Pinckney School Opens Tuesday, Sept. 6

General Registration for the Grades Will be Tuesday. High School Pupils Asked to Register Friday, Sept. 2nd at 9 a. m. Four New Members on the Faculty this Year. First Football Game is Sept. 23.

The Pinckney High School will open on Tuesday, September 6th with four new members of the faculty. They are Elwin Hulce of Chelsea who will replace J. P. Doyle as superintendent. The latter resigned last June after serving in that capacity for the past twenty-five years.

The other new teachers are John H. Saline who will coach the boys and teach science and business training; Harrison Hole of Detroit will teach mathematics and physics; Mrs. Eva Haring of Republic will teach the primary department, and the teachers who will return are Mrs. Alice Wilson, Ann Arbor, Latin and History; Mrs. Lola Loddell, Howell, Intermediate and Mrs. Iva Meyers, Lansing music, drawing and Wm. Jeffrey is in charge of the sanitary engineering.

On account of the big turnover in the faculty the pupils who will enter the high school are asked to come to the school on Friday, Sept. 2nd after 9 a. m. and enroll. This will avoid confusion on the opening day, Sept. 6th and expedite matters.

Just a word about the new teachers. Supt. Hulce is a graduate from Ypsilanti Normal and received a degree from the U. of M. He was formerly head of the Gregory High school. John Berg, is a graduate of the Ypsilanti Normal and was on the football team two years. He is also a good baseball player and starred in basketball. Harrison Hole taught in the Philippines but has been in Detroit for some time. Mrs. Haring taught in the upper peninsula. Her husband is studying for a degree at the U. of M.

All are interested in the sports program for the school. The school had not done so well in the last two years. Also the material has been scarce. This year, however, it is believed that there is a nucleus for a good team. The following from last year's team will be back: Capt. L. L. Van Blaricum, Charles Smith, R. Baughn, Jack Hannett, Mervyn Lavey, Cy Atlee, Russell Gardner, Earl Berquist, Robert Martin, Beryl Amburgey and Don Thorpe. Among the new men coming in are: Jack Young and James McCune of Gregory, Joe Lavey, Jack Caldwell and Gerald Vedder. So far games have been scheduled with Milford, Romulus and Manchester. Milford opens the season here on Sept. 23. Games will be played with Hartland, Ann Arbor and Brighton but no dates are yet set. In order to get the necessary practice in before the first game it will be necessary to start on the first day, Sept. 6th.

With a new gym, available for the first time last year basketball will be a part of the sports program and also baseball in the spring.

PLAYGROUND PROJECT HAS BEEN APPROVED

Several months ago the Pinckney school board purchased five acres of land adjoining the school and had blueprints prepared of a football base ball field and tennis court. A CWA project was submitted. We are informed by Walter Clark, county CWA man that the project has been approved and work will soon start on it.

To Fight School Cut

Teachers and Schools of the State Organizing to Fight Threatened Cut in School Aid. The Cut It is Claimed Would Seriously Cripple the School System

The teachers and schools of the county were in attendance Thursday night at a meeting held at Howell High School to consider means of preventing the threatened 40 per cent cut in state aid for the schools. The talk got heated at times but the county will join with the rest of the state in exerting pressure by means of telegrams, letters, etc. to prevent the cut.

The affair did not have its inception this year but some years back when the 15 mill property tax limitation went into effect. Then many of the school districts found themselves without sufficient funds to pay the tuition of their pupils who wish to attend high schools. The legislature passed an emergency bill to help out the schools on this point and every session since then has aided the school by making appropriations to meet their bills.

This year about $28,000,000 in school aid funds were apportioned in the budget. The cut would bring this down to about $16,000,000. It costs about $80 a year to educate a tuition pupil. This cut would bring the available amount way below this figure. At the Howell meeting Supt. John Page of the Howell school charged that the highway funds were not cut for the reason that State Highway Commissioner VonWagoner threatened to run for governor in the primaries if this happened.

These cuts in appropriations are necessary for the reason that the legislature appropriated some nine million more funds than there will be available and cutting the appropriations is the only way to equalize things.

ANN ARBOR MAN KILLED AT NORTH LAKE

Bruce McDonald, 22, of Ann Arbor was killed at North Lake, about 8 miles south of here last Wednesday night. He had been visiting his fiancée, Miss Eleanor Smith, who was camping with her mother in a cottage there. With her brother, James, he had engaged in target practice. When he went to get in his car to go home the target pistol went off accidentally shooting him in the abdomen. Miss Smith heard the shot and McDonald died in her arms within five minutes. Her brother, James, was on the lake fishing when the accident occurred.

The dead boy was the son of Albert McDonald, president of the McDonald Ice Cream Co. of Ann Arbor. He graduated from Ann Arbor High School four years ago and planned to enter the U. of M. this fall.

UNEMPLOYMENT CHECKS RECEIVED

About 30 people in the district served by the Pinckney post office are drawing unemployment insurance. The men draw around $15.50 per week and women about $7.50 per week. Most of these checks come from Detroit as that is the place where most of them were employed. In state 461,712 were filed and 376,786 have been allowed. The total unemployment insurance payments are $8,782,601.40. The average is $14.91 to go from Pinckney.

Boxing Show Here Friday

Farmer Newton Plans to Finish the Mat Villain in Record Time

There will be a boxing and wrestling show in the Pinckney Community Hall this Friday the 2nd at 8:30. All the best boxers and wrestlers will take part.

The main event in the boxing will feature Bud Musson of Howell and Jimmie Lamb of Pinckney in a rematch bout.

The main event in wrestling will be between Farmer Newton of Fowlerville and Julius Aschenbrenner of Pinckney. The entire county has been waiting for this match. Newton is a former professional, will outweigh Aschenbrenner by some 40 pounds. Aschenbrenner is the first man ever to challenge him.

The Pinckney people will also see Don Fousner, Frank Trapp with good opponents. There will be five other bouts with boxing and wrestling. A silver collection will be taken. This show is conducted under license No. 2240 of the State Athletic Board of Control.

BOXING CARD AT HOWELL

Nearly 100 people from Pinckney attended the boxing and wrestling program put on at the Odd Fellow Hall in Howell last Friday night. Bert VanBlaricum, Jr., of Pinckney referred and many Pinckney amateurs were on the card.

In the first bout Billy Darrow of Pinckney got a technical knockout over Homer Musson of Howell in the third round. The latter had piled up a lead on points when one of Bill's wild swings hit him on the button.

In the next bout Jack McGee of Iosco got a knockout over Joe Woodley of Oak Grove in the third round. The winner took plenty of punishment the first two rounds but managed to put over a haymaker.

The two girls, Fern Woodley and Helen McMillan boxed a two minute round. What for, we don't know. No harm done.

Floyd Haines of Pinckney took on Don Riley of Dexter. Riley was the hardest hitter and got home a number of good blows. The two boys were given a draw, however, for the good bout they put up.

Bud Musson of Howell took on Jim Lamb of Pinckney. He proved to be too shifty for Lamb and won 3 out of five rounds, getting the decision.

Farmer Newton of Fowlerville refused to wrestle Julius Aschenbrenner, the Pinckney mat villain, because there was no mat on the floor. The two Desnoir twins, Homer and Earl wrestled for 30 minutes with Homer getting two falls and Joe one.

There will be a similar program put on at Pinckney Friday night at which time Farmer Newton will positively wrestle Aschenbrenner.

Detroit Die Set & Mfg. Co. To Locate at Pinckney

Pinckney Business Men Secure Detroit Die Set & Mfg. Co. Plant. Expects to Start Operations Here About October 1st. Clare Reason, Former Pinckneyite, is the President of Company

The Pinckney board of commerce meeting held Monday night sufficient money was raised to assure the coming of the Detroit Die Set & Mfg. Co. of Detroit. Clare Reason, former Pinckneyite, is the president of the company and they are now located in the north end of Detroit where they make parts for the Chrysler Motor Co. and other auto plants. When running to capacity they employ about 18 men. On account of labor troubles and high costs they wish to leave Detroit.

Their proposition to the local board of commerce was made about a month ago. At the time it was considered too still. However, it has since been modified and placed in the hands of the local board. The board furnishes the site and pays the village taxes for five years. The building will be 62 feet by 81 feet, 16 blocks high of steel and concrete. It will be located on lots bought of Lee Lavey just west of the new Robert Kelly home.

The board bought 2 and 1-2 acres of land from Lee Lavey for $300. Lee made a donation of $100 making the cost $200. The following are the names of those who donated:

CURRENT COMMENT

"By the Editor"

For some years past there have been continued charges that schools, colleges and churches were busily engaged in the spread of Communism. The people making these charges were never asked to prove them and the institutions under attack winced under these charges which smeared all of them as communists. Now the charge is made that the movie industry and film stars are also Communistic. The Dies committee investigating the various (isms) investigated this charge and were told that Shirley Temple, the leading child actress was one of the leading communists in Hollywood. The only evidence against her was that she sent a greeting to French children which was published in Ce Soir, a French Communist paper. So faithful the case against the film industry.

The schools, colleges and churches should also demand that their detractors show proof of their charges. The American Legion through different state commanders has repeatedly made this charge. In their recent state convention at Endicott, N. Y. a resolution was passed asking that there be eliminated from the schools those teachers who are adherents of foreign (isms). As usual no such teachers were designated by name.

Those who oppose coddling of prisoners and advocate capital punishment should have gotten a real kick out of the death of the four prisoners in a Philadelphia prison who were literally coddled to death there last week for going on a hunger strike. Their cells were sealed and made airtight and the steam was turned on. This is holding up a horrible example to law breakers and putting fear into them with a vengeance. We wonder if this will cause a lower crime rate for the state.

It is probable that night base ball will be tried out in the American League next year in two or three cities. The National League tried it this year in two cities where the attendance was poor with successful results. We, however, doubt that it will be the cure-all it is cracked up to be. Now it is a novelty as only a few clubs play night games. If all adopt it it will cease to be anything out of the ordinary. Years ago most games were played on week days. The villages usually played their games on Saturday afternoons. Then a few cities tried Sunday ball. It was something new and the crowds were large. There were laws against it and in many cities the players and management were arrested and fined. This only increased the interest. In time the opposition to it faded out, all places adopted Sunday base ball, it ceased to be a novelty and the attendance dropped off. The same thing will happen to night base ball when it ceases to be a novelty.

Did you drink two and one-third gallons of beer during the month of July? If you did not then someone else got what was coming to you as $421,482 in taxes were paid in Michigan on 10,560,000 gallons of beer for the month of July.

The Townsend Club which has been dormant in this state for the past two years is showing signs of life. Charles Adair of Flint, a Townsend Old Age Pension candidate for congress on the Democrat ticket was billed to speak at the Catholic School in Bunker Hill last Monday. In Wayne County the Townsend Club has endorsed six Republican candidates for congress. They have also endorsed Frank Fitzgerald for governor. Just why we are not told. To our knowledge he has never come out for the Townsend Old Age Pension plan and in all the speeches so far delivered has failed to mention it at all.

The special session of the legislature is called because the 83 counties of the state have run out of relief funds. Their estimated need is some $16,000,000. But what they will receive will probably be nearer $10,000,000. The question many ask is why do the counties not raise their own relief funds? The answer is that some years ago the state adopted a 15 mill property tax limit that they have since held onto like grim death. A proposal to increase this to provide relief funds would not get to first base so the different county and city heads have no other place to get relief except the state.

Saucer, Plate Design
For a Hooked Rug

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER made her own designs for quilts and hooked rugs and many of her most interesting patterns were developed by drawing around pieces of china. The antique rug shown here may be copied either in rags or rug yarn. Great-Grandmother used rags, and her best rugs were always made of woolen materials torn in strips about 3/4-inch wide or narrower.

The foundation of the rug is burlap. The design is drawn on the burlap with a very soft pencil or crayon by tracing part way around a medium sized plate as at A and then a saucer as at B. Allowance should be made for a hem and the plain border. The three colors indicated in the diagram are repeated throughout this rug.

Some hook rug makers stretch the burlap foundation tightly over a wooden frame while they work. Others think they do just as well without a frame. Rug hooks of the general type shown here are for sale in department stores. The strip of material, or yarn, is held under the burlap with the left hand and the loops pulled through to the right side with the hook as shown at C.

How Women
in Their 40's
Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 40), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist in eliminating jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

To Get Rid of Acid
and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered, and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won countless testimonials than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt addressed a letter to Chairman Stuart Rice of the central statistical board the other day, in which he asked in effect why there is need for so many "official reports" from individuals and corporations engaged in business. The President's letter indicated a feeling that, if there are so many reports as complaints have disclosed, something ought to be done about it.

Too Many

It is now Mr. Rice's job to find out when, and where, and why concerning these floods of reports which government demands. But how about me finding out, too, I thought! I started on the job like a bird dog through the bush. It did not take long for me to realize that I had set myself to a task that is likely to occupy Mr. Rice and his staff of several hundred perhaps a year to assemble an answer. I learned a lot of things, however, and that is the reason I am writing about "official reports" at this time.

Speaking generally, at first, I can say that never in all history has there existed a condition such as business men and women now face, and, of course, within the last few years farmers have had to make out reports, too. The reason for the statement that the condition is worse now is that the situation represents a growth. Year after year, generation after generation, succeeding Presidents and succeeding congresses have added to the functions of the national government. Government has gone into new fields, taken on new obligations, new commitments, increased its scope of regulation of this and that and the other. As these functions have increased, more and more reports have been ordered and required; more facts have been needed, and, in addition, bureaucrats have relegated to themselves additional and unanticipated powers. Now, what we have is a tangled mess, a slimy octopus whose tentacles reach into every corner and nook and cranny of the nation.

Before considering some of the horrible details (which are horrible only because they are so general in application), it seems to me we can well consider who is responsible. I mentioned above how succeeding Presidents and congresses have expanded the functions of government. Those Presidents and members of the congresses were elected by the voters. The campaigns, in nearly every instance, included harranguing for establishment of some new agency, passage of some law to drive money changers out of the temple; to prevent grinding the little fellow, the poor, into the earth; to regulate monopolistic business; to care for the aged after their lives of useful work had been spent; to collect new taxes here and there; to assure the agricultural community a parity price for its products—a thousand and one things were campaigned for or against. So the people voted and elected a President or a senator or a representative. They also elected a governor and the various officials of their state wherein a legislature operated as does congress for the country.

It has not mattered, therefore, whether there has been a Democrat or a Republican in the White House, except in the matter of degree to which the new laws have been enacted. The growth has gone on just the same. Every time a politician conceived an idea to get votes, he campaigned on it—and a new law resulted. With the new law came another deluge of "official reports."

In a general way, therefore, the voters must accept some responsibility. But the chief responsibility must rest with members of the house and senate and the various Presidents who have served in their turn. Why? Because no one can be expected to understand fully this gigantic machine called government unless that person has had an opportunity to study the machine. The layman has not had that chance. Presidents and congresses have had the chance.

To get down to the details; that is, to relate some of the incidents which have become known to the President and which resulted in his letter to Mr. Rice, we might begin with taxes. The head of a dairy company which operates in three states reported to his stockholders lately that in one year his firm had been compelled to make and file a total of 11,115 separate tax reports. That company maintained a staff for the sole purpose of handling the various reports that had to go to the federal government, the governments of the states in which the company operated and the cities where milk and dairy products were sold. Having such a staff, the company knew exactly what it cost—$260,000 a year. It should be added that the cost of these reports necessarily became a part of the company's overhead and the overhead expense enters directly into the cost of the dairy products for which the consumer pays. It could easily result in an increase of one cent per bottle for the milk served to its customers.

It takes no stretch of the imagination to conceive what the cost is for a large corporation to handle its official reports to various agencies of the national, state and local governments if that corporation operates, say, over half of the United States. The expense runs into millions upon millions of dollars annually. Who pays? You and I, the consumers.

I have not had access to all of the records required by the department of agriculture because many of them are confidential, but I believe it is safe to say that some fifty-odd reports have to be made respecting every farmer who has signed up in compliance with the crop control laws and the land conservation program. I think the farmer directly involved has from eight to ten of these reports and official documents; the county committee which inspects and reports on him has others; the county agent has still more reports to make—all still involving this one farmer but including others as well—and these are followed by regional and national reports until all totals are entered here in Washington.

Or, at the risk of being too personal in dealing with a national problem, I might cite my own experiences. Mine is what is called a one-man office. That is to say, with the aid of a secretary, I must run my own little business. But even as inconsequential as that office is, consider this situation: I must file an income tax return annually. That return must include an extra statement which covers a general outline of my meager income and the expenses of my office. I must pay ten dollars a year for a "license" which gives me the privilege of writing to earn my living, but I must file a report before I get that license in the District of Columbia. Twice a year, I must file a report of my gross return from my work in the District of Columbia—and pay a tax on that income. Each month, I have to file a report to the District of Columbia employment board, showing how much I pay my secretary, how many hours a week she works and pay a tax which theoretically is saved up and paid to her in case she is unemployed. Each month, also, I am required to file a report with the United States social security board, giving the same information—and pay another unemployment tax. And each three months, I am required to file another report with the social security board which seems to be a report showing that the monthly reports are correct.

It has been my good fortune to have gained a legal education by virtue of four long years of night school, so I have not had to hire a lawyer to help me with my reports. They have been comparatively simple, generally. But that is not the case with a larger business.

Lawyers, however, would be no help in the circumstance that I am now about to relate. A young lady who had served as my secretary several years left my service. When I filed the last monthly report for her name and paid the tax, I attached a letter explaining that she was leaving and that there would be no further reports in her name as far as I was concerned. The letter was written in the hope that the file would be complete.

This incident happened last October. In March, 1938, I received a notice from the board, advising me that I had not paid the tax on the salary of the lady in question for the month of February, 1938. Not a word about the other months from October to February. And if I didn't pay, said the notice, there were penalties, court proceedings, etc. Yes, you guessed it! I threw that notice into the waste basket. Two months later, I had the honor to be visited by an inspector. He was courteous and gentlemanly, but firm. I must pay the tax—not for February, but for December. You can let your own imagination run high, wide and handsome about the results of that visit.

Well, I merely bring out those facts because they show the need for the voters of the country to take some action on their own and quit following blindly the demagoguery of the politicians.

Previously in this column I have written about several corporations which, after filing several thousand reports, have had inspectors visit, them to see whether they were complying with the law. Since that time, one of the business men about whom I wrote originally has told me that other inspectors have come to see whether the first crew had complied with the law in making investigations.

C. Houston Goudiss Offers

Practical Advice on How to

Keep Cool With Food

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

FROM the standpoint of health, the summer months constitute the most important period of the entire year. They should be used to build stamina and vitality that will fortify your body against disease. But to many people, the warm weather means merely a succession of exhausting days and restless nights. And hardly a week passes without reports of heat prostrations.

Meeting the Challenge of Hot Weather

While abnormal heat or humidity may be a secondary cause, the real reason behind much warm-weather suffering is a failure to meet the challenge of summer with a judicious diet.

Automobile owners know that no car is better than its engine, and in warm weather, careful drivers watch the gauge on the dashboard to be sure the engine does not become overheated. But most people give little thought to that most remarkable of all engines—the human digestive machinery.

Compared to the engine in your body, the one in your car is a crude, rough affair that can stand no end of punishment. Moreover, the automobile is driven for a certain length of time and then permitted to rest. But the marvelous mechanism which transforms your food into blood, bone, muscle, and your capacity for thought and action is never wholly at rest.

Importance of the Right Food
If the automobile engine requires special attention, how much more important to stoke your body engine with food suited to the weather!

No one would think of going about in midsummer wearing the same garments that were worn all winter. Yet many women continue to serve the same type of meals which were required to keep the body warm in winter. Such a practice is sure to make you miserable. But more than that, it lowers resistance and may, therefore, lead to illness.

Beating the Heat
There are several factors to bear in mind when planning the hot-weather diet. The first secret of keeping cool is to supply the body machinery with food fuel that can be utilized with the least expenditure of energy.

Warm weather is responsible for muscular relaxation in the digestive tract, as well as other parts of the body. And you run the risk of digestive upsets, with their discomfort and health hazards, unless you make every effort to lessen the work of your digestive system.

Eat lightly of rich fatty meats, pastries, rich cakes, sauces and gravies. At all times, choose easily digestible foods.

Overeating Saps Vitality
Don't overeat. The task of handling excess food is a burden to the body at any season. In hot weather, it will cause the body temperature to mount along with the thermometer, and may result in a serious upset. It is also advisable to cut down somewhat on the quantity of heat and energy producing foods consumed—that is the carbohydrates and fats.

Need for Body-Building Foods
The protein requirement remains the same summer and winter. Some people think that meat should not be eaten in summer, or should be reduced to a minimum. But there is no closed season for growth in children, and moreover, they play so constantly and indulge in such strenuous exercise that they break down body tissue very rapidly. Adults also have a constant need for protein to rebuild the millions of cells that are worn out daily.

It is desirable, however, to avoid rich, fatty meats and to select protein foods that are more easily digestible, as chicken, lamb, lean beef and lean fish. Special emphasis should be placed on milk, cheese and eggs. These splendid foods not only supply Grade A protein, in an easily digested form, but also fortify the diet with minerals and vitamins.

Liquids Essential
To help you keep cool, the summer diet must include an abundance of liquids. These are necessary to make up for the large amounts of moisture lost from the body through increased perspiration.

Liquids may be taken in the form of milk, fruit juices and cooling drinks made from pure water and packaged beverage crystals containing dextrose, fruit acid, flavoring and coloring.

Hot Weather and Vitamin C
Two European investigators recently found that exposure to high temperatures causes a 50 per cent loss in vitamin C from the body tissues. And lowered vitamin C reserves are partially responsible for that tired feeling so often experienced in warm weather. Their research indicates that drinking orange or lemon juice, which are rich in vitamin C, actually helps to mitigate the effect of the heat.

Choose Cold Drinks Carefully
A cold drink is comforting on a hot day. And in addition, sweetened beverages help to relieve fatigue, for their carbohydrate content supplies available energy. Sugar is the least heating of the energy producing foods, for less than one-sixteenth of the energy it supplies to the body is converted into heat. The rest goes into brain and muscle power.

Therefore, one good way to prevent needless fatigue in summer is to take a cool, moderate, sweetened drink whenever you feel tired during the day. This will satisfy thirst and ward off exhaustion like a rest by the road after a long hard tramp.

Too highly sweetened beverages, however, may be heating to the body, though they are cooling to the palate. For this reason, it is advisable for homemakers to mix their own cool drinks so that they can control the amount of sweetening used. It is possible to buy inexpensive packaged beverage crystals in a variety of flavors, which make delicious, refreshing and cooling drinks for general family use. One of these contains added vitamin D, and as the sugar is added by the homemaker, you can be the judge of how much to use. This is an excellent idea, especially in households where there are children, for the home-made drink satisfies thirst, provides needed energy and discourages them from buying bottled beverages of doubtful purity.

Cooling Foods
I offer free to readers of this column a new bulletin containing a list of cooling foods, plus practical, specific advice in planning the warm weather diet. There are also menus showing how easily you can KEEP COOL WITH FOOD.

Simple, Keep-Cool Cottons

If YOU wear 14 to 20 sizes and expect to be outdoors and in sports clothes most of the summer, then you'll want the smart frock with tucked skirt and tailored collar. If you're in the 36 to 52 range and want something cool and good-looking for home wear, the dress with straight skirt and draped collar is the style for you!

The Sports Frock.
This is such a good-looking, classic style that you can wear it all day long during your vacation travels, and always feel well dressed! The radiating tucks give a graceful flare to the skirt; the tailored collar is deeply notched in the smartest fashion. Sharkskin, spongy linen, pique and flat crepe are good fabric choices.

The Home Frock.
This is a diagram design, that you can finish in a few hours, and oh my, how you'll enjoy it! The sleeves, cut in one with the shoulders, are so easy to work in, the soft collar, with the little tab, is so becoming. Best of all, this design is cleverly darted at the waistline in a way that makes you look much, much slimmer than you are. Make this of gingham, percale, handkerchief lawn, tub silk or calico.

The Patterns.
1537 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3 3/4 yards of 35 inch material with short sleeves. 1395 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 3 3/4 yards of 35 inch material; contrasting collar (if desired) takes 1/2 yard cut bias.

Success in Sewing.
Success in sewing, like in any other field, depends upon how you approach the task in hand. To help you turn out clothes professional looking in every detail, we have a book which plainly sets forth the simple rules of home dressmaking. The beginner will find every step in making a dress clearly outlined and illustrated within its covers. For the experienced sewer there are many helpful hints and suggestions for sewing short cuts. Send 15 cents (in coins) today for your copy of SUCCESS IN SEWING, a book every home dressmaker will find of value.

Have you a good READING LAMP?

A GOOD reading lamp is a necessity in the home, because the whole family spends so much time on tasks involving close visual application. Whether you use your eyes for reading a newspaper, writing, studying, sewing or other occupations, proper illumination is essential to avoid eyestrain and fatigue. An evening of reading or working under poor light may be more tiring physically than an equal amount of time spent at hard manual labor.

What constitutes a good reading lamp? The new I.E.S. reflector-type floor and table lamps are ideal for the purpose. These lamps have a diffusing bowl under the shade, which eliminates glare and assures soft, pleasant illumination. They are scientifically designed for easy, comfortable seeing, and provide adequate light for reading, writing, sewing, etc. Reflector-type Pin-It-Up lamps are also excellent. They may be pinned on the wall over a desk or table, or beside your favorite easy chair.

Perhaps you have a floor or table lamp of your own, one that is perfectly good but which was purchased some years ago and lacks the advantages of a reflector-bowl under the shade. In this case you may buy for very little money a clever new unit called an "I. E. S. adaptor," which transforms the old lamp into one utilizing the principle of a modern Better Light - Better Sight lamp. Detroit Edison Home Lighting Advisors will be glad to help you with any lighting problem you may have. Call your Detroit Edison office.

The Detroit Edison Company does not sell light adaptors or floor or table lamps. See them in display at department stores, lighting fixture stores or electrical trailers.

This may be the new form for an invitation in the rural sections of Michigan.
The vogue for home made toys that are sturdy, easily made and that satisfy the children is responsible for this new kind of party, which the women are holding in several communities this summer.
Tin cans are being washed and put away while tall wooden boxes that hold cheese or prunes no longer find their way into the wood box for kindling but are saved for toy-making.
A number ten tin can painted in a gay color or with bands of color is transformed into a drum when an old inner tube is stretched over the ends and secured in place with thong lacing cut from the same tube. Another drum is made from a wooden bowl with an inner tube stretched over the top and held in place with gay colored thumb tacks. Suggestive letters are offered for these and other toys by extension service staff members of Michigan State College.
A nested set of tin cans of graduated sizes painted in soft but bright colors, give amusement for a child from 18 months to three years old. Of course the open edge must be perfectly smooth and turned to avoid any danger from scratches.

as the chief election official designs these forms and supplies use in the elections so as to have uniformity throughout the state.
Because of the new (Secret Primary Law), which was passed during the last legislature, two ballot boxes will be necessary this time rather than one used previously.
The department is now sending out to all county clerks, stickers to be placed on the ballot boxes with the legends, (Voted Ballots) and Unvoted Ballots.
The voters should remember in this election that they should separate their ballots, fold them individually, and hand them to the election official, designating which one is the voted Ballot.

Sarah Lynn's voice said hoarsely, "Bzzards . . . buzzards . . . Didn't you know . . . we were . . . dead?"

"Say, listen, we're not dead and we're not going to be dead! I tell you they're on the job, looking for us! It won't be long, now!"

The planes kept flying over them. They returned again and again, but they never hesitated. Kitty Medill stood on her rock and waved and screamed, but the pilots gave no sign of noticing her.

"You fools, you fools! You blind bats!" she sobbed, cursing.

Then she made a careful survey of their situation and realized that they were hidden from above by a ledge over the one on which they had crashed. She might gesture and yell the rest of her life without being seen by the fliers.

"Okeh, then. I'll get out where they can see me," she decided. She didn't try to tell Sarah Lynn. She took half her matches and a sheaf of maps and charts and walked in the direction of Mt. Umunhum, stopping constantly to mark the trail in some fashion, tying to the chaparral the ribbon from her hair, her belt, her pink satin garter. When she found a bare rocky space she tore up her papers and gathered twigs and dry leaves and got her fire to going. She broke off branches of manzanita and fed the flame, and she discovered that green stuff made a denser smoke.

In an incredibly short time the planes were back, three of them, dipping and circling. She could see the pilots peering down. She stood away from the fire and tore off her blouse and waved, and one of the airmen waved an arm in answer. He flew perilously low, and she recognized the Hermod with Gunnar Thorwald leaning out to look at her. She pointed back toward the place where she had left her passenger, and he nodded and flew away in the same direction.

Kit's knees gave way and she sat down and the breeze blew acrid smoke into her eyes and mouth, but she was up in a moment, running back to the wreck.

"Babe, it's okeh! He's here! I mean, he will be in a minute—your boy-friend in his bus! Kid, it's all right, do you hear me?"

If Sarah Lynn heard she gave no evidence of it. She seemed to be busily preoccupied talking to herself, and the free hand opened and closed and tensed stiffly, so Kitty Medill raced back again to keep her fire going and wait for Gunnar Thorwald. He was an intolerable time in coming. She had moments of panic in which she was sure he hadn't seen her after all; that she had imagined the Hermod.

But at last she saw him working his difficult way swiftly through the thick, harsh underbrush.

"She lives!" he demanded hoarsely.

"She's alive, sure."

"Hurt? How?" Ice-blue gimlets, boring into her brain.

"Well, you see—it's on her. On her back. The ship is. I tried to lift it off but—"

"Take me there!"

She turned and ran back, Gunnar following so closely that he almost trod upon her. "Quick!" he kept saying. "Be quick!"

When they reached the wreck Kitty Medill shut her eyes. She didn't want to see his face when he saw Sarah Lynn, but it was almost as bad to hear him. It sounded as if he had flung himself down on the ground beside her, and Kit thought he must be talking in his own Swede lingo, for she could not understand the words, but she understood perfectly the terrible, racked sobbing.

When she heard him working Kit took her hands away from her eyes and looked at him. He was working so fast, so furiously, so surely, with such fierce efficiency. He wrenched and chopped and tore away, twisted and pried, dead white, with sweat pouring from him. It seemed to Kit, watching the cold frenzy, that he could have done it all with his bare hands.

Once he called to her and pointed to his canteen. "Give her water—a small drink at first." He looked at her fully for the first time. "Only that I may need your help," he said levelly, "I would kill you."

"You needn't trouble yourself," she said jauntily. "I can't tend to that little chore." She crawled close to Sarah Lynn and managed to make her take three swallows.

Two other men came running through the chaparral presently, with young Bill Dana following. They set to work instantly under Gunnar's directions and that speeded up the affair tremendously. Kit could see, but she was sure the ace could have done it alone.

One thing he did do alone. When the weight was finally dragged off Sarah Lynn the others stood aside and let him stoop and lift her.

She screamed once, a short, dreadful cry, and he put her down on the blankets Kit had spread. Sarah Lynn looked up at him, her eyes big in her burning face, recognizing him clearly. She said thickly, "Go away! Don't come in here!" She held up a warning hand. "Fly away in the night! Ladybug, ladybug, fly away home!"

When he bent over her, murmuring, she pointed an accusing finger. Her hoarse voice said, packed with scorn, "Keep away from me, drunk-en fool!"

Once again, Sarah Lynn Dana, social registerite, member of the exclusive suburb of Danavale, became news, furnishing hectic headlines in San Jose and San Francisco papers for many days.

She had flown with the notorious Kitty Medill, famous stunt-flier and moving picture double for dangerous scenes, who was making a first hop after being grounded by the Department of Commerce for reckless flying; she was lost; she was found, and found by Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, her fiancé; she would die; she would live; she would live, but she would never walk again.

It was after this last announcement that Kitty Medill committed suicide, quietly and with a good deal of reticence and dignity.

They did not tell Sarah Lynn about Kitty Medill. They did not, in the first days, tell her about anything. She was constantly under opiates. Sometimes, when their effect wore thin, she murmured feverishly, anxiously.

"Gunnar . . ." the name came through the confusion again and again. "Gunnar . . ."

Her mother, her beauty deepened and clarified by draining grief, hung over her in an agony of tenderness. "Yes, darling! What is it, darling? What are you trying to say? Tell Mother!"

"Let me," the nurse said capably, taking her place. "Yes, Gunnar. I understand," she said slowly and clearly. "You want to see Gunnar?"

The head, held rigidly in a frame, could not move, but the eyes rolled wildly in negation. "No, no, no!" She made a great effort. "Tell him—tell him—"

"Yes, I understand. What shall I tell him?"

"Don't come in here . . . Don't come in here . . . Go away!"

"All right, dearie. I'll tell him. Now you go to sleep again." Miss Burke straightened up. She was young enough and gallant enough to revel in the drama of the case and she thought that particular phase of delirium pretty sad. She followed Mrs. Dana out into the hall. "Of course, that doesn't mean a thing," she was beginning briskly when the mother interrupted.

"Mr. Thorwald is downstairs?"

"Goodness, yes! Always. I don't know when he eats or sleeps. He—"

"Then, will you kindly go down and tell him exactly what my daughter has just said?"

The nurse hesitated. "But, you understand that she is delirious, Mrs. Dana? It doesn't mean—"

The large and lovely lady drew herself to her full imposing height. "You will be good enough to do as I ask, Miss Burke. Tell him exactly what she said, and without comment," she said levelly.

Miss Burke disdained the elevator and ran down three flights of sound-proof stairs on her heelless rubber soles. "Aha! So, that's the scenario!" she told herself, deciding to tell the Norwegian ace exactly what she pleased. She found him as usual walking up and down the long hall.

"A change?" he demanded in a queer, spent voice.

"No. We weren't expecting any change, you know. She is certainly no worse."

"She—she asked for me?"

"Well, not exactly, asked, but she talks about you a lot. I mean, she's under opiates all the time, but she keeps murmuring your name."

"When—when can I see her?"

"Well, not just yet. They seem to think it isn't wise. The shock—"

"You will tell me when I can see her?"

"I'll tell you." She put her well-groomed hand for an instant on his arm. "It's a promise. But in the meantime, you know, a little eating and sleeping—"

Duncan Van Doren arrived within the first week after the accident.

Duncan's well-bred face showed the effects of grief and shock; its pleasant veneer was rubbed off.

"Well, I'm here now," he said, "and I'm here to stay until she gets well—or doesn't get well."

Mrs. Dana gave him a wan smile. "Duncan dear!" It was certain, they had assured her, that her child would live. "But Rixford, who is the greatest bone specialist this side of Chicago, won't make any prognosis yet about the spine."

Conrad Jordan, who had left Tahoe instantly to join in the search, remained to look after Gunnar.

"Though there's nothing I can do," he admitted to Lynn Dana, "except

Webster had shaken his head. "If he and the old lady hadn't given her the plane—"

"But, if she hadn't gone up with that miserable bum of a girl—"

"Yes, but if she hadn't been a fier that never could have happened to her," he said reasonably. "And I expect that's the way the family figures, her mother, anyway."

"I know," Mary Dana Webster nodded. "I wish Sally Ann would come home."

"She will, later," Lynn Dana said. "I cabled and wrote that her presence would mean more to Sarah Lynn in a little while, during the waiting period—weeks, months of it, probably." All three of them were thinking that it might be years, as it had been for him. "You know, people are no end kind and sorry, but the drama goes out of the situation, presently. I mean, they get used to the fact, and life goes on again, and—well, the calls and the flowers and books and things dwindle away."

"There'll be whole conservatories full of flowers now that Duncan is here," Mary said bitterly.

CHAPTER XIII

Gunnar Thorwald was pacing the corridor when Duncan Van Doren got out of the elevator. Duncan's head was down; he did not see the fier. Gunnar stared incredulously, striding toward him, thrusting out an arm to block his way.

"You have seen her?" There was an emphasis on the first pronoun which made the question at once a demand and a protest.

Duncan looked at him with swimming eyes, nodding, his face convulsed. He manifested no resentment, no conviction that before him stood the cause of the tragedy; only an engulfing flood of sympathy and sorrow. He gulped, groping for his handkerchief. "Horrible—cruel—"

Gunnar pushed past him toward the elevator, but it rose as he reached it, so he turned and went leaping up the stairs. A woman with a big bouquet of garden flowers shrank out of his way.

"Mercy!" she said to her husband. "That fellow looks like a mental case!"

He flung himself through the door in spite of the card in the brass frame which read:

Dana
Drs. Dunn and Bixford
NO VISITORS

but he stood still on the threshold, staring.

Mrs. Dana, standing at the window, her back to him, turned at the sound of his entrance. "Please leave the room!" she said in an angry whisper. "No callers are permitted. My daughter is—"

Gunnar was not listening. There was nothing she could tell him about her daughter. He continued to stand still, looking at her.

"Leave this room instantly! I will ring for an orderly to put you out!" Mrs. Dana cried wildly. "Haven't you done enough? Aren't you satisfied with the suffering, the agony—" she was bearing down on him in soft fury. "Do you want to kill her?"

But Gunnar had reached the bed. He had leaned over Sarah Lynn, shaking, and said her name.

She was as nearly white as the olive and amber and ivory of her skin could be, and her nose, her brow, her chin, her cheek-bones were as sharp and salient as if they had been chiseled from marble. Her eyes flew open, bigger and darker than ever, sunk in shadowed hollows, and a startled recognition came into them at once and a blazing joy.

Fierceness of Bald Eagle Is a Myth; Never Saw Bird Attack, Student Says

The perennial yarns of the predatory fierceness of the bald eagle once again have been dusted off and are being broadcast throughout the land. Just a short time ago I read in a national magazine of wide circulation that "the eagles are seldom gentle and are among the fiercest birds of prey," writes N. R. Casillo in Nature Magazine. "They attack sheep, rabbits and often wolves. Eagles have tremendous appetites and have been known to devour a calf, a sheep and a dog in a single week." The author of the article, however, fails to disclose whether it was a single bird or a group of them that "devoured" the formidable repeat. But, he does convey the impression that eagles had actually brought down the animals mentioned.

In another influential periodical it was averred that eagles have been known to attack children, and one was seen to fight and carry off a wildcat. Paradoxically, in another issue of the same paper there was an item about an eagle being ignominiously vanquished by a six-month-old Plymouth Rock rooster, the latter actually killing the large bird of prey.

With apologies to the Bard, "what manner of bird is this?" It surely cannot be the same bird that I observed daily during my three-months' stay in the Alaskan archipelago; a period during which I never once saw an eagle attack anything alive, unless the few salmon that they pirated from ospreys could be considered living prey.

My observations of the birds were not casual, but were systematically conducted studies.

Effect of Carbon Dioxide

Carbon dioxide has a far greater effect than oxygen on the human respiratory system. If the carbon dioxide in a man's blood is increased by 3 per cent, his rate of breathing is doubled. If it is decreased by 3 per cent, says a writer in Collier's Weekly, his breathing stops completely. Considerable oxygen lack has its effects, but they are not comparable with those of the slightest change in carbon dioxide.

Frosting a Cake for Judges to Sample

A professional cake baker, frosting one of the hundreds of cakes which were made up in the Experimental Kitchen Laboratory, maintained by C. Houston Goodiss in New York City, in the course of selecting the winners in his recent Cake Recipe Contest.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

NATURALLY, I am accustomed to seeing exhibits of delicious and interesting foods in the Experimental Kitchen Laboratory that I maintain in New York City. But in all the years of its existence, it has never been a busier nor a more inviting place than during the last few weeks when the home economists on my staff have been busily testing and judging the many fine cake recipes submitted by readers of this paper in our recent Cake Recipe Contest.

Imagine, if you can, a big cheerful and colorful kitchen filled with long tables upon which row after row of handsome cakes were arranged—proudly testifying to the skill of the homemakers who cherish the recipes from which they were made.

Every Type of Cake Entered.

A whole tableful of white cakes, with and without icing. Chocolate and cocoa cakes of every possible type. All manner of cakes, fragrant and delicious—spice, ice cream, honey, caramel, maple syrup, nut, date, pineapple, orange, lemon, butterscotch, jam, banana, raisin, oatmeal, coconut and marbled cakes. Cakes baked in long sheets, square cakes, round cakes, layer cakes. Old-fashioned cakes from grandmothers' recipe books. Very modern and up-to-date cakes. And even one that was said to have been a favorite with General Robert E. Lee. I've never seen anything to compare with the collection, even at the biggest State Fair!

Do you wonder that the home economists on my staff required several weeks to pick the winners? For with such a wealth of exceptional cakes from which to choose, selecting those for top honors, was indeed difficult.

The cake bakers were trained for their work. They followed the recipes precisely. They measured accurately. They checked oven temperatures.

The scoring system was highly scientific. And we can say with conviction that no matter how close the race, the winners def-

When the temperature mounts, fat hinders heat loss. The body temperature of the overweight individual is more likely to rise than that of the thin person, and he is therefore more liable to heat prostration. For greater comfort, better appearance and for improved health, the man or woman who is overweight should send for the reducing bulletin offered free by C. Houston Goodiss, and reduce by this safe and sane method of counting calories.

The bulletin is complete with a chart, showing the caloric value of all the commonly used foods and it contains simple menus that you can use as a guide to scientific weight reduction.

Just send a postcard to C. Houston Goodiss at 6 East 39th Street, New York City, asking for his reducing bulletin.

PHILATHEA NOTES

An attentive congregation was present at the Community Congregational Church last Sunday when Mr. Elmer Hartwell, a student at the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, conducted the services in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. M. McLucas. Mr. Hartwell spoke very helpfully on the topic (So Green) from the text found in Hebrews 2:3.

The Baraca Class joined with the Philatheas last Sunday to greet one of the guests of the morning, Mr. Martin, President of the Detroit-Baraca-Philatheas Union. He cordially invited our attendance at the Baraca-Philatheas Convention in Detroit on September 30th and October 1st and 2nd. This will be held at the Birkett Memorial Baptist Church, Corner of Harper and Frontenac.

Mrs. Peck very kindly taught the class in the absence of Mrs. Elliott, bringing out many practical points on the lesson concerning (Responsibility for Others) especially (Eli's) failure with his two sons.

Next Sunday will be missionary day at our Church. Special envelopes in the pews, besides the regular small budget envelopes, and an offering in the S. S. $42.75 has been paid on our $90.00 quota. The subject of the lesson will be (Samuel: Spiritual Revival) 1 Samuel 7:3-13. Our lake resort people most especially invited.

What Saving Can Do

The old saying, a penny earned is day. It is only by thrift that prosper a penny saved, still holds good to we cannot produce. If we do not it is possible. If we do not save, produce, we cannot save.

The past few years have seen a great deal of expenditure but little saving along government lines. Taxes have been levied which penalize savings by corporations. This is turn has curtailed production. The dollars saved by a bank's customers formerly went to further production in industry. Since 1930 they have been going to further government spending along unproductive lines, that is, lines which once completed do not make for further production or earnings.

We cannot change this condition over night, but a gradual and persistent Savings plan will automatically swing to a production which makes for employment, greater earnings, and thus greater savings. By developing a Savings routine of our own, we as individuals can create this necessary change.
