

Accident Toll Heavy Over The Week End

18 Persons Killed in Michigan Over the Week End. 322 in the Nation as Death Toll for July 4th Week End. Many Injured.

The accident total which has been receding this year increased over the July 4th week end with 18 deaths in the state and 322 in the nation. Not a single death was due to fire-works, most of them resulting from auto accidents and drownings. Pennsylvania reported the greatest number of fatalities. She had 25 automobile accidents and 2 drownings. New York was second with 12 drownings and 11 traffic deaths.

Pinckney had a number of accidents but no fatalities. Sunday morning while Howard Read of this place and Ambrose Kennedy of Howell were taking some friends home to Fowlerville from a dance, they struck a car enroute from Muskegon to Detroit at Malachi Roche's curve on Grand River Highway, this side of Fowlerville. The Muskegon parties were unfamiliar with the road and cut across the wrong side of the curve. Both cars were badly wrecked. The car belonging to Ross Read turned over several times.

The occupants received cuts and bruises but no broken bones. One of the girls in the Muskegon car had a number of stitches taken in her leg.

Sunday evening about 6:30 p. m. Miss June Lamb of Pinckney went for a ride on a motor cycle driven by her cousin, Junior Wilkinson of Williamston who was spending the day here. At the intersection of the Pinckney-Dexter road with the Darwin Road they collided with a car headed east on Darwin Road. This car was driven by Phillip Crippen of Jackson. Miss Lamb suffered a broken pelvic bone and cuts and bruises. Wilkinson had his leg badly fractured and broken and received cuts and bruises. The occupants of the Crippen car were not injured. Miss Lamb and Wilkinson were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, in Ann Arbor, by P. H. Swarthout in his ambulance where they will be confined for some time.

Monday afternoon Charles Porter collided with a car from Detroit on the Patterson Lake road running south of Pinckney at the intersection with Mower Road. Both cars were battered but, the occupants were uninjured.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

When C. H. Kennedy's general store was opened Sunday morning it was discovered that someone had attempted to gain entrance into the store through the rear door. The bottom of the door had been splintered, evidently by a wrecking bar and the door sprung. When the store was robbed several years ago, the door was rebuilt and made strong enough to resist most any assault.

Martin Ritter, jr., who lives in the Casper Sykes house came home from Euler's Tavern, Lakeland, where he works, about 2:00 a. m. Sunday. He says he got up after going to bed thinking someone was around his car which was parked out doors. Later he heard a splintering sound and going to the window saw two men running north from the rear of the business section.

Harold Smith, Budget Director, Says
Survey Does Not Give Michigan's
True Financial Picture As Other
Facts Enter Into the Picture

A recent Associated Press survey stated that there was a deficit of $13,800,000 in the general fund of Michigan and placed this state and Oklahoma in the worst financial condition of any state in the union. The Lansing correspondent in the Detroit News quotes Harold Smith, budget director as stating that the figures are accurate but not adequate and that there are three principal things that change the picture entirely. They are 1. Michigan has operated on a pay-as-you-go policy and has a very small bonded indebtedness in comparison; 2. Michigan ranks high in contributions to direct welfare; 3. Michigan ranks very high in contributions to education.

35 states have a higher per capita debt than Michigan's which is only $4.43. The average for all the states is $17.83. At the top is Arkansas where each person is obligated to extent of $77.44; New York's is $41.55; Illinois is $15.89, California $18.20; and Pennsylvania is $11.80.

Other states have relief bonds but Michigan has not issued any financing her relief out of the general fund. In 1937 California had $44,000,000 outstanding in relief bonds, Illinois had $43,700,000 in relief bonds and Pennsylvania $17,000,000 outstanding. No definite figures on school aid are possible as yet but the estimated expenses for the fiscal year just beginning are $91,000,000 for Michigan of which the schools of this state are slated to receive $43,000,000.

4-H CLUB PROGRAM

Michigan is extremely fortunate in having at least one institution that is vitally interested in the well being of farm families. Children and adults alike gathered upon the Campus of the Michigan State College during the past week for the annual 4-H Club program. Some 800 persons participated in the events of the week. State honors were awarded to members and leaders who had some outstanding achievement during the past year.

Our delegates consisted of Thora Dietrich, Thelma Sherwood, Clarence Dyer, George Robb, Elsie Mae Cook, Grace Meyer, Barbara Cameron, LaVerne Antieau, Raymond Strehling, Anna Mae Donohue, Helen Smith, Kenneth Filkins and Francis Shehan. The leaders attending were Stanley Haynes and Mrs. Grace Beckwith.

Willis Duncan and Mrs. Beckwith were elected to the State Service Club, Mrs. Beckwith as leader and Willis Duncan as member. Chester Clark was awarded the state honors to the Shelby Camp. All in all we believe that everybody participating had a real good time, and we hope that our country 4-H Club members will look forward to the event next year.

WRESTLER FAILS

Last Tuesday, Harry Michael, Inkster's star amateur wrestler, failed to make good in his rematch with "Villian" Aschenbrenner.

This match had promised to be a long, rough and dirty battle. The audience however was surprised and slightly bewildered when Aschenbrenner gained victory in less than a minute by fracturing Michael's skull with a quick and elusive head blow.

He'd Have Something to Worry About Then!

Stock Market Boom Indicates Business Revival

Stock Values Up 12 Billion During the Month of June. Industrial Buy ing to Replace Depleted Stocks Causes Prices to Shoot Upward

Soaring stock prices during the month of June added $12,000,000 to the value of all shares listed on the New York stock exchange during the month of June 1938. Building stocks led with steel second and other raw materials third. The reason is said to be the almost depleted stocks of industrialists who have been forced to replenish them. This indicates a step up in factory production schedules.

More than 300,000,000 yards of textiles were sold in the last two weeks. Cotton spurted about $1 more a bale, increasing the value over 9 cents a lb. Copper sales jumped 91,000 tons last month and wool, oil, hides, rubber and zinc also showed big gains.

Participation by overseas buyers also helped to swell the sales. This is the highest stock market gain since 1933.

The reasons for the boom are summed up by Ogden Trenchard, economic writer in the Detroit Free Press Monday, as follows: 1. Supply and demand conditions caused by the curtailment of output during recent months; 2. Revision of tax laws; 3. New Spending Bill; 4. Government Farm Loan Program; 5. Deflationary Monetary Policy; 6. Lowering the Standards of Commercial Bank Credit.

Years ago small towns were visited regularly each summer by traveling tent shows. Some of them put on plays but most of them imitated the large circuses with trained animals, aerial performers etc. Among them were the Whitney family, the Fred, Perrine etc. Later Belle Barcus and the Hunt Stock Co. appeared. At the present time Jack Kelly is about the only one left. The auto radio and the movies all combined to put them out of business. Now we read that Barnum & Bailey and Ringling Bros have been forced to suspend business and go to winter quarters in Florida, from Swanton Penn., their last stand. The reason given is that their employees refused to accept a wage cut. This may be partially true but undoubtedly the same causes that contributed to the demise of the small town circuses also figured in the Barnum & Bailey suspension.

One thing was not greatly stressed during the last session of congress. That was the pension increases voted by congress to veterans of the Spanish, Philippine and Chinese relief act. 25,000 veterans are expected to benefit by this. Veterans are receiving $10 a month pension will now receive $100. In all veterans will receive $5,738,200 additional income.

Whether Anthony Chaberton's day on the scaffold here in Michigan on July 8 is beside the point, Michigan has not had a public execution here since 1830 and the people have time and again signified their disapproval of the death penalty. If the federal government desires to hang him it should perform the deed in some state where capital punishment is in force. Through the courtesy of the Detroit Times we have received an account of Michigan's last execution on Sept. 24, 1830. The victim was a S. G. Simmons who while drunk killed his wife in a beer tavern at Wayne. The execution took place in the jail yard. It was witnessed by hundreds and special seats were erected for them. Simmons who weighed 260 pounds repented and prayed on the scaffold before his execution. Previous to the hanging, the sheriff, Thomas Knapp, had refused to hang him and resigned his office. Ben Woodworth, a shoemaker and hotel proprietor was appointed to the office and performed the office of hangman. The execution caused a revolution against the law and led to repeal. Shortly afterwards Ontario executed a man named Fitzpatrick. Afterwards another person confessed to the crime. John Bare, United States Marshall will be in charge of the execution but like King Henry VIII of England who imported a French executioner to behead his wife, Anne Boleyn, an outsider will do the job. He is Phillip Hanna, of Carmi, Ill. who designed the scaffold and trip. The execution will not be public. Besides the hangman, 7 assistants, guards and three doctors, five citizens will be present as witnesses. The Associated, National, and United News Service will be allowed one representative. There will be no photographers. The execution will take place at the Milan federal prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Craft and daughters, Gloria and Jean, and son, Jackie, spent the week end in Canada.

In the issue of June 29 the name of Howard Read left of the list of those who received diplomas at the Pinckney high school at graduation, June 22. We apologize for the oversight.

Changed with growing and cultivation. Mrs. Oursula Vekick, 62, of Vernon was arrested last week and released on $100 bond. The aged woman admitted cultivating it but claimed she did not know what it was. This section seems to be peppered with it and several more reports have come in of it being found growing wild in this section. At this rate it will be harder to stamp out than the seven year itch, which raised havoc here shortly after the Spanish war.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—When Charles Maurras came out of the Sante prison last year, he was met by a committee of distinguished Frenchmen, who nominated him for the Nobel peace prize and said they would make him a member of the Academy. They have just fulfilled the latter promise, and M. Maurras becomes an immortal by a majority of one vote.

He had spent 250 days in jail on a charge of having urged the assassination of 140 members of the chamber of deputies who had voted for sanctions against Italy; also on a charge of inciting the French people to "sharpen up their kitchen knives" for use against certain proscribed politicians.

In the 250 days he had written five books, swelling his vast collection of books on biography, politics, economics, literary criticism, history and what not to probably well over 100. I talked to him once in the Cafe des Lilas, a fragile, deaf, bearded old man with a contentious, blazing mind which makes one think of a sizzling battery running an automobile without any engine.

In 1923, he was in jail for four months in a somewhat anti-climatic adventure for one who was to be regarded as an immortal. Three members of the chamber of deputies were kidnapped and fed castor oil—Mussolini is said to have got his broad prospectus of Fascism from Maurras—and the bald head of one of them was painted with violet ink and glue.

In 1925, M. Maurras was sentenced to two years in prison, the charge being that he had threatened to kill the minister of the interior. Among the causes of his incarceration in October, 1938, was conspiracy evidence in the assault on Premier Leon Blum, in which he was severely beaten, while attending the funeral of a friend.

His books and virulent editorials against democracy in the Royalist, paper, translated into many languages, are the fount of Fascist doctrine all over the world. His hatred of democracy is savage and vitriolic. He is witty, learned, brilliant and he has the most exhorting and corrosive vocabulary in France.

FOOTNOTE to the main text of the world discussion on Japan bombing babies is the interchange between Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic committee, and William J. Bingham (Bill the Plugger), Harvard athletic director. Mr. Brundage says it has nothing to do with sports, and Mr. Bingham says it has—with sportsmanship, at any rate—and he withdraws from the committee and the 1940 games.

The sports writers are becoming almost metaphysical in weighing and appraising the moral values of the argument. Bill the Plugger says, in effect, that he won't play with baby-killers.

He became Bill the Plugger by losing 19 races at Harvard and winning the twentieth. Thereafter, he was Harvard's crack miler.

He started out plugging at the age of fourteen, leaving school to work in a mill and help support his five younger brothers and sisters. He saved $30, went to Exeter and worked his way through Exeter and Harvard.

He came out of the war a captain with appropriate decorations, did a turn in the banking business in Texas and became Harvard graduate supervisor and track coach in 1921. On the side, he is president of a concern which imports rubber goods.

IF GERARD B. LAMBERT builds a house, they're likely to find a center-board and a sky's yard on it. It's hard to see how he can get his mind off his yachting, but, at any rate, he becomes special adviser to Stuart McDonald, federal housing administrator.

The gargles and shaves of the multitudes built his chemical fortune at St. Louis. He was one of the original backers of Lindbergh and the originators of great advertising slogans.

Author of a spirited "Defense of Babbitt" in the American Mercury, commander of the Eastern Yacht club of Marblehead, Mass., he maintains a valhalla for gallant old yachts.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WASHINGTON.—It is entirely possible that many people have failed to piece together several developments of national import lately, and may have missed the significance of an action of congress in its closing days. The two incidents to which I refer are the federal grand jury indictment at South Bend, Ind., of a number of automobile manufacturing executives and the action of congress in adoption of a resolution providing for a broad-gauge inquiry into big business. The two, when pieced together, spell a sensational drive against the "malefactors of great wealth."

The result? Well, let's examine the scheme, the pattern and the prospects.

There was a period in 1936, it will be recalled, when business interests felt that President Roosevelt was preparing to follow a middle-of-the-road policy as far as government relations with business was concerned. During that period, there was a considerable improvement in general business. In that interim of time, as far as any observers could reach a conclusion, the President was relying on advice from many men in whom business had confidence. But there came a sudden end. Out of the clear sky, Mr. Roosevelt proposed reorganization of the Supreme court of the United States and the addition of six justices whom he could appoint at once. Through weeks of battle when it became apparent that one guess was as good as another whether the President would win, business men and women again became afraid. That was when the present depression began. It was also the time when Mr. Roosevelt turned away from his previous close advisers and began listening to the new brain trust which has come to be known as the "board of strategy."

As the depression became sharper and the numbers of unemployed increased with startling rapidity, the board of strategy sought means to offset the condition. The group also had to find a goat—which is always done when plans go awry. There followed then the vicious and intemperate attacks on "big business" by the trust-busting Robert H. Jackson, then favored at the White House as the next Democratic candidate for the New York governorship. Secretary Ickes also let loose his vocabulary and none can deny the interior secretary's capacity for speaking biting words. For weeks and weeks, we were treated to a barrage of words in which "big business" was pictured as beyond the pale of good citizenry and ought to be destroyed.

The trust-busting drive was not as successful in gaining public acclaim as had been hoped for. The truth is that it failed to get the country excited at all and the profit to the trust busters did not materialize as had been the case when "Teddy" Roosevelt was swinging a big stick of demagoguery in the same field of political endeavor. Indeed, this drive flopped at the start whereas the drive by the earlier Roosevelt was good politics for several years.

It was here, according to the best information available, that the tactics changed. The change in methods is the real reason for the story. Thus, it can be said that the trust-busting drive is still going on as strong as ever but it is going on in several fields without any apparent connection because the board of strategy has lost none of its determination to convince the nation that it is being ruined by those same malefactors of great wealth toward which Teddy Roosevelt waved his fist and bared his teeth.

Now, to put the pieces of the picture together. The first section comprises the indictment of the automobile moguls, Edsel Ford, Walter P. Chrysler, Alfred P. Sloan and William Knudsen, among some sixty odd officials of Ford, Chrysler and General Motors and the companies affiliated with them in the financing of motor cars bought on the installment plan. They are charged with violation of the antitrust laws, although how anybody can believe the Ford interests ever could or would play ball with the other two, I have been unable to see. Anyway, big news stories were carried by the press services from South Bend, and the department of justice here had much "background" information which officials were delighted to hand to any inquiring reporter. They did this in order to co-operate with the press inasmuch as the story was so sensational and so vast in scope that none of us writers here could possibly be permitted to miss any phase of it.

The other phase of the continuing drive against "big business" takes the form of a great inquiry, thinly disguised as a general study of business practices. It is a somewhat unusual type of investigation and is to be managed in a very unusual manner. The committee that will do the job is made up of three senators and three representatives, and a representative from each of a number of executive departments and commissions. And the important fact in addition is that $500,000 which the investigation cost will be expended under the rection of President Roosevelt.

To bring it own to simple terms, when congress adopted the resolution for the inquiry, the board of strategy was able to turn on enough political steam to force adoption of an amendment placing the funds under the direction of the President, rather than under control of congress, as usually is done when congress participates in an investigation. That action means that investigators for the committee will be able to rely upon laws covering inquiries and searches made by the department of justice, the federal trade commission, the securities and exchange commission and the national labor relations board, among others. The combined powers will be all-comprehensive.

To explain further the full meaning of these broad powers, it is necessary to cite constitutional provisions prohibiting illegal search and seizure. The investigators for the committee must be able to dig deep into private records of any bank or corporation or individual if they are to accomplish fully the desire of the board of strategy for complete exposure of all the secrets of business. When they get all of those records, of course they can analyze them and place their own construction on the business practices. That is today, by inference and innuendo, hint or open charge, the investigators can smear anything or anybody—and the newspapers will spread the information. It being an official investigation, it will be followed closely by the press and, as usual, there will be little chance for the individuals to reply. When they are marked to be smeared, they will be smeared, whether justly or unjustly. It is a deplorable thing that our government stoops to that sort of thing but it has done so in a number of instances.

Now, as to the main objectives. Every indication is that the guiding hands in the projected investigation are determined to destroy two great masses of capital. I mean, they intend to break up the combination of men and money in two instances. The banking house of J. P. Morgan and company, and the huge industrial setup of the DuPonts are marked. Whether they like it or not, those two groups are to be made the goats of the depression of 1937-38, and those on the inside recognize that it is a fight to the finish. There will be other corporations, other individuals, whose business lives will be laid bare, but the Morgans and the DuPonts are the real targets. The board of strategy believes the Morgan bank and the DuPont interests are chiefly responsible for the refusal of business to yield on many of the crackpot ideas of the professors, and so it is inevitable those two groups will be cast as the villains.

There arises, next, the question whether such an investigation and such a prosecution as has been started at South Bend will do the country any good. One ought not to prejudice. It may be that the motor magnates and their corporations are guilty as pups. It may be that the Morgans and the DuPonts and scores of others among families with great fortunes have set about to wreck the New Deal. But the question in my mind is: why has it not been discovered before? It seems to me that if there was so much corruption, so much improper influence being exercised and such illegal use of money power as is represented by those who were pushing the investigation, it should have been several years ago. Mr. Roosevelt has been in office five years and it appears strange that there was no effort to uncover these demons until the business of the country as a whole lost confidence in the policies of the national administration.

These developments have come along as the depression grew worse. They reach their climax of preparation at a time when another federal agency, the board of governors of the federal reserve system, says that the industrial depression in the United States now is the worst in the world. Neither England nor any other industrial country abroad has experienced a depression that has been as precipitous as the United States is experiencing, the board said in an official statement.

The power is not given to me to determine the numerous and varied facts, but the processes of deduction eliminate many possible causes for our nation's condition—most of them, indeed, excepting governmental meddling and the harassing of business, big and little.

Explains What Is Meant by

CORRECT NUTRITION

Describes How to Construct a Balanced Diet, So Essential to Maintain Optimal Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th St., New York City.

TO SOME families, a summons to the dinner table means nothing more than a chance to satisfy hunger. To others, it represents an opportunity to gratify the palate, sometimes to the extent of overtaxing the digestive system.

Neither of these extremes fulfills the true function of food, which is to provide adequately but not to excess, for growth, maintenance and repair of the body.

Food May Fail to Feed

You can satisfy hunger without providing correct nutrition. You can partake of delicious-tasting foods to the point of over-indulgence—without meeting bodily requirements.

The mere spending of money will not insure good nutrition, for extremely poor diets can be found in households where the income is large and the food budget is ample. What counts is learning to provide the right foods in the correct proportions. The return in health will be more than worth the investment of effort in acquiring this knowledge.

A Balanced Diet

Science has discovered what foods are necessary to help build top health and keep us 100 per cent fit. The amount of food required by a man for a day's work can be accurately determined. We know that a specific disease may be produced by one diet and cured by another; that growth can be influenced through changes in the quality of the dietary; that old age may be deferred by choosing the food with care.

We know that the body is a working machine which never stops but may slow down or get out of order unless the daily diet includes every element, every mineral, every vitamin needed to maintain health and avoid the deficiency diseases.

Seven Essentials

There are seven factors to be considered in planning a balanced diet. Protein for building body tissue and repairing the millions of cells that are worn out daily. Carbohydrates to produce quick heat and energy. Fats—a more compact form of fuel, which are also essential in a satisfactory diet. Minerals which serve both as builders and regulators of body processes. The six vitamins, A, B, C, D, E and G, that also act as regulators and prevent a number of deficiency diseases. Water—which serves as a vehicle by which food is carried to the tissues. And cellulose or bulk—required for the normal functioning of the intestinal tract.

Danger in Omitting One Food Substance

The homemaker who fails to take every one of these factors into consideration is depriving her husband of the opportunity to develop his greatest efficiency. Moreover, she may be robbing her children of their birthright. During every day of childhood, the body is being built, and defects in body structure are likely to arise if the child is improperly nourished. It is then that disease and disability make their appearance as a result of faulty nutrition. How tragic to deprive the young body of substances so necessary to its well being.

Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance

PLANNING a balanced diet will cease to be a puzzle if you send for the Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance, offered free, by C. Houston Goudiss.

It lists the foods and the standard amounts that should be included in the daily diet, and includes skeleton menus for breakfast, dinner and lunch or supper, to guide you in selecting the proper foods in each classification.

A postcard is sufficient to bring you this valuable aid to good menu planning. Just ask for the Nutrition Chart. Address C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th St., New York City.

plemented by the complete protein of milk.

The Protective Foods

It is essential that the diet should contain an abundance of minerals and vitamins which are furnished by the protective foods—milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables. Cellulose or bulk is obtained from fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals. Water comes from juicy fruits, succulent vegetables, milk and other beverages, as well as the water that is consumed as a beverage.

To provide adequate amounts of the seven food essentials at every meal—to avoid the mistake of serving too much of one type of food and too little of another—should be the worthy aim of every homemaker. You will find the task considerably easier if you send for the Homemaker's Chart. Tack it up in your kitchen or in the room where you plan your menus, and use it to check the nutritional balance of every meal you prepare.

If you faithfully follow the food program outlined in the chart, you will help to assure your family of correct nutrition. This is the most priceless gift you could bestow upon them. For nutrition is the architect that draws the plans of human destiny. In providing the right foods, you lay a firm foundation for health on which to rear a life of happiness and success.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

You wouldn't want a picture without shadows. The sweetest music's in a minor key. And a life that isn't flavored with some sorrow—Oh, how insipid such a life would be!

TWO of the most important things for midsummer are: a sleeveless dress of the most casual sort for sports and daytime, and a cool dress with cape or jacket, to wear on the street and for afternoons. The two here suggested represent the very best of these types. Make them yourself, in fabrics and colors of your own choosing, and rejoice in the knowledge that you have some very individual new clothes.

Sleeveless Sports Frock. Even if you never take a tennis racket in your hand, you'll enjoy having this cool, classic dress for summer daytimes. In pique, linen, seersucker or gingham, it will look and feel so cool and fresh! Perfectly straight and plain, it has darts at the waistline to make it fit with becoming slowness. This is a diagram pattern—practically nothing to make!

Afternoon Cape Ensemble. With or without the cape, this dress with lifted waistline to flatten the midriff, is a charming,

WHO WROTE IT

"My Melancholy Baby"

Come to see the new musical play

HE was listed as "died in action" on the fields of France and mourned by those who knew him. He left no descendants and royalties were paid to no one. When he reappeared, in the flesh, he had to begin life anew.

Born in Cincinnati of French-Italian-Hungarian extraction, he was sent abroad by a music-loving father to begin his musical education at five. He was schooled in Milan, Vienna and Berlin, and completed his music at the Conservatory of Charlotteburg.

At seventeen, ambitious to become a concert pianist, he returned to America to find that his parents were dead and he was penniless. He played a round of carnivals, cafes, variety halls, and emerged from the San Francisco disaster of 1906 with only his clothes. Aided by relief workers, he reached Chicago, wrote popular songs for the state publisher, Milton Well, and through Well got work as one of six piano players in "The Pinophonds," an act produced by a young vaudeville impresario, Jesse Lasky.

Back in San Francisco, he fell in love, married, lost his vaudeville job. He found work in a Denver cafe, wired his bride to join him. Her train, delayed by fire, was fourteen hours late. While he waited in the Denver station for the night, he wrote words and music of one of the greatest popular song hits of all time—"My Melancholy Baby." Three publishers rejected it, a fourth took a chance, and sold more than two million copies; then went bankrupt, having paid the composer only one hundred and fifty dollars.

Vaudeville pianist, hotel entertainment director, orchestra leader, he punctuated all his activities with frequent compositions of popular songs, until in 1917 he went to France with the 89th Division. Gassed at Soissons, he apparently recovered, returned to America, and after two years as a factor in the theatrical life of the Panama Canal Zone, suffered a recurrence of lung trouble.

In the decade that followed, he was under treatment in Government hospitals and health resorts. In 1927 in a Chicago hospital, he heard Paul Whiteman announce his famous number, "My Melancholy Baby," for a radio program, adding that the number was being played in memory of its composer who had died on the fields of France. Quickly he wired Whiteman that, like Mark Twain's, the report of his death was greatly exaggerated.

Pronounced cured in 1931, the composer returned to his career. In Hollywood and New York he renewed acquaintances with men and women of music who had long mourned him as dead. His old life, meanwhile had taken on new popularity. Its sales were so stimulated that the total to date is nearly four millions, current sales yielding profits to the composer, who is a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and shares thereby in the royalties for its public performance for profit.

Within the next two years he will renew copyrights upon approximately one hundred songs. He has just completed a new song, "Cabin in the Carolines," written with Bill Hill of "Last Roundup" fame. His name is growing again.

NOTES OF 25 YEARS AGO

The Boston Bloomer Girls who were scheduled for a ball game here Monday failed to show up.

The home of H. H. Swarthout was struck by lightning last Saturday.

Dr. George Pearson was taken to the Ann Arbor hospital last week following an injury sustained when he was kicked by a horse.

Married at St. Johns on June 28 Glenn Tupper, formerly of Pinckney to Miss Jennie Lind of St. Johns.

Wm. Dunning has purchased a Ford touring car from Flintoff & Read.

Wm. Dunning has leased his huckleberry swamp to Mrs. George Hasenbach.

The booming of cannon and anvil ushered in the 4th here in great style. The streets and business section were gaily decorated with flags, bunting and tree boughs. The parade formed shortly before noon led by the North Lake and West Marion Bands. Irvin Kennedy mounted on Dr. John Heffernan's thoroughbred horse acted as marshal of the day, 1st prize for the best looking automobile was won by Percy Swarthout, with Dr. H. F. Sigler 2nd and John Teeple, 3rd. Roy Caverly and Ernest Hoyt got the prize for the worst looking. Arthur Vedder won the prize for the worst dressed person in the parade. Following the parade the crowd congregated around the speakers stand on the square where with George Teeple acting as toastmaster addresses were given by the Rev. M. J. Commerford of Flint and Louis Howlett of Howell. Charles Smoyer of Akron, Ohio and Hiram Smith of Roscommon. The winners of the contests were as follows: In the fat man's race, 1st Will Allen, 2nd, Irvin Kennedy; sack race, 1st Marvin Bruff, 2nd, Herman Eisele; Pie Eating Contest, 1st Naron Martin, 2nd, Walter Gallup, Grease pole climbing contest, Frank Gay.

The horse race aroused much interest. Willie Darrow on Dr. Heffernan's thoroughbred was a red hot favorite. However, the committee let in a lot of outside horses and Willie got pocketed at the start and came in last. Ed Quinn who rode Charles Krause's pacer was well in the lead when his mount stumbled and threw him in front of the Pinckney Sanitarium. Several stitches were taken in a wound in his head. A Fowlerville horse won the money and the Pinckney sports who backed their entry too enthusiastically took a drubbing.

The blue rock shooting contest drew much interest. It finally settled down to a contest between a team composed of C. M. Sigler and G. Dinkel and one composed of Norman Reason and Mark Swarthout. The first won, mostly on account of great work by Dinkel who broke every target.

The ball game was stopped in the 4th inning by a heavy downfall of rain. Pinckney was leading, Howell 4 to 0 at the time. Ward Swarthout pitched for Pinckney and Guy Kuhn for Howell. In the evening many attended the band concerts and over 100 couple the dance.

Here is a paragraph from the file of the Dispatch. A peanut vender lost considerable trade by getting too close to the speakers stand while the oratory was being worked off by Rev. Commerford. They jockeyed for position awhile in the limelight then his reverence gained the pole and easily outdistanced his discouraged competitor.

of your neighbors have switched to electric cooking—
here are the reasons why!

An electric range provides the latest and most modern method of cooking. That is what appeals to most of the 10,000 families in and around Detroit who have switched to electric cooking during the past year. That is why more than 60,000 of your neighbors prefer an electric range to any other cooking method, and are now enjoying the advantages that only an electric range provides.

What are these advantages? Your dealer will be glad to point them out to you, one by one, on any of the ranges he has on display. He will mention the CLEANLINESS of electric cooking, with pure heat from a glowing wire—heat as clean as sunlight. He will mention the ease with which you can have a bright, crackling kitchen. Walls and curtains stay fresh for a much longer period of time, and there is less frequent need for redecorating. Cooking utensils, too, remain bright and shiny after long use.

Your dealer will tell you about the BETTER FLAVOR of electric cooking. Meats and vegetables cook to melting tenderness in their own juices, with delicious natural flavor sealed-in. You will learn about the modern waterless cooking method which retains precious minerals and important food values. You will discover the ADDED LEISURE that an electric range makes possible—extra hours of freedom away from the kitchen. You will appreciate its COMFORTABLE COOKING in warm weather—an electric range does not raise the kitchen temperature one degree.

Stop in at your dealer's today and see for yourself the convincing superiorities of electric cooking!

See the new electric ranges on display at department stores, electrical dealers or at your Detroit Edison office.

Philathea Notes

Unless otherwise notified the class will be entertained for our June meeting by Mrs. W. C. Hendee, on Wednesday afternoon July 13. Bring the proper "tools" for sewing again, and do not fail to be on hand. Pot luck as usual.

The last copy of the "Baraca, Philathea News" is so inspiring that we wish each of our readers could enjoy it. The cover picture shows the "First Baraca Class" Syracuse, N. Y., as it looks today. There were also fine reports from a number of the Syracuse Classes.

A large Philathea Class on Sunday enjoyed the lesson on Joshua as presented by Mrs. Wm. Peck, who substituted for Mrs. Elliott. This new series of lessons will be very interesting, and on next Lord's Day the subject will be, "Caleb: Life-time Devotion" Joshua 14:6-15.

The Benevolence Treasurer is grateful for the faithful ones who contributed toward the Missionary funds personally and by means of the envelopes in the pews, as well as in the S. S. offering. It is coming in very slowly, and there are only three months before the annual meeting.

Philatheas and others may be interested in the reminder that on next Sunday, July 10, Rev. M. B. Hinkle, of Radio Station WIBM Jackson, is to speak both in the morning and in the evening in the Baptist church in Stockbridge, Michigan. An offering will be taken for his work. He is heard on week day mornings from 6.45 to seven o'clock and on Sundays from 7 to 8.

Giant Among Flowers

The amorphophallus, which produces the largest flowers in the world, is so big that a man standing upright can barely reach the top with the tips of his fingers and can only reach half way round its circumference.

Quick, Easy Stitches For Summer Frocks

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A BIT of hand embroidery for the collar and sleeves of a little girl's dress is always the smartest trimming. Quickly made stitches and interesting colors may be combined to give unusual effects.

The dress shown here is pale blue chambray. The collar and sleeves are edged with blanket stitch in a deeper blue as shown at A. Between each blanket stitch a tiny loop stitch is made in white and three larger white loop stitches at the top of every second blanket stitch as shown at B. When used on a fabric of this weight the embroidery should be rather coarse to show up well. All six strands of a six strand embroidery cotton may be used or No. 5 pearl cotton. For a dress of fine sheer material such as dimity or organdie use finer embroidery thread. Other attractive color combinations are pink material with deep rose and French blue embroidery, yellow with brown and orange or green with yellow and white. For a printed fabric, repeat two of the strongest tones in the printed design or use white collar and cuffs embroidered in the background color of the print and one of the brighter tones.

NOTE: If you wish to use these weekly articles for reference paste them in a scrapbook, as they are not included in either Sewing Book No. 1 or 2. Book 1, Sewing for the Home Decorator, covers curtains, slipcovers, dressing tables; 48 pages of fascinating directions. Book 2 illustrates 90 embroidery stitches with numerous applications; doll clothes and gift items. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book desired. If you order both books, leaflet on making crazy quilts, with 36 stitches illustrated, will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Consent Lost Upon John In His Great Anxiety

John felt that he could never ask Pamela to be his wife.

True, he loved her as he had never loved anyone else before, but then she was an angel, while he had many little weaknesses of which no angel would ever approve.

Pamela, on the other hand, spent her time thinking that it was high time John spoke up!

One night he came to the point.

"Pamela, Pamela," he urged, "will you marry me?"

"You bet," she replied briskly.

"I know, darling," he answered, ashamed. "But if you'll only say, 'Yes,' I'll promise never to back another horse!"

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 40), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dainty spells, upset nerves and moody moods.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vitality to enjoy life and banish nervous, fitful nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and energy.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by prominent people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Sarah Lynn leaned back in a great deep chair which made her seem childishly small, and the aviator stretched himself flat again, his hands folded behind his yellow head.

"This was the one I liked," Jordan said, his fingers halting.

"But I shall go down from this airy space, this swift white peace, this stinging exultation; and time will close about me, and my soul stir to the rhythm of the daily round, Yet, having known, life will not press so close, And always I shall feel time ravel thin about me, For once I stood In the white windy presence of eternity."

Sarah Lynn felt a little shiver of appreciation. She had known it, the swift white peace, the stinging exultation. Life would never press too close on her, on Gunnar; they wouldn't let it! They were not earth-bound; they had dominion.

Jordan played on and on, quietly now, with a conviction of serenity and permanence, and the crimson of the hearth died down to a hot, gray ash. It seemed to Sarah Lynn that her heart must literally burst with its weight of surging happiness.

Gunnar let Sarah Lynn take the Hermod up alone one day and stood waiting proudly while she brought it smoothly and beautifully to earth. It was her accolade: sign and symbol of his utter trust.

They walked on the shore beside the blue, bright water and he took her in his arms. "So," he said, lifting his head after a long kiss, "you are fearless, also wise. You fly safely and skillfully my Hermod. I love you."

Sarah Lynn pulled herself out of his embrace to look up at him. "Gunnar, do you love me? Me?"

"Have I not said—"

"I know. But I mean—is it only because I've learned to fly properly? Because I'm not afraid? Because I do the kind of things you like? Or is it—myself?"

He laughed aloud. "This is a folly. I love you because you are you—without fear, and wise, and a good flier. It is answered."

"No, but—there was a shadow in the eyes of the queer, dark Dana girl. 'Don't you think we ought to care for people themselves, not for what they do? Not even for what they are?' I think—"

"It needs no thinking," he said.

"But—Gunnar, suppose—suppose I stopped flying?"

"Suppose you stopped living? Enough of folly! We finish!" He kissed her again.

Lynn Dana wrote to his traveling cousin:

"I wish you were here to see them now, Sally Ann. By and by, I suppose, an inexorable calendar will catch them and clip their wings, but now they are soaring!"

Their visit at Jordan's Tahoe lodge seemed to set them free. They were armored against everything now, even poor Cousin Adelaide. They say little of plans but I gather they are to marry in a fortnight and go at once to Norway where he has excellent prospects.

"I think—at least, I suspect—that they will fly the Atlantic in the Hermod, in complete secrecy. I doubt if they will even tell me."

"Of course I shall miss them blankly, bleakly; it doesn't need your nimble and trained imagination to understand how much of flavor and fragrance will go out of things, but I shall manage to rejoice for our dark duckling hatched into an eagle's mate."

"There's something lyric, something mythical and symbolic about their romance: partly, I suppose, because of its evanescent quality, because they are looking constantly into the bright face of danger. It's hard to imagine them middle-aged and portly; I can't see beyond youth for them."

"Doubtless this is all because I'm a little low in my mind on another count. Granny is going down hill very perceptibly, and it gets me. Everything dimming—eyes, ears; a slowing down all around. She senses it of course, and she loathes it."

"So, then! Sorry you're missing the skylarks but glad you are being spared the matriarch's defeat."

Her great-grandmother's condition was evident even to Sarah Lynn's high-keyed preoccupation, and she ached with pity and protest. The old woman sent for her and went at once to the point.

"Sairy Lynn, I guess I don't need to tell you I'm getting older every minute."

"I know, Great-granny." She took a small, lean claw in her warm grasp. "And I wish I could give you twenty years."

"The last ones? Think now, looking so far ahead, that you won't want 'em? Well, you will, let me tell you; you'll want 'em worst way. And you'll know you can't have 'em. Well, I'm obliged to you for the wish."

"I'm sorry," Sarah Lynn said. "Oh, Great-granny, I wish there was something I could do!"

"Well, there is," the nonagenarian said briskly. "That's what I'm getting at. That's why I sent for you. I know you're getting married and putting out, quick's ever you can, Sairy Lynn, and that's right. I want you should. But there's a favor you could do me first."

"Anything!" she said gladly. "Anything I can—"

"I should admire to have a ride in your flying-machine, Sairy Lynn."

"Of course, Great-granny! I'd adore it."

"Well, there's plenty that won't," she said grimly. "When the folks hear of it there'll be the devil to pay and no pitch hot, but I don't care. I've got a hankering to see what it's like. I want to ride up in the sky and look down at birds flapping their wings that I always envied, and I want to look down at Danavale and all the foolish

'cause we lost so many critters and we had to make the loads light, and he was young and stout. I'd admire to have him here, today, looking down like I am. Well, forevermore! If that's all Mt. Hamilton amounts to, and the way I've been looking up at it for eighty-odd years! My, but the air's nice up here, Sairy Lynn! Awful light and thin . . . Makes a body drowsy . . ."

The flier looked back and saw her nodding. It was too bad to let her lose an instant of this thrill. She executed a mild side slip and the old woman sat up with a jerk and grinned at her.

"Hey, Sairy Lynn! What you up to? Trying to spill me out?" She looked down with renewed animation but very soon she was sleepy again.

Sarah Lynn waited until she had her full attention and then she inquired, both by words which she knew could not be heard and by unmistakable gestures whether she was ready to descend.

She shook her head violently. "No! No! I don't want to go down!

"Enough of folly. We finish!"

houses the folks built and the road your Gre-gramp and I come over in the covered wagons, dirty and dog-tired and snailing along with the half-dead critters hauling us. I want to do that once before I die."

"And you shall, Great-granny, dear," she told her. "I promise—cross my heart!" Gunnar would loan her the Hermod for this ritual.

CHAPTER XI

It was a pretty day. Gunnar approved the weather, and he warmly approved the project. It was exactly what he wished he might have done for Grandmother Gudrun.

Lynn Dana was deeply pleased. "She gave you your wings; right to share them with her," he nodded.

The colony came, the protestants, at least, anxious, indignant, annoyed, and the harried Emma Waters kept saying, "Now, Mis' Dana, where's your handkerchief? Mis' Dana, you went and took your knitted jacket off!"

Wrapped like a little old royal mummy, she was finally lifted into the cabin of the Hermod in Gunnar's long arms.

"I'm obliged to you, young feller," she thanked him. "And I'm real pleased about you and my child. I've set store by Sairy Lynn from the first minute I laid eyes on her in the cradle. I believe you're going to make her a good husband."

"I will make her a good husband," he told her gravely, fastening the seat belt about her, getting out again, passing through the group of disapproving faces.

The matriarch rapped on the window with her lean knuckles and waved at her elderly daughters, her middle-aged granddaughters, and gave her shrill, cackling laugh.

"Now, go on home and don't fret," she admonished them, "you poor old things!"

Then Sarah Lynn Dana took her ship away from the pleasant landscape into the calm skies, carrying the ninety-seven-year-old pioneer who had crossed the plains in a covered wagon to found the dynasty of Danavale.

Sarah Lynn looked back at her often and every time she smiled all over her small parchment face and waved a claw.

"I'm having the best time I ever had in all my born days, Sairy Lynn," she chirped, unaware that her wavering treble did not carry over the sound of the motor. "Beats everything. Even the first day in the wagon-train, and the day we knew we was in California. My land, what would your Gre-gramp think of this?" She gave a little crow of triumph. "Well, poor Hank! When I think how he come across the continent, most of the way a-foot,

I don't want to have it over. I want to keep on going up and up and up!"

"All right," her great-granddaughter said, and set the Hermod to climbing. After a while they encountered a soft sea of pink clouds and rose over it. It was an exquisitely lovely thing to see, but the passenger's sharp chin was resting on her breast and she appeared to be sleeping soundly. Sarah Lynn thought it a pity; there would be time enough and to spare for napping down in the little old Dana house when she and Gunnar were far across the sea, so she did another sharp slip to rouse her, but the small figure in the thick wrappings did not stir.

Sarah Lynn looked at her for a long time. Then she pulled off a glove and tossed it back. It struck the shawled shoulder smartly, but the head did not lift. Then the pilot headed for the coast, over the Santa Cruz mountains to the Pacific and flew low along the shore. After a while she shook the tears out of her eyes and looked into the sunset; she thought she had never seen one so lavish, so jubilant.

She rose and climbed and set out for home and when she circled the field at San Jose she could see the diminished descendants of Sarah Ann Kittredge Dana, pioneer, in an anxious huddle, gazing up. When Those unfamiliar with the many problems besetting the forester in his efforts to reforest denuded lands often wonder why there should be a high mortality on many hand-planted plantations. In some instances this has run 100 per cent, and the entire area must be replanted. Usually foresters expect from 20 to 30 per cent mortality and are happy with a survival of 70 to 80 per cent. In fact, writes Albert Stoll, Jr., in the Detroit News, they plan on this when the first trees are set by over-planting the land at least 30 per cent. If fortune should smile on the efforts and all the trees lived eventually the stands would have to be thinned out.

In recent years drouth and extreme heat have raised havoc with many pine tree plantations. The seedlings didn't have much chance to survive, and those that did were stunted.

Frequently the choice of the planting site brings failure, particularly if it happens to be in a frost pocket or on extremely sterile soil. Poor planting perhaps runs second to drouth and heat. If the seedling roots are not properly placed in the ground and completely covered with soil the chances are the tree will die. Freezing also contributes, as well as snow damage. Insects, rust and fungus growth often wipe out plantations, and this is a problem for which no satisfactory means of control has been uncovered. During the winter when snows cover all but the tops of the small trees rabbits and mice often girdle the terminal branches, dwarfing the growth, and if completely girdled farther down the tree will die. In some instances the young trees are destroyed by persons wandering aimlessly over the plantations and stepping on the seedlings.

Unlike planting around the home where water, shade and protection abound, the forest-planted seedling must shift for itself, and if the elements are unkind its life is short.

she set her ship down gently her head was high.

Gunnar opened the door, looking closely at her, and the rest came hurrying up. She got out slowly, without speaking, and they stared at her. She wasn't crying, but they could see traces of tears on her face.

"Mother!" some of the elderly daughters called, and "Oh, Grandma!" a middle-aged granddaughter cried out shrilly.

Then there was a wild clamor of talking and weeping, of questions and reproaches. Sarah Lynn stood quietly in the midst of them, trying to keep remembering how the sunset had looked. "Great-granny," she steadied her voice, "Great-granny—didn't—come down."

Gunnar comforted Sarah Lynn in the difficult days which followed. "Do not listen to the wailing," he admonished her.

"But they say I killed her, Gunnar."

"And I say you gave to her life again. Not choking in blankets but boldly in the sky, as she would wish, that small grandmother. Age closed her in like a trap, you opened the door."

"Oh, I know! But, I keep dreaming of her, huddled down in her seat, swinging over the belt—"

"That is folly. Think of her looking down with pleasure."

"Yes. Only I did so want her at my wedding. It—it isn't going to be a very nice wedding, Gunnar."

He shrugged. "What matter? It is a wedding. That is enough. Then we go!"

They were walking back to her house from an evening with Lynn Dana.

"Gunnar, I promise, I'll stop grieving about Great-granny."

"That is well. Death in age, in sickness, in helplessness is good. All such should be put away."

She came out of her mood of exaltation with a cry of protest. "Oh, Gunnar—no! That's horrible!"

"Man," he persisted, "must learn from Nature. To let survive—how do you say it?"

"The survival of the fittest, but who can say, who can judge and decide who is the fittest? Don't you see what a frightful danger it would be? How wicked people could bribe and corrupt—And some of the finest minds and spirits are in frail bodies. Do you want a world full of prize-fighters? Think—"

He shrugged. "You speak now of the exception. That would be bad. But in the end, after five hundred years, would not the race be greatly improved?"

Sarah Lynn wasn't interested in the state of the race five hundred years ahead. She was disturbed. Gunnar had aired those ideas before, but never so vehemently.

She had to put herself to sleep that night resolutely, remembering the thrilling beauty of the plane against the moon.

But she kept her promise to stop mourning over the death of the ancestress. All her loyal cohorts helped, and a long, understanding cable from Sally Ann, and most of all, the man in the wheeled-chair.

"Let's put a period to it, Sarah Lynn," he said. "You were privileged to pay back in an hour what you had owed her all your life. She gave you your freedom; you gave her hers."

So peace came back to Sarah Lynn for her last days in Danavale. She said to her father, "Dad, I'm to be married in Great-granny's parlor Monday morning at nine, and then we're flying east I wanted you to know. I'm telling Bill, too."

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE TAX

Total tax bills of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company for 1937 amounted to $5,066,000, an increase of 14 and one-half per cent, or $637,000, over the previous year, it was revealed at Lansing Thursday, (June 30) by Frank L. Hall, the company's tax attorney, when he handed a check for $1,413,954.90 to State Auditor General George T. Gundry. The check represented one-half of the $2,827,909.80 the Michigan Bell will pay into the state primary school fund, the other half to be paid before November 1st.

The Michigan Bell Company's 1937 tax bill is divided as follows: To the State of Michigan, property tax, $2,828,000; other taxes to the state, $255,000; to the Federal Government, $1,048,000; to others, principally municipalities, on property that is not at present used in operation of the telephone business, $35,000.

The company's state property taxes constitute the largest payment by any public utility into the primary school fund, from which it will be returned to the 83 counties of the state in proportion to their school population, thus going directly into local school channels.

This tax bill amounted to $8.02 per telephone. The net operating revenue from one-third of the company's 631,614 telephones was required to meet the bill. The taxes amounted to $566.00 per employee were equal to 40 per cent of the operating payroll; and accounted for more than 16 per cent of the company's total expenses.

Under the Michigan law, telephone companies, and telegraph railway, express and car-loading companies pay taxes to the state, in lieu of local taxes, on property and plant used and useful in conducting their businesses, such taxes being placed in the primary school fund.

TOURISTS WELCOME TO MICHIGAN

Apparently the law makers when drafting the present Michigan Motor Vehicle Law were cognizant of the fact that the tourist trade in the state was Michigan's second largest industry, when they granted exemption to out-of-state car owners to travel in Michigan with the plates of their own state. People coming to Michigan for vacations are not required to buy Michigan license plates to drive in the state; they may use their own plates for as long a period as ninety days before being required to purchase Michigan plates. However, this exemption does not apply to people from out of state who come to Michigan for the purpose of earning a living or to establish a permanent residence. These people must provide themselves with a Michigan license plates within a reasonable time.

Michigan house trailers are required to have license plates, but those house trailers coming from states which do not require licenses are exempted in Michigan, if the trailer is attached to a car bearing the license plates of states that do not require trailer registrations.

Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, warns out-of-state drivers to abide by Michigan Motor Vehicle Laws so that they may enjoy the privileges granted them by the state, and not be unnecessarily delayed on their vacations.
