

Livingston County Doctors Entertain Supervisors, Press

This Meeting was for the Purpose of Establishing a County Health Unit. If an Appropriation is Made The State and Federal Governments will Match It.

For a number of years past the Livingston County Medical Society has gone on record in favor of a County Health Unit. A number of counties have established health units and in none of these have they failed to function.

Most people have the wrong idea about a health unit. Such a unit does not prescribe medicine, perform operations or in any way infringe on the practice of the county doctors. Their work is entirely towards the prevention of contagious and communicable diseases such as T. B., Shiga, dysentery, Siphilis, Small Pox, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, etc. They also work on sanitation.

The meeting was held at the Michigan State Sanitarium and a banquet was served to about 60 doctors, dentists, editors and members of the board of supervisors. Dr. Bernard Glenn of Fowlerville, president of the county medical society presided. Dr. John Gudakunst, State Commissioner of Health, described the duties and purposes of a county health unit and how to go about getting one. The health unit consists of a director, two nurses, a clerk and a sanitation man. The state appropriates $3000 for this and the federal government, crippled children's fund, Senator Cousins fund and other agencies enough to make up about $7500. The total cost is about $10,000. At the present time the county and townships are forced to pay many hospital bills for people, most of which are in the advanced stages of disease. The county health unit seeks to get these victims in the earlier stages and arrest the disease before it gets to the serious stage. Dr. Gudakunst was in board of health work for 15 years and thoroughly understands his work.

Dr. L. F. Foster, secretary of the Michigan Medical Society, Dr. Paul Urmstra of the society, both of Bay City and Dr. Howard Cummings of the medical dept. of the U. of M. also were introduced and spoke briefly. Following this a round table conference followed and the health commissioner and doctors answered questions concerning the health unit. A representative of the health dept. will explain the proposition before the county board of supervisors this week.

Among those present were Messrs. Harmon and Rudnicki of the Fowlerville Review, W. H. Cansfield of the Livingston County Press and P. W. Curlett of the Pinckney Dispatch. All the doctors and dentists of Howell and Fowlerville attended as well as Doctor Duffy of Pinckney and Supervisors Norman Reason, Ralph Glenn, Burr Clark, Lyle Redinger and Henry Itself, Rep. Charles Adams, was also present.

GET ACQUAINTED PARTY

At eight o'clock on Thursday evening, October 20, Pinckney High School will open its doors for a get-acquainted party, the occasion being planned to honor members of the faculty, and to further co-operation between parents and teachers. An interesting program is being prepared, and all patrons and friends of the school are urged to be present. Guests are requested either to bring cake or sandwiches.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes Mrs. Mildred Elliott, Miss Blanche Martin, Mrs. Pauline Vedder, Mrs. Edna Spears and Mrs. Anna Doyle.

About twenty Masons from here went to Stockbridge last Thursday night and conferred a third degree for that lodge. A banquet was served following the degree work. Four members of Washtenaw lodge of Dexter accompanied the Pinckney delegation there and assisted in the work. They were Ira Ott, Ellis Green, Henry Jewell and Henry Steinbach.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

The following marriage licenses were issued in this county last week: Carl Hulverson, 23, Detroit, Ellen Schultz, 19, Cohasset, Orlando Daniels, 29, Ocoola, Irene Bergin, 24, Ocoola, Glenn Palmerton, 30, Fowlerville, Eva VanAmberg, 20, Fowlerville, Wm. Biglow, 36, Ocoola, Hazel Jay Schmidt, 30, Howell.

Former Business Man Dies

Fred Slayton, former Pinckney Mayor and Putnam Supervisor Dies at Howell Monday

Fred Slayton, 62, former well known business man died at his home in Howell on Monday morning following a paralytic stroke. The deceased was born near Ypsilanti and spent the early part of his life there where he engaged in farming on a farm near the present location of the York Hospital. He also sold milk in Ypsilanti. Later he purchased a farm in Webster township where he lived for a number of years. Selling this he moved to Dexter where he was in the livery business and later owned a grocery store.

Coming to Pinckney in 1925 he purchased the Ford Sales & Service. Later he became a Chevrolet dealer. During his residence in Pinckney he took an active part in public life and was elected supervisor, mayor of the village and president of the board of commerce. In 1935 he purchased the Chevrolet agency at Howell which he operated with his son, Glenn.

The deceased was married to Miss Josie Collar of Flat Rock in 1896. Two children were born to this union, a daughter, Hazel, now Mrs. Edward Parker of Pinckney and a son, Glenn, associated with him in business for a number of years. Mrs. Slayton died at Pinckney on Jan. 6, 1935. In 1937 he was united in marriage to Miss Jenn Anderson, Flint, who, with his two children, survives him.

The funeral was held at the McDonald Funeral Home at Howell on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. Rev. M. Lucas officiating. Burial was in the Ypsilanti cemetery, Livingston Lodge, No. 76 F. & A. M. of which the deceased was a member attended the services and exemplified the Masonic burial service at the grave.

Ann Arbor Wins 6 to 0

Local Boys Put up Improved Defensive Game but Fail on Offensive. Recovery of Four Ann Arbor Fumbles Holds Score Down.

Pinckney High School football team held Ann Arbor high school to a 6 to 0 score loss last Friday. The game was played in Pinckney territory with the visitors, outgaining Pinckney by a large margin. Ann Arbor forward passed a number of times successfully and made some long gains on end runs. They threatened to score at least four times after making a touchdown in the first quarter but they lost the ball on fumbles which they got inside the 20 yard line. Pinckney recovered four such fumbles and prevented four touchdowns.

While Pinckney showed much improvement on defense, there is much room for improvement in the offensive play. Pinckney made only three first downs, all of which were down in their own territory. They lost a number of passes all of which were incomplete. Capt. VanBuren and Bill Baughn were the most successful ground gainers. Pinckney's punting was better than Ann Arbor's and they were more successful in blocking fumbles. Ann Arbor had the complete teams which they all played.

Next Friday the Pinckney team will play Manchester in the Manchester beat Ann Arbor 10 to 0 before Pinckney played them 14 to 0.

Ann Arbor scored their touchdown early in the first quarter after making a long gain on a pass and then going over the center on a power play. The try for extra point a pass, was incomplete.

CURRENT COMMENT

"By Ye Editor"

Elton Eaton, editor of the Mouth Mail, of Salt Fork and Mouth, is out gunning for the state convention system of nominating candidates for state office which is so rotten it stinks. His method of accomplishing this will be circulating petitions to get an amendment on the ballot providing for abolishing the convention and nominating the balance of the state candidates at the primary when the governor and others are nominated. Mr. Eaton hails from Wayne county where Ed Barnard is Hitler and in an interview he states he was notified he was a delegate to the Republican state convention by post card and told that a private train awaited to take him to the convention. Eaton is on the independent sort so he ignored this, put on his Sunday suit, laced his shoes and drove to Grand Rapids himself. Arriving there he started to look for Barnard's headquarters. After considerable search he found them but the man in charge refused to issue his credentials because Eaton would not tell whether he would follow Barnard's orders. When he asked how he should get into the convention he was told to go to a certain door and rap a certain number of times. At length he got in by using his press card. When Barnard attempted to vote the Wayne county delegation for Thomas Ford for Lt. Governor, Mr. Eaton demanded a poll of the delegation. When Mr. Barnard announced that Eaton was not a delegate. The list of delegates was read and lo and behold Eaton's name was not there. Due to Barnard's iron rule of the Wayne delegation O. L. Smith, the favorite candidate for attorney general was beat in for the nomination of attorney general. While we have not always held with Mr. Eaton in all his projects we think he is 100 percent right this time. The convention is outmoded, out of date and ought to be scrapped. It is the sole remaining relic of the revolution following the revolutionary war and should be thrown on the rubbish pile. The two leading political parties should find some other method of perpetuating themselves.

The attendance at Michigan State College has increased by leaps and bounds until it has reached 5,789 percent. This is double what it was five years ago. Many recoveries have been ascribed for this. The chief one is that many new departments have been added to the college in recent years.

Van Brown, Republican candidate for auditor general, always plays a hard hand and did so at the recent Republican state convention. According to the paper, the Ingham County News, he refused to attend at state chamber sessions and refused to swap votes with any so-called boss. He adds that some candidates who did find themselves traded off the ticket. However, he says the best thing that favored his victory is that the delegates spent two hours fighting over the attorney general nomination and the Wayne delegation only had a few minutes to nominate the auditor general which came last and catch their return train back to Detroit. So, his practical won by default.

Although the celebrated Murphy-Fitzgerald debate on strike settlements is off and Senator Vandenberg refuses to act as a pinch hitter, two gubernatorial candidates will meet at Bay City on October 17, at the Michigan Tourists meeting. They will be seated at the same table but their talks are supposed to be non-committal. We doubt that they will be, however. The governor first refused, then accepted when he found out Fitzgerald would be there.

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Significance of Fruits and Vegetables; Tells the Truth About Canned Foods

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GENERATION ago, except in mid-summer, fruits were a luxury that only appeared, with nuts, at the end of a festive meal, and vegetables, except for the root crops, had no regular place in the daily diet. But when scientists established the importance of mineral salts in human nutrition, these two groups of foods assumed a position of commanding importance, because next to milk and eggs, they are the chief conveyors of minerals from the soil to man.

With the discovery of vitamins they achieved new distinction, because in their content of these vital substances, they rank with milk and eggs as "protective" foods.

Foods That Safeguard Health

In addition to providing nutrients that are indispensable for buoyant health and normal growth, they possess another important virtue: the indigestible cellulose or bulk yielded by the fibrous framework of the leaves, stems and fruits of plants, has a natural laxative value which helps to insure normal elimination. And finally, they are extremely useful in helping to maintain the acid-base balance of the body, for all vegetables and most fruits yield an alkaline-ash following digestion.

Green Vegetables for Iron
Fruits and vegetables supply varying amounts of practically every mineral element the body requires. They do not compare with milk as a source of calcium, but substantial amounts of this bone-and-tooth-building substance are to be found in leaf and stem vegetables, carrots, oranges, figs and strawberries. Moreover, investigations have demonstrated that calcium from vegetables is well utilized by adults.

Green vegetables, in general, are outstanding as a source of iron. And it has been further established that their iron is better absorbed and becomes more completely available for nutrition than iron from some other sources. Some fruits are also valued for their iron content, the more notable including oranges; tomatoes, which are botanically a fruit, though they are classed as a vegetable; strawberries, blackberries, raspberries and huckleberries; and dried figs, dates and prunes.

Vegetables for Vitamin A
We usually think of milk and other dairy products as our most important sources of vitamin A. But recently, it has been determined that the thin green leaves of vegetables are also outstanding in this respect. Weight for weight, when fresh, escarole is more than five times as rich as butter. Young green peas and green string beans are also a good source of this vitamin as are tomatoes, carrots, and sweet potatoes.

Sources of Vitamin C
Vitamin C, which is essential for maintaining the health of teeth and gums and for preventing the degeneration of muscle fibers generally, is obtained almost entirely from fruits and vegetables. The principal sources of this vitamin are the citrus fruits; raw and canned tomatoes and canned tomato juice; strawberries; raw carrots, onions and yellow turnips.

As this vitamin is easily destroyed by heat in the presence of oxygen, the amount present in any fruit or vegetable is greatly reduced by the average home cooking methods. On the other hand, this and other vitamins, as well as minerals, are usually well retained in commercially canned fruits and vegetables.

What About Canned Foods?
I frequently receive letters from readers who question the merits of canned foods. They ask whether it is true that canned foods are devoid of vitamins; whether canned foods are wholesome for the moment their rich nourishment is sealed in cans.

Similarly the fruits and vegetables designed for canning are allowed to mature on tree or vine. This means that they develop maximum flavor and vitamin content. Then they are picked, rushed to nearby canneries and hermetically sealed in cans. The sealed cans are then cooked at high heat so as to destroy any bacteria which might be present. Because they are protected from the air during the cooking process, and because the cooking liquors are sealed in the cans, they retain a maximum amount of minerals and vitamins. It is because canned foods are so definitely superior in this respect that physicians encouraged the canning of strained fruits and vegetables for infants and young children.

Fallacies Disproved

Canned foods will keep indefinitely without spoilage, as long as nothing occurs to make the can leak. It is not necessary to remove canned food from the container as soon as the tin is opened, though many homemakers often do so because the food presents a more attractive appearance in a dish or bowl. A hissing sound when opening does not mean that the contents of a can are spoiled, but rather that there was a vacuum in the can, which the air is rushing in to fill.

Thus canned fruits and vegetables are not only "as good as" fresh ones, but are often superior in food values. Every homemaker should see to it that she uses both liberally in the diet of every member of her family, as a means of providing liberal amounts of minerals and vitamins.

Questions Answered

Mrs. A. B. M.—There is not the slightest reason why a normal person should not drink coffee after middle age unless the beverage has been expressly forbidden by a doctor. On the contrary, many people find both coffee and tea extremely comforting in their later years.

It Must Be Admitted Waiter Was Not Tactful

The customer was raging and fuming as the manager came up. "What is the matter, sir?" asked the manager.

"Discharge that waiter at once!" demanded the diner. Regarding the boiled egg which had been served, the manager said:

"I'm very sorry about this egg, sir, but I can't discharge the waiter for that. After all, he wasn't to know that there was a chicken in it."

"Perhaps not," snapped the customer. "But when I told him there was, he needn't have taken away my spoon and brought me a knife and fork."

Norse Seamen

Hardy, indeed, are Norway's seamen. Though Norway ranks but forty-seventh in population among the major nations, her merchant marine is fourth largest in the world. Since the days of the Vikings, Norwegian seamen have specialized in long ocean trips. Even today they carry most of the cargoes from America's Gulf states to Europe.

In the days of sailing ships, too, Norwegian skippers began taking their families to sea because ocean voyages took many months. The sailors' superstition that women are bad luck to a ship, never bothered them.

'Hill-Climbing' Boats

A unique steamship service operates between the East Prussian towns of Elbing and Deutsch Eylau, a distance of 40 miles. Part of the trip is made on a canal and part on a railroad, whose specially designed trucks pick up the little vessels and quickly carry them over four long hills. These "hill-climbing boats" have rendered unnecessary the construction of 20 locks.—Collier's Weekly.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 40), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizziness, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 5 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vitality to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WORTH TRYING!

Don't Neglect Them! Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of all excess of waste matter. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. IN HOMES ENTICES PESTS

Moths hunt with their systems of scent give comfort to house-holds as well as to humans. Clothes moths, carpet beetles, cockroaches and silverfish are the favored pests of the home.

In the entomology department at Michigan State College, this problem is being solved by suggestions that are the result of the joy and energy of the winter activities of the pest.

The housewife who values her home and furniture must protect them year round against insects. Frequent brushing, sunning, and airing during the winter, as well as scrupulous cleaning of all cracks and corners of closets and other storage places, will do much to save clothes from damage. Wool sweaters, socks, or other garments that are even slightly soiled need constant attention because they are particularly appetizing to moths.

Clothes that are rarely worn should be cleaned and packed in moth proof containers. Naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene flakes give added protection to stored clothes.

Cleanliness is not only a cheap and effective protection against the clothes moths and carpet beetles but also against kitchen insects.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her aunt, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom she slaps down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next day Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's. Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Knide, Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her room for three days during August. He goes home to help. Sentry is arrested and booked for murder. Dan Fisher explains the evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of Sentry's, was found in the girl's purse, and that Sentry, too, had been away those three days in August. Brace calls, and backs up Barbara in her denial that Sentry could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing Sentry on the road.

"Arthur was always losing keys," Mrs. Sentry assented, and realized with a faint shock of terror that she had spoken of her husband in the past tense, and then, with a deeper tremor, that Hare seemed not to have noticed, as though it were natural for her to speak of him so.

She said hurriedly: "I hear the girls coming downstairs. Let's not talk about details, Dean!" Her eyes met him for a moment, held his; and his after a moment were lowered, as though some word had passed between them.

Phil argued, "But just the same—" Then he stopped as Barbara and Mary appeared in the doorway.

"Morning, children," Mrs. Sentry said lightly. "Sleepy-heads!" Barbara saw Dean Hare; she cried: "Oh, have you seen father, Mr. Hare? When will they let him come home?"

"I'm afraid not right away, Barbara," he confessed. "You know, these things take time."

"But they know he didn't do it!" Barbara insisted.

"Well, of course, we know—" "They know it, too!" the girl urged. "I told Mr. Flood—"

Mrs. Sentry spoke quickly, almost desperately. She knew what Barbara was about to say; that Mr. Sentry had come home on the night of the murder at a quarter of one. But if Barbara said that, Dean Hare would know Arthur had lied to him. She fought instinctively to protect Arthur from that discovery.

"Sit down, Barbara, Mary," she said. "After all, there's breakfast to be eaten, our routine to go on."

Barbara insisted: "But mother, I—"

"Barbara!"

Barbara sat down, puzzled by her mother's manner; and Mrs. Sentry thought, amazed at herself: I'm like an ostrich, hiding my head in the sand, trying to pretend, to blind myself—She said: "We've got to keep our heads, our sense of proportion. We must go on eating, for instance!"

Mary said in a low tone: "Must we? Pretend nothing has happened? We won't fool anyone but ourselves."

Mrs. Sentry ignored her. She asked the lawyer, in polite and empty tones, as one makes conversation with a strange dinner partner, "How's Olive, Dean?" Olive was Mrs. Hare.

"She wants to come over this afternoon—if you'd like."

"Of course!"

Mary said grimly: "I'm surprised she's willing to. I expect most people—"

Barbara cried, furiously: "Mary! You talk as though you thought father really did it!" And she said: "We must all go see him, right away! We'll all go together."

Mary said, "I want to see Neil!" She added, "This—he and I must decide what to do."

The doorbell rang, and Oscar went to answer it, and Phil followed him into the hall. Mrs. Sentry suggested: "Ask Neil to dinner, if you—like, Mary. Or to tea?"

Mary hesitated, nodded; then Linda Dane came in with Phil. "Mother said it was too early for me to come," she confessed quietly.

"She's coming a little later, Mrs. Sentry. But I didn't want to wait. I knew you'd be up."

"There's nothing to see!" Mary told her coldly. "We're not a side-show!"

Mrs. Sentry protested, "Mary!" But Linda said: "It's all right, Mrs. Sentry. I know how you all must feel; but—I didn't come to be curious, Mary. Please don't feel I'm prying. We've always—at least, Barbara and Phil and I have always been such good friends."

Barbara said, "Darling!" And Phil said, "Good kid, Lin!" Dean Hare rose to go, and he nodded to Phil so that the boy went with him to the car.

"Phil," he suggested then, "don't let your sisters or your mother go to see your father yet. Not today. I shouldn't even go myself, if I were you. In a day or two, yes; but just now he's terribly shocked. It would distress any of you to see him; and I think it would be harder for him to—keep his self control."

"Gosh! I suppose so," Phil agreed. He urged, "I want him to know we're—with him, though!"

"I'll tell him," the attorney promised.

But then Mrs. Sentry came to the open door. "Oh, Dean," she called, "will you arrange for me to see Arthur, let me know when I'm to come?"

Hare looked to Phil for support; but Phil said, "I know it will do him good to see mother, Mr. Hare." And the lawyer surrendered.

"Very well," he agreed. "If you—"

Oscar came to summon Mrs. Sentry to the telephone. "Mr. Loran calling," he explained. She departed, and Hare said doubtfully:

"I still think it's a mistake, Phil, for her to go. Mr. Loran came

He said: "Mrs. Sentry wants to see Mr. Sentry this morning. I'll be with her. Could you hold off on the questions till this afternoon?"

Irons reflected: "Well, the Grand Jury's sitting, and the D. A.'s idea was to give them the evidence we've got, tomorrow." He looked at Hare. "I understand you and Mr. Flood agreed not to arraign him before?"

"Yes."

Irons looked at Phil apologetically. "It was hunch, as much as anything, when I booked him," he confessed. "But the D. A. got some stuff last night, and—I'll want to have all the dope I can get, for the Grand Jury."

"Of course," the lawyer agreed. "But this afternoon will do, to—ask your questions. Suppose I meet you here at two."

Phil, listening, felt himself shiver; his teeth pressed hard together to keep them quiet. There was something in their tones deeply terrifying. He was almost relieved when Dean Hare drove away, and he himself was left with Inspector Irons.

When Hare departed, the other men who had come in the police car approached, and Irons introduced them to Phil. Inspector Hays, Sergeant Kane, Officer Regan.

And the Inspector suggested then, ters looking to him for strength. Phil himself was stronger. His grandmother had come downstairs; they were all in the living-room. Phil explained what the Inspector wished to do, suggested they stay where they were. Inspector Hays and Sergeant Kane went toward the kitchen. Regan had remained outside. Inspector Irons and Phil went upstairs.

Phil suggested, "If there's anything special you're looking for, I might help you."

Irons hesitated. "I don't want to—put anything over on you," he said gently. "I told Mr. Hare I wouldn't ask you any questions unless he was here."

Phil colored. "We've nothing to hide!" he protested.

"Sure, I know," the Inspector agreed. "But I'll just look around. I want to see everything. Whose room is this?"

"Mine," said Phil. The Inspector nodded; he opened the drawers of the chiffonier, the desk, the closet, the recess under the window seat where Phil kept rods and fishing gear.

Phil, looking over the other's shoulder, saw something there; a japanned metal box with a combination lock. And the cover of the box had somehow been forced open! His thoughts went racing—

In the summer after his Freshman year, at a dude ranch in New Mexico, one of the cowboys had given him an old single-action .45 revolver, with cartridge belt and holster; had told him that the weapon had been taken off the body of a man killed in a gun battle, years before. Phil brought it home; but because Mrs. Sentry was afraid of firearms, he never showed it to his mother or his sisters, kept it here in this locked box. Only he had showed it to his father. His father had known it was here—

Irons picked up the box, now empty, and he held it to his face and sniffed at it. The old holster had been heavy with grease and oil. Phil remembered the rich smell. He heard himself now, saying hurriedly: "That's my old tackle box. Used to keep a couple of reels in it, in leather cases." The Inspector did not turn. "I forgot the combination, had to break it open with a—"

He tried to think what tool his father might have used. "With a chisel," he said, and repeated: "Couple of reels, and some bass plugs—"

"Must have been hard on the chisel," the Inspector commented, and turned, the box in his hands, and looked at Phil. Phil saw sympathy and understanding in the older man's eyes, and was sick with fear.

Then Sergeant Kane said from the doorway, in an intent tone: "Hays wants you, Inspector. Down cellar."

Irons nodded. "Right," he said. With the broken box under his arm, he followed Kane.

Phil followed them. Irons once looked back, as though to bid him stay behind; but he did not speak.

In the cellar, Inspector Hays stood by the furnace. The furnace door was open. The fall had been warm, these last few days unseasonably so; and there had been here no recent fire.

Irons went toward the other Inspector. Hays said quietly, "See if you see what I see."

He turned a flashlight's beam into the fire box of the furnace. Irons stooped to look in. After a moment he stood up.

"Close the door easy," he said crisply then. "Close the draughts. Any air might make the ashes crumble or muss them up. I'll get Peters and Knobble right out here. They can handle it."

Phil touched his arm. "What is it, Inspector?" he asked.

"Morning, Children," Mrs. Sentry Said Lightly.

last night while I was there. He was just back from New York. Your father almost broke down, just talking to him. Mr. Loran was sympathetic, of course, and loyal, and indignant at the police; but—it does no good to take that attitude. The police aren't to blame." He hesitated, said then, "We have to face the fact that there's a lot of circumstantial evidence against your father."

Phil said explosively, "You know darned well my father wouldn't kill anyone!"

"It's not a question of knowing. It's a question of proving."

Then he turned, for a police car came up the drive. Reporters on duty like guards at the entrance trotted after it; and Dan Fisher was among them. The police car stopped behind Dean Hare's; but Dan came along to where Phil and the lawyer stood, and he said in a low tone:

"Sentry, if you and Mr. Hare are interested, Flood waited outside last night till Professor Brace came out, questioned him."

Phil nodded, only half hearing, staring at the police car, from which officers alighted. Fisher asked softly, "Who was the young lady who came in a few minutes ago?"

"One of my sister's friends."

"What's her name?"

Phil hesitated, but Dean Hare said, "Phil, the best rule with reporters is, if they're going to find out anyway, tell them."

Phil nodded ruefully. "I suppose so. She's Linda Dane."

Fisher said, "Oh! I know her brother, Joe." Someone else demanded, "Not engaged to her, are you?" Phil shook his head, coloring with anger, and Inspector Irons alighted from the police car and said to the reporters:

"All right, boys, outside. Give these folks a break. I'll see that you get anything that you ought to have."

They obeyed him, moved away, and Dean Hare asked: "Anything new, Inspector?"

"I want to have a look around inside," the Inspector explained. "If that's all right?"

"Of course."

"And I might ask some questions. I suppose you'll want to be in on that." He added, as though apologizing for his own forbearance, "It's not the way I usually handle things, but the D. A. says to keep you in touch as we go along."

The lawyer nodded.

"Mr. Sentry, you want to show us around?"

"Glad to," Phil agreed.

"I'd like to have a look at the garage."

Phil led the way, watched the Inspector note the cars, study the garage. "Chauffeur sleep up above?" he asked. Phil nodded. Old Eli was burning leaves by the tennis court, and they went that way. Irons asked the old man:

"You usually hear a car come in at night, do you?"

Eli said, "Hey?" And Phil explained: "He's pretty deaf. You'll have to talk louder. But he wouldn't hear anything at night. Takes an earthquake to wake him."

Eli demanded querulously, "What you say?"

Irons nodded. "Skip it," he decided. He crossed to the pergola, looked down at the water just below them here. Two ducks sunning themselves on the bank waddled into the water and swam warily away.

"All right," said the Inspector. "Let's go in the house."

The cables are so thin that they cannot be seen from a traveling airplane, even by day and in fine weather.

The role of a balloon barrage is to deny passage to aircraft below the barrage height over the defended area; thus driving the attackers to an altitude at which they can be dealt with by anti-aircraft fire and interceptor fighters.

Best Words to Indicate Letters

In spelling a word over the telephone Reader's Digest gives the following list of words as the best to use to indicate the various letters:

A as in Alice, B as in Bertha, C as in Charles and so on through David, Edward, Frank, George, Harry, Ida, James, Kate, Louis, Mary, Nellie, Oliver, Peter, Quaker, Robert, Samuel, Thomas, Victor, Wilam, X-ray, You, and Zebra of knowing you look particularly pretty. The fitted-in waistline, the sweep of the full skirt, are too flattering for words! Make it of taffeta, flannel, challis, moire or velveteen—choosing colors that do nice things to your eyes and hair. This pattern is perforated for short length, too.

Daytime Dirndl.

Of course you want a fall into winter version of the flattering dirndl—and here's the way to make it. With a tailored collar, big buttons down the bodice, Victorian sleeves and (a highlight of charm!) the shirred waistline that looks so delightful on young and supple figures. For this, choose challis, silk print, taffeta or cashmere—preferable in some of the new, rich, warm, lively colorings.

The Patterns.

SCHOOL NOTES

The high school held a pep meeting Friday afternoon just before the game with Ann Arbor. We had speeches from Keith Ledwidge, president of the M. A. A.; Lloyd VanBlaricum captain of the squad; Jack Young, Q. B. and Coach Burg. We also gave the yell, lead by our cheer leaders Kay Dilloway and Helen Vanderwall. The boys then went to the field and put up a good fight against Ann Arbor.

Friday night the Seniors enjoyed a party on Peach Mountain by gathering small tales for a big fire. After a meal of crisp black vealers and toasted rolls the class returned to the gym where they enjoyed games and a (hectic) basket ball game.

We have completed selection of members to the Student Council and have selected the following: Muriel MacEachren, president, Keith Ledwidge, Margaret Aschenbrenner, B. Baughin, Kathryn Dilloway, Dona Widmayer, Virginia Baughin, Richard Amburgey, Pauline McLucas.

The Girl's softball team will play Hamburg there, October 18.

The Juniors are planning an All High party for October 28.

The boys are signing up to help dig the cess pool on our vacation days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The boys next football game is on October 14th, with Manchester, there.

A cash award is promised to the student or students writing the best high school song suitable for our high school. The prize is two dollars and the contest closes October 21.

Our assembly programs are coming along fairly well. The next will be given by the 10th grade on the 19th of October. The public is invited.

A fire drill was held Tuesday afternoon. The school house was cleaned of pupils in 4 minutes and 35 seconds which is considered too long and must be cut down.

TELEPHONE COMPANY BEGINS CONSTRUCTION OF NEW BUILDING

For some time past it has been generally understood that an automatic system of dial telephone would soon take the place of the Bell Company's central here, with one large central office in Howell. On Monday work began on the building which will house this automatic device on the company's property near the electric light plant on West Main Street. Construction work is in the charge of Richard Clark, and will consist of a one room building, inside measurements 15 by 20 feet with a 10 foot ceiling, concrete floor, asbestos siding and asphalt shingles. It will be windowless, with two ventilators, one on each side. According to C. E. Schaefer, area manager, the actual change-over time will not take place until next spring. Brighton Argus.

THE dawn of a simpler yet more beautifully dignified Last Service has come with the advent of modern equipment and more professional knowledge.
