan, according to people who know him intimately, was trying to do the best job he knew how to do. He read the law one way; the President read it another. I see no legitimate reason for removal of the man on the grounds of contumacy. That is no crime. Discipline Mr. Morgan? Yes, if the President wanted to do so. Suspend him until the facts have been brought to light by a congressional inquiry, a mode of procedure which congress reserved to itself. But removal seems to be rather foolish, and the action certainly has reacted adversely to the President among his own partisans.

The White House inquiry failed to adduce any story about the operations of Harcourt Morgan and Mr. Lilienthal. I hear in many quarters that Mr. Lilienthal is the man who really started the trouble in the beginning. He is the same man who was connected with the Wisconsin utilities commission and wrote an order directing a reduction in telephone rates before holding a hearing to give interested parties a chance to have their day in court. If current reports be true, Mr. Lilienthal actually signed the order reducing rates several days before the so-called public hearing was held. The court called his action arbitrary and delivered itself of quite a tongue-lashing about such unwarranted and despotic action. That opinion was rendered late in February. Whether Mr. Lilienthal has been guilty of the same kind of despotism in TVA, I have no means of knowing; but, this much surely can be said: if he attempted anything of the kind, Arthur Morgan would be the first to object.

Mr. Lilienthal's operations in TVA, as far as they are visible from Washington, have the appearance and the results naturally to be expected of an extremist. Arthur Morgan is self-willed, too, but the records of the two men as far as they are known publicly assuredly shows him to understand human nature. Mr. Roosevelt, having elected to fire Mr. Morgan for "contumacy" and thereby having placed himself on the side of Mr. Lilienthal, now must face the political music.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Noted Food Authority

Relates the Miracle of VITAMINS and Explains Why YOU MUST EAT THEM or DIE

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York.

WE LIVE in the most inspiring age the world has ever known. Chemists grow plants without soil. Doctors snatch men from death with insulin. Surgeons perform incredibly delicate brain operations. And thanks to the amazing discoveries of nutritional scientists, children enter the world with far better chances for long and happy lives, while men and women of seventy are more active and useful than their grandparents were at fifty.

Much of the hard-won knowledge of how to eat so as to increase efficiency, curb disease, and improve the chances for longevity is due to the discovery of vitamins.

VITAMINS DISCOVERED

Twenty-six years ago, a now-famous scientist walked nervously around his laboratory, back and forth—back and forth. He was conducting a nutrition experiment of vast importance. He didn't quite know what he was going to find, but he believed that he was on the verge of a revolutionary food discovery.

The scientist was my friend, Casimir Funk, a brilliant Polish bio-chemist. He had been working on the problem for many years. At last, in the year 1912, his experiments were positive and conclusive. Then he announced to the scientific world that he had discovered a vital force. "This force," said Funk, "I have called vitamins, because it is necessary to life."

Thus, the word "vitamin" came into being, along with the first knowledge of these minute but powerful factors which exert such a tremendous influence on human health and happiness.

SPARE PLUGS OF NUTRITION

Other bio-chemists throughout the world—including Sir Frederick Gowland Hopkins in England, and Hart, Humphrey, Babcock, Steenbock and McCollum in the United States—had been working on the same problem that Funk had partially solved. They knew that the first step was to find out how vitamins affected the human body, and that the second step was to discover what foods contained these vital substances.

And so there began a long series of experiments in the laboratories of great universities all over the world, which demonstrated what happens when a diet is deficient in any of the vitamins, and proved that if laboratory animals are wholly deprived of vitamins for a short time they will die.

These experiments are of the utmost significance to every homemaker, because the same thing happens to human beings as to experimental animals. Today our knowledge of vitamins has progressed to such a degree that it is possible to state the exact requirements for most of the vitamins and to designate the foods from which adequate quantities can be obtained.

RESISTANCE AND VITAMIN A
To date, six vitamins have been identified. Vitamin A promotes growth and builds resistance to disease. It is necessary for the health of the mucous membranes of the body and helps to guard against infections of the respiratory and alimentary tracts. It influences the health of the hair and skin, is necessary to prevent a serious eye disorder known as night blindness, and is essential for the formation of healthy teeth.

Vitamin A is found in milk, butter, margarine that has been reinforced with vitamin A concentrate, egg yolk, cod-liver oil, thin green leaves and yellow fruits and vegetables such as carrots, sweet potatoes, apricots and bananas.

APPETITE AND VITAMIN B

Vitamin B promotes appetite, aids digestion, prevents a serious nerve disorder. It is essential to the maintenance of a good digestion, which is vitally important if the body is to obtain full benefit from the food consumed. This vitamin is closely related to the energy metabolism, and the requirement increases with the rate of growth and with increased energy expenditure, so that growing children and working men and women should receive very generous amounts.

Vitamin B is found in yeast, whole wheat cereals, oatmeal, milk, fresh and dried peas and beans, spinach, cabbage and other greens, egg yolk and liver.

VITAMIN C FOR TEETH, GUMS

Vitamin C plays an important part in regulating body processes, and prevents the dread disease of scurvy. A lack of this essential vitamin results in profound changes in the structure of the teeth and gums, may be responsible for hemorrhages occurring anywhere in the body, and for the degeneration of muscle fibers generally.

Vitamin C is most abundant in succulent fresh green leaves, such as green cabbage. It is also found in onions, potatoes, oranges, tomatoes, green peppers, bananas and strawberries.

VITAMIN D AND RICKETS

Vitamin D is sometimes called the sunshine vitamin because it can be manufactured in the body through the action of direct sunlight on the skin. This is the vitamin that is necessary for the proper utilization of calcium and phosphorus in building bones and teeth. When it is lacking in the diet of infants, there develops that horrible disease known as rickets, in which the bones become soft and twisted, resulting in pitiful deformities—knock knees, bow legs, pigeon breast.

In foods, vitamin D is only found in appreciable amounts in fish-liver oils and egg yolk. That is why every homemaker should be so grateful to the scientists who labored to discover how to concentrate this precious vitamin from fish-liver oils and add it to foods, or to increase the vitamin D content of foods through irradiation.

ANTI-STERILITY VITAMIN E

Vitamin E comes in for less discussion than the others, because its significance to nutrition has not been fully determined. It does, however, appear to be necessary for successful reproduction and is found especially in wheat germ and lettuce.

VITAMIN G PROLONGS YOUTH

Vitamin G is necessary for growth and for the maintenance of health and vigor at all ages. It helps to ward off old age by prolonging the vigorous middle years. It is essential to the health of the skin, and recent experiments demonstrate that cataracts in the eyes may be due to a deficiency of this vitamin, which is found in yeast, and in liver, kidneys, egg yolk, milk, cheese and green leafy vegetables.

Certainly enough has been learned of vitamin chemistry to make clear that the homemaker fails in her duty who does not provide vitamins in abundance for every member of her family. Both children and adults depend upon you for their food supply. It lies within your power to help them to health and happiness or condemn them to weakness, illness and sorrow. Do not fail them. See to it that every member of your household—your children, the wage earners, the middle aged and the elderly—get enough vitamins to afford them the health that science has placed within their grasp.

'SHORT CUTS' BANNED BY NEW OPERATORS LAW

The new motor vehicle operators and chauffeurs examination statute and regulations drafted on it, have brought a change in procedure that will hereafter prevent 'short cuts' to the Department of State for the issuance of licenses.

Heretofore motorists desiring to renew their licenses quickly especially when preparing to drive out of the state on long absences, have brought their applications direct to the Capitol at Lansing, after approval by local police officers. This is no longer permitted; local police examining officers are not permitted to return approved applications to motorists. Applications must be forwarded through regular channels, to afford official control over every stage of the procedure.

RURAL ATHLETICS IMPROVE RATING

Although athletes from the high schools of the large cities continue to win a majority of the positions on Michigan State College athletic team the boy from the small town or rural district is gradually coming into his own.

A number of boys from villages and small cities are top notch athletes at Michigan State. Leslie Bruckner from Milan hit a new high last fall when he became the football quarterback in his sophomore year. That was a real accomplishment.

Three sophomores tackled on who Coach Backman will depend heavily next fall won as "S". Alex Ketako came from Mattawan, Helge Pearson from Norway and Stanley McRae from Pelletton. Arthur Libbers, the only remaining veteran among the baseball pitchers this year hails from Fremont. Arthur Green, the track team leading half miler indoors last winter graduated from Belding high school.

Miss Lydia Green of Detroit and Mrs. Emil Kuchar visited Miss Jule Adele Ball Friday.

Miss Ann Basydio and Nelson H. House of Detroit were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Basydio Sunday.

The Sunday School of St. Stephens Episcopal church will sponsor a sale of baked goods for their Lenten offering at Thomas Featherly's store in Hamburg village Saturday afternoon, April 9th.

The Ladies Guild of St. Stevens Episcopal church will hold their regular meeting at IOOF Hall Thursday, Dinner will be served.

A large and interested audience viewed the exhibit of winter projects displayed by the 4-H Clubs of the Holden and Hollister schools of the township of Groden Oak and the Hamburg village school at the regional achievement program presented at the IOOF Hall here Thursday night.

As one entered the hall he or she was greeted with the motto, "Make The Best Better". In viewing the display and felt the admonition had been fulfilled.

Prof. Tracy Horton, principal of Hamburg village school made a few opening remarks, then introduced the Boy Scout troop of 11 boys in Uniforms: the Scout oath, Scout Laws, History of Troop, Significance of Badge and Oath of Scouting and demonstrative signaling were given by different members of the troop.

Prof. Horton introduced H. J. Hart district club agent, (this district including Livingston, Washtenaw and Oakland counties) Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Albert Sims.

Mr. Hart took charge of the meeting after a few introductory remarks he requested members of the Michigan Seven Handicraft club of the Hollister school to exhibit specimens of their work; the boys were introduced by the leader and teacher, Joe Basydio, their exhibits showing a large variety of articles.

A style revue was presented by members of the Sunshine 4-H Club of the Holden school, Miss Eva Wenderlien, teacher and Miss Irma B. Meyer, leader and the Just Sew 4-H Clothing Club of Hamburg village, Miss Helen Wenderlien, teacher and leader. They paraded to the music of Mrs. Henry Pryer.

Next was a play by the 4-H girls of the Holden School. The boys of the Hollister school conducted a regular 4-H club meeting, followed by the Just Sew girls. They gave their version of a club meeting in a mock ceremony including singing.

Bob Foster of Hollister school rendered two songs, Anchors Ahoy and Love Is a Rose.

Mr. Hart told of the 4-H Champions must to be held at Lansing this summer; stating there are over 40,000 boys and girls in 4-H club work in Michigan.

Miss Grace Meyer of the Holden school was introduced as one of the county 4-H chaperons in Sewing, LaVerne Antiean of Hollister school as the 4-H champion in Handicraft and Jeanne Bennett of Hamburg as Health Champion.

Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Seims judges selected Jeanne Bennett of Hamburg for best style in dressmaking in the Style Revue of the two clubs in this district.

Mr. Hart closed the program by presenting the new summer 4-H club projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kuchar entertained at an April Fool card party sponsored by Hamburg high, No. 892, Lady Maccabees with 37 in attendance. Seven tables of progressive euchre were in play with Mrs. Glen Borton and Thomas Featherly, as first prize winners; consolation, by Mrs. Clifford VanHorn and H. M. Quail. In guessing the April fool names pinned on the back of each one, Mrs. Glen Borton, Mrs. Roy G. Merrill, Mrs. Jennie Ferman, Mrs. Clifford Rolison, Miss Jule Adele Ball, Mary Charlotte Moon, Glenn Borton, Frank Buckabu and Neophotes Stephanon guessed theirs correctly, on a draw prizes were won by Mrs. Borton and Mr. Stephanon.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Todd Wednesday in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Todd. Guests were, Mrs. Bert Borton, Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Maloney and Mrs. Kuchar of Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Borton. A birthday dinner was served, the dining table being centered with a birthday cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Haggadore had as recent guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Haggadore of Inlay City.

Welcome

To make his visits effective, and to safeguard depositors, the bank examiner and his assistants come to our bank without advance notice. They may come today, tomorrow, or the next week.

They count the cash, verify other assets of the bank, and ask many questions regarding the operation of the bank and its policies. They make a full report to the governmental authorities.

We look upon sound management as the basic safeguard and welcome the helpfulness of bank examiners at all times.

would take the university printing away from them. In the meantime Judge Sample issued an injunction restraining the NLRB from holding hearing, this injunction also names Typographical Union. They will go into court to get the injunction dissolved. According to the Detroit Times 14 of the strikers imported to replace the original strikers went on a strike last week.

The NLRB case against the Ann Arbor Press at Ann Arbor is arousing state-wide attention. The employees of the press went on strike on account of charges filed by the International Typographical Union. The NLRB called a hearing there. Judge Sample refused to let the latter use his court room to hold it. Then the city council gave them permission to use the council room. In the meantime the regents of the U of M. for whom the Ann Arbor Press does considerable work notified them that if they did not settle the strike they

FARM PROGRAM ACERAGE ALLOTMENTS

The farm acreage preliminary allotments of soil depleting crops are now being sent to farmers. These allotments are for a guide to farmers in planting crops this spring.

To qualify for full payment under the new farm program, a farmer need make no reductions from these allotments but must meet the following requirements on his farm:

1. Plant no greater acreage of depleting crops than his farm allotment.
2. Plant only his farm potato acreage allotment on commercial potato farms. Payment will be made only on the actual acreage of potatoes planted in 1938.
3. Plant not more than three acres of potatoes on noncommercial potato farms.
4. Carry out soil building practices to meet his farm soil building goal.

which are wasteful of soil and income, and so that there will be a well managed reserve supply against short years.

It is intended that both farmers and consumers will be safeguarded against disastrous and prohibitive price fluctuations by this system and the soil of the Nation will be preserved.

TO FORM COUNTY ORGANIZATION

Bean growers will meet at the AAA rooms at 110 1/2 North Michigan Ave., Howell on April 12, 1938, at 2:00 P. M.

The purpose of this meeting will be to discuss the various problems in connection with this bean situation in Michigan, to form county organizations of bean growers, and to select representatives to represent Livingston County on a State Board which will be composed of representatives from all bean counties in the State.

Similar meetings are being held in all bean counties in the state. This meeting should be of importance to all bean growers in this county, and a large attendance is expected.

LET'S TELEPHONE THE COUNTY AGENT

The County Agent can be a big help to you. He has been educated and trained to give you the latest information on this business of farming. Get the facts from him the day you need them . . . by telephone.

The shortest route to market, to your kinsfolk in another part of the state, or to your neighbor across the way, is the telephone route. Almost anything that can be settled in ordinary conversation can be done by telephone. Keep in touch by telephone.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Conservation Dept.

70 signs 11x14 feet are being erected at the boundaries of Michigan's forest fire zones. On them in eight inch letters will be the lines, "Entering Fire Zone", below, Keep Michigan Green" and at bottom, Michigan Conservation Department.

500 rock samples have been prepared which will be loaned to Michigan schools. Each of the set contains 48 rock samples of the important rock types to be found in Michigan. These were assembled by the CCC boys at Presque Isle.

A by-product of Michigan state forests are thousands of telephone poles, fence posts, lumber and fire wood. These are made from the fallen and dead trees. Last year from these were obtained 64,000 cords of fuel, 1,154,000 feet of lumber, 30,000 fence posts and 15,000 telephone poles. Some of it was sold but much of it was used by the state.

Notwithstanding unfavorable weather 65,000 persons participated in the winter sports program, 24,486 persons took part, at Rochester 16, 215 at Grayling, 7,590 at Luddington 5,230 at Pontiac, 5,175 at Bloomer, 4,620 at Harrison and 2,549 at Dodge Park, Highland.

New telephone lines will connect Michigan fire towers, camps, headquarters and towns in the Michigan forest districts. A total of 77 miles of lines will be built by CCC boys.

The Merganser or fish duck has been proven to be a robber of fishermen. From the crops of two ducks shot on the St. Joseph river, the remains of 27 small fish, mostly blue gills, was found.

Forest fire towermen will go on duty in another week.

Charles Hazelton, St. Claire tavern keeper was fined $10 plus $3.75 costs for illegal possession of a eagle that was mounted. The bird was brought in from Canada.

Last month there were 77 arrests for fish law violations, 25 arrests for illegal killing of deer or possession of venison and 21 for illegal trapping.

The Geocbic board of supervisors adopted a resolution calling for the assistance of all persons living in the county and all persons passing through in a campaign of forest fire prevention.

The melting snow is expected to show about what percentage of deer were killed last winter. The comparatively mild winter is believed to have made possible plenty of food for the deer.

The finding of 17 dead deer in the AuSable district with their tails torn off is being investigated by the dept. An explanation is lacking, although dogs have been known to bit off the tails of cattle.

The officers have been busy at the shooting of dogs which have been running deer. The reason is that the snow crust was hard enough to bear the dogs this winter. Also the number them are of the German police variety of wild dogs are increasing. Most of lety.

SPRING SWAYS

WOMEN'S HATS

Most anything goes this spring in determining what is fashionable in hats for women.

At least that is the deduction of Marion Hillhouse, assistant professor of clothing at the Michigan State College. Sailors, "balad bowls" and Walt Disney's Snow White all influence what apparently is going to be in style in the the Easter parade.

The flat sailor or boater is considered one of the most important types. Selection is logical because this kind of hat goes with the trim tailored suits that many women prefer to wear in spring.

Those who are short and round should avoid the flat sailor, Miss Hillhouse suggests, because it seems to decrease apparent height. Instead she points to the rolled up Breton which is being called the salad bowl. Breton, worn tilted forward it offers more height and smartness, if it is becoming.

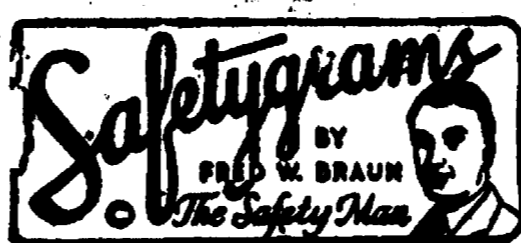

Peaked Snow White's dapper caps are decidedly tall but popular, yet most of the hats have flatter crowns and wider brims that are more fashionably associated with spring.

Shape of the hat is all important and from there the selections depends on getting something that is new and smart in line.

USED CAR PURCHASERS

Officials of the license bureau and title divisions of the Department of State, are cautioning motorists that failure to transfer titles to used cars from previous owners to themselves within ten days after purchase, may car registrations legally void.

The motor vehicle statute on this point provides: "Unless such notice is given, such motor vehicle shall be deemed to be without registration and the Secretary of State is authorized to suspend the license plates, as small item.

Don't put on your brakes, when you have a blowout, until you are certain you have your car or truck under control. Then apply them very gradually.

A blow out, particularly on a front wheel and when you are driving at a high rate of speed, is one case in which jamming on the brakes might involve you in an accident that could be avoided by doing other second. Good rubber all around is the best insurance against blowouts.

Now that warm weather is coming, the number of bicycles in the streets will increase.

Because bicycle accidents have become quite numerous recently, a planned safety program is essential.

A few important rules bike riders should obey are:

1. Give hand signals before stopping or turning.

2. Keep close to the curb, on the right side of the road.

3. Equip your bike with a front white light and a rear reflecting light.

4. Ride with both hands on the handlebars and never carry other passengers on your bike.

5. OBEY ALL TRAFFIC LAWS. The pedestrian is still the cause of numerous traffic deaths.

In 1937 almost fifty per cent of the people injured or killed in accidents involving automobiles were pedestrians. Many of these accidents were caused by people walking on the wrong side of the road (the right hand) side of the road in rural communities. This does occur in spite of the great number of bulletins, warnings, and splendid newspaper editorials which have appeared on the subject.

Every school, community, club, civic organization ought to stress continually the importance of pedestrians' obeying traffic rules and regulations.

Walk with the semaphores lights. Do not jaywalk. Do not cross in the middle of a block. If you must walk on highways facing the oncoming cars. These and many other warnings should be obeyed by all pedestrians. Stop! Look! Listen! Live Longer!

RABIES ON INCREASE

Alarmed by the serious increase since March 1st, Floyd English, Livingston county dog warden warns dog owners in Livingston County to keep their dogs confined and to report to him all cases of roving or unconfined dogs. This precaution is taken for the protection of every citizen, especially children and for the protection of livestock and sheep.

The law provides that all dogs shall be kept confined on premises of the owner or person harboring such dogs or the dog must be under the control of some person at all times. All dogs found roving or unconfined will be as soon as possible, humanely captured and confined at the Livingston County Dog Pound which is established near Howell. All such dogs will be humanely kept and fed for five days, at the end of that time they will be humanely destroyed. A owner of any dog so captured may obtain the same from the Dog Pound or by calling upon Mr. English and paying unpaid dog taxes and pound fees.

It is for the benefit of all that this warning is issued and if the law is complied with by all dog owners, there will be little or no rabies in Livingston County.

M. S. C. MONDAY

LAST ALL WEEK. It's Monday all week in at least one department at the Michigan State College. And that is in the new laundry recently set up in a new building on the campus to serve the dormitories, campus dining rooms, the gym, maintenance department, practice nursery and the college hospital.

Enough water is used daily, 7000 gallons to permit 1000 persons to take a bath. Enough soap is used to do many home washings for the college laundry uses 2,000 pounds a year.

In all there are 19 departments on the campus which are being served by the laundry. In addition the equipment and service provide training for students enrolled hotel and institutional management courses. Some part time student help also is used in actual operation.

When a washer is loaded with the clothes, towels or cleaning rags it must have four clean suds and four rinse waters before the materials are whirled dry enough to iron.

The college hospital is one of the laundry's biggest customers. Sheets, pillow cases towels and pajamas for the sick among 5,000 students are

BABY BOND SALES LARGE

In Pinckney the past year $1537.50 worth of baby bonds were sold, in Dexter $2400 were sold, in Stockbridge $600.75; $11,887.50 in Fowler; $5,867.75 in Brighton; $52,350 in Howell. Ann Arbor sold $295,556.25 and Detroit $8,161,737.50.

Direct by mail and post office sale from Chicago, give that city the lead for the nation. Chicago's cash sale or the period was $25,577,200.

Approximately 16,000 post offices throughout the country are authorized to sell United States Savings Bonds.

The Government to date actually retains more than 92 per cent of all of the money that has been invested in Savings Bonds, less than 8 per cent of the bonds sold having been redeemed.

The majority of the registered owners are small investors who are buying bonds out of income. Purchases by individuals represent approximately 85 per cent of the amount of bonds sold. Of the remaining 15 per cent, 9 per cent was purchased by banks and trust companies, 3 per cent by corporation, and approximately 3 per cent by association.

Recently a questionnaire was forwarded to the owners of Savings and to date several hundred thousand replies have been received by the Treasury Department. Preliminary examination of the replies indicates that most purchases are made to provide funds for education of children, for retirement funds, or as a reserve for emergencies.

Among the features of the Bonds most frequently influencing their purchase are safety, the constant availability of the funds and the fact that Saving Bonds increase 33 and one third per cent in value if held for ten years.

FERRIS INSTITUTE ANNOUNCES SEVERAL SCHOLARSHIPS

Announcements of several scholarships for high school graduates has just been announced by Dr. M. S. Ward, president of Ferris Institute.

The greatest single series of scholarships is the one offered to all Michigan secondary schools. The awards of $50 each are made to all Class "A" and class "B" schools to the highest ranking senior boy and girl.

In class "C" and "D" schools it is granted to the highest ranking student in the graduating class.

Two scholarships each have been sent to the 58 class "A" school and to 107 class "B" schools. Class "C" and the class "D" schools combined received 521, totaling 851 scholarships in all. This number is greater than that offered last year, since it includes all (public and private schools as well as public.

A Pharmacy College scholarship of $100.00 will be granted to a worthy senior pharmacy student. The fund from which this scholarship is drawn was established by the graduating class of 1937 to secure a permanent scholarship fund for the College of Pharmacy.

The Big Rapids Rotary Club offers a scholarship of $100.00 to forward the training of a Mecosta county crippled student.

An additional award of $50.00 will be granted by the Big Rapids Professional and Business Women's Club to a Mecosta county girl enrolling in the Business Course next fall.

CHAPTER X—Continued

She had run along the lake shore and insisted on being brought here to serve Shaw when, the last time he had seen her, she was lavishing her arms and lips on Burke Rickman! It was too much for the old fellow to fathom and he did not have in him the impulse to ask of her the questions which would reveal his perplexity. So long as she was of aid to Shaw, he was satisfied.

She sent men into the forest searching for the herbs her midwife aunt had used. Leaves and stalks to be cooked to pulp and banded over the gaping wounds in Shaw's flesh.

Quietly, he lay there. Now and again, at first, he moaned. Occasionally his eyes would open and his brows gather as though he struggled with some complicated problem. He licked water, dropped from a cup to his lips, with growing greediness, and that was his first word:

"Water!"—faintly, but with desperate need.

"Fever!" Annette moaned, looking hard at Basile and helpless appeal was in her eyes.

"Fever follows wounds," the man said and shrugged slowly, in something of a shudder. "It's upon Rickman one would wish fever!"

"Rickman!" The name, repeated in that strained echo of Shaw's voice, was startling.

His eyes were open, he frowned upward blankly and his fingers worked, worked.

"Rickman!" he said in a high pitched monotone. "They're my hunters, it's my trade. You can't have any of them, any of it, Rickman! You're a braggart, Rickman, but you've parts. You're no fool, you've eyes and ears and will! But . . . But . . . trying to rise as Annette on her knees, arms about him, strove to prevent the struggle which set him panting. "But it was that vixen behind you!" he screamed. "I told my secrets to her and she told . . . I tell you . . . Let go . . . Let me go, Rickman, or I'll send your heart, smoked and cured, back to Astor himself!"

"Water from the spring!" Annette said to Basile.

She stroked Rodney's brow soothingly and he smiled, closing his eyes.

"Crooks gave . . . me . . ." His voice was only a murmur. "Crooks . . . black feather . . . Crooks said . . . said . . . Crooks gave it to me, Rickman . . . As a jest . . . But . . . I've held it!"—pawing weakly at the blankets. "I've held the black feather against your damned company! . . . They can't . . . take it from me . . . He didn't know . . . his jest stood for . . . surrender . . . Where'd it . . . go? Where'd I . . . put . . ."

He struggled to sit up, searching his bed, and Annette, slipping a hand into her bosom, brought out, folded in this cloth, what remained of the black feather she had picked from the sand at Mackinac after Shaw's arrest.

"Here, Rodney!"—breathlessly. "You have the black feather. Burke Rickman hasn't taken it! We'll keep it safe . . . safe for you, Rodney! See? It is here!"

Something in the nature of a smile twitched at his cracking lips as she thrust the feather into his hands. Fingers closed on it; he relaxed and lay mumbling in whispers, no longer striving to rise.

The water came. Cloths were soaked in it and placed across his brow, about his wrists and ankles, changed and rechanged to cool the fevered blood.

Wordlessly, the girl worked after the routine was established. Now and then she gave an order by gesture, unspoken. When he tried to rise, she held him back; when he rolled in torment she kept him on his pallet. Now he slept heavily, unmoving, his breath alarmingly loud; again he mumbled incoherently; on occasion he cried out sharply and fought them.

Dawn, and they did not notice; and dusk again and still the girl sat there, changing her compresses, dripping herb teas into his mouth, holding him quiet. Toward morning she slept, fallen to her side, curled close to his blankets like a bride, half repulsed. But before sunrise he was raving again, and she was up, refusing food which Basile tried to force upon her until he said that, perhaps, the master's life depended on her strength. Then she ate, though they could see that the sustenance was repulsive to her tongue.

Day and night, night and day, with his eyes giving birth to an orange flare, skin of his face stretching tight over the bones, dyed with the stain of fever, with his wrists shrinking and his body trembling.

Chills came, and the hot stones were smuggled close to him again; and once more the fever and then one afternoon a queer, sudden tranquility.

Basile and Annette knelt there as Shaw drew a deep sigh, and raised a hand to his brow and opened his eyes. The fevered flare was gone.

"Basile!" he whispered and smiled. He closed his eyes and sighed deeply in relief. "After all these . . . these dreams!" he said and feebly groped for the man's hand. "Good Basile . . . My friend, Basile!"

Annette had not moved, except to work the fingers in their tight clasp against her breast. Hope rode with the achievement in her eyes and her breath was quick. She had brought him back from death, this man she had loved and wronged and lived to save.

"I must've been here . . . for long," he whispered, looking again into Basile's face. "I . . . I remember Little Duck and . . . and being cold . . . and hot. I . . . face clouding—I've had dreams, my friend . . . Terrible dreams . . ."

Still Shaw had not looked at Annette.

"Those dreams. Must . . . 've been fever. I . . . I dreamed that damned vixen was here, Basile."

Basile and Annette Knelt There.

making a wry face. "I dreamed I saw her, felt her . . . touch me, even! . . . Ugh! . . . such a dream . . ."

The old man holding his hand stirred uneasily. His quick glance went to the girl and Rodney, seeing, moved his head slightly. Then stared, eyes upon her, as if transfixed.

"Is this another dream?" he cried brokenly. "Is this more torture, still? Are you real? Do you . . . live?"

"Rodney!" the girl broke in. "Rodney! It is I! It is no dream! And I came this way to beg you to forget the terrible thing I—"

"Forget?" he cried, struggling to sit up. "You ask me to forget? . . . Hol . . . Things come back, now. The pain in my back . . . A bullet, that must have been Rickman's. Whose else? Your sweetheart's bullet, eh? Dear God, to awake to find you here . . ."

Basile, alarm stamping his face, gestured her to leave them and Annette slipped from the tent, standing alone in the dappled sunlight, eyes closed against tears, pulse faint and slow.

Tears had blinded her and she brushed them away to see that she had come near to Jacques, sitting cross legged mending a moccasin.

"The trader lives!" she said tremulously and in pantois. Jacques exposed his white teeth in a magnificent grin. "We will want, now, partridge. You go, Jacques." He went at her command, as they all had obeyed her orders. And Mongazid, living in a spruce thicket across the stream where he could see and could hear, wriggled softly backward into a shallow ravine where he had come . . . the way he had been coming these many days, now, to see what he could see and hear what he could hear.

A caged man, Burke Rickman, after that first night that Shaw was known to be lying with life in the balance. Did he leave his fort by canoe and head up the lake, another canoe from Shaw's establishment appeared, menacingly.

When he went down the lake, away from Fort Shaw, in a direction opposite that where the little trader lay, none followed. The westward courses, only, were watched and forbidden him.

Mongazid had come, demanding his three packs of beaver, but this was after Basile's messengers had returned for what was needed from Fort Shaw, bringing word that their master lived.

"Skins for you?" Rickman scoffed. "When your hand trembles, when your eye goes blind? No, Mongazid, Flat Mouth's vengeance is still a shadow across your path. But there may be a way . . . may be . . ."

And so Mongazid, unsuspected by

Shaw's men, went about rousing no suspicion, keeping safe for long hours in his concealment across the river from where Annette made her fight for Rodney's life, and reporting nightly to Rickman what transpired.

He came this evening. "The little trader will live," he said and shifted his gaze from Rickman's face. "The white woman speaks it. I heard her words."

Heavy drinking, then, in the trader's quarters; mutterings and mummings; and Rickman paced the room like a wolf dragging an iron trap, back and forth, up and down.

And once, stopping, he snatched the girl's cloak from the peg where it had hung this fortnight, and ripped the fabric to shreds, silently, more terrible in his silence than he would have been shouting threats.

Annette did not again enter Shaw's tent. Another, which she could occupy, now that delirium was gone, was at a little distance. She lay there sleepless that night and, at dawn, was up.

Partridge were dressed and from the breasts she made a broth, cooked slowly, thick with the nutrient of succulent flesh. When Shaw roused she heard and gave Basile a lot of the broth in a cup to carry to him.

Shaw slept quietly most of the day, rousing thrice for more doses of nourishment and the morning found him with renewed vigor, but before he drank broth again he asked the question that had been on his mind.

"Basile, is she . . . is she . . . is the ma'm'selle still in camp?"

"Yes, she stays."

Rodney's face clouded.

"I felt it!"—with an uneasy movement, like an abortive shudder.

"She came from . . . where?"

"The company fort. As we had the word of you she came. Running. She . . . One did not want a woman here but she commanded that she come and . . ."

"shrugging—'one does not deny a woman like that who demands.'"

"From the company fort, eh? . . . She'd been there, before me. I saw her cloak . . ."

"She'd come to him, who refused to stay with her, eh?"

"The gift of God, her coming," the old man said earnestly. "She has healing powers from her aunt. Without her we would have been helpless. She . . . she cheated death of you, master."

"Errand of mercy, eh?" Shaw asked bitterly. "She'd do that for a dog. A dog . . . or her sweetheart's rival. He drew a great and weary breath. 'Get her away, Basile. Get her away I say!'"

And he closed his eyes wearily.

So Basile went to Annette.

Words at first stuck in his throat and then emerged in volleys of unfinished sentences. "One humors the sick," he protested, as if she had hurled argument at him, when she had only stood silent. "When the body is weak thoughts have no health . . . But he is not a man for woman. He is a trader, married to trade . . . Truly the mademoiselle has cheated death of him but he will not grow strong again with her about."

"I will go, Basile," she said quite simply when he, having heard much and known little about women, had expected an outburst.

This overwhelmed the old man, made him jubilant and engendered a feeling of great friendliness for her. He would return her to the company fort in an hour, he declared.

"But I do not go to the company fort," she said.

"Eh Dieu! Where, then, mademoiselle?"

"I have my own encampment on an island nearby. My men are there. Or should be . . ."

She smiled wanly. So little had she thought of self in these days!

(TO BE CONTINUED)

And so at Fort Shaw a woman slept in the trader's bed, slept long and heavily and awoke still weary. Her boatmen were summoned from their island and brought within the enclosure. Jacques took command and tended her solicitously. Had she not saved the life of his idol? His trader who had humbled even his mighty back on the portage?

Basile came on the second day, staying but briefly to secure needed articles.

Yes, he reported, Shaw was stronger. He had a great hunger, now. His smile flashed through a set perplexity. He was uneasy, anticipating the time when Rodney would demand that they bring him here. He did not want him to find the woman here, but said no word of leaving . . .

A great lethargy settled upon Annette. She had no hope; she was hurt and bruised beyond hoping. Neither did she have resentment because, she reasoned, nothing that she ever could do would offset the injury she had brought to Rodney.

So she stayed on, not because hope lived in her heart, she told herself, but because she was inexpressibly weary and the thought of embarking for the long homeward journey—with nothing for her when she reached her destination—was too much to face.

Basque Dress for Girls.

No wonder girls love a basque dress like this! The fitted waist with its basque point in front gives them such a grown-up feeling. The full skirt, square neckline and puff sleeves are so becoming. Make this dress up for your daughter in taffeta or silk crepe in time for Easter, and later on in printed percale or dimity.

Large Women's Dress.

The diagram shows you how easy this dress is to make, and it fits to perfection. Notice the raglan shoulder line, the waist-line snugged in by darts. The roll collar, with the smart little tab in front, is very soft and becoming. Very comfortable to work round the house in, this dress is sufficiently tailored so

Letter

By Congressman Andrew J. Francis

Pen in Hand

Enfolded in a sea of telegrams and an ocean of letters Congress last week debated the proposed Government Reorganization Bill while the nation wired or wrote by special delivery air mail, garden variety of letter and by postcard to express opinions on the bill that has evoked more sudden expression than the Supreme Court issue last year. While the turmoil was in progress your Congressman and four other of the Michigan representatives of the House presented a plan to President Roosevelt to put back every man to work who wants to do away with PWA and relief expenditures.

Accompanied by Congressman G. G. Sadowski and George O'Brien of Detroit and John Luecke of Escanaba and Frank E. Hook of Iron Mountain, your Congressman outlined the plan to President Roosevelt's son, who is secretary to the president and left a copy of the plan to be forwarded to the President at Warm Springs, Ga. A bill is being drafted this week to place the proposal before Congress and give the nation something to consider as a definite means to end recessions and depression.

Plan Provisions

The plan includes: 1, exemption from taxation of all industrial earnings used in extensions, improvements or renewals of plant in case of the emergency; 2, to extend Government credit to industry to finance increased stocks of raw materials and finished inventories necessitated by increased employment; 3, to pay a portion of the wages of additional employees until such time during the employer's load. This payroll subsidy would be paid directly to the workers and would take the place as rapidly as possible of the PWA and relief programs that are costing about $2,000,000 each year. It is estimated that on the existing tax basis the program would result in an increase of Government revenue of approximately $1,000,000,000 annually. The delegation told Secretary Roosevelt the immediate goal of this program, which would require an annual appropriation of $4, 00,000,000, would be to create 3,000,000 new jobs and 6,000,000 additional collateral jobs. The plan would also apply to agriculture and service industries, where a need for additional workers can be demonstrated and where the inability to provide such jobs without a subsidy is shown. Messages Plentiful.

New jobs were created suddenly last week in Washington for the telegraph and the Post Office department at the nation responded with a unprecedented pleas to write or wire members of Congress. The communications system found they had to have more help and so additional messenger boys, telegraphers and mail carriers were employed. More than 150,000 telegrams were received in Washington on the two days as the House began consideration of the Reorganization Bill. From the sixth congressional district in Michigan approximately 2,000 telegrams and at least as many letters have been received by your congressman. Telegraph companies started sending the large batches telegrams to the offices in oversize folders that contained from 50 to 100 messages each. Special delivery messengers formed a continuous parade to the House Office Building. Mail carriers said their loads had increased about tenfold in the last week. Extended Credit.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will be granted authority to expand the scope of loans made to business for the purpose of creating additional employment if the House approves the Glass Bill which was given Senate approval last week. The purpose of the bill is to enable business, who cannot obtain loans from private banks, to get financial assistance from the RFC.

Working nights the Senate Finance Committee completed a report on the Tax Revision Bill previously passed by the House and was scheduled to report the bill to the Senate this week. The committee has approved a relaxation of Federal taxes to pave the way for drastic corporate reworking of the country's private power systems under the Utilities Holding Company Act, which was held constitutional by the supreme Court this week in the part requiring registration with the Securities and the Exchange Commission under penalty of being denied the use of United States mails. The amendment would, if finally approved by the House and Senate, relieve the utilities of levies on transfers incidental to the reorganization required by the act.

The House began consideration of the Reorganization Bill on that day after passing a resolution authorizing a joint Congressional Committee investigation of the TVA. The debate was resumed Thursday and continued Friday and resulted in the first Saturday session for the House this year. Your congressman voted with the majority in defeating a plan to limit debate on the measure by a vote of 191 to 149. Discussion of the bill is scheduled to be concluded in the House this week.

Red Coral Always Prized

It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person. As ancient Gauls rushed headlong into battle, they trusted their safety to their swords, strength and the "magic" coral imbedded in their shields or helmets. Many Italians and Indians regard coral as protection against the "evil eye." The world's red coral comes from the reefs off the Mediterranean coast of Africa, says the Washington Post, and is obtained chiefly by Italians.
