TIPS to Gardeners

General Garden Care

MOST flowers should have little or no artificial watering until they are at least half grown.

To get better and larger flower blossoms, cease watering when buds have formed.

For a continuous bloom, pick flowers regularly. This is most important with sweet peas and pansies, less so with petunias.

Avoid the common mistake of letting vegetables grow too large before picking.

Root crops—radishes, carrots, beets—are at their best when hardly half grown.

Pick peas just before pods fill out completely. Pick corn just at the "milk" stage, when the kernel, gouged with the finger nail, yields a milky juice. Use summer squash when they are small, just after the blossom has dropped off.

Certain other vegetables, of course, must be allowed to mature. Tomatoes should be ripened well on the vine, as should winter squash.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backaches, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. ## WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—This summer's session of the Institute of Pacific Relations will have many new factors and policies to consider, as new power formulas and equations are being drawn.

The Philippines have changed their mind about cutting their United States towline. Japan and Germany make a joint survey of a 50-mile, low-lying canal route across the upper neck of Siam, which will bring Japan four days nearer Australia and perhaps five days nearer India. England's Singapore naval base isn't what it used to be. Australia announces a big new rearmament program.

Ian Mackenzie, Canada's handsome and versatile defense minister, breaks the news that Canada will rely on the United States fleet, voicing "reasonable assumption," rather than definite "commitments."

And Paul V. McNutt, commissioner of the Philippines, says we should carry "liberty and peace" to the Far East.

Mr. Mackenzie, a Vancouver lawyer, is one of Canada's most famous scholars who writes fluently and publishes articles in Gaelic. In his native Scotland, he was the most illustrious prize scholar of his generation, virtually monopolizing all the medals and garlands of the University of Edinburgh, for attainment in the classics.

He later won a Carnegie research fellowship, gathering more honors in his work on old Irish manuscripts. He later attended the Royal academy at Dublin, wrote songs and stories in the ancient Celtic language and picked up a law degree as a sort of afterthought.

He went to Vancouver in 1914, returned for the war, and romped through grades to the rank of captain, fighting in all the major engagements.

He kept his stride in his later success in law and politics in Vancouver, becoming national defense minister in 1935. He is regarded as Canada's most eligible bachelor. He says his favorite recreation is study.

JOSEPH A. LYONS, Australian prime minister who announces a rearmament program of approximately $215,000,000, has no such gift of tongues and reached eminence by a longer and harder road.

He rose to power in the labor movement and, in 1931, like the late Ramsay MacDonald, broke with his party and entered a coalition government. His shift to the right brought him under vigorous assault, but he was re-elected by a large majority last October.

He is sixty years old, gray and tousle-haired, the father of 11 children, and walks with a limp as the result of a railroad accident 13 years ago.

He began his working career as a country school teacher in Tasmania. Insularity and "home rule" marked his attitude a few years ago. Now he recommends as a commonwealth slogan, "Keep in tune with England."

Everywhere, the little nations are calling, "Wait for baby."

TAKING arms against this sea of troubles is the Countess Alain Dedons de Pierrefeu, formerly Elsa Tudor of the Boston social register.

Under impressive patronage, which includes faculty members of leading universities, scholars, diplomats and sociologists, she organizes a "world youth tour," with a fervor comparable to that of Peter the Hermit leading the children's crusade.

She is recruiting young persons from all nations, including Germany, Italy and Russia, on a world tour to flux animosities and foster good will and understanding. "World peace through world trade" is their slogan.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is among those who give warm endorsement to the plan. Headquarters for the tour are in New York.

The French husband of the countess was killed in the World War. Since then she has been vigorously active in social movements in Europe, Chicago, Boston and New York. For nearly four years she has been traveling around the world, recruiting support for her youth organization among diplomats, economists and business men.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses

TEETH--Your Passport to Good Health--and Tells How You Can Avoid the Tragedy of Dental Decay

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York.

A SCIENTIST, who was also a wit, once remarked that you must be true to your teeth or they will be false to you. That most people do not heed this advice is evidenced by the fact that almost 100 per cent of the adult population is affected by some form of oral disease, and from 90 to 97 per cent of all school children have decayed teeth.

As there is a close relationship between healthy teeth and healthy bodies, and conversely, between decayed teeth and sickly bodies, it is easy to understand why science views this appalling situation with the greatest alarm—and why such an eminent authority as Professor Ernest A. Hooton of Harvard University warns that "unless steps are taken to discover preventives of tooth infection, and correctives of dental deformation, the course of human evolution will lead downward to extinction."

Health and Happiness Depend on Sound Teeth

That is a strong statement, but it is not an exaggeration, for it would be difficult to over-estimate the influence of the teeth upon human health and happiness.

Do you wonder how teeth can affect happiness? Consider, then, that a pretty face depends, first, upon the position of the mouth when the lips are closed, and second, upon the appearance of the teeth when the lips are parted. You cannot have a lovely mouth when the lips close over crooked front teeth; you cannot have an attractive smile if the teeth are dull.

And when gums recede, and loosened teeth are forced out of their natural position, the position of the lips is likewise changed—with the result that the lower part of the face is disfigured. Surely this is tragedy enough. But the effect of decayed teeth upon health is of far greater significance.

Dental Decay Does Extensive Damage

A decayed tooth is a poison factory, distributing its noxious product to every part of the body. In the body, that poison attacks and centers in the weakest spot.

It may lead to neuritis, rheumatic ailments, dyspepsia, or even duodenal ulcers. It may be a contributing cause of heart disease.

In view of such extensive damage, it is easy to understand why a prominent medical authority has declared that if the teeth were given proper care, so that dental decay became rare, instead of al-

Have You a Question? Ask C. Houston Goudiss

C. Houston Goudiss has put at the disposal of readers of this newspaper all the facilities of his famous Experimental Kitchen Laboratory in New York City. He will gladly answer questions concerning foods, diet, nutrition, and their relation to health. You are also invited to consult him in matters of personal hygiene. It's not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for postcard inquiries will receive the same careful attention. Address him at 6 East Thirty-ninth Street, New York City.

phosphorus and vitamins A, C and D.

Second, frequent and thorough brushing of the teeth, to remove all food particles. The use of an efficient dentifrice encourages efficient brushing and helps to keep the teeth looking attractive.

Third, the inclusion in the diet of foods that require the chewing, tearing, gnawing and biting for which our teeth were designed, such as raw cabbage, celery, apples and other fibrous foods.

Fourth, a visit to the dentist at least twice a year, so that he can check the condition of the teeth.

If every mother will follow this program, and train her children to follow it, the result will be a vast decrease in dental decay, and a forward step in human progress. For it is not too much to say that the SALVATION OF THE HUMAN RACE LIES IN SAVING ITS TEETH.

Write to C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th Street, New York City, for information on How to Build and How to Maintain Healthy Teeth.

Questions Answered

Mrs. E. T. D.—Answering your question as to the effect of cooking on vitamin D, this is no problem in the kitchen. Natural vitamin D is virtually absent from most foods, but in irradiated foods, or those to which vitamin D concentrate has been added, the vitamin D is stable and ordinary cooking has little destructive effect on it.

Mrs. J. B. McK.—It is incorrect to say that rye bread is more, or less, fattening than white bread. A slice of rye bread supplies the same number of calories as a slice of white bread.

Miss F. S. P.—The sulphur dioxide used to bleach a good grade of dried fruit is present in a chemical combination that is entirely harmless.

Terence Shea Tells of His Bulging Barrels

A social worker with more enthusiasm than tact went to call upon Terence Shea, night watchman, at his home.

"I hope, Mr. Shea," she said, "that you do not squander your money in riotous living. May I ask what you do with your wages?"

"I'd just as soon tell you as not," replied Mr. Shea. "Tis $15 a week I make. When I've paid the rent, the provisions, and the milkman, and bought what's needed for Maggie and me five children, I deposit the rest of my money in barrels. Mostly, ma'am, sugar barrels. They're bigger 'n' hold more. But when I can't get them I use plain flour barrels."

PINCKNEYITES ENROLLED AT CLEARY COLLEGE

Louis Kennedy, Elaine Kulbicki, and Julie Stackable of Pinckney have registered for the spring term at Cleary College Ypsilanti.

This spring, 107 pupils are in attendance. From July 1, 1937, to April 7, 1938, there were 54 more pupils enrolled than during the entire fiscal year from July 1, 1936 to July 1, 1937. It is expected that the increase in enrollment over last year will be even greater when students enroll for the first summer term in June.

Many opportunities, both scholastic and social, are offered the new students. They may enroll in one-year, or four-year courses. The shorter courses are so planned, that they become units in the longer. Therefore, a student may complete a one year course which prepares him for the initial position, and later return to school and complete a two or four-year course with out losing any credit or duplicating studies.

Among the social activities of the school are the Sweater Swirls, or one-hour dances, which are sponsored by the school organizations once a week. The C. U. Hop, high light of the social season, will be held in the newly-completed recreation room of the building, on April 22.

All students are invited to participate in the activities of the Women's League, and the men's Union, and the student publication staff.

The students enrolled in the commercial teachers' course, have a club. This year a new organization, the Athenian Club, has been formed by the boys. Its purpose is to sponsor military instruction and athletic activities. Students with musical ability may participate in the activities of the men's and women's choruses and the College orchestra.

Light is Cheap!

You can operate this 200-watt lamp
1 hour 23 minutes for 1 cent
(at average residence rates)

a penny
provides 1 1/3 hours of good light
FOR READING A NEWSPAPER

NOTHING contributes more to your enjoyment of the evening paper than comfortable relaxation in your favorite easy chair and good light with which to see. Your eyes require a better quality of light for reading fine print in a newspaper than they do for the larger type of a well-printed book, or the clean white pages of a magazine. Yet reading a newspaper is such a commonplace, everyday occurrence that we are likely to forget it is really a difficult seeing task. We are liable to have poor light which is inadequate for the job.

Good lighting is a comfort that costs little money. Your newspaper costs three cents... but a penny will purchase the excellent illumination of a 200-WATT LAMP for 1 1/3 hours, and add immeasurably to your enjoyment of your newspaper. When light is so cheap, why stint on it? You can afford to give your eyes good lighting for every seeing task!

THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY

Spring house cleaning time is here.

What kind of equipment do you use when you wash windows in your home? Thoughtless housewives too often climb up on rickety ladders and dangerous stools and even teeter on rocking chairs in order to reach high places.

The only wise practice is to use a good, sturdy step ladder which provides a place for the water container.

Falls cost 26,000 lives in 1937!

And a word about home dry cleaning. Despite countless warnings of danger, people, persist in using naphtha, gasoline, and other cleaning fluids indoors in inadequately ventilated rooms. Explosions and fire caused by faulty handling of these cleaning fluids have caused severe injuries and have cost many persons their lives.

We hear Ambrose Kennedy of Howell (he with the sunny smile) was again in our mid t Sunday night. What's the attraction Amb?

Conservation Dept.

More people hunted and fished in Michigan last year than ever before. There were 600,000 more fishing licenses issued, 185,000 more small game licenses and 355,000 more deer hunting licenses than in 1936.

The upper peninsula heavier season ended Friday. The lower on March 31.

At last meeting of the state conservation commission the acquisition of 31,061 acres of stream and lake frontage and feed coverage for deer and forest growth was approved at a cost of $42,324.

The red fox ranged from New Mexico to Alaska and from the Rockies to New England.

The states newest fish hatchery for which Geogbic county contributed the land and $2000 will be known as the Lake Geogbic Hatchery. The hatchery will be dedicated to Ted Kelly, a member of the board of supervisors for 27 years and ardent conservationist. At the dedication Thos. Masterson will represent the dept. of conservation, Clare Hemlock, the national forest and Geogbic county will be represented by the chairman of the county conservation commission.

Reaffirming its policy of refusing to dispose of state lands for private commercial purposes within conservation units the commission rejected an offer for a strip of the land in the Houghton Lake forest by a man who planned to erect a tourist lodge and overnight cabins.

which are scarce the season will be shortened to one month. This will be the month of July.

Our prognostication stating that deer from starvation by deer last winter was very light may have been premature. Since the snow went off many dead deer have been found. 75 were found in one swamp and 125 in another. Other reports are coming in. These dead deer are revealed by huge flocks of crows who scent the bodies and come to feed on them.

ANOTHER HAT IN THE RING

O. L. Smith of Detroit has entered the fight for the Republican nomination for governor and petitions are being circulated for him. The argument of his backers is that the announced candidacies of Fitzgerald and Toy are unacceptable to many people and Smith is the required middle of the road candidate to unite all factions.

The Toy forces hoot this idea and class him as a ghost candidate whose purpose in entering is solely to split the Wayne County Toy vote and insure the nomination of Fitzgerald. In the Toy announcement banquet former Governor Grosbeck condemned ghost candidates. He probably had in mind his own experience in 1930 when he lost the nomination to Wilbur Brucker by less than 5000 votes due to the entrance of Judge Jeffries, a ghost candidate who polled 64,000 votes, mostly in Wayne county.

MRS. L. C. WOLL

Mrs. L. C. Woll, formerly of Marion died at her Howell home Friday. The funeral and burial were Monday. She was formerly Esther F. G. Gehring of Adrian, Mr. and Yelland. Mr. Woll died last year. Surviving are a son, L. C. and a daughter, Mildred.

Philathea Notes

Those who were so fortunate as to be present at our class party at the home of Mrs. Beulah Hendee's report a most enjoyable time, a good attendance and profitable work on the blocks of the quilt which Mrs. Carrie Swarthout has been cutting. The President, Mrs. R. K. Elliott, presided for the routine business meeting, and Mrs. S. E. Swarthout conducted the devotionals. Mrs. M. Elliott was chosen as teacher and Miss Clella Fish as chaplain to succeed Mrs. C. H. Zuse. The bountiful pot-luck supper came at the close of the pleasant afternoon at the Hendee home.

The next meeting, at the home of Mrs. Meda Henry in May, is to be our quarterly meeting, the entertainment committee comprising Mrs. K. Corey and Mrs. Mabel Dinkel. The Roll Call letter is "L" for May.

No Regular lesson period was held after the Church services on Easter Sunday. At that time Dr. Dawe of Lansing called the Friendly Visitation together for instructions. It is to be hoped everyone will loyally respond to our efforts to underwrite the church budget for the coming months and thus put our work on a businesslike basis. The Philatheas in this crucial time will remember their platform, "All Standing by the Bible, The Bible School and the Church".

The next Bible School Lesson, of April 24, is centered about Mark 9: 2-10. "Receiving Vision for Service". The Philathea Class Welcomes YOU.

The Misses Mary and Dorothy Stackable of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Gehring of Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Stackable and children of Howell were Easter dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Stackable.

"I'm glad we've
Telephone"

WORRY... grandmothers, mothers and wives are especially subject to it. But they have fewer causes for worry when there's a telephone in the house!

For the telephone can cheer an anxious heart and fill a day with happiness. It can send warning of a tardy arrival . . . make a last-minute change in plans. It protects in emergencies as nothing else can. It lightens housework . . . increases social pleasures . . . often saves carfare or traveling expense. It enables employers to reach you easily and without delay.

And the telephone does all this so economically that it pays its way in service rendered daily.

PRODUCTION OF 1938 PLATES STARTS MAY 1

Manufacture of 1938 motor vehicle license plates will begin at the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson about May 1st, immediately after completion of the last of the 1938 half year plates.

Use of Michigan made materials in the making of these license plates has been increased by about a third because of the replacement of the old "etcher" with metal plates. The manufacture of 1938 motor vehicle license plates involved 1,245 lbs. of steel and approximately 10,000 gallons of paint. There were 2,000 pairs of plates made for the State. To handle them required an extra number of envelopes, and 49 cartons for shipment from the State Prison to the offices of the Department of State. Plates for 1939 will be made of a different material and will have a different background.

CASE URGES CHECK OF USED CAR BUYS

Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, cautions all purchasers of used cars to check them against titles accompanying them before completing the transaction. There are instances in no way attributable to the intent of dealers, in which stolen cars have come into the possession of innocent buyers. Motor serial numbers and other legal marks of identification can be easily checked against titles, that should correspond exactly.

"SO YOU CAN'T BE SWINDLED-EM"

An article in The American Weekly, the great weekly magazine with April 24 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, discloses many startling facts that may save you from wasting your money on the hundreds of up-to-date worthless equivalents of the gold brick that was offered for sale in days gone by.

PICKS POTS, PANS IN COLLEGE TESTS

Women equipping their kitchens with pots, pans and kettles can save money and subsequent loss of pride in cooking if they observe some of the results obtained from a survey of what's available in today's hardware stores.

Advice of Irma H. Gross, head of the department of home management at Michigan State College, is to pick an choose without too much regard for "just looks".

New types of materials include a stainless steel, aluminum metal, and non-staining aluminum which require less work for the house wife but are more expensive.

Glass sometimes is efficient because food may be served in the dishes in which it is prepared. Bakelite and other composition materials provide cooler handles.

Straight sided kettles to fit the burner are best. Tight fitting covers conserve heat. Baking pans should be seamless to avoid dirt. Metal should be heavy enough to prevent warping, denting or tipping.

Among the undesirable are the heavy cast aluminum pans which are too costly. Color sometimes is attractive but subsequent chipping in poor quality enamels proves a disappointment. Colored paint on handles usually wears off.

Some of the old type utensils are still good. For frying pans and the Dutch ovens Miss Gross finds iron less expensive yet capable of turning out good foods.

PINCKNEY SOFT BALL LEAGUE

In the Pinckney soft ball league last week, the opening standings were scrambled by the fact that the losers of the first week both won which now makes all four teams tied. Darrow beat Meabon 12 to 5 behind fine pitching by Stanley Dinkel. On Wednesday Lavey beat Singer 7 to 6. Don Swarthout and Paul Singer put on a pitchers battle, the score being tied three times. Lavey went into the last inning a run behind. Berquist walked and stole second. Darrow scored him with a hit to center and got the winning run on Cliff Miller's out at first. The Singer team couldn't hit Swarthout in their half and H. Haines, Singer and Reason all flied out.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

The bow boatman, yonder, cried out in alarm, lifting his paddle high, and went overboard to escape this menace.

The lurch caught Rickman off balance as he lunged forward and grasped a gun lying on packs before him. He cursed sharply, tried to hold the weapon and clutch for the rail at once; the rifle slid into the water with a splash and the man in the stern dived from his seat for sanctuary.

For a moment they held so, Shaw's gun full on his enemy's breast.

"You are not going on, Rickman," he said evenly. "It's the end of your march! The ma'm'selle proceeds, unpursued!"

The other's eyes were busy, now that a second had elapsed and the hammer not fallen. He laughed dryly. "So, you would shoot a man down, unarmed?" he asked and the taunt was stinging.

"The end of your march . . . in all things!"

"In cold blood . . . and three to one!"

The taunt struck home. He could see Shaw's mouth settle. He moved a hand, then significantly toward the knife at his belt.

"For long I've wished this," he muttered. "But . . . man to man, without odds!"

"Man to man! you beg for that now, eh? You, a snake, begging for such? Well, I'll demonstrate to you what decent folk will do, how far decent men will go . . . with snakes."

The muzzle dropped, he squeezed the trigger. Water splashed and the flattening ball ripped crunching through the skin of Rickman's canoe below the water line.

Silence a moment. He could hear the water gurgling about the other's feet. Lower settled the canoe under Rickman. It lurched and listed; it went awash and the trader, abandoning effort to keep it righted, vaulted to the lake, supporting himself with a hand on the gun-wale.

"So!" cried Rodney. "You men,"—to Jacques—"ashore with you! He has no supporters; I'll have none. He's asked for it, at last! I'll take no advantage . . . Ashore, now!"

They went over the side, frightened, and swam slowly for the reeds away from which he was drifting in the breeze, faces over their shoulders, watching him in a sort of terror.

Then Shaw slipped his knife from its sheath, clamped it between teeth and seizing a paddle, face dark with fury, drove forward. Two strokes, three. He dropped the paddle, half rising to lunge and pounce upon his adversary.

But Rickman could read the plan of attack as clearly as though it had been written down for him. He waited that pulse beat until Shaw should be poised for his leap and then, cat-like, he shot out a great hand, grasped the moving canoe, shoved it, twisting it and Shaw, upset by the joggling, sprawled with a splash.

Grinning, then, Rickman, supporting himself with a hand on the canoe bow, saw the other break the surface, saw him turn and strike out, swimming for him, heard his rattle of rage through the teeth set on the knife blade.

"Ha!" he cried, swinging the canoe mightily. "Ha, Shaw! Plans go awry!"

The stern swept toward the swimmer, blocking his way as Rickman drew himself to the far side, leering over at Shaw, now lifting a hand for support.

Rodney breathed rapidly. The excitement, the unexpected plunge, the quick effort to close, had taken toll on his strength. He began working himself hand-across-hand along the canoe to be at Rickman. But, even as he went, Rickman moved on the opposite side, keeping more than an arm's length between them, laughing, laughing . . .

"Dunce!" he cried. "Dunce! The other end, I'd have drilled you, Shaw! I'd have drilled while you whimpered for fair fight! But now . . . Will you wait for me, or will you come?"

Shaw swore hoarsely and started working his way around the canoe, but on ahead went Rickman, laughing until, winded, his pursuer rested again.

"Our trader loses his wit?" Rickman jeered. "Our trader forgets that inland nothing is banned. He plays the gentleman and . . . perishes, eh?"

One of Rodney's legs cramped and he grimaced in pain. He was breathing through open lips, now, failing to recover strength in this snatch of a rest period.

Minutes counted; seconds, even, were precious . . . Slowly Shaw worked himself along the canoe as Rickman jeered. The man was confident, expecting, and with good reason, to see Shaw relax his grip at any moment, helpless through weakness even to keep his nostrils above water. They were face to face, directly opposite one another. Shaw drew his knees upward until they touched the canoe bottom. He spread his feet wide, he shot them forward, he brought his heels together.

Almost before his legs gripped Rickman he saw surprise and chagrin sweep the man's face. He hooked his own elbows over the rail. He crossed his feet and jerked his legs inward with all the might left in them, with all the steel and courage in his heart. Rickman cursed sharply, once, a curse that had begun with contempt and ended with fearful surprise. He had not reckoned strength like this.

The man let go the canoe with his knife and stabbed downward to cut the legs dragging at him. His other hand could not hold him safe. In a trice he was under water, direction of the slashing blade going wrong, dragged beneath the canoe, feeling hands grapple for him . . .

Rickman's blade slashed out but Rodney caught the wrist. He closed and they rolled over once and came up face to face, both strangling, free hand of each gripping the knife hand of the other.

Rodney's head was under his adversary's chin, now, forcing him backward; legs twined about one of Rickman's thighs, binding it close, giving purchase for the boring of that head. His back was gradually forced against the side of the canoe.

That determined skull worked in against Rickman's throat and he squirmed for breath. His left shoulder was wrenched cruelly as Shaw found leverage on the arm. He could not breathe, could not wriggle free. Fingers on his right wrist were slipping down, working over the hand, searching for his knife. He tried to let it go but those other fingers would not permit.

"Enough!" he gasped. . . . turn back . . . my oath . . .

The words carried to Rodney's understanding through the roaring and pound in his ears. They were sweet, they gave him more than desperate determination to go on. He gripped the tighter with his legs on that thigh, drove his head the harder into Rickman's gullet; began to work on that right hand, drawing it in, forcing it to yield, holding it from driving his way, bending it down and backward to wrench the shoulder until the fingers would flex.

"Enough!"

His own right was free, now, and Rickman was sinking beneath him as the hold on the canoe was broken. Shaw went under himself, but still held that thigh close, driving the chest down with his head, pulling that arm up from behind.

He slid his knife against ribs, holding it there, seeking for purchase to drive it home and then Rickman, with a last floundering move, rolled him over, there in the green, suffocating depths. But as he turned, his back pressed the blade point. It held an instant, gritted on bone and plunged . . .

With a quiver Rickman went limp. His arm flexed, his body twitched . . . And then Rodney was rising, rising slowly, almost lazily, commencing to swim indifferently, as in a dream . . .

Jacques was staring hard at him. "It is done, master," he said. "One may now return in peace."

"We do not return, Jacques, we march on."

It was on the second night that they rounded a bend of the great Mississippi to see the point of fire on the dark point of land before them.

"Ay!" He swallowed, as if the next were of tremendous import. "The ma'm'selle . . . She is where?"

"Around the point . . . She walked as I prepared food."

Rodney moved slowly past the small fire, heedless of the stares of the men clustered there. He went on along the narrow strip of stony flat beneath the towering heights, moccasins making no sound while his heart failed his ribs.

He stopped suddenly. She was standing there, cloak drawn about her. She was very still but after a time he could see that her hands worked slowly, caressing something they held.

"Annette?" he said in a whisper, almost timidly.

She tilted her head as if the sound had been so faint that she could not distinguish the direction from which it came.

"Annette!"—louder.

The girl turned and one hand whipped to her throat.

"Rodney? Rodney! It is . . . you?"

He could only nod. Beholding her through new eyes, with honestly desiring eyes, he had no words. She was so lovely!

"I . . . I found your letter," he said simply.

She waited silent and motionless. "I've come to say, first, Annette, that things which do not matter elbow themselves in. Like trade. Like freedom . . . These never should have mattered. Habit, likely, made them matter. Or blindness . . . Whatever it was, this trade and what it represented, stood in the way of important things . . . holy things . . ."

He lifted a hand in a gesture of futility. "Why try to explain? I was a fool. I was arrogant, unthinking, ignorant of values. I hurt and tortured you. I . . . I struggled to awake you and then turned away. I know now, Annette, that the things I believed to be true in my last hours at Mackinac were not true. Without you, I would be under guard, on my way to a cell. Or, without you, I would be lying dead, buried among the Pillagers. I know what happened . . . Some of it . . . Rich told me to follow this pattern more or less regularly, the investigators said in reporting their findings to the Journal of Experimental Psychology.

The ease with which a person can be awakened is related to the length of time since he last moved rather than the time of the night. Individuals differ in both restlessness and soundness of their sleep, but the differences are not always in the same direction for both factors. On the average, the most quiet sleeper is the one most easily aroused, it was found.

In a normal night's sleep, the greatest amount of tossing and also the most frequent spontaneous awakenings of the sleeper come in the last few hours of sleep. Toward morning the sleep becomes shallower and shallower. Sometimes, however, the sleeper will settle down toward the end of his sleep for about forty-five minutes of quiet, deep slumber like that he enjoyed during the first of the night.

Each person seems to have his own pattern of movement and level of sensitivity to noise, and he tends

. . . And I have come this way to tell you . . . to say to you . . . to thank you for my life, Annette . . . my life!"

His voice sank to a whisper. "Rodney! Oh, Rodney! I claim the responsibility for mischief; you demand it! Can it ever be decided? No! Neither will grant the other responsibility. I know I will not . . . But does that matter?"

"It does not matter . . . now," he said and for the first time touched her.

His hands trembled on her arms, on her shoulders. She stood rigidly, however, without response.

"But you came this way, Rodney, just to say these healing words. And you left your establishment with Rickman near? Was that wise? Might he not do you harm?"

"Rickman," he said, "is gone."

"Gone?"

"Forever." He felt her shudder and sway, then. Gently, he drew her close with one arm, feeling for her hand with his other. He found it, clasped on a limp and formless shroud.

The hand opened, depositing in his what it had held.

"What's this?" he asked, puzzled. "The black feather, Rodney . . . The plume Crooks gave you on your arrival. Symbol of invincibility!"

She laughed softly at his astonishment.

"You dropped it when they arrested you. I found it, dear Rodney. I have kept it since as a symbol . . . a symbol, perhaps, of hope. That some day you might long for an attainment which cannot be measured in the powers of men's bodies or the depth of their courage or the sharpness of their wits, but instead in the tranquility of contented hearts . . ."

"And now . . . I yield it to you!"

A tremor ran through him. He shook his head.

"No. Keep it, Annette. The thing I now know which is the objective of all men rests in your hands, cupped in your gentle palms. Keep with my heart, this token . . ."

THE END

Greatest Amount of Our Restlessness Comes in the Last Few Hours of Sleep

When you wake up after a sound night's slumber you may feel as though your rest was unbroken and continuous all night long. Really, though your rest was unbroken and ing pattern of deep sleep, stirring movement, near-arousal and then sinking down into the depths of quiet sleep again. This pattern is repeated over and over throughout the night, but as morning approaches the depths of sleep become shallower and the sleeper is easier to awaken before the alarm clock finishes the job.

This pattern of sleep was found in the course of experiments conducted at the department of physiology of the University of Chicago with both dogs and human beings. By electrical means the tossings and stirrings of the sleepers were recorded and measurement was made of the degree of noise required to disturb them.

Each person seems to have his own pattern of movement and level of sensitivity to noise, and he tends to follow this pattern more or less regularly, the investigators said in reporting their findings to the Journal of Experimental Psychology.

The ease with which a person can be awakened is related to the length of time since he last moved rather than the time of the night. ## Hook an Old Fashioned Rag Rug

OF ALL rag rugs the hooked type is the most fascinating and economical. A rag hook, such as may be purchased in notion and fancywork departments, and burlap a little larger than your finished rug are the essentials. Most rag hookers also use a frame of slats bolted together at the corners. They stretch the burlap over the frame and tack it. Some like a rather large stationary frame. Others use a small one and many hooked rugs are made without any frame at all.

Here is a quaint old rug pattern that you may mark off on your burlap with a yardstick and pencil. The numbers indicate the colors used for the original rug—now more than a hundred years old. The finished rug measures 28 by 34 inches. Allow two inches at all edges for hems. Overcast the edges, then mark the solid one-inch border just inside the hem allowance; then the large eight-inch squares; then the small two-inch squares; then draw the diagonal lines across the large squares as shown. Use wool rugs if possible and cut the strips not wider than one-half inch. Hold the strip against the wrong side of the burlap and pull loops of it through to the right side with the hook as shown. Short strips are as useful as long. Just pull the ends through and clip them.

If you are planning slip covers, curtains, or doing other Spring sewing for the home, you will want a copy of Mrs. Spears' book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of practical working directions, with complete illustrations. A dollar saving book for every homemaker. ## Spray Roses Frequently

"I find that there is one simple point in aphid control that is overlooked by a majority of rose growers," says Melvin E. Wyandt, rose specialist of Painesville, Ohio. "It is simply that they should spray often. Now don't misunderstand me. Practically all rose growers know that they must spray with a good insecticide to control aphids, but they do not realize that aphids multiply rapidly."

An effective spray for aphid control is made by mixing one to two teaspoonfuls of nicotine sulphate in a gallon of water and adding a little dissolved laundry soap. Nicotine sulphate is a poison which kills by contact—the method necessary with sucking insects such as aphids—and in addition, being volatile, it gives off fumes which also kill, making it doubly effective.

Letter

By Congressman Andrew J. Tansue

Presidential Message.

Washington, D. C. -- Last week President Roosevelt sent to the Congress a message in which he frankly recognized that the Nation is heading into another real depression - unless current tendencies are halted.

President Roosevelt proposed to Congress the authorization of another elastic Federal spending and lending program of some $4,000,000,000. In a special message conveying the request, the President made a stirring plea for national unity in a time of emergency. The emergency, he said, is here, and it is up to every class of citizenship to submerge differences and pull together for the common good. Otherwise, he warned, democratic processes of Government are imperiled. In addition to the outright spending and lending he proposed, the President informed Congress that the Treasury will proceed to de-sterilize $1,400,000,000 of its impounded gold. This, it is expected, will have to some degree an inflationary effect on the credit structure of the country.

Meanwhile, the House of Representatives had under consideration the important Agricultural Appropriations Bill.

President's Recommendations

The President's recommendations fell under three general headings: 1. Additional appropriations for direct relief of "2,062,000,000. This amount is made up of items including Works Progress Administration one billion two hundred and fifty million dollars; Farm Security Administration seventy-five million dollars; and Civilian Conservation Corps fifty million dollars.

2. Destabilization of the $1,400,000,000 in idle gold and action on the part of the Federal Reserve Board to reduce the reserve requirements by $750,000,000 to make abundant the supply of funds of commerce, industry and agriculture.

3. Loans from the Treasury amounting to $950,000,000 with authorization for lending of still another $1,000,000,000 to states and cities the principal to be repaid without interest, or on a loan and grant basis, as the borrower preferred. The net cost to the Treasury would be about the same by either method.

Net Cost

While the aggregate of the President's proposal is about the same $4,000,000,000 the net cost to the Treasury is expected to be far below that figure. Approximately half is to be held on a revolving loan basis, with the Treasury expected to return. Administration officials estimated the whole program will involve only $1,712,000,000 in new money.

They arrived at this by figuring the recoverable nature of the proposed loans and the use of old and unexpected funds.

House Amendment

Agricultural Appropriation

The annual supply bill carrying on appropriation of $797,222,159 for the Department of Agriculture was reported to House by the Appropriations Committee, and is now under consideration. The fund, including the AAA payments, is designed to run the department for a year and is $72,539,049 less than last year and $9,994,763 under budget estimates. The new measure provides $485,000,000 for direct benefits to farmers under the Soil Conservation and AA-Act. Omitting parity payments. The general farm program, including this amount, totals $705,000,000. Other direct farm payments include $147,000,000 for encouragement of exportation and domestic consumption of farm products. In explaining the AAA program the committee report said: "The bill includes the budget estimate of $485,000,000 for the continuation of the farm program under the general provisions of AAA 1938, except parity payments, cotton price-adjusted payments, cotton pool participation trust certificates and crop insurance."

Among the amendments added this far was one carrying an increase of $3,800,000 to be used for the prevention of Bang's disease in cattle in cooperation with existing state programs. This amendment met general approval because of the danger of humans contracting this disease from infected herds.

150,000 Tourists
Fine weather, Easter, and the maturing of the double-blossomed cherry trees on Hains point all combined to bring into the nation's capital the largest crowd on record. They came in all manners of conveyances: airplanes, buses, trains and an estimated 50,000 cars.

Supt. J. P. Doyle is unable to teach this week being confined to home by an attack of the shingles.

"Life Begins at Forty"

"Life begins at Forty"--according to a recent book. Has this an application to a bank? We believe it has! We cannot take the heading here too literally. However, we contend that a person enjoying reasonably steady employment can make life more comfortable and secure by saving regularly during the first forty years of his life.

It all boils down to an individual initiative to forgo a little pleasure in early life so that a fuller enjoyment will occur after forty.
