

Democrats and Republican State Conventions Held

There Being No Contests for Office a Democrat Meeting Ends Very Harmoniously. Sharp Contest for Attorney General Causes O. L. Smith Loser to Tom Read, to Charge He Was Doublecrossed.

Over the week end both Democrat and Republican parties held their state conventions at Grand Rapids and filled out the balance of their state tickets. Both of these conventions are entirely unnecessary as the four nominations could have just as well been made at the primary election when the other candidates were named. However, their sole purpose is to perpetuate the two party system. By means of the conventions the Democrat and Republican parties are able to form their vote getting organizations, frame their platforms and otherwise get their party to function.

The Democrat convention was first, being held Friday and Saturday of last week. In the afternoon the different districts caucused and elected their officers. George Gundry auditor general was elected chairman of the 6th district composed of Livingston, Genesee and Ingham counties. Congressman Transue was elected chairman of the resolutions committee, Martin Lavan of the Credentials committee.

Senator Prentiss Brown was the convention chairman and the keynote speaker. Following his speech, the usual committees were appointed and the convention adjourned. The banquet at night favored Secretary of the Interior Ickes of President Roosevelt's cabinet as speaker. Rep. Harry Glass of the Young Democrats was toastmaster. The state candidates were all introduced and spoke briefly. Secretary Ickes said in the president's wish that Frank Murphy be re-elected as governor. Abner Larned of Detroit also spoke and the women officials of the Democrat organization, Mrs. Clara VanAuken, Mrs. Christine McDonald and Mrs. D. McAllister. Gov. Murphy who had addressed a Constitution Day meeting at Hamtramck earlier in the evening did not arrive until 10:30 p. by plane. He made a brief speech in which he paid his respects to his G. O. P. opponent, and Frank McKay and offered to debate Senator Vandenberg on the labor question providing that official would adopt Fitzgerald's stand on strike settlements.

Saturday morning the different committees reported and speeches were made by Lt. Governor Nowicki and Gov. Murphy. Ed Shields presided as chairman and made a motion that the four candidates be nominated by acclamation. The candidates were Leon D. Case for secretary of state, George Gundry for auditor general, Theodore Fry for state treasurer and Raymond Starr for attorney general. The motion was carried without opposition. Then the delegates cheered Murphy for 20 minutes and marched around the hall carrying the district banners.

The Republican convention was set for Monday but really got underway Sunday when most of the delegates arrived, and the star chamber sessions in the hotel rooms started and the delegates started swapping votes and lining up the different districts. Governor Fitzgerald presented his slate early Sunday. It was Tom Read for attorney general, V. Brown for auditor general, Senator Dunkel for state treasurer and H. Kelly for Secretary of State. This caused an uproar, especially from O. L. Smith of Detroit, candidate for attorney general who made the statement he had been double crossed. He claimed he had Fitzgerald's promise that he would be nominated for attorney general. This he claimed he received at Escor two days before the primary. In this case Ed Barnard, the Wayne county boss, seemed to be the fly in the soup. The Wayne delegates were handpicked by him and voted under the unit rule. The office of attorney general carries little patronage and Barnard demanded as Wayne's share, the office of secretary of state which has the biggest number of jobs of any office. He got it and Harry Kelly, former manager of the state liquor board and Fitzgerald campaign manager in Wayne county was selected. O. L. Smith refused to withdraw and put up a great fight on the floor losing to Read by a scant 19 votes. In his battle he got small help from Wayne county Tom Read is an old Grubbeck man and has served at Lt. Governor several times. In 1935-36

Playground Is Started

Eleven Men Start Work on Pinckney School Playground Here. Football Field, Base Ball Diamond, and Tennis Court to be Laid Out.

The WPA project for a Pinckney school playground was started last Monday. This project was submitted some time ago when the school board purchased 5 acres of the Dr. Haze farm adjoining the school and closed the street separating it from the school grounds. Monday 11 WPA workers showed up and started the work. Major Bravener of Fowlerville county director was here and Wm. Jeffreys, engineer at the school will be the local man in charge. The project calls for 1000 hours of labor and will take about a month and a half. The first day was spent in laying tile from the outlet of the surface drainage ditch past the grounds to the creek. The tennis court will be built on the old roadbed. A tractor will be used to grade the grounds which are considerable on the rolling order. Just what procedure will be followed has not yet been determined. In Brighton where a similar playground was built, the field was made by drawing in dirt. In Fowlerville, the playground was put down ten feet in order to level it and is in the form of a bowl like the college football stadiums. As the soil of the field is of gravel so surface dirt will have to be drawn in. Nearly all men on the project are local men.

U. of M. ENROLLMENT

Enrollment at the end of the second day of the new semester at the University of Michigan showed an increase of 458 students, or 4.5 percent, over the same time in 1937, it was announced by statisticians in the office of the Registrar of the University.

Total enrollment so far this year stands at 10,708 students. Last year at the same time the total enrollment had reached 10,250. Indications are that the total enrollment for the first semester this year will top the record enrollment of 10,964 established last year.

The largest increases in enrollment this year have been in engineering, law, business administration, nursing and the graduate school. Of the 10,708 students enrolled so far this year, 7,755 are men and 2,953 are women.

THE DEWEY STAR

Tom Dewey's star which is now in the ascendancy due to his nomination for governor by the Republicans of New York will if he is successful mean the total eclipse of Senator Vandenberg's chances to receive the Republican nomination for president in 1940. New York state with its big block of votes in the state convention and its large vote in the election is an advantage that all parties desire and none dare to turn down. With this state as a nucleus election is not difficult. Nearly all successful candidates for the presidency have always carried New York State and this state has also furnished a good share of the presidents of the United States.

PHILATHEA NOTES

A beautiful autumn Sunday brought out a good attendance in our class, following the Communion service. The lesson was the first in our new quarterly (The One True God) the first of the series or the Ten Commandments as interpreted by Jesus. Next Sunday our topic is (Spiritual Warfare), Exodus 20:4-6; 32:1-8 and John 4:19-24.

The Benevolence Treasurer was again cheered by the Missionary response on Sunday from the S. S. offering and personal gifts. We are looking for a very special Missionary offering on Rally Sunday, so we still have a comparatively large sum to fill our quota.

Some from our class were chosen among others as delegates to the Jackson Association meeting in Ypsilanti on this Wednesday.

The president of the Ladies Aid during the class hour Sunday expressed thanks for the cheerful donations and other help for the annual chicken supper dinner held on Saturday night.

Pinckney Burglar Caught at Saline Sunday Night

James Sinta, 19, Arrested by Night Watchman at Saline Sunday Night After Committing Seven Robberies. Admits Pinckney, Whitmore Lake and Saline Breakins.

On the night of Sept. 26 last, some eight places in Pinckney were broken into or attempts made to. They were the Gulf Gas Station, the Seamon Grocery, Old Dutch Gas Station, White Star Station, Dixie Gas Station, Thos. Read Sons Elevator, Teeple Hardware and Grand Trunk Depot. Mr. Tipton, the agent, surprised him in the depot but he got away. Only money and a few other articles were taken. Ralph Ottwell's car was taken from Pettysville but abandoned when it ran out of gas.

Suspicion was directed to one J. Sinta, arrested last summer for taking an auto but released when the owner failed to appear against him. He formerly lived with the Morris O'Brien family in Webster but became unmanageable. This summer he worked for Mr. Ottwell for a time. Previous to the Pinckney robberies he was sought by Washtenaw county officers for driving away a car that he abandoned at Jackson. At the present he is held in the Washtenaw county jail where he may be tried as Washtenaw county officers claim they have a prior claim to him. Two 38 revolvers stolen from a Whitmore Lake store were found on him. He is said to have readily admitted the Pinckney, Whitmore Lake and Saline crimes.

His procedure is unusual. It seems to have been his habit to commit a number of crimes in one night, taking only money.

CURRENT COMMENT

"By Ye Editor"

The European fracas monopolized the radio most of last week and ended up in a grand poker game between the premiers of England, and France, Mussolini and Hitler with the latter doing most of the bluffing and getting away with it. Czechoslovakia who was being divided up was not even at the conference. Presidents Roosevelt's speech is given credit for the renewal of negotiations and the pause in the war program. However in the end the Czechs are due to get it in the neck. The premiers of England and France are getting lots of criticism in their own countries. Winston Churchill, veteran English statesman accuses Chamberlain of throwing the Czechs to the wolves to gain a temporary respite. However the strength of Chamberlain and Deladier is that the only alternative to their conciliation plan with Hitler is war and their opponents in England and France do not dare come out for open warfare with Hitler. This the people of their do not want unless all other resorts fail. They still remember that they won the world war but lost the peace treaty to Germany.

The American people seem as usual to be making hay while the sun shines. The picture section of a daily last week carried a picture of a ship being loaded with American mules for Germany at New York last week. Although this country is supposed to be absolutely neutral in all European disputes they have always sold war supplies to warring countries or those at the brink of a war. Previous to the entrance of the United States in the world war many factories were engaged in making munitions for the allies in this country. This may have been one of the contributing factors to welding the public opinion in favor of the allies.

Jackson prison seems to be having its yearly scandal. From time immemorial scandal at Jackson has broken out at this institution now called the state prison of South Michigan. This time the only scandal seems to be Walter (Bo) Slear, old time professional baseball player of 25 years ago and in later years an umpire. He is now for many years past athletic director at the prison. The prison has a football team according to the story and borrowed equipment from the Ypsilanti Normal. Slear and three convicts were sent to return this and see if they could get some cast off equipment from the Detroit Lions. According to reports they took in the Detroit-St. Louis ball game and Adamick and Toles fight at night. They were seen in a saloon by a news reporter who recognized them and the fat was in the fire. The warden at Jackson prison was called up and when the four returned to the prison at 12:15 a. m. Slear was suspended. The fact that they got back almost the same day they left should be a feather in their cap. Several years ago the Jackson prison entertainers were secured by the Pinckney Board of Commerce to put on an entertainment at Pinckney. However the Jackson American Legion Band went to Detroit the week previous to attend some function. Being three players short they borrowed three members of the prison band. As we remember it, they got lost somewhere in Detroit and were several days getting back to Jackson. The newspapers gave it plenty of publicity and the tours of the prison entertainers were canceled. However it was later lifted and the entertainers and the prison band have since made many tours.

Campaign managers for Governor Frank Murphy figure his strongest areas in the election are Washtenaw county and the upper peninsula. In the primaries running without opposition he received 845 more votes than all three of his Republican opponents in Wayne county. He had 179,000 votes to 107,000 for Fitzgerald. Murphy also carried the upper peninsula over Fitzgerald by 10,000. In the election they predict Murphy will get Wayne county by 110,000 and the upper peninsula by 20,000.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Policemen seem to have more social security than almost anybody else, if they behave themselves, and yet about 70 of them have committed suicide in New York in the last few years.

Just why "a policeman's life is not a happy one" was not made clear by Gilbert and Sullivan, but members of the New York force are out to find out and do something about it.

Their new and unique "trouble clinic" has been investigating and prescribing. It lists eight reasons why policemen get in distress, and the list includes just eight brands of money trouble. The news today is that the department clinic has official sanction and is opening headquarters in the old World building.

Patrolman Joseph J. Barkard of the traffic squad, an energetic, resourceful self-starter, in the department 20 years, pioneers the new clinic, with the aid of a young patrolman who is a student of psychology at Columbia university.

They brought in Dr. Menas S. Gregory, famous psychiatrist, and Dr. Carmyn J. Lombardo, also widely known as a specialist in mental disturbance. The clinic already has handled 150 cases, some of them of extremely serious nature.

The clinic was established under the Patrolmen's Benevolent association, of which Mr. Barkard was elected president last year. It is said to have been his original idea, suggested by similar work by the American Legion, of which Mr. Barkard is a former New York county commander.

He has been a genial mixer in the department for many years, vice president of the glee club and long active in the affairs of the P. B. A.

A friend of this writer, gathering material for a book on New York, quoted to a young police lieutenant Inspector Williams' remark that "There is more law on the end of a policeman's night-stick than there is in a decision of the Supreme court."

"That's bunk, and it always was," said the lieutenant. "College men are joining both the police and fire departments. J. Edgar Hoover, and others, are helping to bring about a new conception of a policeman. The 'bat-foot' era is ending."

And then, said my friend, the lieutenant disclosed that he was a college graduate and engaged in an informal discussion of psychiatric training and methods in connection with police work. Would the cops have made their own psychological clinic in Inspector Williams' day?

THE late Texas Guinan gave George Raft a pair of gold-plated garters. They brought him luck and he still wears them. The sleek, slow-eyed young Italian, alumnus of New York's Hell's Kitchen, has taken success in his easy dancing stride—he's an ex-hooper—but, like other moving picture stars, he's beginning to look a gift-horse in the mouth.

He doesn't like his role in Paramount's "St. Louis Blues," and the company suspends him. It is one more instance of increasing esthetic sensitivity in movieland.

In and around Hell's Kitchen, he was a professional light-weight boxer, winning 25 fights, kayoed seven times. He was an outfielder for the Springfield (Mass.) minor league team for two seasons. He did well enough, but it was a sideline of impromptu hoofing and spoofing which paved him into the night clubs and the big Broadway shows.

He achieved a sinister, reptilian suggestion in his dancing which made him known fraternally up and down Broadway as "The Old Black-snake."

He was just looking on at the Brown Derby in Hollywood when a prowling director seized him as a "type" and ruthlessly sloughed him into fame and fortune. His 1937 earnings report was $202,666, topped only by Cooper and Baxter, among the male stars. He owns 45 suits of clothes and a piece of Henry Armstrong.

Good light-colored outside paints contain white lead, often mixed with smaller quantities of other pigments. Colored pigments are added to the white to produce tinted paints, or used without the white to produce dark paints. President's Supporters Catch Brunt of Opposition Criticism

Roosevelt Personally Under Direct Fire of Enemies Only Twice; Interference in State Primaries Now Subject of Bitter Controversy; Prestige Will Be Hurt.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—It has been a matter of frequent reference among observers how President Roosevelt's supporters or subordinates, or spokesmen for him, have caught the brunt of opposition criticism. Mr. Roosevelt personally has been under the direct fire of his enemies on only two occasions. He played his political cards so that, when some plan blew up, it was some subordinate or supporter whose neck was found out too far. The President, of course, found himself as the target when he proposed packing the Supreme court with six additional justices of his own choosing and when he sought reorganization of the government, but, generally speaking, the Roosevelt prestige has avoided damage, until now.

Which brings us to the bitter controversy over presidential interference in state primaries, and the second stage—Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that it was a violation of public morality for Republicans to enter a Democratic primary. This controversy is the most heated and has the broadest implications of any of the three in which the storm centered about Mr. Roosevelt's own head. It is likely to be the most far-reaching in its result. The Roosevelt prestige is bound to be damaged whether he wins or loses when the score finally is totaled, and, as far as can be seen now, he will not be able to avoid it.

I remember having written, when the President made his cross-country trip in the dual capacity of President and head of the Democratic party, that it appeared difficult to dissociate the two capacities. I predicted at that time, two months ago, that there were germs of trouble in such an attempt. It was not long before the germs were growing. Mr. Roosevelt's pat on the back for Senator Bulkley of Ohio, and his bold command to the Democratic voters of Kentucky to send Sen. "Dear Alben" Barkley back to the senate brought a shower of ripe verbal eggs onto the head of either the President or the head of the Democratic party. I did not know which personality was naming the favorite Democratic candidate in the primaries then, nor do I yet know. From all of the information from those states since, I gather that the voters in the primaries did not know whether they were voting to support the President of the United States or the head of the Democratic party.

Pat on Back for McAdoo.

Face Slap for O'Connor

Then, on to the Middle West and the Far West, the pat on the back for Senator McAdoo, who has opposition for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California; and, next, in Georgia where Mr. Roosevelt uttered the now famous "God bless you, Walter—but you're no liberal!" to Senator George, to be followed by a direct endorsement of Lawrence Camp for the senatorial nomination against Mr. George. Later, Mr. Roosevelt gave a vicious political slap in the face to Rep. John O'Connor, in New York, and attacked Senator Tydings in Maryland by saying that Representative Davey Lewis ought to have the Democratic nomination.

In addition to these direct interferences in state primaries, Mr. Roosevelt's subordinates—men like Relief Administrator Hopkins and Secretary Ickes—horned into primaries in Iowa, Oregon, Idaho and elsewhere. They were well licked in Iowa and Idaho, and it was the result in the latter state that has brought up the second stage of the controversy.

Idaho's Senator Pope used to say that if any constituent wanted to know his position on a given question, it was necessary only to inquire whether the President was for or against it. Apparently, the voters in Idaho did not like that; they preferred a senator to vote their views rather than one who consistently voted the President's view. Anyway, they nominated Representative Clark, in their Democratic primary. He had something in excess of 3,500 more votes than Mr. Pope.

The licking administered to Senator Pope did not taste well to the President or the coterie of New Deal advisors. Senator Pope obviously did not like it either, and he did the childish thing of emitting a loud and noxious squawk that the nomination was taken from him by Republicans. He said they went into the Democratic primary and gave Representative Clark their votes in sufficient number to override the will of a majority of the Democrats in the state. Senator Pope went to Hyde Park, N. Y., to weep out his story on the shoulders of Mr. Roosevelt, but it has not been made clear whether it was the shoulders of the President of the United States or of the head of the Democratic party. Anyway, there was weeping at Hyde Park.

Takes Important Second Step in Controversy

And after that meeting and when the tears were wiped away so there would be no sniffing, Mr. Roosevelt took the important second step in the controversy. He denounced the Republicans as having "violated public morals" by voting for Mr. Clark in a Democratic primary, although if the ballots were secret as the law requires I have been unable to figure out how either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Pope know that it was the Republicans and not the Democrats who brought about Mr. Pope's defeat. Anyway, Mr. Roosevelt—either as President of the United States or as head of the Democratic party—condemned such terrible things as Republican votes in a Democratic primary. Such a course of action, the President or the head of the Democratic party said, constituted an attempt to destroy the direct primary system. It apparently did not matter to the President or the head of the Democratic party that Mr. Clark had campaigned as a Democrat while Senator Pope was sounding off as a 100 per cent New Dealer.

I have been wondering, since the Hyde Park condemnation of the Republicans, how Mr. Roosevelt's position in the two phases of his course can be reconciled. It never has seemed to me to be so terrible for the President or the head of the Democratic party (or the head of the Republican party if the President be a Republican) to state his views about candidates. Probably, the presidential office ought not to be used that way, but I can not get so excited about it as some writers and some newspapers and some politicians have done. I am inclined to regard such action as the purest of politics and politics is a game and the voters have to recognize that it is a game. There has been a lot of meaningless gushing going on about Mr. Roosevelt's course that just fails to impress me at all.

But, on the other hand, there is an old, old quotation: Consistency, thou art a jewel. In remembering and applying that thought, it appears to me that Mr. Roosevelt has gone off the deep end of the pool without an inflated rubber tube for an arm rest. Indeed, isn't it a rather silly thing, an utterly stupid piece of business, to claim the right to interfere on his own part and tell the common, ordinary garden variety of voter that he can not take a position because he once played on the other team?

Is Roosevelt's Forgettery

Working Well These Days?

Further, I am wondering whether Mr. Roosevelt's forgettery works so well that he fails to recall his appeal in 1932 and again in 1936 for Republicans to follow him, elect him as the savior of the country. It seems to me if it is sauce for the goose, the old gander can eat the same food.

Further, there is a bit of logic about the whole thing that ought to be examined. Take the state of Georgia, for example, where the Democratic nomination means election. A Republican in Georgia would be sunk without a trace, as far as selection of someone to represent him in congress is concerned, if he wanted to have his real choice recorded. His only course, if he preferred one Democratic candidate to another, would be to enter the Democratic primary and vote for one of those candidates. Assume that the Republican voter lives in Idaho. If that voter felt that neither of the candidates for the Republican nomination for the senate measured up to his ideas, why should he not be allowed to vote in the Democratic primary in order to express his preference? It might well be that a Republican voter in Idaho would feel that the Democratic nominee had a better chance of being elected in November than did the Republican nominee. If he felt that way, it appears to me that he would be showing good sense, common horse sense to express his preference on that side of the fence. I believe Mr. Roosevelt's record would look very much better at this point if he had extended his congratulations to Representative Clark in Idaho, and promised him the support of the Democratic national committee in the forthcoming election, as was done by National Democratic Chairman Farley. Surely, that would have been sportsmanship and the attitude of a good loser.

It may be, however—and this is an implication from the indications of the day—that Mr. Roosevelt is trying deliberately to force a realignment of voters throughout the country. He may be seeking to drive radicals into his camp—in case of a third term urge—and the conservatives into another camp.

C. Houston Goudiss Enumerates the Nutritious Values of the BANANA

Explains How Our Most Satisfying Food Fruit Helps to Maintain Health at All Ages.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City

BEFORE the discovery of the vitamins and before we knew as much regarding the body's mineral requirements, interest in food was centered around proteins, carbohydrates and fats. Fruits which in general supply little protein and fat, and widely varying amounts of carbohydrates, received scant consideration as a source of essential nutrients.

But with our steadily increasing knowledge of vitamins and of the importance to the body of a long list of essential mineral elements, fruits have assumed a commanding place in nutrition. And those who follow the primary rule of a well balanced diet and serve fruit twice daily have been rewarded with increased health and vigor.

In addition to their minerals and vitamins, fruits are valued because of their bulk or cellulose which helps to insure regular health habits.

The Most Economical Fruit

Many homemakers consider that fruits as a class are among the more expensive items included in the food budget.

But that statement is far too general and indicates a lack of information concerning the comparative nutritive values of the different kinds of fruit. For example, it has been said of the delicious and economical banana, that it gives more nutritive as well as money value than almost any other food.

Fruits, in general, are frequently divided into two classes; they are known as flavor fruits when they contain 80 per cent or more of water and as food fruits when the water content is less than 80 per cent. Bananas are a food fruit of the first order!

Ripe bananas are rich in carbohydrates and furnish the body with splendid energy values, with a minimum tax on the digestive system.

Double Fuel Value

When fully ripened, this fruit provides quick energy because a certain amount of its sugars are almost immediately absorbed by the body. On the other hand, several hours must elapse before the remaining sugars are completely assimilated. Thus, eating bananas provides a continuous supply of energy for a considerable period. They not only help to promote rapid recovery from fatigue but also furnish a continuing supply of energy which keeps one from becoming hungry again too soon after a meal.

The edible portion of one average-sized banana weighs about 3½ ounces and provides 100 calories. It takes almost the same weight of white potato to yield the same number of calories.

Bananas a Protective Food

Bananas take an important position among the protective foods, because they are a good source of four vitamins, A, B, C and G, and contain a total of 11 minerals. They leave an alkaline-ash following digestion.

Fully ripened bananas are easily digested and are mildly laxative.

Valuable in Child's Diet

Bananas deserve a prominent place in the child's diet from infancy to maturity. Some baby specialists prescribe mashed and strained ripe bananas as one of the first solid foods to be introduced in the infant's diet. The ripe banana is considered to be especially valuable at the time when sugar is withdrawn from the formula and the baby is given whole milk for the first time. The calories in the bananas take the place of the calories previously received from the sugar, and thus weight gains are steadily maintained.

Help Children Gain Weight

Because of their high calorie value, plus their content of minerals and vitamins, bananas may well be used regularly throughout childhood.

Bananas and milk make an excellent food combination because the milk supplements the fruit with protein, fat, minerals and vitamins. This combination is often used as a supplementary lunch for underweight children, and carefully conducted studies have indicated its usefulness in helping youngsters to gain weight.

Almost all children like the taste of bananas and they do not seem to tire of this bland and pleasing fruit. And though the banana is regarded as a solid food, it can, if desired, be mashed and whipped into liquid form and combined with milk to make a healthful and nourishing beverage.

Ideal for the Elderly

If elderly individuals are to maintain top health, fruits should be given a prominent place in their diet. But many fruits are avoided by individuals past middle age, either because their acid taste is displeasing or because they present difficulties in mastication. Ripe bananas, however, practically melt in the mouth. Being easily digested, they are a fortunate choice for elderly persons, providing necessary energy

HOW to SEW RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A LETTER comes telling the story of a clever girl designed for her dressing table. The problem was to make them to fit spaces of unusual size. Her room color scheme was blue and white and a design of white embroidered snow crystals on cool blue linen was what she wanted.

Here is the way she achieved a charming result.

The linen was cut the desired size and narrow hems creased with a warm iron. The hems were then backstitched in white from the right side with three strands of six-strand mercerized embroidery cotton. She wanted the arrangement of the snow crystals to be heiter-skelter—just as they would fall; so she took a handful of coins and tossed them onto the linen. She drew around each coin where it fell.

Still using three strands of the white cotton she took four stitches across the marked circle and then brought the needle out in the center, as shown here in step 2, ready to take a tiny stitch to bind the

For Our Children

Let us do the most we can to make the home a place where the children shall grow helpful, natural, happier, toward the noblest manhood and womanhood. Let us remember that it is the little things that make up the atmosphere. The kind word to the child, the little fault finding, the little nagging—it is just these little things that makes the comfort or discomfort of the home.

OVERWEIGHT. Spoils Your Looks Impairs Efficiency

... And it may seriously affect your health. If you are over 30, and weigh more than the normal weight for your height at the age of 30, the chances are that you would benefit greatly by a rational program of weight reduction. You are invited to write to C. Houston Goudiss for his scientific Reducing Bulletin, which outlines the safe, certain and comfortable method of weight reduction by counting calories. It includes balanced reducing menus and a chart showing the caloric value of all the commonly used foods.

With it, you can easily compute the caloric value of every meal you eat. Just write to C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th St., New York City—a post card will do—and ask for the Reducing Bulletin.

values with a minimum of digestive effort.

Most Versatile Fruit

Bananas are always in season and are usually most inexpensive. It is desirable, of course, that only fully ripened bananas be eaten raw. That is because their constituents vary with the degree of ripeness.

Bananas are picked when they are green and hard, and the carbohydrate content is almost entirely starch. As they ripen, the starch is converted into easily digested sugars.

In fully ripened bananas—those in which brown flecks appear on the yellow skins—the starch has almost entirely disappeared and the flavor has been developed to its highest point. The all-yellow banana is also ripe enough for eating and it is likewise firm enough for cooking. Partially ripe bananas—those which are yellow with a green tip—may be cooked and served as a vegetable or as dessert.

Considering their availability, ease of digestion, high food value and economy, bananas deserve to be classed as one of the staple foods in every well planned dietary.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. R. McK.—When peas and beans cause discomfort, owing to their tendency to form gas, they can frequently be eaten without distress in pureed form.

Miss M. L. A.—Both sweet and white potatoes contain vitamins A, B and C; but sweet potatoes are a much better source of vitamin A than white potatoes.

PREPARATION FOR THE 1939 TAX SALE

George T. Gundry, Auditor General, announced today from his State Capitol Office in Lansing, that all delinquent property for 1936 and prior years will be placed on sale in the various 83 County Treasurer's offices throughout the State on May 2, 1939. Mr. Gundry further added that the sale will be held in compliance with the laws set up by the 1937 legislature.

Preparation for the huge task of posting descriptions and the compilation of the Tax Records has already begun. Although the sale will not be as large in magnitude as compared to the Tax Sale of 1938, it is estimated that approximately 600,000 descriptions will be offered for sale. These descriptions will include all property for which the 1936 taxes have not been paid in full, or the second installment (under the Moratorium Plan) on the 1933, 1934, and 1935 taxes and the fourth installment on the 1932 and prior year's taxes.

Auditor General Gundry has organized a force of experienced employees that are now working on this tremendous clerical job and it is believed it will not be necessary to hire any additional help outside of the regular staff. Tax Sale lists will be completed for all of the 83 counties by March 1st, 1939, although some of the counties will have their lists completed and ready for publication in November 1938, depending on the opening date of Circuit Court in the respective counties. The local newspapers must publish five publications of the Tax Sale list prior to the opening of the Circuit Court.

After successfully completing the Tax Sale of May, 1938, Mr. Gundry was sincerely complimented by many business leaders and county authorities throughout the State on his efficient handling of what at first appeared to be an impossible task. As previously published the 1938 tax sale was the largest ever held in the history of Michigan involving the posting and compilation of some 1,200,000 descriptions.

There are two things that you should give your children—a good example and a good education. A good example is also a safe example.

Recently I had a very strange experience. I saw a young child, whom I had just overheard tell his mother that he had been instructed not to cross in the middle of the block, suddenly and literally yanked off the sidewalk in the middle of the block by his parent and marched across the street.

That kind of example belittles the safety effort and the safety idea in the mind of the child.

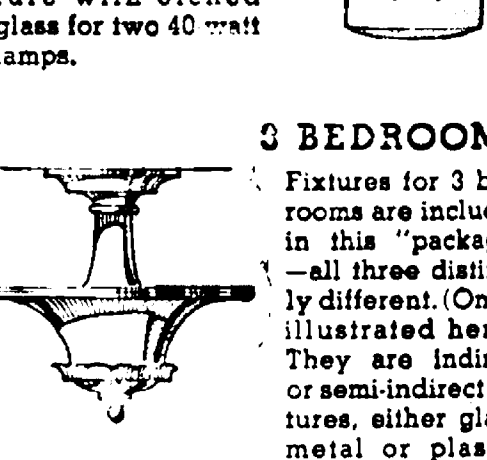

Set the right and the safe example.

Hamburg

Sunday was a red letter day in the annals of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church when the ninety-fifth birthday of the church and a homecoming was celebrated even the weatherman being in league with the auspicious occasion by providing an ideal fall day.

No more important event has ever taken place in Hamburg township than the organization of this country church in the days of the ox team, the inhabitants few and far between and when Indians still roved the forests.

No railroads, no autos, no paved roads, no air planes, no telegraph, no telephones, radios, etc.

The founders, builded better than they knew. The church, the second oldest Episcopal church in Michigan, outside of Detroit, has stood as a shrine, a haven for the weary and appressed for nearly a century of time, lighting the pathway of life of all who have entered its portals.

The church was beautifully decorated with exquisite blooms from the gardens of Earl C. Lear and Walter Kurtz.

With the Bishop the Rt. Rev. H.
Page of Detroit as the officiating clergyman, baptismal and confirmation services were held: those baptized were Howard, Marjory and Ann Keedle of Muskegon Heights great grand children and John R.
Lundy of Detroit great great great grandson of the founder of the church, Dr. Peter Galatian, Miss Mar-rietta Jean Lohmiller, great great granddaughter of the first rector of the church, Rev. A. S. Hollister and Albert Lee Gremelot.

Those confirmed were, Mrs. A.
E. Taylor, Melvin Shannon, and R.
Moon.

The subject of his sermon,
Bishop Page drew from the war crisis in Europe stating, Anger is a passion, even more devastating than fear. Wars come because people get angry and hateful, Race hatred, factionalism, family and industrial hatred. Peace means making concessions.
Holy communion was administered to about 60.

Following the services at the church a potluck dinner was served at the IOOF Hall which was decorated as was the church, followed by a program as follows: hymn, Blesed be the Tie, with Mrs. Henry Fryer at the piano and repetition of the Lord's prayer. Brief opening remarks were made by Miss Jule Adele Ball who introduced James Dickerson, Jr., who acted as toastmaster. Bishop Page was introduced and gave a much appreciated talk. Letters of regret were read from a number of people, Mrs. Etta Twitcheell, 86 years old, the oldest living member of the church and the Ladies Guild responded and was presented with a bou-quet of cut flowers from the church.

The next to respond was Mrs.
Wm. H. Keedle, granddaughter of Dr. Peter Galatian, Benny Kuchar gave a fine talk from the younger generation's viewpoint. Miss Lydia Gremelot of Detroit, field worker of the diocese was next called upon and followed by E. Wray Hinckley, Mrs.
Clifford VanHorn, lay reader, Ar-lain Taylor of Detroit, Walter Scott of Brighton, Miss Bessie Hollister

A Type of Switchboard
Used in 1928

Once upon a time the telephone switchboards of Michigan were like sleepy country crossroads. . . . Today's switchboards are like the busy, well-regulated intersections of the most crowded motor highways, thronged with hurrying traffic day and night.

This traffic of speech has grown until now an average of 3,200,000 calls a day . . . about 2250 every minute . . .
travel over Michigan's 8 lines. It is the efficiency of the modern equipment developed by Bell System research and manufacturing skill . . . together with the work of highly trained telephone employees . . . that enables us to direct each message along the right road to its destination . . . without confusion and without delay - at reasonable cost.

NEW STYLE OF LICENSE PLATES FOR 1940

Larger more legible license plates are to be made for the year 1940, according to Leon E. Case, Secretary of State, who has recently approved of the new design. The 1940 plates are to be white and the length varying with the size of the number stamped on it. The style of numbers will also be changed, making the plates more readable. This has been advocated by the State Police and the Sheriff's Department for several years.

The new plates will be so punched that when attached to the license bracket of the car, there will be a more uniform contact and eliminate rattles and the number of lost plates. The objection for stamping out license plates now nearly worn out have been in service for eight years have been only 15 million pairs of plates. The new dies will also make a different spacing of the numbers.

NEIGHBORING NOTES

The northern lights were plainly visible to people in many parts of the state last Tuesday evening about 10:30 p. m.

Milk production per cow has more than doubled in this country since 1864. This is due to the breeding of higher producing cows.

Michigan dairy cows in 1937 produced $71,427,000 cash income from milk.

John Beach, 52, of Williamston shot and killed himself there on Sept. 15th. He was employed by the McPherson Oil Co. He leaves a widow three sons and two daughters.

H. T. Smith, supt. of Fowlerville schools has been awarded a M. A. degree by the University of Mich.

70 men are now employed by Henry Ford on his Brooklyn project nearly all are local men with families. The deep foundations for the dam are being excavated and poured. A cement chimney stack for auxiliary power has been started and a concrete flume to conduct water from the water wheels built.

The dog quarantine is being strictly enforced in Ingham county. Three Lansing people were arrested for allowing dogs to run at large and were fined $15 each last week.

South Lyon High School took Hartland into camp recently in football 25 to 0.

Dr. Russell Haynor of Howell was united in marriage to Miss Harriett Cornell of Howell on Sept. 24 by Rev. Jones of Hartland.

A marriage license was issued last week to Aaron Dean, 40, Howell and Arloa Ruth Toneray, 36 Howell.

The Brighton Argus claims Mrs. Sarah Newman 95, is the oldest living person in that community.

The Washtenaw sheriff's office will send three deputies to take part in the state pistol shoot at Lansing on October 12th.

Sheriff Andries of Washtenaw county has warned people there to be on the lookout for bogus stove fixers. They claim to represent the Wrought Iron Co. of St. Louis, Missouri. Their usual methods are to examine stoves and offer to repair them. This bill usually exceeds the value of the stove.

TEASE APPETITES BY USING PICKLES

It's easy to tease appetites with tasty pickles but the right combination often is the secret.

That is the deduction of a foods specialist at Michigan State College Miss Roberta Hershey.

She recommends apple chutney for a combination with chicken servings of beef relish when lamb appears on the table, horseradish with beef, and cucumber or tomato to serve with fish.

For those who still are in the pickle making stage in kitchens of Michigan homes, some of Miss Hershey's suggestions will help make better preserves and pickles for winter use.

Best tasting pickles are made of fresh products that have been sorted for size and stage of ripeness. Cider vinegar is preferred for most pickling but colorless distilled is used for pickling onions.

Spices used for pickles and relish are as varied as the countries from which they originate. Cloves, cinnamon, celery seed, pepper, caraway, mustard, allspice, bay leaves, mace, tumeric, and dill are well known.

Mixed whole spices are satisfactory for many different flavors. Put the spices in a cheese cloth bag, then they may be moved from the vinegar after half an hour of simmering.

Soft water is best to use for the brine as the minerals in hard water may interfere with the forming of acid, which is necessary for the curing process.

Safe Hits, No Score

A baseball club can make six hits in a single inning without scoring a run. Here's how: The first batter up singles and is caught stretching it into a double. The third, fourth and fifth batters each hit short singles, making five hits for the inning and filling the bases with two out. The next batsman hits one of the runners with a batted ball. He gets credit for a hit, but the runner is automatically retired. Thus you have six hits in one inning without a score.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, swelling up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of rest and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wise when you get these signs. Doan's Pills have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next morning, while Barbara is telling her mother about her adventure, an urgent phone call comes from Mr. Sentry's office after his departure. Arriving home in the late afternoon, Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed.

"Not much here!" Mr. Sentry said and then: "The police think she was one of the robbers. They're looking for a young Italian who has been paying her some attention; a wild youngster whose father is one of our customers. They found a key in her pocketbook that fits the lock on the back door." He spoke to Ray again. "There are back stairs," he said. "Mr. Loran and I use them on Sundays or when the place isn't open for business. This back door admits to the stairs and our offices. She had this key."

Mrs. Sentry realized that Arthur somehow found comfort in this detailing the day's events; and she felt a dry scorn at Neil Ray's obvious desire to escape. "Afraid of being compromised," she thought; and she thought defiantly that a good many people would be maliciously pleased because the old firm of Sentry and Loran was thus involved in sudden sensational publicity.

Ray had nodded uneasily, and Mr. Sentry went on: "She must have remembered the combination of the safe. It's just an old iron box, bought in my father's time. We never had enough cash on hand to need a real one; and a safe-cracker could have opened this easily enough. But it was opened last night by someone who knew the combination. She probably learned it last summer when she worked for us."

He hesitated, added then, "The police seem to think she let this fellow in, opened the door for him, and opened the safe, and then for some reason they quarreled and he shot her."

Mary said: "It sounds like the sort of ruthless, reasonable things a cocaine addict might do. Don't you think so, Neil?"

Ray did not answer. Mrs. Sentry said, "Don't be so medical, Mary!" She thought: Mary is playing a part! Pretending! I wonder why.

And she added: "The office telephoned, Arthur, just after you left this morning. I suppose it was about this?"

"Yes," he assented. "Miss Randall found her, when she got there at eight o'clock."

Mrs. Sentry wondered, shivering in spite of herself, whether any of the women at the Furness luncheon had known; wondered whether they had been watching her to see how she took it.

"It must have been just a few minutes past when they phoned," she said. "Didn't anyone hear the shot?"

Mr. Sentry shook his head. "No. Or at least they haven't found anyone yet who did," he amended. "You see, she was in the hall on the third floor. The hall has no windows, and there's a brick wall between it and the next building, and if the office doors happened to be closed—" He added, "And of course there aren't many people around on the streets down there till early morning."

Mary said: "The poor girl! I hope they get the man. Father, did she have any family?"

"Not in Boston. She came from Dennis; but she'd been living in a room out in Somerville, in a private house, where the husband was out of a job so they had to take in boarders. She'd had work at odd times, a day here, a week there, filling in; but no steady job. The police say she'd been running around with this young Italian; and he was missing today. His father claims he's up in Maine buying cider apples, but they haven't located him. And—apparently there were other men with whom she was intimate, too."

He shook his head, poured another cocktail, said, as though thinking aloud: "I suppose she was hard up, and desperate. If we'd had any idea, we might have made a place for her, given her something to do. That's the tragic thing about living in a city. Terrible things happen all around you, perhaps even to people you know; and till they happen, you never even suspect. People are all actors, aren't they? They wear a mask, put up a good front, pretend that everything's all right—till suddenly everything is all wrong!"

"No need to make speeches, Arthur!" Mrs. Sentry commented dryly.

"It has disturbed me a lot," he confessed.

Mrs. Sentry said: "Nonsense! It doesn't concern us! It happened in your office, of course; but it might as well have happened anywhere. It doesn't concern us at all!" She was speaking more to herself than to him. "We know no more about it than anyone else," she declared, shaping for herself the attitude she would present like an armor to their friends.

He nodded, said no more. Doctor Ray moved toward Mrs. Sentry to say good-by. But before he could speak there were voices in the hall, and Mrs. Sentry recognized Barbara's.

Then Barbara and Linda Dane appeared in the wide doorway. Barbara had an afternoon paper in her hand.

When the sempstress was done with her that morning, Barbara went home with Linda Dane for luncheon. These two and Phil Sentry—Mary, the older sister, had always held herself aloof from their cheerful exuberances—had since childhood been much together; and now that Phil was at Yale, Barbara and Linda were devoted. They went after lunch, in Linda's car, to a moving picture theater; and later

"I Hope They Get the Man. Father, Did She Have a Family?"

they met Bill Cates and Rod Hepburn at the Ritz for tea.

When they came out on Newbury Street afterward, screaming newsboys pushed extras in their faces. Barbara saw a headline:

PRETTY TYPIST SLAIN

One of the boys bawled: "Produce House Murder! Read all about it!" And Bill Cates looked at the paper which the boy held, and said softly, in a startled tone, "Hullo!" He bought a paper, folded it in his hand, said: "Barbara, Linda, come along. Let's get out of this."

They followed him toward Linda's car, and Barbara asked gaily, "What is it, Rod? Why the big mystery?"

But he did not laugh. He opened the paper again and looked at it, and they all looked over his shoulder; and Barbara as she read felt something inside her body contract into a crawling, shuddering knot. She thought she was choking, and her eyes ached; and Linda's hand was tight in sympathy and reassurance on her arm, and Bill said, "Gosh, that's rotten!"

Barbara when she spoke did not recognize her own voice. She said, "Give it to me, Bill." She took the paper, read the unbelievable lines again.

"Steady, Barb!" Linda whispered. "It's all right."

Barbara was husky. "I've got to go home, Linda. Mother will need me. She'll be wild. Can we, please?"

"Of course. Here's the car."

Bill and Rod helped them in. Bill said lamely: "Don't let it get you, Barb. Just the damned tabloids, making a sensation out of nothing!" Rod said, "Keep smiling, Barb."

"Of course," she told them. "Thanks for a lovely tea. See you soon." The car was moving. "Good-by!"

On the way home, Linda drove and watched the traffic, and Barbara read the story in the paper, reciting to Linda the essentials.

But she was cold with terror at her own thoughts. When she and Professor Brace emerged from the Tunnel last night, her father had passed them in his car, coming from the direction of the office. The dead girl had been found in the office this morning. Killed when? She could find in the paper no answer to that question, and her eyes blurred so that she could not read.

Linda said: "Don't worry, Barb. It just happened to happen there! It might have happened anywhere."

"Mother will be just sick!" Barbara whispered. "She's so proud, Linda! And she hates newspapers!"

"They'll forget all about it in a day or two."

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

"And father, too!" Barbara shivered uncontrollably. "Golly, Linda, I'm scared."

"Bless you, there's nothing to be afraid of!"

Barbara nodded. "Of course not! I'm not afraid. It's just—upsetting. I'll have to cheer them up at home. They'll be pretty low! Linda, come in with me when we get there. We'll have to put on an act, make them laugh somehow, make them see the funny side."

"Steady, Barb! You're trembling!"

"I can't help it. And my teeth keep chattering!"

"You poor kid!"

"For Heaven's sake don't sympathize with me or I'll bawl! I've got to laugh or I'll scream, Linda. I am scared, I guess! Golly, I wish Phil was home."

"He'll come when he sees the papers. But Barb, it's nothing. A week from now everyone will have forgotten it. Of course it's pretty tough right now, though."

And Linda urged: "Throw that paper away, Barb. Don't look at it any more."

Barbara began to cry without a sound, sitting bolt upright, her eyes exciting thing? We came out of the Ritz with Bill Cates and Rod Hepburn and there were two newsboys just screaming and pushing papers into our faces, and Rod saw your name in one of the headlines, father. So we bought the paper. I think it's perfectly exciting. Did you know her? Is she as pretty as her pictures? I love murders, they're so gruesome! Think of having one right in the family! Look!"

She opened the paper, read the headlines aloud: "Pretty typist slain. Police seek missing lover of dead girl. Robbery and murder—"

Her mother said sharply: "Barbara! After all, it's not 'right in the family!'"

"You know what I mean, mother!" Barbara protested. "I mean we're—well, probably we'll all be witnesses at the trial. I know I'll be scared to death. I wonder if he's good-looking. Father, did you ever see him? This Italian?" She came to sit on the arm of his chair. "You don't need to pretend you're all so calm. I'll bet you're as excited as I am, really."

No one spoke for a moment. Then Neil Ray said uncomfortably, "I really must go."

He rose; and Linda cried as though relieved: "Heavens, it's after six o'clock! So must I!"

Mary went with Doctor Ray into the hall. Barbara looked beseechingly at Linda; but Linda shook her head, so Barbara and Linda followed the others. Mrs. Sentry and her husband were left alone.

He twirled the cocktail glass in his hand, looking at it fixedly, not meeting Mrs. Sentry's eyes. She heard the good-bys at the door; heard Mary and Barbara hesitate, and whisper, and start upstairs. Then she heard Mary say in a low, indignant tone: "You're outrageous, Barbara! This isn't a joke!"

"I know," Barbara agreed, softly. "But you all looked so glum! I tried to put on an act, cheer you

Then voices trailed away. Mrs. Sentry thought that was like Barbara, to seek to make a jest out of this. And in very poor taste, she decided. She said to her husband, "Arthur, we must just ignore this!"

"I don't know why it should hit me so hard," he confessed. "But—she looked so little and pitiful, lying there. And of course there were police, and photographers, and reporters around all day. Gus is in New York, so it all fell on me. It wore me down."

"In New York? Mary's going there to dinner tonight."

"He went over yesterday. Didn't expect to be back till Sunday."

Oscar came to say that dinner was served, and Mrs. Sentry remembered that an afternoon paper was delivered to the kitchen, so the servants already knew; and everyone would know, either tonight or in the morning. All their friends . . .

She said quietly: "Will you call the girls, Oscar? They're upstairs!" He disappeared, and she asked her husband, "Are you ready, Arthur?"

"I'll wash my hands," he decided. She had not, since returning from hearing Sarah Glen, had time to order her hair; and she went to do so, and she thought she and Arthur might go down to their summer home in York Harbor in the morning, and stay till this sensation died.

But it would be better not to seem to run away . . .

Mary sat with them while they dined, waiting for Jimmy Endle to call for her. She proposed making excuses, staying at home; but Mrs. Sentry said: "Of course not, Mary! After all, this doesn't touch us! Certainly not any more than it does Mr. and Mrs. Loran, and they're giving the dinner."

streaming, the paper in her hands. "That's it, go on and cry," Linda approved. "Then you'll feel better."

And when presently they came within a block of the Sentry home she stopped the car. "Now, powder your nose," she directed. "You can't go in looking like a wreck!"

Not till she was satisfied that Barbara had repaired damages did she drive on. Outside the door Barbara pleaded:

"Come in, Linda. Back me up. Mother will be just sunk. I'll play the idiot, till I either make her laugh or make her so mad at me she'll forget this mess. Ready?"

"Well—if you want," Linda said doubtfully.

They went in; they came to the living-room door. But Barbara, when she saw her father here, remembering last night, was shocked and still for a moment, stammered doubtfully, "Oh, you're home, father!" She saw the Transcript in his hands.

Mrs. Sentry said stiffly, "Don't be obvious, Barbara!"

Barbara hesitated; but then she became suddenly animated. "You've seen the papers! Darn it, I wanted the fun of telling you!" She cried: "Isn't it all thrilling? Mother, don't you think it's the most

Wild and Domestic Turkeys
It's not such a far cry from wild to domestic turkeys. Spanish conquerors found the first turkeys, closely related to the wild birds, in Mexico. They took turkeys back to Europe around 1000. In 90 years, by the time the Pilgrims came to America, turkeys were common in England. The birds were probably named for their cry of "turk, turk, turk."

Enjoy Making These Practical Designs

IF YOU like to look slimmer than you are, these designs are made especially for you! They are practical, pretty, easy to make,—the kind you'll use time and again, for they adapt themselves to every season of the year. Each is accompanied by a detailed sewing chart, to guide beginners. If you've never done much sewing, start out with the apron, then make the dress, and you'll get a real thrill out of the way it looks.

Trim, Fitted Apron.

Just five steps in your detailed sewing chart,—and presto, your apron is finished! It fits so slimly and smoothly over the hips that it doesn't add a fraction of bulk. It protects your frock thoroughly, front, back, and up top. And it simply cannot slip off at the shoulders, when you have your hands in the dough! Percale, gingham, calico and batiste, plain colored or in pretty prints, are nice for this design. Trim it with braid or bias binding.

Slenderizing Afternoon Dress.

You'll find this one of the most becoming and comfortable dresses you ever had, and it's just as smart as it can be! It has the new kind of skirt, smooth-hipped and almost straight. Inside tucks on the shoulders give you the fullness you need over the bust. The v-neck, cut deep and rather narrow, is always flattering to large women. Make it up, for right now, with the short sleeves, in chiffon, georgette or soft silk crepe. Later, make it with the smart, long bishop sleeves, in thin wool or sheer velvet.

The Patterns.

1479 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material; 5 yards of braid or bias binding to trim.

1577 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material, for short sleeves; 5 1/2 yards for long sleeves; 1 1/2 yards edging for neck and bow.

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS

he was a member of the anti-Fitzgerald block and with Senator Munshaw blocked most of Fitzgerald's bills. Evidently he has since smoked the peace pipe with Fitzgerald. Vern Brown is a Mason editor not noted for party regularity. During Gov. Brucker's administration he wrote a series of articles on governmental extravagance which were blamed by many for Brucker's defeat. It was reported that Barnard was opposed to him but evidently the gaining of the secretary of state nomination appeased him. Senator Miller Duncel is from Three Rivers and has been on the banking committee.

This convention is no worse or better than any previous one in which there were many candidates for a few offices. In such cases the results are always obtained by vote swapping and such skulduggery. Yet the big dailies want the primaries abolished and all nominations made by convention. The primary may not be perfect but it is one hundred percent better than the old convention system of making nominations.

As predicted the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan was ignored by both convention.

Among those from Pinckney who attended the convention were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Read, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Schafer and Stanley Dinkel. Stanley informs us that the Livingston county delegates split about 50 50 on the contest for the nomination for attorney general, part of them voting Tom Read and part for O. L. Smith.

WHEAT INSURANCE PAYMENTS DUE ONLY ON ACTUAL ACRE AGE

Farmers who have applied for wheat crop insurance on their 1939 crops, and who now plan to seed a smaller acreage, may pay for their insurance on the basis of actual acreage to be planted, according to Earl Grubb, Livingston County Crop Insurance Supervisor.

(One of the main points brought out at the State meeting of crop insurance supervisors held in East Lansing, last Saturday.) Earl Grubb said was that a farmer should pay his premiums as soon as the crop is planted in order to get the maximum protection. If the farmer should put off payment of his premium until after his crop is planted, he would not be protected against early crop loss due to such causes as wire worm fall winds of winterkill which might catch the crop in the early part of the season. Crop insurance does not go into effect until the premium is paid. Farmers who have filed applications but who have not paid their premiums are not protected.

Mr. E. L. Rhoades, Senior Marketing Specialist from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., told the county crop insurance supervisors attending the meeting that about fifty per cent of the farmers in other sections of the country who had paid their premiums for 1939, had also paid for their 1940 insurance. Rhoades emphasized the fact that premiums paid this year would be paid in (cheap wheat) insurance against crop failure in 1939 or 1940 would be then guaranteed through payments of premiums when the price of wheat was low.
