

Boy Drowns at Patterson Lake Sunday Afternoon

Stanley Madurski, 20, of Detroit Loses His Life When He Dives Into 20 Feet of Water After Eating Hearty Dinner.

Another drowning took place in this section Sunday when a Detroit boy, Stanley Madurski, 20, of 8238 Winkelman Ave. Detroit, lost his life. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Madurski who live in Applegate but with his sister, Sophia, has been working in Detroit. Sunday he came out to Patterson Lake with some neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Skutnik, who live at 8246 Winkelman Ave. They were at a cottage on the north shore of the lake known as Doyle's subdivision as it was formerly part of the Wm. Doyle farm.

After eating a hearty dinner Madurski went swimming and dove off in about 20 feet of water. He was evidently seized with cramps as he was unable to swim. Skutnik says Madurski told him he was a good swimmer but that he had never seen him swim. The body was in the water probably about 20 minutes before it was recovered by a life guard from the U. of M. Fresh Air Camp for many years past most of the Doyle subdivision. It was thought there was still life in the body and Dr. Ray Duffy and Rev. James Carolan of Pinckney were called. The doctor, however, pronounced the boy dead. A pulmotor was brought out from the U. of M. Hospital in Ann Arbor by the state police but proved to be without avail. Under-sheriff Bassett and Coroner Henry Wines of Howell came over. The coroner pronounced the death due to drowning and no inquest necessary and released the body to P. H. Swarthout, local undertaker. Monday it was taken to Detroit.

Of all the drownings in this section for many years past out of the victims have been city people and going in the water immediately after eating has also contributed to swell the list of victims. As a rule very few local people are drowning victims. Ignorance of swimming safe is the biggest cause of drownings.

Kelly Devereaux Wedding Held

Former Pinckney Boy Married in Marriage to Miss Madeline Kelly at Visitation Church in Detroit Saturday, July 30.

A long expected event took place July 30th last when Leonard G. Devereaux was united in marriage to Miss Madeline Kelly at Visitation church, Detroit. The couple were attended by James F. Fournier of Ann Arbor, a cousin of the groom as the best man and Mrs. W. Miller, a sister of the bride as bridesmaid. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal couple, immediate friends and relatives at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly. The newly weds left on a boat trip to Buffalo and points east and on their return to Detroit will be at home to hear many friends at 221 Connecticut Ave., Detroit.

The groom was born in Putnam and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Devereaux. He graduated from Pinckney high school in 1932 and played four years on the football team winning four letters. During this time he worked in the office of the Pinckney Dispatch and operated the linotype. Following his graduation he took a business course at the Cleary College, Ypsilanti. Since then he has been employed in the office of the Chrysler Motor Corp. in Detroit. He is from Kentucky and is said to have served time there for knifing a man.

OWOSSO DISEASE SPREAD

A couple of weeks ago a strange disease broke out in Shiawassee county in the vicinity of Owosso and Perry. Seven victims died from it and 80 in all became ill with it. It was finally classified by doctors as Shiga dysentery, an oriental disease, not unlike the old time scourge Cholera. It first appeared among a family of Mexican sugar beet workers and is thought to have been brought here by them. The bodies of some of the victims were examined and the large intestine was found to have been eaten away. Three children were admitted to the Receiving Hospital with the disease Sunday and one of them died. Three new cases were also reported at the Memorial Hospital, Owosso. It was first stated that the disease was caused by using water obtained from a well formed by damming up a creek but this is not certain now.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

Remember Pedestrians

Nearly half of the 36,800 people killed by automobile accidents in the United States last year were pedestrians, according to figures released by The Travelers Insurance Company.

In most cases, the pedestrians asked for it.

It is seldom that automobiles come up on the sidewalk and chase pedestrians. Sometimes they do, but not often.

As a rule, a pedestrian wants it and walks out where he can get it.

He'll pit his frail, watery flesh and fragile bones against a ton or two of thundering steel and glass and flaming fire.

He'll put his life in the hands of drivers of cars coming at him at 25 to 75 miles an hour—drivers, many of whom, if he knew them personally, he wouldn't trust with ten cents worth of dog meat.

He'll walk along a country road with his back to traffic (instead of facing it as he should) and leave it to the assorted morons, nit-wits, drunks and a certain percentage of careful, intelligent drivers to see that they don't bump him into kingdom come.

He won't be a sissy, so instead of waiting for traffic lights in city streets he'll dart out into a mass of swift traffic and jump around among speeding cars like a fox in the middle of a pack of hounds.

He'll cross in the middle of the block. (4,640 killed this way last year.) He'll step out from behind parked cars without peeking (1,320). He'll cross busy intersections carelessly.

Of course, some pedestrians are children whose parents haven't taught them the danger of playing in streets, but most pedestrians who get killed or maimed by motor cars ask for it and—GET IT!

I'd say that it ought to be easy to eliminate 10,000 pedestrian deaths a year—if the pedestrians were smart.

Auto Accident Here Monday

Chinese University of Michigan Student is Hurt in Accident on the Pinckney-Dexter Road

Kung Yuchen, 28, of 311 Thompson Ave., Ann Arbor, was badly injured Monday morning when his car failed to make the turn on the Pinckney-Dexter road at Mallion-Clark Corners and hit a tree. Yuchen was going to Ann Arbor. Passing motorists called Pinckney doctors and he was removed to the Pinckney Sanitarium by P. H. Swarthout's ambulance. There we understand his injuries are serious. The car was very badly wrecked.

The injured man is the son of a well-to-do merchant in China and is attending the University of Michigan. He has been working at the U. of M. Hospital in Ann Arbor. He is a friend of T. U. Tyu, who has been a councillor at the U. of M. Fresh Air Camp for several months. Tyu had spent Sunday in Ann Arbor and Yuchen had brought him back to the camp and was on his way back to Ann Arbor.

MEABON — DIESBOROUGH REUNION HELD SUNDAY

The 18th annual Meabon-Diesborough reunion was held at the home of Gene Meabon at Wright's Corners last Sunday. 101 people were present. A basket dinner was served at noon and the day was spent in games and visiting. The reunion next year will be held at the home of Frank Watters in Iosco.

START WORK ON M-36

The state highway dept. under the supervision of Ray Taylor, the county supt., started work repairing M-36 Monday. Clay is being spread on the road and gravel will be put on top of this. The clay is being obtained from a pit on the Lewis Shehan farm.

The Pinckney soft ball team played at the U. of M. Fresh Air Camp at Patterson Lake last Wednesday night. Afterward they were entertained at a swimming party and saw two reels of motion pictures. One was by the Miller Ice Cream Co., of Eaton Rapids and showed the manufacture of ice cream, frost bits and popcyles in their factory. The other was of football pictures of the U. of M. Mich State game last year. About 200 underprivileged boys are at this camp which is financed entirely by private subscriptions and donations.

Philathea Notes

Last Sunday was Missionary day and the usual offering was taken in the church school, following an appropriate sermon by the pastor. The special Missionary envelopes are for your use any Sunday you wish to give to this cause. The smaller envelopes are for payment on the regular church budget. The interesting subject of Ruth, taken up by our Class last Sunday, will be followed next Lord's Day by 'The Relation of Temperance to Character'. The two passages for the lesson are Proverbs 4:10 to 23 and 1 Thessalonians 5:6-8. The Golden Text is 'Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.'

The Philathea Reporter was cheered the past week by a beautiful card from the class.

NOTICE

The Iosco Kings Daughters will hold an ice cream social at the West Marion church on Friday eve., Aug. 12th.

The pension block did not score as sweeping a victory in the last session of congress as they expected. What they accomplished was to get a flat $22 a month rate for widows of veterans who had suffered from a 1 per cent service ability. They also amended the qualifications so that if an ex-soldier has a service connected disability and died from it his widow would receive $30 a month.

Pinckney May Get Band at Very Small Cost

WPA Appropriation is Available to Form Band. Only Expense To Be Mileage of Instructor. All Other Schools of County Have Bands

School Commissioner E. Alma Sharp and Mr. McCoy, musical director of the Hartland area school were in town Friday for the purpose of interesting Pinckney people in getting a CWA sponsored band. It is possible to submit a CWA project for a band at the present time. The only expense would be the instructor's mileage from Hartland. As it is expected that a band will be started at Gregory, the mileage cost will be borne partly by the latter school.

Several orchestras and bands have been started here in the past but none of them have endured long for various reasons. One reason is that there was no place for them to practice. That no longer exists as the school auditorium is available. The Isler Sisters organized an orchestra here which functioned well for a number of years. Later Joe Guinan of Detroit started a band here. There is plenty of talent available and if this project was sponsored by the school it should succeed.

GREGORY GETS PWA SCHOOL GRANT

Gregory was notified last Thursday that they had been awarded $6,954 in federal funds for the purpose of constructing a school. The total cost of the school will be about $15,000. The school will be of brick, consist of three rooms and be one-story high. It is hoped that it can be started in about three weeks. The Gregory school, a wooden structure, burned down last January and school has since been held in an empty store and other places.

Undulla town ship is one time voted to consolidate its schools. Efforts to bond for a new school failed however, as the different parts of the township could not agree on where the school should be located. Finally they voted to disconsolidate and now operate a number of schools. The one at Gregory is a ten grade one.

LANDSCAPE

O. I. Gregg Landscape Extension (specialist from the College) has conducted a landscape school in Livingston county for the past three years. This year because of the great increase in requests for this type of work, it is going to be necessary for all co-operators to have their plan in the county office by Sept. 5th. By plan we mean a rough drawing of the lawn area the way that it appears at the present time. This must be done on graph paper furnished by our office. Accompanying this rough sketch must be pictures showing the various buildings and their relative placings.

Because of the large expected enrollment only 12 plans can be made for any one county. The co-operators are asked to do the following things: To carry out the landscape plan as developed in three years or less. Be willing to spend at least $25.00 for shrubs during this period and be in attendance during the entire course. Any interested person can obtain full particulars relative to this landscape school from our office.

TITLES

People spend money for a lawyer to examine the title and abstract of a vacant lot, which sometimes costs less than an automobile. But when it comes to purchasing an automobile most buyers are very negligent and sign papers without finding out what they are signing. They sign contracts for hundreds of dollars and then sign to have their titles sent to someone other than themselves.

Motor car owners are cautioned for their own good to read what they are signing and not 'sign here' just because someone tells them to. Many car owners would have less trouble and more money in their pockets if they would have done this. The Michigan Automobile Title is a valuable document protect it as you would any other valuable paper.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers had as Sunday guests, Mrs. Florence A. Hunt of Whittier, California, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Panek and family of Detroit.

CURRENT COMMENT

By Ye Editor

The primary campaign is beginning to warm up. Harry Toy has quit his passive attitude and last week launched several broadsides at McKay. He classed Frank Fitzgerald as the McKay candidate and predicted sure defeat for the Republican ticket in Michigan in November, if Fitzgerald is the nominee. Only a party purge which will eliminate the party influence of McKay will give the G. O. P. victory this fall. As yet Fitzgerald has made no reply to this attack but he has made few speeches as yet. According to the press an effort is being made by independent Republicans to elect a delegation to the state convention from Kent county not sponsored by McKay. However, they are amateurs while no one knows better how to line up delegates than McKay. Toy's organization is spotty, some counties having not been organized at all. Fitzgerald has a perfect organization and for this reason he is expected to top Toy in the primary.

The stooge writers in the conservative controlled press are hailing Senator Bennett Clark as the leading Democrat candidate in 1940 for president. In this case the wish is evidently father to the thought as he senator has no more chance of ending the nomination than his late father, Chas. Clark, referred to by Mr. Dooley as "Chump Clark". In the 1912 convention Clark failed to get the needed two-thirds majority to win the presidential nomination. Woodrow Wilson and Oscar Underwood of Tennessee were the other two contenders. In a long drawn out convention Wilson won when Underwood released his delegates to Wilson. Wm. Jennings Bryan was materially responsible for his as he branded Clark as a favorite of Wall Street. Senator Clark is noted only for his opposition to Mr. Roosevelt. As far as we know he has not sponsored any important or new measure during his term of office. W. K. Kelsey in the Detroit News, says Clark's interests do not extend beyond the boundaries of Missouri and that he was the leader in the opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway which should not increase his popularity in Michigan, Minnesota Wisconsin.

Among the amendments to be voted on this fall is one increasing the terms of county officers from 2 to four years. Not much has been said either for or against it. The Grandville star however, comes out against it. It says that if an official fails to measure up to the standard, to years in office is too much to say nothing of a four year term. If he is worthy he is entitled to another term and by this reasoning every able candidate would be assured of eight years in office. This is altogether too long and for this reason the amendment should be killed.

A number of years ago there were occasional race riots in Detroit caused by negroes attempting to move into districts which were restricted against them. One occurred on Oregon and Grand River Avenues and another in the Indian village. Several people were killed in one of them by negroes. They were arrested but secured the celebrated Clarence Darrow as attorney and were acquitted on grounds of self defense. For years there have been negroes on the police dept. and in the street cars in Detroit. Recently two negroes were appointed to the fire dept. and ordered to report to the station at Livernoise and Walton A mob gathered there and prevented the negroes from entering on their duties. Property owners declared stationing negroes there violated the subdivision restriction. These restrictions have no standing in court. This has been proved many times. The constitution makes the negro a citizen with all the privileges pertaining to it. and there is no legal way to prevent him from working there.

MIXTURE OF RELIEF CASH
AND POLITICS DANGEROUS

Candidates' Methods of Influencing Voters Scored by Washington Observer; Suggests Return to Election of Senators by Legislatures

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — I had finished reading my evening paper a few nights ago when I found myself quite down in the dumps. The news of the day was disturbing. It was vicious news in its implications. There was so much of it that was disturbing that I could not help wondering where we, as a people, are headed.

On page one, there was an account of the bitter factional fight within the Democratic ranks in Tennessee. Sen. George Berry was seeking re-election—rather, renomination—and Senator McKellar, his colleague, was fighting tooth and nail to prevent it. Party control in the state was the objective, and

And then, rather in disgust with the whole thing, I turned to a new book. The volume is titled "Notable Virginia Bar Addresses."

Among the 27 speeches listed there, I decided to read that by the late Thomas R. Marshall. His address, like all of the others, was intended to preach good government and the obligations of the lawyer as well as the layman. In reading that speech, I came across this passage:

"I have only one apology that I know of to make for my political life. I apologize to the American people for having been in favor of the election of United States senators by the people. My reason for it was different from the reason of many men. I had gotten tired of voting for some old rum-nosed Democrat for the legislature in Indiana because a United States senator depended on him for election; and I thought that I could raise the grade of legislators in Indiana by letting the people elect the United States senators. Now, it was an altruistic movement to make that change in the organic law of the United States; but, ladies and gentlemen, when it has resulted in the spending of half a million dollars to elect a senator, I want to know if the old fashioned government would not have been better."

Answer to Today's Problem
Given in 1920

And right there, I believe, is the guts of the present day problem. Mr. Marshall had held many elective offices and the speech from which I quoted the above passage was made while he was vice president of the United States. He was an observer and a student of politics. He saw in 1920 where we, as a people, were going and I have no doubt that he could have predicted exactly the set of circumstances we are meeting now.

When Senator Norris of Nebraska, once a Republican, then a Democrat, and now labeled as something else, drove the constitutional amendment through congress and cleared the way for direct election of United States senators, he accomplished two things. (1) He made it possible for the purest type of demagogue to win elections by his ability to "promise" more than the opposition, rewards, political patronage, pork barrel returns to the state and (2) he assured that vast sums of money can—indeed, must be—used to influence elections. And, in amplification of the second item, he made it possible for any administration, any dominant party, in control of the federal government to build up national and state machines jointly by using federal money.

Too Many Senators Out for
Greatest Amount of Swag

I grant that corporations, "vested interests," formerly had too much to say about the election of United States senators by state legislatures. But of the two, I have come to the conclusion that we had a better national administration and particularly a better senate under that condition than under the system where every voter casts a ballot directly for a United States senatorial nominee. That is why 75 per cent of the present senate members are nothing more or less than salesmen who are trying to collect for their states the greatest amount of swag which they can put over with their brother senators. That is why, too, day after day, we have watched cliques formed and trading done over legislation in the senate. The senators either are trying to make good on demagogic promises or they are building a storehouse to be used in the next campaign.

Senator Norris may have thought he was performing a great service to the American people and he may have felt that he was building a monument for his name, but I am firmly convinced he did quite the contrary. For, be it known, were it not for Mr. Norris' monumental amendment to the Constitution of the United States there could hardly be such an outrage committed as that by Mr. Hopkins. It must be remembered that Mr. Hopkins never was elected; he is an appointee of the President of the United States and is responsible to him alone. So when Mr. Hopkins flirts with a state electorate, there can be no other interpretation placed upon his action than that he is using the influence available as a result of his dictatorship over relief distribution.

It all depends, of course, upon how one views the functions and purposes of the United States senate. If one wants the senate to be just a glorified house of representatives, able to maintain itself solely on what pay it is able to lay in the laps of voters—then, we ought to keep the present system. If, however, one believes as I do that the senate is comprised, or should be, of senators of the United States instead of senators of a state variety unconcerned with the Union of states, then there could well be repeal of the amendment.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Analyzes

The Cereal Grains

Well Known Food Authority Describes Their Place in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

TO ME, there is no more inspiring sight in the world than a field of nodding golden grain. It not only pleases the eye with its grace and profound beauty, but it attests to Nature's bounty. For down through the ages, grains have sustained and comforted man.

In every quarter of the globe, foods made from grain constitute the largest single item in the food supply. This is as it should be, for no other foodstuff affords such a rich store of fuel value at such little cost. It has been estimated that during one day's labor, an American farmer, growing wheat by up-to-date American methods, can produce enough protein and calories to sustain a man for a year.

A Source of Power and Pep

Every nation depends upon some form of cereal to furnish motive power for the body machinery — to provide necessary energy to keep body and brain functioning efficiently. In the Western world, wheat is supreme. But in Oriental countries, rice takes the lead and it is the chief article of food for half of the world's people. Rye, oats, barley, maize and buckwheat are likewise important crops.

Energy Values Compared

All uncooked cereal foods show great similarity in their chemical composition and therefore have very nearly the same energy value—that is about 1,650 calories per pound. The weight of a 100-calorie portion is about an ounce. But there is a wide variation in bulk, depending upon the degree to which the cereal has been refined. For example, three tablespoons of patent wheat flour weigh one ounce; one and one-fourth cups of a puffed wheat cereal likewise weigh one ounce. After cooking, there is a big variation in weight, as well as measure, owing to the varying amounts of water absorbed. Thus a cup of cooked oatmeal mush supplies the same number of calories as three tablespoons of a pebbly dry cereal with a nut-like taste.

From 8 to 12 per cent of the calories in cereal foods are obtained from protein and two noted investigators have estimated that grain products contribute 38 per cent of the total calories and 37 per cent of the protein in the typical American dietary.

Laboratory experiments indicate that the proteins of wheat, oats, maize, rye and barley are about equally efficient in promoting and supporting growth. None of them compares with an equivalent weight of the complete proteins of milk, eggs or meat, but when combined with small amounts of milk, the cereal proteins become highly efficient.

Iron and Copper

The mineral elements of grains are concentrated largely in the outer layers and in the germ. For this reason, there is considerable difference in the yield of minerals from whole grain and highly refined cereal foods.

The mineral content of bran is from 10 to 20 times greater than that of patent flour, and whole wheat contains from three to five times as much iron, calcium and phosphorus. Bran, oatmeal and whole grain cereals are a good source of copper as well as iron.

Rich in Vitamin B

The different cereal grains are quite similar in their vitamin values, but as the vitamins are very unevenly distributed throughout the kernel, there is a wide variation in vitamin content between weight of entire wheat or patent flours is practically the same. Thus when the two types of flours are considered as sources of protein and energy alone, they are regarded by nutritionists as substantially equivalent and interchangeable.

Many Forms of Cereal Foods

From infancy to old age, the cereal foods should, and usually do constitute the mainstay of the diet. Fortunately, there is such a wide variety from which to choose that there is little likelihood of monotony. Furthermore, because of their bland flavor, one does not readily tire of cereal foods.

In addition to the wide variety of breads, rolls, muffins, biscuits and griddle cakes that can be made from refined and whole grain flours, there are an astonishing number of cooked and uncooked cereals from which to choose. When served with milk, bread or cereals make an ideal and economical food combination.

Macaroni for a Main Dish

Besides serving as the main feature at breakfast and for the child's supper, cereal foods are useful as the chief attraction at dinner or supper when served in the form of macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles. They are a fine source of energy and also furnish about 12 per cent protein. When combined with cheese, which adds protein, minerals and vitamins, they constitute a balanced main dish.

Cereal products of all kinds deserve a ranking place among FOODS THAT KEEP US FIT.

REDUCING DIETS

INCLUDE BREAD

Speaker Tells Women A Single Slice Contains Only 65 Calories

In her talks before women's groups throughout the state, Miss R. Weir of the Home Service department of Michigan Baking Inc., advises that bread should not be omitted from the balanced reducing diet. She quotes Donna Grace, beauty editor of the New York Journal-American, who stresses that bread is included in nearly all such diets.

"The average home woman," says Miss Grace, "eats more bread than other foods, and it is natural for her to do this too. Every home will have more bread than any other food. They class it as the staff of life. It needs no preparation and can be used not only for every meal, but all the snacks and children's lunches."

Miss Weir also refers to the recently issued booklet, "The Physician and Our Daily Bread," repeating the statement that carbohydrates are necessary to burn up excess fat in a reducing diet, and calls attention to the place of bread in the diet as a source of excellent food energy and also of protein. Pointing out that one slice of bread represents only about 65 calories, Miss Weir approves the statement that the right way to reduce is to lower the daily intake of calories, without omitting good bread from the diet.

PINCKNEY DEFEATS THE U. OF M. FRESH AIR CAMP

Pinckney won a fast game from the U. of M. Fresh Air camp at the Peterson Lake last Wednesday night by a score of 7 to 4. The score was tied 4 to 4 at the end of the 7th and an extra inning had to be played. In this inning Ed Meyer and Paul Singer were both easy outs, Swarthout was safe when he hit to short and the first baseman dropped the throw. A. Singer got a hit. Howie Read was next up. He got two strikes called on him when he hit a home run, cleaning the bases. In the last half Boik singled but was out trying to get two bases on it and Singer fanned both Stanley and Paul. Swarthout pitched four innings for Pinckney and had 4 runs scored on him. Singer pitched the last four and allowed no runs. A double play Darrow to Lavey in the 6th pulled him out of his most serious difficulty.

Some drivers insist on doing foolish stunts day in and day out although they know better. Some of these stunts are staged during the worst kind of weather.

Last night during a severe rain storm when driving conditions were bad, rain was falling in torrents, and visibility was poor, driver after driver passed me on curves and hills.

Hurry to get home, worry over open windows and curtains getting wet, and fear that the new carpet would get soaked by the rain—these and many other silly reasons are frequently given for the haste and violation of all traffic rules which endangers the drivers lives as well as the lives of others.

Such drivers are just plain fools. They simply will not, or do not want to learn; therefore, the law should take action until they learn how to drive.

So rapid has been the development of electric ranges in the last few years, so great the improvement in speed and efficiency, that many people do not realize how little it now costs to cook electrically. As proof of this, jot down your own estimate of electric cooking costs in the chart above, and compare your guess with the correct figure in the table at the right. The result may surprise you! Today's modern electric ranges open a new world of cooking enjoyment to thousands of women who have felt that they were unable to afford it. The price of an electric range is about the same as that of an ordinary stove of comparable size and features.

See the new electric ranges on display at department stores, electrical dealers or at Detroit Edison offices.

$1.73 per month is the average cost of electric cooking in families of 4 persons, at the rate of 2 1/4 cents per kWh. This figure was obtained by actual meter test in homes using electric ranges, over a period of a year's time. For families of 5 persons, the cost averaged only $1.50 per month. Five well-known makes and 9 different models of electric ranges were used in this survey, by women cooking meals daily in ordinary kitchens.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued

Ed Dana and his sons came home to dinner and there was a merry meal. Once the door-bell rang and Gim Jung said mysteriously, "Missie Dana, you come!" and Mrs. Dana hurried to the reception-hall, her heart alighting in her breast, to find a high school youth in a soiled sweat-shirt asking for young Bill. He was embarrassed by the warmth of her greeting.

After their always formal coffee in the drawing-room the family separated, the older sons off on their own occasions, the youngest reluctantly to his books, the husband to a directors' meeting at the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, and the mother went upstairs with Duncan and Sarah Lynn.

Duncan read a solid biography aloud in his pleasantly modulated, cultured voice and Sarah Lynn leaned back in her chair, her hands loosely clasped in her lap, her eyes half closed. The pretty room was quiet and warmly and softly lit: the canaries' cages were covered with gay chintz and the Persian kittens were asleep in their basket in endearing attitudes. Framed photographs of plump babies looked down from the walls in dewy innocence, and Mrs. Dana began to have a sense of safety, of sanctuary so complete that she started in on her rhythmic breathing again.

Then the door opened without a preliminary knock and Miss Pennington walked in. The harsh color had drained out of her hard, round cheeks and her pale eyes appeared to protrude farther than ever. She stood still in the middle of the room.

"Sarah Lynn," she said abruptly, "Gunnar Thorwald is here."

Sarah Lynn gave a muffled cry, her clenched hands at her mouth. "Hush, Miss Pennington!" her employer said sharply. "I forbid you to—"

The governess went steadily on. "Sarah Lynn, he has come back for you."

Duncan was on his feet. "Miss Pennington, this makes no difference to Sarah Lynn now!"

"Listen to me, Sarah Lynn! He came back, thinking you were still asleep, that you would never walk again, and he came to take you away from me to stay with you for—"

"Less than nothing to me, darling," the governess said, "Remember, when your conduct is most hopeless."

"You turned from him, Miss Pennington said, 'You know that you desert him away.'"

"Sarah Lynn was out of her chair, her head shaking. 'Yes—because I despised weakness! Because I didn't want to spoil my life—because I wanted him to be happy!'"

Duncan stepped close and put a protecting arm about her. "That's all over, Sarah Lynn. Nothing matters now except ourselves, and we're going to be married in three days!"

"Oh Penny!" Sarah Lynn turned to her.

She nodded. "We had to tell him. We told him you were well again, and that you were to marry Mr. Duncan. If you could have seen his look—"

"Hush!" Mrs. Dana said violently, her beautiful face darkly crimson. The gentle walls, so lately a sanctuary, now looked down on a battlefield. "Leave the room! Do you hear me, Miss Pennington?" The first bitter and truculent tones the pretty place had ever heard. "Leave the room and leave my house!"

The governess turned a stricken look to her. "I hear, Mrs. Dana, and I understand." If in that instant she visioned the inconvenient cottage of her brother, the curate, the sharp-tongued sister-in-law, it failed to give her pause. "I will go at once. But first—I must tell you this. He is going away tonight; he is going away forever."

The blood came into Sarah Lynn's face and into her heart; she could feel the exquisite agony of coming alive again. She heard her own voice vaguely, as if from a distance, saying stupid and futile things to her mother and Duncan Van Doren about being sorry. Then she was running. She ran down the hall and down the stairs and out of the house, and someone ran beside her, breathing hard, holding her hand. She knew it must be the old governess but she did not turn her head to look. There were dim shapes in the dark garden, figures converging upon her, figures without faces, familiar voices in unfamiliar words, lightning, the greyhound leaping and bounding in beautiful joy.

"Come! The car's waiting!" someone said.

"I've packed a bag for you! Hurry!" said another.

There was the drumming of wings in the sky. Sarah Lynn flung her head back until it hung between her shoulder-blades to watch one star detach itself from its fellows and move steadily away.

"Oh, Gunnar, wait for me!" she gave a desolate cry.

"That isn't Gunnar, goose!" Sally Ann said raggedly. "But we'll take you to him! Come along!"

They were hurrying her down the driveway, one on each side of her, another pattering behind.

Miss Pennington's voice said, "Bless you!" and then there were no footsteps following. Sarah Lynn heard her saying, "Oh, Mr. Duncan, I'm so truly sorry, but it's no use, sir! I tell you, it's no use!"

Mary Dana Webster flung words back over her shoulder, kind words but final, breathless with her haste, and there was Duncan's voice, bitter and proud and hurt, and then silence.

"Here we are! Uncle Lynn's car—he's here! Get in, Sarah Lynn!"

Her Uncle Lynn's hand, his arm about her; excited voices, kind, concerned, triumphant; a cloak wrapped round her, a hat pulled down on her head, things of no importance whatever.

"Gunnar!" she said as she had said that day in the meadow after coming down in the parachute. "I want Gunnar."

"At the field, lambie. He's with Conrad Jordan now, and he's flying her luck. Then there were the good-bys, too hurried to be heard. The women kissed her and Mary Dana Webster wept happily. Sally Ann said, "I'm sailing soon, too, Sarah Lynn. Write me—Paris!"

Sarah Lynn tried to say something to her Uncle Lynn, who had made this hour; who, sitting still in his chair for more than half his lifetime, was the one to give her wings. "Uncle Lynn, oh, Uncle Lynn!"

Vance Le Roy took her elbow in a hard grip and walked her to Jordan's plane, lifting his voice over the din to say this was a great break, to wish her Happy Landings.

On the ground it was all noise and confusion and haste, but above it would be cold and clear and calm, and it was there she was going with Gunnar.

They helped her into the cabin and handed in her bag and arranged the robes so she could pull them over her.

"Hi! Make it snappy! Here they come!" a mechanic called.

Old Pete said, sniffling loudly, "Well, God love you, Ladybug!"

Sarah Lynn flattened herself and covered her head, and it was a comfort to hide, to be still, after the hubbub of the last hour. She was dizzy and faint and confused with been too much—the suddenness, the lightning transition from the lassitude of patience and submission and tolerance to this blaze of joy. Panic overwhelmed her. She was afraid to look. Gunnar would not be there; it would be Conrad Jordan or Vance Le Roy; she had lived so long with renunciation that happiness seemed an impossible phantom.

But at last she had courage enough to drop the corner of the robe she was holding, and she saw him. Very cautiously and lightly she lifted herself to a seat, her eyes still on him, assured and comforted, and fears fell away forever toward the dark earth far below. She thought of her mother with an uprush of remorseful tenderness, of poor, defeated Duncan, of old Penny, fighting like a lioness for her cub; she remembered her Great-grandmother's light—"I don't want to go down, Sairy Lynn! I want to keep on going up and up and up!"

Now she would stand and take the brief steps which separated her from her lover; she would put her hand on his shoulder and speak to him, just as she had done all those ages ago on the night of Ardine's prank hatched in the Stewed Prune, but this time he would not scorn her. He would make a place for her beside him and she would be always beside him, and their cold cheeks

"I want to keep on going up and up and up."

to Los Angeles tonight. He thinks Conrad's going with him, but he isn't. You are, Sarah Lynn!" Mary Dana Webster was crying. "You are!"

"Yes," she said contentedly. "When will I see him?"

"At the field. But we'll be there first. I told Conrad to give us a good margin of time," Lynn Dana told her.

Sarah Lynn said suddenly, "Penny! Didn't Penny come? I didn't say good-by to Penny!"

"Don't you worry about Penny!" her cousin said robustly. "I'll take care of Penny!"

"I'll bring her over to you, by and by, if you like," Sally Ann promised. "And I'll bring Lightning, too."

They were all promising things: they would see her mother, they would see her father, they would talk to Duncan, they would take care of old Penny; there was absolutely nothing for her to worry about.

But the numbness was going out of Sarah Lynn's head and heart, and she knew how silly she was requiring long devotion; behind her was shock and grief and wounded pride, and she was wrung with remorse, but before her was Gunnar, and she had no choice.

"Gunnar?" she said again. "When—"

"Almost there, Sarah Lynn!"

Then they were at the field, and Vance Le Roy was handing her out of the car, grinning, and the mechanics were crowding up, and Old Pete was gulping and blowing his nose.

"Well, God love you, Ladybug! You're a sight for sore eyes!"

"Where is Gunnar?"

"Not here yet, Miss, nor Mr. Jordan, but the ship's warmed up for 'em. Well, now, will you be stowing away again?"

Sarah Lynn laughed aloud. "Yes! I'll stow away, Pete! Help me! That was the perfect way. Then she would not have to see him first before them all; their first moment would be their own."

The drama of it caught their fancy. They were all laughing, skurrying about, bringing robes from the car, carrying the bag, shaking her hand, patting her shoulder, wishing the breathless excitement, the high emotional strain, after long months with blooming houseplants and trilling canaries and purring kittens; with coming to life again.

She could see nothing, but sounds and smells reached her, and she could imagine the progress of the plan—someone of the conspirators catching Conrad Jordan's eye and drawing him aside, Conrad Jordan making an excuse to Gunnar for not flying south with him, and Gunnar climbing into the ship alone. She could feel the faint jar when he took his seat and she cuddled closer under her stifling covers.

Then they were taxiing down the field—the familiar feel of it, bumping along the earth they were about rising and rising, turning, circling, climbing, banking, climbing high and higher.

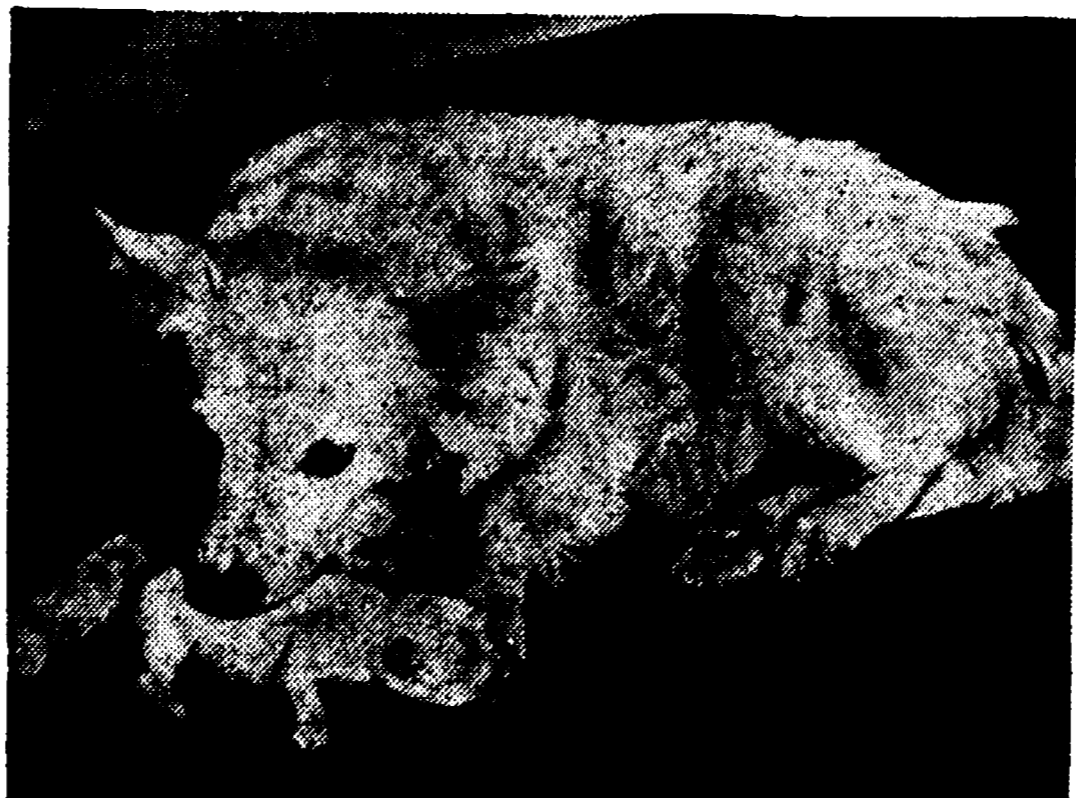

The moment had arrived now, to lift the prisoning robes and look at Gunnar, but she delayed. It had would touch, and he would turn his head and kiss her; the queer, dark Dana girl, the Ladybug, flying away in the night!

As she had delayed to look at him through terror that he might not be there, so now she dallied with the rapture of the impending moment, her heart hammering, until her gaze which had not left him for an instant began to evaluate the change she saw. It was Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, who held the stick, but it might well have been another, for the proud carriage of the head was missing, the stern set of the squared shoulders, the hard certainty, the harsh young arrogance were gone. His chin was on his breast, and he sat slumped in his seat, and in every lean line was a hurt so deep, so lonely, so intolerable that there were quick tears of tenderness in her eyes as she rose and went forward to comfort him.

Motherhood at Ripe Age of 16

Here is Lizzie, a sixteen-year-old Spitz dog, with her newborn male pup, both of whom are doing well. Dog breeders in Detroit, where Lizzie lives, had never heard of a dog so old having a pup. A humane society officer said that a sixteen-year-old dog is about the equivalent of an eighty-year-old human. Mike Vella, Lizzie's owner, named the pup F. D., because it was born when President Roosevelt was making a radio speech.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Simple embroidery for luncheon mats.

WE SAY luncheon mats yet, more and more, mats are being used three times a day. This change from the traditional table cloth saves time and laundry.

A set of sheerest organdie is used with dainty china. The mat shown here is the other extreme. It is made of soft blue denim and is embroidered in heavy white cotton. Napkins may be made to match, or plain white napkins may be used. Here are all the directions you will need for the embroidery.

Cut the mats the desired size, pulling a thread of the fabric to guide you in cutting the edge straight. Hem the edges by hand with 3/8-inch hems, using matching cotton sewing thread or raveled threads of the fabric if they are strong enough. Now, blanket stitch over the hems with the embroidery thread as shown here at A. Next, make tiny chain stitches between the blanket stitches as at B. This completes the embroidery for the long sides of the mats. The short ends are embroidered more elaborately. Make a V stitch at the top of every other blanket stitch as shown at C. Chain stitches are then made as at D.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' latest book gives complete directions for many novelties, gifts and things for yourself and the children. It also fully illustrates 90 embroidery stitches with interesting variations. You will use these again and again for reference. Ask for Book 2, enclosing 25 cents. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY AAA COMMITTEE OUTLINES 1939 WHEAT PROGRAM

Farmers in Livingston County will receive their 1939 wheat acreage allotments about September 1. Earl Grubb, Chairman of the Livingston County Agricultural Conservation Committee announced this week.

With a carry-over of 180,000,000 bushels of wheat from last year's crop and an estimated 1938 production of 967,000,000 bushels, this year supply will amount to 1,147,000,000 bushels surplus.

As the first step in correcting this situation, the 1938 farm act sets the national wheat acreage allotment for 1939 at 55,000,000 acres. The goal is to reduce the total supply of wheat next year by 100,000,000 bushels to protect the incomes of what farmers. The national allotment has been apportioned to the counties where wheat is grown for market. Each county's wheat acreage for the past ten years was averaged with its acreage for the past three years, with credit given for participation in the previous AAA programs. The acreage planted to wheat on each farm in the county during the past three years forms the basis for distributing the county wheat allotment to the farms. The farm allotments are being adjusted for individual farmer participation in previous AAA programs abnormal weather conditions and soil management practices.

Farm allotments in those areas where farmers have increased the plantings most in the past few years will for the largest reductions. On the average for the country, the reduction from the 1928-32 average is only 18 percent. This is only 3 percent greater than the reduction requested in the wheat program of 1934. By planting within their wheat acreage allotments Livingston County farmers can profit from these changes of wheat program.

1. They can receive a wheat payment of approximately 15 cents a bushel on the normal yield of their allotment.

2. They will be eligible for a price adjustment payment, probably between 9 and 12 cents a bushel, on the normal yield of the wheat allotments.

3. They will be helping to guard against a further collapse of the wheat prices.

4. They will be eligible for wheat loans on their 1939 wheat if loans are available.

They will be able to take out a crop insurance next year.

The Livingston County Agricultural Conservation Committee is particularly anxious that farmers in his county know that in order to be eligible for these direct payments loans and insurance in 1939, they must plant within their individual wheat allotments this fall, Earl A. Grubb said. Enough wheat to take care of all needs even in drought years is insured by AAA's Ever Normal Granary.

"Fall Outlook"

The last communication issued by Roger W. Babson states that we are definitely on the road to recovery again.

As to commodity prices, he sees an increase, though not a large one. He sees some disparity between prices of various types of produce but the average for all commodities will be higher.

As to stock prices he maintains an extremely optimistic view. We are in a bull market he says.

With the prospect of government spending and elections coming this fall, sales should pick up generally. Babson believes that we have hit the hard rock of this slump, and rising markets are the order of the day.

Boy Drowns at Patterson Lake Sunday Afternoon

Stanley Madurski, 20, of Detroit Loses His Life When He Dives Into 20 Feet of Water After Eating Hearty Dinner.

Another drowning took place in this section Sunday when a Detroit boy, Stanley Madurski, 20, of 8238 Winkelman Ave. Detroit, lost his life. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Madurski who live in Applegate but with his sister, Sophia, has been out to Patterson Lake with some neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Skutnik, who live at 8246 Winkelman Ave. They were at a cottage on the north shore of the lake known as Doyle's subdivision as it was formerly part of the Wm. Doyle farm.

After eating a hearty dinner Madurski went swimming and dove off in about 20 feet of water. He was evidently seized with cramps as he was unable to swim. Skutnik says Madurski told him he was a good swimmer but that he had never seen him swim. The body was in the water probably about 20 minutes before it was recovered by a life guard from the U. of M. Fresh Air Camp.

A long expected event took place July 30th last when Leonard G. Devereaux was united in marriage to Miss Madeline Kelly at Visitation church, Detroit. The couple were attended by James F. The newly weds left on a boat trip to Buffalo and points east and on their return to Detroit will be at home to their many friends at 221 Connecticut Ave., Detroit.

The groom was born in Putnam and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Devereaux. He graduated from Pinckney high school in 1932 and played four years on the football team winning four letters. During this time he worked in the office of the Pinckney Dispatch and operated the linotype. Following his graduation he took a business course at the Cleary College, Ypsilanti. Since then he has been employed in the office of the Chrysler Motor Corp. in Detroit. In behalf of his old teammates, Dink, Murray, Happy Ledwidge, Hookie Battle, Rus Read and others and also his friends here the Dispatch extends congratulations.

OWOSSO DISEASE SPREAD

A couple of weeks ago a strange disease broke out in Shiawassee county in the vicinity of Owosso and Perry. Seven victims died from it and 80 in all became ill with it. It was finally classified by doctors as Shiga dysentery, an oriental disease, not unlike the old time scourge Cholera. It first appeared among a family of Mexican sugar beet workers and is thought to have been brought here by them. The bodies of some of the victims were examined and the large intestine was found to have been eaten away. Three children were admitted to the Receiving Hospital with the disease Sunday and one of them died. Three new cases were also reported at the Memorial Hospital, Owosso. It was first stated that the disease was caused by using water obtained from a well formed by damming up a creek but this is not certain now.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

Remember Pedestrians

Nearly half of the 36,800 people killed by automobile accidents in the United States last year were pedestrians, according to figures released by The Travelers Insurance Company. In most cases, the pedestrians asked for it. It is seldom that automobiles come up on the sidewalk and chase pedestrians. Sometimes they do, but not often. As a rule, a pedestrian wants it and walks out where he can get it. He'll pit his frail, watery flesh and fragile bones against a ton or two of thundering steel and glass and flaming fire. He'll put his life in the hands of drivers of cars coming at him at 25 to 75 miles an hour—drivers, many of whom, if he knew them personally, he wouldn't trust with ten cents worth of dog meat. He'll walk along a country road with his back to traffic (instead of facing it as he should) and leave it to the assorted morons, nitwits, drunks and a certain percentage of careful, intelligent drivers to see that they don't bump him into kingdom come. He won't be a sissy, so instead of waiting for traffic lights in city streets he'll dart out into a mess of swift traffic and jump around among speeding cars like a fox in the middle of a pack of hounds. He'll cross in the middle of the block. (4,640 killed this way last year.) He'll step out from behind parked cars without peeking (1,320). He'll cross busy intersections catty-cornered. Of course, some pedestrians are children whose parents haven't taught them the danger of playing in streets, but most pedestrians who get killed or maimed by motor cars ask for it and—GET IT! I'd say that it ought to be easy to eliminate 10,000 pedestrian deaths a year—if the pedestrians were too.

Auto Accident Here Monday

Chinese University of Michigan Student is Hurt in Accident on the Pinckney-Dexter Road

Kung Yuchen, 28, of 311 Thompson Ave., Ann Arbor, was badly injured Monday morning when his car failed to make the turn on the Pinckney-Dexter road at Mallion-Clark Corners and hit a tree. Yuchen was going to Ann Arbor. Passing motorists called Pinckney doctors and he was removed to the Pinckney Sanitarium by P. H. Swarthout's ambulance. There we understand his injuries are serious. The car was very badly wrecked.

The injured man is the son of a well-to-do merchant in China and is attending the University of Michigan. He has been working at the U. of M. Hospital in Ann Arbor. He is a friend of T. U. Tyu, who has been a councillor at the U. of M. Fresh Air Camp for several months. Tyu had spent Sunday in Ann Arbor and Yuchen had brought him back to the camp and was on his way back to Ann Arbor.

MEABON — DIESBOROUGH REUNION HELD SUNDAY

The 18th annual Meabon-Diesborough reunion was held at the home of Gene Meabon at Wright's Corners last Sunday. 101 people were present. A basket dinner was served at noon and the day was spent in games and visiting. The reunion next year will be held at the home of Frank Watters in Iosco.

START WORK ON M-36

The state highway dept. under the supervision of Ray Taylor, the county supt., started work repairing M-36 Monday. Clay is being spread on the road and gravel will be put on top of this. The clay is being obtained from a pit on the Lewis Shehan farm.

The Pinckney soft ball team played at the U. of M. Fresh Air Camp at Patterson Lake last Wednesday night. Afterward they were entertained at a swimming party and saw two reels of motion pictures. One was by the Miller Ice Cream Co. of Eaton Rapids and showed the manufacture of ice cream, frost bite and popcicles in their factory. The other was of football pictures of the U. of Mich State game last year. About 200 underprivileged boys are at this camp which is financed entirely by private subscriptions and donations.

Philathea Notes

Last Sunday was Missionary day and the usual offering was taken in the church school, following an appropriate sermon by the pastor. The special Missionary envelopes are for your use any Sunday you wish to give to this cause. The smaller envelopes are for payment on the regular church budget. The interesting subject of Ruth, taken up by our Class last Sunday, will be followed next Lord's Day by 'The Relation of Temperance to Character'. The two passages for the lesson are Proverbs 4:10 to 23 and 1 Thessalonians 5:6-8. The Golden Text is 'Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.'

The Philathea Reporter was cheered the past week by a beautiful card from the class.

NOTICE

The Iosco Kings Daughters will hold an ice cream social at the West Marion church on Friday eve., Aug. 12th.

The pension block did not score as sweeping a victory in the last session of congress as they expected. What they accomplished was to get a flat $22 a month rate for widows of veterans who had suffered from a 1 per cent service disability. They also amended the qualification so that if an ex-soldier has a service connected disability and died from it his widow would receive $80 a month.

Pinckney May Get Band at Very Small Cost

WPA Appropriation is Available to Form Band. Only Expense To Be Milage of Instructor. All Other Schools of County Have Bands

School Commissioner E. Alma Sharp and Mr. McCoy, musical director of the Hartland area school were in town Friday for the purpose of interesting Pinckney people in getting a CWA sponsored band. It is possible to submit a CWA project for a band at the present time. The only expense would be the instructor's mileage from Hartland. As it is expected that a band will be started at Gregory, the mileage cost will be borne partly by the latter school.

Several orchestras and bands have been started here in the past but none of them have endured long for various reasons. One reason is that there was no place for them to practice. That no longer exists as the school auditorium is available. The Esler Sisters organized an orchestra here which functioned well for a number of years. Later Joe Guinan of Detroit started a band here. There is plenty of talent available and if this project was sponsored by the school it should succeed.

GREGORY GETS PWA SCHOOL GRANT

Gregory was notified last Thursday that they had been awarded $8,954 in federal funds for the purpose of constructing a school. The total cost of the school will be about $15,000. The school will be of brick, consist of three rooms and be one story high. It is hoped that it can be started in about three weeks. The Gregory school, a wooden structure burned down last January and school has since been held in an empty store and other places.

Unadilla township at one time voted to consolidate all its schools. Efforts to bond for a new school failed however, as the different parts of the township could not agree on where the school should be located. Finally they voted to disconsolidate and now operate a number of schools. The one at Gregory is a ten grade one.

LANDSCAPE

O. J. Gregg Landscape Extension specialists from the College has conducted a landscape school in Livingston county for the past three years. This year because of the great increase in requests for this type of work, it is going to be necessary for all contractors to have their plan in the county office by Sept. 5th. By plan we mean a rough drawing of the lawn area the way that it appears at the present time. This must be done on graph paper furnished by our office. Accompanying this rough sketch must be pictures showing the various buildings and their relative placings.

Because of the large expected enrollment only 12 plans can be made for any one county. The contractors are asked to do the following things: To carry out the landscape plan as developed in three years or less. Be willing to spend at least $25.00 for shrubs during this period and be in attendance during the entire course. Any interested person can obtain full particulars relative to this landscape school from our office.

TITLES

People spend money for a lawyer to examine the title and abstract of a vacant lot, which sometimes costs less than an automobile. But when it comes to purchasing an automobile not buyers are very negligent and sign papers without finding out what they are signing. They sign contracts for hundreds of dollars and then sign to have their titles sent to someone other than themselves.

Motor car owners are cautioned for their own good to read what they are signing and not 'sign here' just because someone tells them to. Many car owners would have less trouble and more money in their pockets if they would have done this. The Michigan Automobile Title is a valuable document protect it as you would any other valuable paper.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers had on Sunday guests, Mrs. Florence A. Hunt of Whittier, California, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Panck and family of Detroit.

CURRENT COMMENT

"By Ye Editor"

The primary campaign is beginning to warm up. Harry Toy has quit his passive attitude and last week launched several broadsides at McKay. He classed Frank Fitzgerald as the McKay candidate and predicted sure defeat for the Republican ticket in Michigan in November, if Fitzgerald is the nominee. Only a party purge which will eliminate the party influence of McKay will give the G. O. P. victory this fall. As yet Fitzgerald has made no reply to this attack but he has made few speeches as yet. According to the press an effort is being made by independent Republicans to elect a delegation to the state convention from Kent county not sponsored by McKay. However, they are amateurs while no one knows better how to line up delegates than McKay. Toy's organization is spotty, some counties having not been organized at all. Fitzgerald has a perfect organization and for this reason he is expected to top Toy in the primary.

The stooge writers in the conservative controlled press are hailing Senator Bennett Clark as the leading Democrat candidate in 1940 for president. In this case the wish is evidently father to the thought as the senator has no more chance of winning the nomination than his late father, Champ Clark, referred to by Mr. Dooley as "Chump Clark". In the 1912 convention Champ Clark failed to get the needed two-thirds majority to win the presidential nomination. Woodrow Wilson and Oscar Underwood of Tennessee were the other two contenders. In a long drawn out convention Wilson won then Underwood released his delegates to Wilson. Wm. Jennings Bryan was materially responsible for his as he branded Clark as a favorite of Wall Street. Senator Clark is noted only for his opposition to Mr. Roosevelt. As far as we know he has sponsored any important or new measure during his term of office. A. K. Kelsey in the Detroit News, says Clark's interests do not extend beyond the boundaries of Missouri and that he was the leader in the opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway which should not increase his popularity in Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin.

Among the amendments to be voted on this fall is one increasing the terms of county officers from 2 to four years. Not much has been said either for or against it. The Grandville star however, comes out against it. It says that if an official fails to measure up to the standard to years in office is too much to say nothing of a four year term. If he is worthy he is entitled to another term and by this reasoning every able candidate would be assured of eight years in office. This is altogether too long and for this reason the amendment should be killed.

A number of years ago there were occasional race riots in Detroit caused by negroes attempting to move into districts which were restricted against them. One occurred on Oregon and Grand River Avenue and another in the Indian village. Several people were killed in one of them by negroes. They were arrested but secured the celebrated Clarence Darrow as attorney and were acquitted on grounds of self defense. For years there have been negroes on the police dept. and in the street cars in Detroit. Recently two negroes were appointed to the fire dept. and ordered to report to the station at Livernoise and Walton. A mob gathered there and prevented the negroes from entering on their duties. Property owners declared stationing negroes there violated the subdivision restriction. These restrictions have no standing in court. This has been proved many times. The constitution makes the negro a citizen with all the privileges pertaining to it, and there is no legal way to prevent him from obtaining them.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is clear than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

MIXTURE OF RELIEF CASH
AND POLITICS DANGEROUS

Candidates' Methods of Influencing Voters Scored by Washington Observer; Suggests Return to Election of Senators by Legislatures

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNW Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — I had finished reading my evening paper a few nights ago when I found myself quite down in the dumps. The news of the day was disturbing. It was vicious news in its implications. There was so much of it that was disturbing that I could not help wondering where we, as a people, are headed.

On page one, there was an account of the bitter factional fight within the Democratic ranks in Tennessee. Sen. George Berry was seeking re-election—rather, renomination—and Senator McKellar, his colleague, was fighting tooth and nail to prevent it. Party control in the state was the objective, and

And then, rather in disgust with the whole thing, I turned to a new book. The volume is titled "Notable Virginia Bar Addresses."

Among the 27 speeches listed there, I decided to read that by the late Thomas R. Marshall. His address, like all of the others, was intended to preach good government and the obligations of the lawyer as well as the layman. In reading that speech, I came across this passage:

"I have only one apology that I know of to make for my political life. I apologize to the American people for having been in favor of the election of United States senators by the people. My reason for it was different from the reason of many men. I had gotten tired of voting for some old run-nosed Democrat for the legislature in Indiana because a United States senator depended on him for election; and I thought that I could raise the grade of legislators in Indiana by letting the people elect the United States senators. Now, it was an altruistic movement to make that change in the organic law of the United States; but, ladies and gentlemen, when it has resulted in the spending of half a million dollars to elect a senator, I want to know if the old fashioned government would not have been better."

Answer to Today's Problem
Given in 1920

And right there, I believe, is the guts of the present day problem. Mr. Marshall had held many elective offices and the speech from which I quoted the above passage was made while he was vice president of the United States. He was an observer and a student of politics. He saw in 1920 where we, as a people, were going and I have no doubt that he could have predicted exactly the set of circumstances we are meeting now.

When Senator Norris of Nebraska, once a Republican, then a Democrat, and now labeled as something else, drove the constitutional amendment through congress and cleared the way for direct election of United States senators, he accomplished two things. (1) He made it possible for the purest type of demagogue to win elections by his ability to "promise" more than the opposition, rewards, political patronage, pork barrel returns to the state and (2) he assured that vast sums of money can—indeed, must be—used to influence elections. And, in amplification of the second item, he made it possible for any administration, any dominant party, in control of the federal government to build up national and state machines jointly by using federal money.

Too Many Senators Out for
Greatest Amount of Swag

I grant that corporations, "vested interests," formerly had too much to say about the election of United States senators by state legislatures. But of the two, I have come to the conclusion that we had a better national administration and particularly a better senate under that condition than under the system where every voter casts a ballot directly for a United States senatorial nominee. That is why 75 per cent of the present senate members are nothing more or less than salesmen who are trying to collect for their states the greatest amount of swag which they can put over with their brother senators. That is why, too, day after day, we have watched cliques formed and trading done over legislation in the senate. The senators either are trying to make good on demagogic promises or they are building a storehouse to be used in the next campaign.

Senator Norris may have thought he was performing a great service to the American people and he may have felt that he was building a monument for his name, but I am firmly convinced he did quite the contrary. For, be it known, were it not for Mr. Norris' monumental amendment to the Constitution of the United States there could hardly be such an outrage committed as that by Mr. Hopkins. It must be remembered that Mr. Hopkins never was elected; he is an appointee of the President of the United States and is responsible to him alone. So when Mr. Hopkins flirts with a state electorate, there can be no other interpretation placed upon his action than that he is using the influence available as a result of his dictatorship over relief distribution.

It all depends, of course, upon how one views the functions and purposes of the United States senate. If one wants the senate to be just a glorified house of representatives, able to maintain itself solely on what pap it is able to lay in the laps of voters—then, we ought to keep the present system. If, however, one believes as I do that the senate is comprised, or should be, of senators of the United States instead of senators of a state variety unconcerned with the Union of states, then there could well be repeal of the amendment.

Politics Hits New Low With No Change in Sight
It was enough to make one sick at the stomach; here was politics in a new quagmire, and no signs to indicate that it is not a permanent condition. What, I thought, is going to be the type of men coming in to the United States senate with such background as these stories indicated?

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Analyzes
The Cereal Grains

Well Known Food Authority Describes Their Place in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

5 East 39th Street, New York City.

TO ME, there is no more inspiring sight in the world than a field of nodding golden grain. It not only pleases the eye with its grace and profound beauty, but it attests to Nature's bounty. For down through the ages, grains have sustained and comforted man.

In every quarter of the globe, foods made from grain constitute the largest single item in the food supply. This is as it should be, for no other foodstuff affords such a rich store of fuel value at such little cost. It has been estimated that during one day's labor, an American farmer, growing wheat by up-to-date American methods, can produce enough protein and calories to sustain a man for a year.

All seeds, including whole grains, are relatively poor in vitamin A. They are entirely lacking in vitamins C and D and contain only small amounts of vitamin G. Both the germ and bran, however, are excellent sources of vitamin B—which promotes appetite, aids digestion and helps to prevent a nervous disorder. The importance of the germ as a food has been more fully appreciated since it was discovered that it is at least five times as rich in vitamin B as the whole grain or bran. There are several cereals on the market containing added wheat germ and this precious substance may also be obtained in concentrated form.

A Source of Power and Pep

Every nation depends upon some form of cereal to furnish motive power for the body machinery—to provide necessary energy to keep body and brain functioning efficiently. In the Western world, wheat is supreme. But in Oriental countries, rice takes the lead and it is the chief article of food for half of the world's people. Rye, oats, barley, maize and buckwheat are likewise important crops.

Energy Values Compared
All uncooked cereal foods show great similarity in their chemical composition and therefore have very nearly the same energy value—that is about 1,850 calories per pound. The weight of a 100-calorie portion is about an ounce. But there is a wide variation in bulk, depending upon the degree to which the cereal has been refined. For example, three tablespoons of patent wheat flour weigh one ounce; one and one-fourth cups of a puffed wheat cereal likewise weigh one ounce. After cooking, there is a big variation in weight, as well as measure, owing to the varying amounts of water absorbed. Thus a cup of cooked oatmeal mush supplies the same number of calories as three tablespoons of a pebbly dry cereal with a nut-like taste.

From 8 to 12 per cent of the calories in cereal foods are obtained from protein and two noted investigators have estimated that grain products contribute 38 per cent of the total calories and 37 per cent of the protein in the typical American dietary. Laboratory experiments indicate that the proteins of wheat, oats, maize, rye and barley are about equally efficient in promoting and supporting growth. None of them compares with an equivalent weight of the complete proteins of milk, eggs or meat, but when combined with small amounts of milk, the cereal proteins become highly efficient.

Iron and Copper
The mineral elements of grains are concentrated largely in the outer layers and in the germ. For this reason, there is considerable difference in the yield of minerals from whole grain and highly refined cereal foods. The mineral content of bran is from 10 to 20 times greater than that of patent flour, and whole wheat contains from three to five times as much iron, calcium and phosphorus. Bran, oatmeal and whole grain cereals are a good source of copper as well as iron.

Rich in Vitamin B
The different cereal grains are quite similar in their vitamin values, but as the vitamins are very unevenly distributed throughout the kernel, there is a wide variation in vitamin content between the whole grain and refined cereal foods. All seeds, including whole grains, are relatively poor in vitamin A. They are entirely lacking in vitamins C and D and contain only small amounts of vitamin G. Both the germ and bran, however, are excellent sources of vitamin B—which promotes appetite, aids digestion and helps to prevent a nervous disorder. The importance of the germ as a food has been more fully appreciated since it was discovered that it is at least five times as rich in vitamin B as the whole grain or bran. There are several cereals on the market containing added wheat germ and this precious substance may also be obtained in concentrated form.

weight of entire wheat or patent flour is practically the same. Thus when the two types of flour are considered as sources of protein and energy alone, they are regarded by nutritionists as substantially equivalent and interchangeable.

Many Forms of Cereal Foods
From infancy to old age, the cereal foods should, and usually do constitute the mainstay of the diet. Fortunately, there is such a wide variety from which to choose that there is little likelihood of monotony. Furthermore, because of their bland flavor, one does not readily tire of cereal foods.

In addition to the wide variety of breads, rolls, muffins, biscuits and griddle cakes that can be made from refined and whole grain flours, there are an astonishing number of cooked and uncooked cereals from which to choose. When served with milk, bread or cereals make an ideal and economical food combination.

Macaroni for a Main Dish
Besides serving as the main feature at breakfast and for the child's supper, cereal foods are useful as the chief attraction at dinner or supper when served in the form of macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles. They are a fine source of energy and also furnish about 12 per cent protein. When combined with cheese, which adds protein, minerals and vitamins, they constitute a balanced main dish.

Cereal products of all kinds deserve a ranking place among FOODS THAT KEEP US FIT.

So rapid has been the development of electric ranges in the last few years, so great the improvement in speed and efficiency, that many people do not realize how little it now costs to cook electrically. As proof of this, jot down your own impression of electric cooking costs in the chart above, and compare your guess with the correct figure in the table at the right. The result may surprise you! Today's modern electric ranges open a new world of cooking enjoyment to thousands of women who have felt that they were unable to afford it. The price of an electric range is about the same as that of an ordinary stove of comparable size and features.

See the new electric ranges on display at department stores, electrical dealers or at Detroit Edison offices.

$1.73 per month is the average cost of electric cooking in families of 4 persons, at the rate of 2 1/4 cents (net) per kWhr. This figure was obtained by actual meter test in homes using electric ranges, over a period of a year's time. For families of 3 persons, the cost averaged only $1.55 per month. Five well-known makes and 9 different models of electric ranges were used in this survey, by women cooking meals daily in ordinary kitchens.

REDUCING DIETS INCLUDE BREAD

Speaker Tells Women A Single Slice Contains Only 65 Calories

In her talks before women's groups throughout the state, Miss R. Weir of the Home Service department of Michigan Baking Inc., advises that bread should not be omitted from the balanced reducing diet. She quotes Donna Grace, beauty editor of the New York Journal-American, who stresses that bread is included in nearly all such diets.

"The average home woman," says Miss Grace, "eats more bread than other foods, and it is natural for her to do this too. Every home will have more bread than any other food. They class it as the staff of life. It needs no preparation and can be used not only for every meal, but all the snacks and children's lunches."

Miss Weir also refers to the recently issued booklet, "The Physician and Our Daily Bread", repeating the statement that carbohydrates are necessary to burn up excess fat in a reducing diet, and calls attention to the place of bread in the diet as a source of excellent food energy and also of protein. Pointing out that one slice of bread represents only about 65 calories, Miss Weir approves the statement that the right way to reduce is to lower the daily intake of calories, without omitting good bread from the diet.

Every Tiger fan will want this picture to keep. It's a striking action likeness of Detroit's famous home-run slugger! Remember, it will come FREE with the Detroit Sunday Times, issue of August 13.

The score was tied 4 to 4 at the end of the 7th and an extra inning had to be played. Some drivers insist on doing foolish stunts day in and day out although they know better. Some of these stunts are staged during the worst kind of weather.

Last night during a severe rain storm when driving conditions were bad, rain was falling in torrents, and visibility was poor, driver after driver passed me on curves and hills.

Hurry to get home, worry over open windows and curtains getting wet, and fear that the new carpet would get soaked by the rain-these and many other silly reasons are frequently given for the haste and violation of all traffic rules which endangers the drivers lives as well as the lives of others.

Such drivers are just plain fools. They simply will not, or do not want to learn; therefore, the law should take action until they learn how to drive.

Ed Dana and his sons came home to dinner and it was a merry meal. Once the door-bell rang and Gim Jung said mysteriously, "Missie Dana, you come!" and Mrs. Dana hurried to the reception-hall, her heart slipping in her breast, to find a high-school youth in a soiled sweat-shirt asking for young Bill. She was embarrassed by the warmth of her greeting.

After their always formal coffee in the drawing-room the family separated, the older sons off on their own occasions, the youngest reluctantly to his books, the husband to a directors' meeting at the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, and the mother went upstairs with Duncan and Sarah Lynn.

Duncan read a solid biography aloud in his pleasantly modulated, cultured voice and Sarah Lynn leaned back in her chair, her hands loosely clasped in her lap, her eyes half closed. The pretty room was quiet and warmly and softly lit: the canaries' cages were covered with gay chintz and the Persian kittens were asleep in their basket in endearing attitudes. Framed photographs of plump babies looked down from the walls in dewy innocence, and Mrs. Dana began to have a sense of safety, of sanctuary so complete that she started in on her rhythmic breathing again.

Then the door opened without a preliminary knock and Miss Pennington walked in. The harsh color had drained out of her hard, round cheeks and her pale eyes appeared to protrude farther than ever. She stood still in the middle of the room.

"Sarah Lynn," she said abruptly, "Gunnar Thorwald is here."

Sarah Lynn gave a muffled cry, her clenched hands at her mouth.

"Hush, Miss Pennington!" her employer said sharply. "I forbid you to—"

The governess went steadily on. "Sarah Lynn, he has come back for you."

Duncan was on his feet. "Miss Pennington, this makes no difference to Sarah Lynn now!"

"Listen to me, Sarah Lynn! He came back, thinking you were still helpless, that you would never walk again. He came to take you away with him, or to stay with you forever."

"This means less than nothing to you, at this late date, darling," the mother said. "Remember, he went away at the moment when your condition seemed most hopeless."

"Because you turned from him in horror," Miss Pennington said quickly. "You know that you deliberately sent him away."

Sarah Lynn was out of her chair, wide-eyed, shaking. "Yes—because I knew how he despised weakness! Because I didn't want to spoil his life—because I wanted him to be free!"

Duncan stepped close and put a protecting arm about her. "That's all over, Sarah Lynn. Nothing matters now except ourselves, and we're going to be married in three days!"

"Oh Penny!" Sarah Lynn turned to her.

She nodded. "We had to tell him. We told him you were well again, and that you were to marry Mr. Duncan. If you could have seen his look—"

"Hush!" Mrs. Dana said violently, her beautiful face darkly crimson. The gentle walls, so lately a sanctuary, now looked down on a battlefield. "Leave the room! Do you hear me, Miss Pennington?" The first bitter and truculent tones the pretty place had ever heard. "Leave the room and leave my house!"

The governess turned a stricken look to her. "I hear, Mrs. Dana, and I understand." If in that instant she visioned the inconvenient cottage of her brother, the curate, the sharp-tongued sister-in-law, it failed to give her pause. "I will go at once. But first"—she addressed herself to Sarah Lynn—"I must tell you this. He is going away tonight; he is going away forever."

The blood came into Sarah Lynn's face and into her heart; she could feel the exquisite agony of coming alive again. She heard her own voice vaguely, as if from a distance, saying stupid and futile things to her mother and Duncan Van Doren about being sorry. Then she was running. She ran down the hall and down the stairs and out of the house, and someone ran beside her, breathing hard, holding her hand. She knew it must be the old governess but she did not turn her head to look. There were dim shapes in the dark garden, figures converging upon her, figures without faces, familiar voices in unfamiliar words, Lightning, the greyhound leaping and bounding in beautiful joy.

"Come! The car's waiting!" someone said.

"I've packed a bag for you! Hurry!" said another.

There was the drumming of wings in the sky. Sarah Lynn flung her head back until it hung between her shoulder-blades to watch one star detach itself from its fellows and move steadily away.

"Oh, Gunnar, wait for me!" she gave a desolate cry.

"That isn't Gunnar, goose!" Sally Ann said raggedly. "But we'll take you to him! Come along!"

They were hurrying her down the driveway, one on each side of her, another pattering behind.

Miss Pennington's voice said, "Bless you!" and then there were no footsteps following. Sarah Lynn heard her saying, "Oh, Mr. Duncan, I'm so truly sorry, but it's no use, sir! I tell you, it's no use!"

Mary Dana Webster flung words back over her shoulder, kind words but final, breathless with her haste, and there was Duncan's voice, bitter and proud and hurt, and then silence.

"Here we are! Uncle Lynn's car—he's here! Get in, Sarah Lynn!"

Her Uncle Lynn's hand, his arm about her; excited voices, kind, concerned, triumphant; a cloak wrapped round her, a hat pulled down on her head, things of no importance whatever.

"Gunnar?" she said as she had said that day in the meadow after coming down in the parachute. "I want Gunnar."

"At the field, lambie. He's with Conrad Jordan now, and he's flying

her luck. Then there were the good-bys, too hurried to be heard. The women kissed her and Mary Dana Webster wept happily. Sally Ann said, "I'm sailing soon, too, Sarah Lynn. Write me—Paris!"

Sarah Lynn tried to say something to her Uncle Lynn, who had made this hour; who, sitting still in his chair for more than half his lifetime, was the one to give her wings. "Uncle Lynn, oh, Uncle Lynn!"

Vance Le Roy took her elbow in a hard grip and walked her to Jordan's plane, lifting his voice over the din to say this was a great break, to wish her Happy Landings.

On the ground it was all noise and confusion and haste, but above it would be cold and clear and calm, and it was there she was going with Gunnar.

They helped her into the cabin and handed in her bag and arranged the robes so she could pull them over her.

"Hi! Make it snappy! Here they come!" a mechanic called.

Old Pete said, sniffing loudly, "Well, God love you, Ladybug!"

Sarah Lynn flattened herself and covered her head, and it was a comfort to hide, to be still, after the hubbub of the last hour. She was dizzy and faint and confused with been too much—the suddenness, the lightning transition from the lassitude of patience and submission and tolerance to this blaze of joy. Panic overwhelmed her. She was afraid to look. Gunnar would not be there; it would be Conrad Jordan or Vance Le Roy; she had lived so long with renunciation that happiness seemed an impossible phantom.

But at last she had courage enough to drop the corner of the robe she was holding, and she saw him. Very cautiously and lightly she lifted herself to a seat, her eyes still on him, assured and comforted, and fears fell away forever toward the dark earth far below. She thought of her mother with an uprush of remorseful tenderness, of poor, defeated Duncan, of old Penny, fighting like a lioness for her cub; she remembered her Great-grandmother's fight—"I don't want to go down, Sairy Lynn! I want to keep on going up and up and up!"

Now she would stand and take the brief steps which separated her from her lover; she would put her hand on his shoulder and speak to him, just as she had done all those ages ago on the night of Ardine's prank hatched in the Stewed Prune, but this time he would not scorn her. He would make a place for her beside him and she would be always beside him, and their cold cheeks

"I want to keep on going up and up and up."

to Los Angeles tonight. He thinks Conrad's going with him, but he isn't. You are, Sarah Lynn!" Mary Dana Webster was crying. "You are!"

"Yes," she said contentedly. "When will I see him?"

"At the field. But we'll be there first. I told Conrad to give us a good margin of time," Lynn Dana told her.

Sarah Lynn said suddenly, "Penny! Didn't Penny come? I didn't say good-by to Penny!"

"Don't you worry about Penny!" her cousin said robustly. "I'll take care of Penny!"

"I'll bring her over to you, by and by, if you like," Sally Ann promised. "And I'll bring Lightning, too."

They were all promising things: they would see her mother, they would talk to Duncan, they would take care of old Penny; there was absolutely nothing for her to worry about.

But the numbness was going out of Sarah Lynn's head and heart, and she knew how silly she was requiring long devotion; behind her was shock and grief and wounded pride, and she was wrung with remorse, but before her was Gunnar, and she had no choice.

"Gunnar?" she said again.

"When—"

"Almost there, Sarah Lynn!"

Then they were at the field, and Vance Le Roy was handing her out of the car, grinning, and the mechanics were crowding up, and Old Pete was gulping and blowing his nose.

"Well, God love you, Ladybug! You're a sight for sore eyes!"

"Where is Gunnar?"

"Not here yet, Miss, nor Mr. Jordan, but the ship's warmed up for 'em. Well, now, will you be stowing away again?"

Sarah Lynn laughed aloud. "Yes! I'll stow away, Pete! Help me!" That was the perfect way. Then she would not have to see him first before them all; their first moment would be their own.

The drama of it caught their fancy. They were all laughing, skurrying about, bringing robes from the car, carrying the bag, shaking her hand, patting her shoulder, wishing the breathless excitement, the high emotional strain, after long months with blooming houseplants and trilling canaries and purring kittens; with coming to life again.

She could see nothing, but sounds and smells reached her, and she could imagine the progress of the plan—someone of the conspirators catching Conrad Jordan's eye and drawing him aside, Conrad Jordan making an excuse to Gunnar for not flying south with him, and Gunnar climbing into the ship alone. She could feel the faint jar when he took his seat and she cuddled closer under her stifling covers.

Then they were taxiing down the field—the familiar feel of it, bumping along the earth they were about rising and rising, turning, circling, climbing, banking, climbing high and higher.

The moment had arrived now, to lift the prisoning robes and look at Gunnar, but she delayed. It had would touch, and he would turn his head and kiss her; the queer, dark Dana girl, the Ladybug, flying away in the night!

As she had delayed to look at him through terror that he might not be there, so now she dallied with the rapture of the impending moment, her heart hammering, until her gaze which had not left him for an instant began to evaluate the change she saw. It was Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, who held the stick, but it might well have been another, for the proud carriage of the head was missing, the stern set of the squared shoulders, the hard certainty, the harsh young arrogance were gone. His chin was on his breast, and he sat slumped in his seat, and in every lean line was a hurt so deep, so lonely, so intolerable that there were quick tears of tenderness in her eyes as she rose and went forward to comfort him.

Motherhood at Ripe Age of 16

Here is Lizzie, a sixteen-year-old Spitz dog, with her newborn male pup, both of whom are doing well. Dog breeders in Detroit, where Lizzie lives, had never heard of a dog so old having a pup. A humane society officer said that a sixteen-year-old dog is about the equivalent of an eighty-year-old human. Mike Vella, Lizzie's owner, named the pup F. D., because it was born when President Roosevelt was making a radio speech.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Simple embroidery for luncheon mats.

WE SAY luncheon mats yet, more and more, mats are being used three times a day. This change from the traditional table cloth saves time and laundry.

A set of sheerest organdie is used with dainty china. The mat shown here is the other extreme. It is made of soft blue denim and is embroidered in heavy white cotton. Napkins may be made to match, or plain white napkins may be used. Here are all the directions you will need for the embroidery.

Cut the mats the desired size, pulling a thread of the fabric to guide you in cutting the edge straight. Hem the edges by hand with 3/8-inch hems, using matching cotton sewing thread or raveled threads of the fabric if they are strong enough. Now, blanket stitch over the hems with the embroidery thread as shown here at A. Next, make tiny chain stitches between the blanket stitches as at B. This completes the embroidery for the long sides of the mats. The short ends are embroidered more elaborately. Make a V stitch at the top of every other blanket stitch as shown at C. Chain stitches are then made as at D.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' latest book gives complete directions for many novelties, gifts and things for yourself and the children. It also fully illustrates 90 embroidery stitches with interesting variations. You will use these again and again for reference. Ask for Book 2, enclosing 25 cents. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY AAA COMMITTEE OUTLINES 1939 WHEAT PROGRAM

Farmers in Livingston County will receive their 1939 wheat acreage allotments about September 1. Earl Grubb, Chairman of the Livingston County Agricultural Conservation Committee announced this week. With a carry-over of 180,000,000 bushels of wheat from last year's crop and an estimated 1938 production of 967,000,000 bushels, this year supply will amount to 1,147,000,000 bushels surplus.

As the first step in correcting this situation, the 1938 farm act sets the national wheat acreage allotment for 1939 at 55,000,000 acres. The goal is to reduce the total supply of wheat next year by 100,000,000 bushels to protect the incomes of what farmers. The national allotment has been apportioned to the counties where wheat is grown for market. Each county's wheat acreage for the past ten years was averaged with its acreage for the past three years, with credit given for participation in the previous AAA programs. The acreage planted to wheat on each farm in the county during the past three years forms the basis for distributing the county wheat allotment to the farms. The farm allotments are being adjusted for individual farmer participation in previous AAA programs abnormal weather conditions and soil management practices.

Farm allotments in those areas where farmers have increased the plantings most in the past few years will for the largest reductions. On the average for the country, the reduction from the 1928-32 average is only 18 percent. This is only 3 percent greater than the reduction requested in the wheat program of 1934. By planting within their wheat acreage allotments Livingston County farmers can profit from these phases of wheat program.

1. They can receive a wheat payment of approximately 15 cents a bushel on the normal yield of their allotment.

2. They will be eligible for a price adjustment payment, probably between 9 and 12 cents a bushel, on the normal yield of the wheat allotments.

3. They will be helping to guard against a further collapse of the wheat prices.

4. They will be eligible for wheat loans on their 1939 wheat if loans are available.

They will be able to take out crop insurance next year.

The Livingston County Agricultural Conservation Committee is particularly anxious that farmers in its county know that in order to be eligible for these direct payments loans and insurance in 1939, they must plant within their individual wheat allotments this fall. Earl A. Grubb said. Enough wheat to take care of all needs even in drought years is insured by AAA's Ever Normal Granary.
