

Thanksgiving Time Is Here

Although Meat is higher, Vegetables
Etc. Are Lower and Your Thanksgiving Dinner Will Not Cost
Much More Than Last Year

Although meat is higher than last year, vegetables and other things that go to make up the Thanksgiving dinner are no more in price than last year. Turkeys which are the center of the Thanksgiving feast are slightly higher but plentiful. Just why the turkeys seem to personify Thanksgiving instead of other fowl is somewhat debated. The reason advanced is that they are the native fowl of America and were used at the first Thanksgiving at Plymouth Mass. by the Pilgrims. However those were the wild turkeys which were pretty much disappeared. The domesticated birds now used were brought in from Mexico.

Most of the turkeys sold here in the big cities come from the south. In Texas the big turkey birds are as numerous now as the longhorn cattle which once roamed supreme there.

There are some big herds in this state. On the J. L. Mott farm near Brooklyn, Mich is a flock of 3600. On the O. M. Nichols farm near Hilldale there are 2300. Other large flocks are reported.

Pinckney was at one time a big turkey raising center. But this is no more. In our notes of 25 years ago there appeared an item to the effect that the late Ed Farnum had 16 persons working for him dressing turkey for shipment for the holiday trade in the cities. They worked steady at it for several weeks. The turkey section was south of here. Among the big turkey raisers were Wm. and J. Doyle the several Harris families, Robert Kelly, The Gardner families, Monks families, Joe Rush, Patrick Kennedy, the Bullises, Shehans, McCluskeys and many others. Most of these have sold their farms and their successors do not fancy turkey raising. Also the auto figures in it. L. Shehan told us several years ago that he quit turkey raising because the autos killed the turkeys as fast as he could raise them. Turkeys do not do well when shut up and they can't be kept from the highways. There are some turkeys raised here now but it wouldn't take 18 people several weeks to pick them.

Pinckney School Notes

We understand the matter is under discussion and that some time in the near future an opera will be produced by the children in the grades of the Pinckney school under the direction of the musical director Mrs. Iva Myers.

Now that the football season is over the boys are busy practicing for basketball. The following are working out: Vincent Young, Howard Read, Lloyd VanBlaricum, Ed Miller, John Carpenter, Jack Hannett, Cy. AtLee, Keith Ledwidge, Paul Singer, Bob Martin, Joe Lacey, Gerald Wedder, Jack Cadwell, E. Wedemeyer, D. Wedemeyer, R. Lysack, Ed. Dross, Beryl Amburgey, and Earl Berquist. New suits are ordered and are expected to be here before the season opens on Dec. 3. Games have been scheduled with the following teams: Dexter, Milford, Manchester, and the Ann Arbor Retirees. Practice games will be played with Whitmore Lake, Gregory and Stockbridge. The dates are not definite yet so the schedule will not be published until later. The boys although unversed in the game are coming along nicely and while they will probably win no championships will give good account of themselves. The first game is with Milford on Dec. 3. Pinckney will have a first and second team and play two games each time. They deserve a good attendance at their contests.

SUFFERS BROKEN JAW

Jack Holben who has been working on Arthur Flintoft's farm, during the time the former is deer hunting, suffered a broken jaw Sunday afternoon. In company with J. Cloudman who spends week ends at the Flintoft farm he was coming home from a visit at the John Connors farm. At this corner this side of Highland Lake the car skidded and hit a tree. Holben was taken to the Pinckney Sanitarium for first aid and then to the University Hospital, Ann Arbor. Cloudman was not seriously hurt.

Local Option To Be Voted On

Temperance Societies are Planning to Submit Local Option in Seven or Eight Counties Next Fall
Livingston Is One of Them

Encouraged by their success in the elections last month in which nearly all proposals relating to sale of hard liquor by the glass were turned down the temperance organizations in the state are said to be preparing to submit local option to a vote in several counties next fall. We understand that Livingston County is one of these selected. Some thirty years ago local option fights were waged in many counties. Local option did not work out but it resulted in state wide prohibition. Then people became disgusted with this and repealed it to bring back legalized liquor. Here the same evils were encountered as in prohibition days. Lack of enforcement of the liquor laws and too many liquor dispensing places. These are the same evils which resulted in the abolishment of the saloon and they are still with us as the pendulum seems to be swinging towards the dry forces.

CASE CHECKS DELAY IN LICENSE ISSUING

Two changes in procedure of issuing operator's licenses and also chauffeur's have been ordered by Leon D. Carr, secretary of state.

In case where applications for operator's licenses are received in Lansing from local examining officers too late to permit return of the license within the 20 day temporary permit period provided by law, postcards advising applicants of this fact will be sent to them. The date any such application was received at the dept. of state will be noted on the card. This move is one to forestall queries from applicants as to their applications after the 20 day period has expired. Carr expects to demonstrate that the delay in issuing occurs before the application reaches his dept.

Chauffeur's licenses and badges for 1938 will be placed on sale Dec. 1. Saving applicants applying that month the $1 fee for a 1937 license and badge for the remainder of the year. The full fee is $2. There are in excess of 4,000 more chauffeur's registered at present than at the corresponding time last year, it was explained. The Dec. 1 deadline will eliminate delays; badges must be secured by Jan. 1 each year. Previously, badges and licenses were placed on sale Dec. 15 or later.

IS AWARDED MEDAL

Thor Dietrich of Fowlerville has been awarded a handsome gold medal for the record he submitted in the national 4-H Canning contest. The award is made by the National committee on 4-H Work in Chicago of the approval of the County Agent and State Club Leader who designated the girl 1937 canning champion of Livingston. The medal is a shield shaped nearly one inch deep on which is embossed a four leaf clover, horn of plenty and a laurel branch. It is provided by the Kerr Glass Corp to promote better living together with tips for state winners to the forthcoming National 4-H club Congress and $1000 in college scholarships for sectional winners.

CIRCUIT COURT NEWS

Judge Collins heard several motions last week and tried several non-jury suits. He heard the suit of Harold Cobb vs Agnes Trango and its served decision. This involves an accounting in an estate. He also heard the suit of Reader vs Coates. This involves the flowage rights on the mill pond at Oak Grove. Decision was reserved.

The motion of Clarence Blades to change the terms of the divorce decree granted to his former wife, Elvira Bennett Blades was denied by the judge. Mr. Blades sought the custody of the child which was given to the mother by the terms of the decree.

Deer Hunters Are Returning

Several Deer Have Been Brought to Pinckney. Hunting Conditions Are Said To Be Favorable, But Too Many Irresponsible People Got Licenses

Quite a few deer have been shot in the north and hunting conditions are said to be favorable, although the snowfall last week made walking difficult. Among the Pinckney hunters Friday Haines and Ed Parker each got a deer. Pat Dillon and son, Bill, of Howell also got one. We have not heard from many hunters and undoubtedly most deer will come back.

The increase in the number of hunters this year, estimated to be about 20,000 doesn't seem to have worked out well. In the future there will have to be more discrimination shown in the issuing of deer licenses. Up to the first of the week twelve hunters had been accidentally killed. Most of them were found shot in the woods and there was no trace of the person who shot them. Some were killed in auto wrecks. Some were undoubtedly killed by stray shots and the deer guns kill at a distance of a mile. It has been suggested that hunters be forced to use shotguns instead of rifles.

The deer continue to come into town with deer. Saturday Gerald Dinkel and Bud Granger came back with one also Al Dewey, Charles Pomer and Bert Hinchley came in Sunday with a 12 pointer.

Today W. C. Miller, son, Clifford and Bill Baughn go to Mio to hunt deer.

Marvin Shirey and Clark Buntin returned Saturday from the north where they hunted deer.

Special Session

Congress began the special session last week determined to include the business along with labor and the farmers of the nation as the beneficiaries of remedial legislation for the general welfare of the country. Next to the concern over domestic problems ranked the avowed determination of every Representative & Senator to keep the United States out of dangerous foreign entanglements that might embroil the nation in a far away war.

Summarizing the results of the first week of the extra session the Senate was confronted with a filibuster by Southern Senators including Mrs. Dixie Graves against the anti-lynching law that passed in the House at the first regular session of the 75th Congress. Mrs. Graves, who was appointed to fill the vacancy that was created by the appointment of Associate Justice Black to the Supreme Court, is the first woman ever to take part in a Senatorial filibuster. Only the farm bill that was being hurried through the Agriculture Committee of the Senate for consideration on the floor this week, holds the precedence over the anti-lynching bill that was once before talked to death in the Senate after getting a majority in the House.

Little Expense

The House also marked time at waiting for a report from the Committee on Agriculture. Efforts to adjourn for three day intervals to give the committee additional time to get the farm legislation, were defeated and the House met in daily session to debate the general state of the nation. Senators who warned against plunging the nation into European or Asiatic disputes received generous applause as an indication that the majority of Congress was in favor of the shipping bill, a measure of character of the nation. It is the opinion of many that the nation is in a position to get on its feet and to start shooting. Mussolini did not declare war on Ethiopia. He has not against Spain so far and Japan has issued no such declaration against China. The war declaration is out of date. What the senator should work on is who shall occupy the front line trenches.

HCL INVESTIGATION

President Roosevelt's message to Congress, read in the House and Senate chambers by the clerks in contrast to the personal appearance of the President before both the Senate and the House in the House chamber, when Congress convened last January. The President took cognizance of the business session and the necessity for complete cooperation between government and business to advance prosperity. Later in the week the President sent a letter to W. A. Ayres, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission requesting an investigation into monopolistic practices and other unwholesome methods of competition in connection with the marked increase in the cost of living. Chairman Ayres said the letter was tantamount to an executive order and a sweeping probe of the high cost of living was expected to be started by the Federal Trade Commission.

Taxation Problems

While administration leaders in the Senate asked business to be patient with an assurance that substantial tax relief will be approved by Congress in the regular session that will begin next January, the House subcommittee of the Ways and Means Tax Committee continued work on a tax bill for the regular session. In the latest development in the subcommittee it was decided to extend the exemptions from the undivided profits tax to corporations above the $5,000 earning class. To offset the loss in revenue from these exemptions to afford business the assistance that small corporations have asked the corporation income tax will be increased.

It seems to be just one thing after another for the poor Duke and Duchess of Windsor. New York Society has left them out of their social register and we suppose according to this act they are nobody. Well we got left out too, but the difference between us and the Windsors is that we were never in it. Now Elisen O' Kane, New York dancing and social director comes out with a statement warning all women from trying to walk like the Duchess of Windsor. She says the women who are imitating the duchess half stoop and side-winding gait are ruining their health. So the women had better watch their steps.

The Hearst papers are trying to work up a sensation over the fact that they have discovered certain papers tending to prove that certain nations were induced to side with the allies in the late war world in return for most territory which was to be carved from Germany Austria and Russia. Nearly all wars are waged for territory and spoils and undoubtedly the world war falls in this category. Anyway it is all water over the dam and of little matter now.

The press does not think much of Senator Capper's proposed bill providing for a referendum before war is declared. In the first place they say war declarations have gone out of style and no nation bothers to declare war anymore. They just move in and start shooting. Mussolini did not declare war on Ethiopia. He has not against Spain so far and Japan has issued no such declaration against China. The war declaration is out of date. What the senator should work on is who shall occupy the front line trenches.

This athletic subsidizing matter seems to be getting interesting. The Michigan Daily claims a freshman named Harmon from Chicago had 15 offers from different colleges because of his athletic prowess. They point a letter he received from the coach at Tulane University. Among the colleges named as competing for Harmon's services is Mich. State. Of course the colleges deny the story. Why don't the college officials face the facts and forget all about it? Why all the hypocrisy?

Men Who Do

When I look at history I see it as man's attempt to solve the practical problem of living. The men who did most to solve it were not those who thought about it or talked about it or impressed their contemporaries, but those who silently and efficiently got on with their work.—J. B. S. Haldane.

ALKALIZE

I'LL NEVER GO TO DINNER WITH A BOY AGAIN UNLESS I HAVE SOME PHILLIPS' TABLETS IN MY PURSE

Often "acid indigestion" is distressing to you — and offensive to others. But now there is no excuse for being guilty.

You simply carry your alkalizer with you — and use it at the first sign of "upset" stomach. Simply take two tiny tablets of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia when out with others. Or — if at home — you can take two teaspoons of liquid Phillips'. Both act the same way. Relief is usually a matter of seconds. "Gas," nausea, "heartburn," acid breath — all respond quickly. Just make sure you ask for "Phillips'."

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a tremendous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of all excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter. The kidneys must remove from the blood all good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, swelling of ankles, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—fast tired, nervous, all signs of kidney trouble. Prompt, gentle or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The most important and proper treatment for kidney trouble is to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Washington
Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—Supporters of the New Deal, as well as its opponents, are watching a new experiment by President Roosevelt with more than passing interest. They are watching this experiment because of various circumstances, including obviously its political phases, for they realize that the President has stepped out into a hitherto untrod field, unplowed ground, in this new experiment.

Chiefly because it is something entirely new and not because any one yet can tell what is going to happen, I want to report this week on the President's plan to have his eldest son, James, his No. 1 secretary, serve as a clearing house between the Chief Executive and some eighteen or more government agencies. "Roosevelt, the younger, has been designated by the President to sit down once each week with heads of each of the enumerated agencies and talk over their problems, iron out those which he can help solve, co-ordinate the work between them as far as he is able to do so, and, most important to the men with whom he deals, decide which questions confronting these units of government may be matters for the President's personal consideration.

It is a big order. But Jimmy, as he is known around here, is a big man, at least physically, because he stands something like six feet, one inch. He is twenty-nine years old.

The audiences at the White House with Jimmy have already started and the agency heads who have sat through the conferences seem well pleased. At least, there has been no criticism yet, no signs of jealousy or indications of dissent among those who are called upon to take up their problems with the young secretary to the President. In fact, I have heard in only a few places a revival of the punning that went out a couple of years ago when the "Roosevelt for King" game was in its heyday, and Jimmy was laughingly labeled as the crown prince. Thus, the plan surely seems to have started off most auspiciously. But as I said, what success, what trials and tribulations, await it, no one can say.

Undoubtedly, President Roosevelt has started a plan of action that has much to be said in its favor. It has, of course, many possibilities of trouble, and there surely is argument against having the White House secretariat determine policy when the President has been elected to that job. Yet, at this time, credit must be argued along with signs and portents of trouble.

First, let us recognize that the office of President of the United States is a man-killing job. There is nothing like it anywhere else in the world. There are not too many men who can stand up under the load of work and worry that is continually on the shoulders of the head of the nation. There is no way possible for him to escape it. Vacations? Sleep? Absence from Washington? Not a chance. The work and worry is with him always, every minute out of his twenty-four hour day.

Thus, if there is any way that can be devised to lift some of the burden, it ought to be done. No way has been found heretofore, however, and the millstone continues around the President's neck. On the other hand, this is a democracy. In the opinion of many persons, there already is too much power lodged in the hands of individuals who were not elected, but were appointed, to office. The President has vast power and he has to unload it somewhere into the hands of those he appoints. Nevertheless, throughout the federal government scores of men and women exercise very great authority over your life and mine who were personally selected by the President—for whom none of us voted when we voted for a presidential nominee. Result: red tape, rules and regulations, do's and don'ts galore, until we hardly know whether we can eat our food without transgressing or falling to comply with some federal regulation.

All of that is by way of saying that by implementing the relationship between the President and men and women whom he has appointed to office through the insertion of an added wheel of authority, there lie potential changes in all of these governmental policies. And there lies the possibility of changes being made, for better or for worse, without the President having knowledge of them.

What of the personal side—the feelings of the officials who have to deal with a young man who can speak, to some extent at least, for his father, the President? As I said earlier, thus far none of the conferences have given any indication of disturbed feelings. They may never have any thoughts along this line. Yet, I venture this observation: if they don't resent having the President's son tell them what to do, or not to do, at some time or other, the officials concerned will be unlike most other human beings.

The Department of Agriculture is quite pessimistic about the business outlook for next year. In a series of reports, analyzing general conditions, which the department issued the other day, it made no effort to conceal its belief that there is something wrong in the business situation far beyond the recent violent decline in the quotations of the stock markets.

Business Outlook
These reports and conclusions take on considerably more weight when it is recalled that several other agencies of the government, notably Secretary Roper of the Department of Commerce, have sought vainly to make it appear that business is "good." At the same time, I think attention ought to be drawn to the fact that Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture is striving to have congress pass legislation to aid the farmer. It is just possible that he thinks his objectives can be achieved more easily if the congressmen are made to believe that general business and agriculture are taking a real tailspin. That is the politics of the situation, but business reports spread on the pages of newspapers seem to show that a bad slump lies ahead.

Recently, I wrote in these columns how business was as spotted as a leopard; that some firms were making more money than ever before, and how some others were getting by only because the volume was large and faced difficulties if the volume declined. The Agriculture department statements, based now on facts and figures, show even a worse picture than I described several months ago. They indicate strongly that 1938 is to be considerably lower in the level of business than 1937, and that spells trouble.

For example, the agriculture statement predicts that there will be "a less favorable demand for farm products" in 1938 than in 1937. Home domestic demands are down and appear likely to stay down, and the export market holds no hope for an increase. Emphasizing the dependence of consumption demand upon general business conditions, the department statement explained there was no certainty as to the length of time the present slump will continue. It added that "prospects are against a sufficiently early and vigorous rise in 1938 to bring the average of industrial activity and of consumer incomes up to that of 1937."

But from the standpoint of the farmer, the picture is made worse by the department statement. It points out how there has been a rise in production costs of crops and livestock and how, starting the farmer in the face, are more of these increases, adding: "Along with the higher wage rates, farmers apparently will have to pay somewhat higher prices for farm machinery, automobiles, building materials, equipment and supplies. On the other hand, the prices of feed and seed will be substantially lower next spring than a year earlier."

The department did not go into detail in explaining these increases in production costs and increases in prices for things the farmer buys. It should have given facts and figures on these for they are basic and the picture is incomplete without them. Everyone knows, of course, that farm labor wants more money for its work and has been getting more in the last two or three years. Department of Labor statistics show this, and they show as well how much additional labor is receiving in its pay checks from industry. The automobile industry which has been organized by John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. labor group has been forced to pay much higher wages and naturally those wages have been added into the cost of the automobile which any one buys.

The automobile industry was only an illustration. The same is true all along the line. The truth of the matter is that federal taxes which have been conceived by the President's brain trust professors and applied without stint or limit to industry are upsetting the whole agricultural as well as the whole business structure of the country. The load of taxes, together with a lot of queer-looking and cockeyed regulations, have continually increased the cost of production of everything from black-eyed peas to locomotives.

Picture Made Worse
The picture is made worse by the department statement. HOW OFTEN
CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

NEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomfort from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

WHO'S NEWS
THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—Gen. Sadao Araki, a gentle little man, who recites poetry and arranges flowers beautifully and treasures delicate cloisonne and jade, thinks Japan should polish off Russia, as well as China, while she's in the mood to branch out. The former minister of war, on the sidelines for the last year, is again in the power line-up, close to Premier Konoye and a member of his new advisory council.

War Lord Is Partial to Cloisonne
He is an ascetic, abstemious in all things, living on a birdseed diet, and, since directing the Manchurian outreach in 1932, has counseled decorum and seemingly behavior in the expropriation of China. When he found it expedient to defy the League of Nations in 1932, he did it in a nice way.

He seems to want capitalism without any capitalists. A great many industrialists were killed in his conquest of Manchuria. His peasant origin accounts for that. The army is largely recruited from the peasant classes—including its officers—and it has a romantic feudal hang-over which makes it suspect and dislike industrialists.

Pan-Asia is the general's main idea, and from many sources there has come evidence that it is also the principal objective in Japan's drive. Shrewd observers of the Far East have told this writer that all Japan's major policies are directed to this end and that certain Chinese generals, dealing under the table with Japan, also have this in mind.

Gen. Araki's Big Idea Is Pan-Asia
"Hodo" and "bushido" are the general's two favorite conjure words—signifying "the way of the emperor," and "the way of the warrior." Arranging his flowers, or presiding at the tea ceremonial, he deplores war and bloodshed and conquest. They are all dreadful and the world would be so much better if everyone would behave nicely, but, as long as they don't, Japan has to go all the way through.

The general is angry when he is called a fascist or militarist. He follows rigid discipline in his life in his little cottage on the outskirts of Tokyo, and wears a plain khaki uniform with almost no medals or decorations. Graduating from the military college, he wanted to go into the navy, but was diverted to the army by the Russo-Japanese war. He likes to do everything in a nice way. They say that once, when he had to drown a batch of kittens, he warmed the water so they wouldn't experience a cold shock.

SIX years ago, the British government benched Sir Charles Augustus Teggart, after he had been dealing misery to terrorists in Belgium for 30 years. Now they send him in again against the rampant and riotous Arabs, who are messing up not only Palestine, but certainly delicately balanced equations of foreign policy, at a time when Britannia is extremely touchy about such disturbances.

Sir Charles is a parson's son and he married a parson's daughter. A quiet man, soft-spoken and deliberate, never ferocious, he carried through one of the toughest police jobs in the world. He joined the Indian police force in 1901. He was as ruthless as an installment collector in running down his man. Those were years of plots and conspiracies, and as he rose in office his function took on broader aspects of allaying or overcoming social disturbance and he disclosed sagacity and skill in this wider reach to police power. All this brought him the king's police medal in 1911, and he has received many other decorations and honors.

He was knighted in 1928 and since 1932 has been a member of the council of India. He was educated at the Portora Royal school at Enniskillen and Trinity college, Dublin. The latter awarded him an honorary LL.D. in 1933.

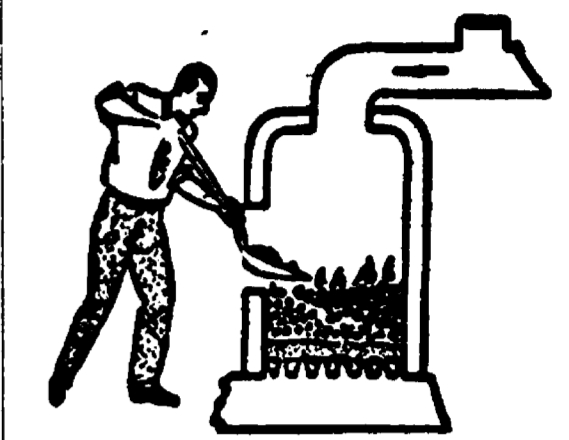

Sending Sir Charles to Palestine is taken as an indication that Britain is warming up a more aggressive policy in the Near East, after quite a spell of stalling and shadow-boxing. He is especially skilled in rooting out conspiracies. The word from Palestine is that the Arabs are not altogether self-starters in the present outbreak of terrorism and it is indicated that a thorough job of sleuthing will precede the necessary renovating and the later political adjustments. William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, secretary of state for the colonies, promises "to take the most vigorous measures to combat terrorism."

Knighthood Was Reward to Teggart
Porto Principe, Cuba, sacked by Morgan, the pirate, is 15 miles from the sea. It was a port that had moved to a "safe" site inland. It is now called Camaguey.

Home Heating
Hints
By John Barclay
Heating Expert

I FEEL certain you'll find the following daily schedule for taking care of your furnace fire will simplify its operation and give you the utmost fuel satisfaction:

MORNING.—To get quick heat, open the Ashpit Damper wide and close the Check Damper. Add fresh fuel only when fire is burning briskly, leaving an exposed spot of live coals directly in front of the firedoor. If you find it necessary, gently shake the grates, if they weren't shaken the night before.

DURING DAY.—Control fire with Check and Ashpit Dampers. Don't use Turn Damper to regulate fire daily. Keep it closed as nearly as possible without hampering the free burning of the fire.

NIGHT.—Shake grates gently until the first red glow shows in ashpit before banking fire. This cone, wet ashes down and clean ashpit. Always open the Check Damper and close the Ashpit Damper when banking fire. Keep them that way until gases burn from fresh fuel. Then close them. Never leave the firedoor open after fire is banked.

Follow this daily schedule and you'll get the best results.

Contradicting a somewhat popular belief to the effect that people over forty are shelved, 1023 present employees of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company throughout the state whose average age is well over forty years and most of whom anticipate several years more in the business are receiving gold service emblems indicating long service. They are a part of 6,585 employees with two or more years service, each, to whom a new service emblem is being distributed. One hundred and seven retired employees also receive the pins. The presentations are being made at employee social functions.

The 1023 employees with 20 years or more service include workers in all the telephone crafts, such as the clerks, cable splicers, installers, operators, linemen, accountants and so on as well as several in high positions. In the aggregate their employment totals 27,500 years.

The Michigan Bell Company at the time has in its employ 9,315 men and women, the latter being in the majority. The average length of service of all employees is 10 years, that of the men, 12 years and that of the women not more than eight. A total of 6,189 have served more than five years each, the company records say. Employees in entry exchange of the company are included in the latter group.

The 25 years emblems will go to 293 men and women, 30 year buttons to 156, 35 year buttons to 62, 18 will get 40 year buttons, seven the 45 and two will get buttons indicating a half century or more of service. Both the latter have retired.

The new service emblem is of gold and was designed by a committee of telephone employees and approved by the management of the company. It is shaped like a small bell and has the name Michigan, in raised letters with raised stars denoting each five years period. The buttons for the men and women who have been in service 25 years or longer also bear small emblems.

The two retired employees who receive the 40 year emblems are G. H. Hollis, Detroit, and Charles Wild of Grand Rapids. Hollis had served 44 years and his retirement in 1923 and Mr. Wild had been in the service 40 years and two months when he retired in 1935. Mr. Holland had entered the service as a messenger and was secretary of Employees Benefit Fund when he left. Mr. Wild for many years district manager and a business manager of the Michigan Bell Co. in Grand Rapids, began his service as an operator, and has been manager at Battle Creek, Muskegon, Alpena and Kalamazoo; spent two years in Marquette, in charge of the company's Northern Peninsula business and a year in Detroit as commercial agent.

Other retired employees who receive emblems denoting 45 years or more of service are: Leander DeNoy, Detroit; Charles Gardner, Detroit; Wm. Burrows, Detroit; Wm. Loucks, Detroit; James Sexton, Pontiac; C. H. Alder, Jackson.

George J. Brett, present general auditor of the Mich. Bell Company who went into telephone work 47 years and two months ago as messenger and office boy, will receive a 45 year button.

NICKEL BRIBES FAIL TO AID

Candy and nickels are poor child builders when used as bribes for milk drinking or going to bed at night.

Suggestions of better methods of training children are offered by Miss Ruth Wagner of the nursery school at the Michigan State College.

Do we fail to realize what we are doing when we make a deal with our Jimmy or Jerry? Miss Wagner asks. If we offer him a nickel to drink his milk we are not teaching him to drink his milk but to hold out for nickels or more.

So it seems that Miss Wagner's opinion is just plain bribery when you offer candy to that young boy or girl. But to explain that if the boy or girl goes to sleep right away then he or she can get up in time to go to the store with you is to indicate that by conduct there is earned the right to an added pleasure.

Bribes and rewards, then, are two different animals. The nickels and the candy perpetuate bad behavior. The reward system, even if the reward is just an expression of pride in the child's ability, is the real character and behavior builder.

Conservation Dept. Notes

The conservation dept. has ordered that portion of the Huron River, flowing through Ypsilanti and Superior townships in Washtenaw county, closed to dip net fishing. Fishermen were given permission to take carp and suckers but were found to be taking wall-eyed pike.

Wesley Thompson of Rudyard went to Sault Ste. Marie to have a bone removed from his throat on Oct. 12. It proved to be deer bone. As deer season was not open conservation officers visited Thompson's home and confiscated ten lbs of venison. He was fined $50 and $9.10 costs.

Cloudy weather has prevented the flying photographers from finishing their work of mapping Michigan's copper country. The Legislature appropriated $25,000 for the purpose. 26 Michigan state parks will have residence supervision during this winter.

Forest fighting equipment was recently used to save a burning house at Mayfield.

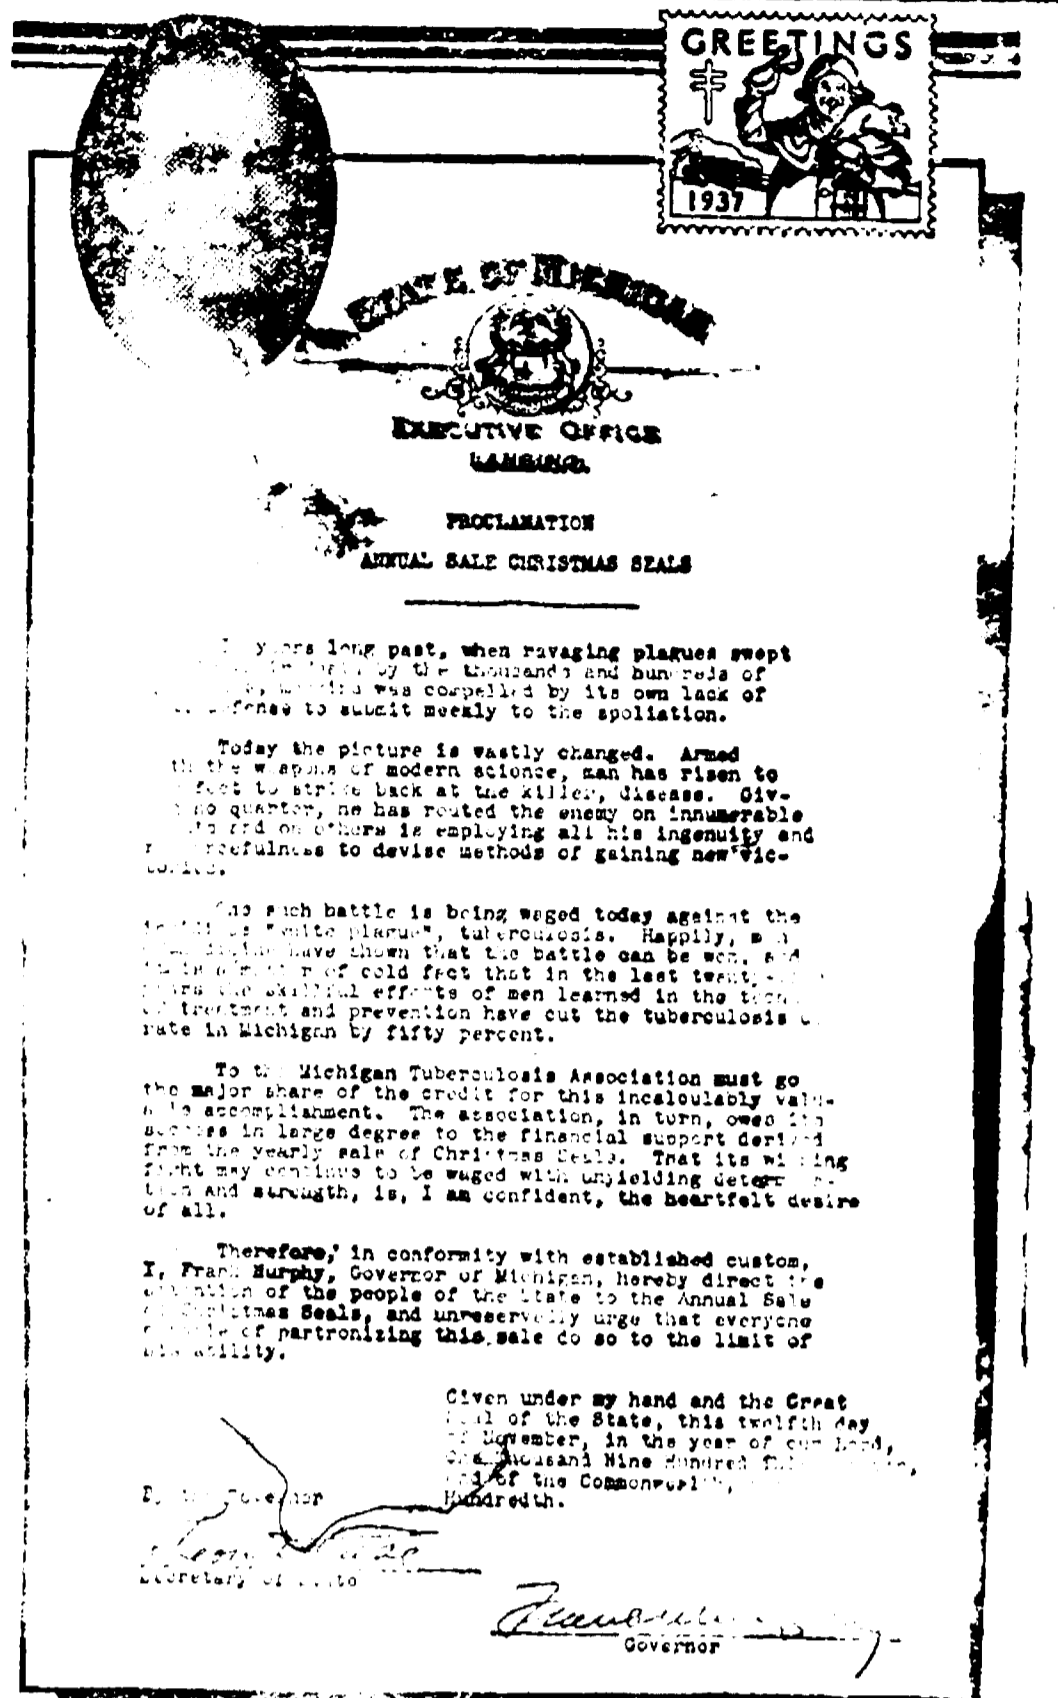

156 hunters were arrested for game law violations in Michigan in October. 47 hen pheasants were found and 20 loaded guns in the cars. Fines totalling $3000 were assessed and $1000 in costs.

The blind fawn found near Glennie appears to be recovering its eyesight.

Pheasants were not so plentiful this year as last. Some ascribe it to the wet season while others say they were as plentiful but harder to get on account of the dense coverage.

The name of the Crawford county game refuge has been changed to the Hanson refuge.

The Pittman-Norris Act approved by President Roosevelt contemplates federal payments to states for wild life restoration projects. Under the act 75 cents of each dollar spent will be represented by federal grants with 25 cents paid by the state. This will not begin until June 30, 1939. If the law had been in effect this year, Michigan would have received $157,270. 26. However the act limits the amount to $150,000. New York is the only these holiday feasts are occasions for good food and good cooking. And for the lucky family with an electric range in the kitchen, every meal is a holiday meal!

Here is the finest cooking that money can buy. Until you have tasted electric cooking, you cannot realize how it differs from all other cooking methods. You'll be surprised at the DIFFERENCE in flavor... how much better it makes all your recipes taste, what delicious natural flavor it retains in meats and vegetables, cooked in their own juices.

You'll marvel at the absolute CLEANLINESS of electric cooking, with pure heat from a glowing wire... heat as clean as sunlight. You'll take pleasure in the ease with which you can keep your kitchen bright and sparkling—because an electric range cooks with clean, refined electric heat. You'll appreciate the HEALTHFULNESS of this modern waterless cooking, which seals-in precious minerals and important food values. An electric range is a boon in the household where there are small children. There is no flame, no matches.

But an electric range does more than prepare holiday meals. It gives the cook a holiday too. The Timer Clock (available at small additional cost) makes it possible to put an entire meal in the oven and go out for the afternoon. When you come home your dinner is waiting, perfectly cooked... piping hot and ready for the table. Think of the extra leisure hours to do the things you want!

Today, you can purchase an electric range for about the same price as an ordinary stove of comparable size and features. Don't deny yourself and your family the enjoyment of this latest and most modern cooking method: YOU can afford electric cooking now! Women say, "You'll wish you had installed it in your kitchen years ago."

It is red coral that is and always has been prized, not solely for jewelry and buttons, but as a charm to bring safety, health and secrets not revealed to the ordinary person. # The How and Why of the National Unemployment Census

A nation-wide census of all unemployed and partially unemployed persons in the United States will be taken between the dates of November 16 to 20, by act of Congress, and at the direction of President Roosevelt.

Here, in question-and-answer form, is the information you need to know about this plan.

- 1. WHAT IS PURPOSE OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS?
To get an accurate count of the unemployed and partly unemployed.
- 2. TO WHOM WILL CARDS BE SENT?
To every family in the United States.
- 3. UNDER WHOSE AUSPICES IS THE CENSUS BEING TAKEN?
Congress has decreed, and the President has directed, that it be taken.
- 4. IS THE CENSUS COMPULSORY?
No. But every unemployed or partly unemployed person is urgently requested to cooperate.
- 5. HOW WILL THE CENSUS BE CONDUCTED?
Through the facilities of the Post Office Department. Report Cards will be delivered to every family. Cards are to be returned by mail to Washington for tabulation and analysis.
- 6. WHEN WILL THE CENSUS BE TAKEN?
Cards will be delivered on November 16 and must be returned by MIDNIGHT NOVEMBER 20. They are already addressed and no postage is required.
- 7. WHO SHOULD FILL AND RETURN CARDS?
Every person who is unemployed or partly unemployed who is able to work and wants work.
- 8. WHAT AGE LIMITS APPLY?
There are no age limits except existing State regulations concerning workers' ages.
- 9. SHOULD MORE THAN ONE UNEMPLOYED PERSON IN A FAMILY RETURN A CARD?
Yes. Every unemployed member of a family should fill out and return a card, if able to work and seeking work.
- 10. WHERE MAY ADDITIONAL CARDS BE OBTAINED?
At any post office or from your postman.
- 11. WHERE CAN INFORMATION BE SECURED IN FILLING OUT CARDS?
At your post office or from your postman.
- 12. IS THIS CENSUS CONFINED TO AMERICAN CITIZENS?
No. All permanent residents of the United States are included.
- 13. IS THE INFORMATION GIVEN ON THE CARDS TO BE CONSIDERED CONFIDENTIAL?
Yes. This information will be used for unemployment statistics only.
- 14. SHOULD EVERY QUESTION OF THE CENSUS CARD BE ANSWERED?
Yes. To obtain the most accurate information possible, the President asks that each question be answered. Numbers 9 and 10 are particularly important. However, failure to answer some of the questions will not invalidate the card.
- 15. WHO IS AN "UNEMPLOYED" PERSON?
A person of either sex or any color who is not working and is able to work and seeking work.
- 16. WHO IS A "PARTLY UNEMPLOYED" PERSON?
A person of either sex or any color with part-time employment who is able to do more work and is looking for more work.
- 17. ARE PERSONS ON EMERGENCY WORK PROJECTS INCLUDED?
Yes. They should register as unemployed. A specific question, Number 2c, is provided on the Report Card for all persons working on a W.P.A., N.Y.A., C.C.C., or other emergency work project which is supported by public funds.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

Memory flashed into her self-congratulation. Mrs. Gregory had witnessed a will a week before Mrs. Dane had died. Where was it? Should she go to Jed Stewart at once and tell him what she had heard? But he knew. He had asked Mrs. Gregory to say nothing about it. Why hadn't he told her? What did it all mean? It gave her a panicky feeling, as if she were wandering blindly in the dark on the edge of a precipice. She poked the fire vigorously. It was a physical outlet to her turmoil of mind.

"Take care, Miss, or you'll set the chimney afire," Henri warned from the threshold.

"I think not. It was thoroughly cleaned when I came here to live."

Why was he putting her? He was drawing the hangings over the windows, pulling a rug in place, refolding the morning newspaper on the desk, fussing about the parrot's cage, a parrot who had lost half of his tail and all his self-assurance since his excursion into the outer world.

He cleared his throat and drew long bony fingers over his slack mouth.

"I—I've been wanting a chance to talk with you since—since we found the parrot, Miss."

He was avoiding mention of the tragedy at the filling station. Why?

"What have you to say to me?"

He drew his fingers across his mouth. "It's about that—what happened at the filling station. You know I went to the movies that evening, came home and went to bed. Miss Lucette and the others saw me when I came down to find out what the noise was I heard. You know that after that I dressed and went out to hunt for the parrot, that I brought him in with me, but the police want to check up on me every minute. You can help me very much, Miss."

"How?"

"By swearing that I was in this house at the time of the robbery at the filling station."

"But, as I remember it, you weren't. Henri. You said that you were hunting for the parrot."

The butler emitted a sound like the snarl of a savage beast at bay.

"You'd better say I was, Miss, or—or I'll tell how I found this in your desk." He drew a folded paper from his pocket.

"Mr. Sam has overlooked grand dramatic material right here, Henri. You would steal the show as the villain in his comedy. Just what is 'this'?" Her voice was tinged with amused disbelief.

"Take it, Miss."

Brooke thought of the fangs of a wolf as he smiled his secretive smile. She unfolded the paper and noticed that a tiny corner of the sheet was missing. Mary Amanda Dane's writing! Mrs. Gregory's signature! Henri's. Clotilde's. Was it the will of which Mrs. Gregory had spoken only a few moments ago? How had it come in Henri's possession?

"You say you found this in my desk?"

The butler's greedy eyes glittered like black beads. "Yes, Miss. I'm prepared to swear to that in court unless we can come to terms."

"Why didn't you take it directly to Mr. Trent or Mr. Stewart?" Was her voice as icy as her body felt?

"I thought it was too bad to do that until I found out if you and I couldn't work together. Mr. Mark tried to get me in wrong with the old madame. Hatred flamed in his eyes and voice. 'Why should I help him?'"

"Will this—this—help him?"

"Read it, Miss."

"I'll wait until I'm alone. The paper is torn. Did you tear it when you—pulled it from my desk?"

Henri's teeth showed between suddenly pallid lips.

"I—I didn't pull it, Miss. I—I took it careful."

The last word was a whisper. What was there about a torn corner of a sheet of paper to terrify him?

"I'll talk with you about it later, Henri; perhaps—perhaps, as you suggest, we may be able to work together."

"I thought you might see it that way, Miss, but—don't take too long."

Brooke stood rigid, listening until she heard the door to the china closet swing. Curious how she had come to know every sound in this house which had been hers for so short a time. Hers! Was it hers?

What was in the paper which Henri would swear he had found in her desk? She had pretended to consider his proposition that they work together merely to get time to decide what she should do.

She raced up the stairs, switched on the light in her boudoir, locked the door behind her.

She spread out the paper on her desk, shut her eyes hard, drew a long breath before she looked. There was not much on the page, but what there was, was in Mrs. Dane's fine writing. The date was that of a week before she died. The words burned into Brooke's mind as if written with a red-hot poker:

"I don't know how to word a formal will, but I hereby give and bequeath all my property real and personal—which I left in a previous will to Brooke Reyburn—except the amount as stated in said will to be given to my faithful servants, Henri and Clotilde Jacques, to my nephew Mark Trent, to have and to hold during his life and to dispose of as he wishes. I know now that my ideas of right and wrong should not deprive him of his rightful inheritance. He was a wonderful son. He has been a devoted nephew. I make him sole executor without bonds of my estate. I ask him to provide an income sufficient for frills and fun for my dear young friend, Brooke Reyburn."

Brooke studied the signature. Mary Amanda Dane's without a doubt, unless it was a clever forgery, Anne Gregory's name sprawling under it, and Henri's and Clotilde's tight, foreign writing.

Suppose she destroyed this paper which would deprive her of a fortune? A lighted match under it and it would go up in smoke. Who would know? Who would believe Henri against her? Wasn't he already under suspicion in the filling station hold-up? Suppose he did try blackmail? He wouldn't get far with it.

What terrible thing was she thinking? The eyes of the white faced girl who stared back at her from the mirror were big with horror.

Was she two persons? Had her other self turned craven? Had that thought changed her face? For an instant she had been a criminal at heart. She, Brooke Reyburn, who considered her personal standards of honor and decency of the highest. After this she would understand temptation as she never had understood it before.

A car! Lucette and Sam. She must hurry and dress. Sometime during the evening she would give the paper to Mark Trent. That would be her answer to Henri. Where could she put it meanwhile? She would tuck it inside her frock.

She was fastening the corsage of green orchids Mark Trent had sent her to the front of her gleaming silver frock when she met her brown eyes in the mirror. She dropped the flowers as if they had burned her fingers. She couldn't wear his gift until she was sure that he believed that she had not known until this evening of his aunt's change of mind. Why hadn't he come directly to her when he had heard Mrs. Gregory's story? Because he believed she knew where the will was, that she was dishonest, that was why. Perhaps he was right. What would he think of her if he suspected that for a split second she had thought of burning it?

She would wear Jerry's gardenias; she had chosen Mark the Magnificent's orchids first, simply because he was her host, she assured herself.

She added more color to her white cheeks, to her lips, dusted her face with powder, anything to switch her mind from that nightmare instant of terrifying suggestion.

She waited until she heard her brother's and her sister's doors close before she opened hers. Sam popped his head out and called:

"White tie tonight, Brooke?"

"Of course, Sam. Our promising young playwright must be swanky. I've had your top hat ironed and there's a gardenia in a box on your dresser."

She heard his groan of resignation as she started down the stairs.

She stopped on the threshold of the living-room she loved. Now it would be torn up by the roots, all her father's treasures would go back to storage. And her gorgeous flower—windows would be but a dream. Would she be obliged to return the money she had spent? That would mean dragging a ball and chain of debt the rest of her life. Cheerful prospect. Could Mary Amanda Dane's "little friend, Brooke Reyburn," see herself accepting an income sufficient for "frills and fun"? Never. She would have to hunt for a job. But she wouldn't have to hunt—she wouldn't! The Palm beach offer! Had the position been filled? She would send a night letter. Better do it now before Sam and Lucette came down.

As she waited for the telephone call to go through, she told herself that she had learned one inestimable lesson: she had learned that for every person the gateway to success was in himself; that achievement was a matter of keeping on keeping on, of giving one's best and trying, everlastingly trying to make that best better. She was returning to business equipped with that knowledge.

She gave her message and turned to the fire. She didn't really mind going back to work, she had loved it, but she had planned to do so much for her mother, for Lucette, for Sam.

Sam! Nothing must happen to distract his mind from the production of the play. If she were to produce that will now, the neighborhood, to say nothing of the cast, would palpitate with excitement, the Reyburns would have to leave Lookout House at once. She knew nothing of law except that it was as relentless as a juggernaut. What the court decreed had to be done. A producer from New York was coming to see Sam's comedy. The Boston manager wouldn't bring him down unless he thought Sam had talent. The performance was only 48 hours away. Could she keep Henri quiet until then? If she couldn't she was the world's worst actress, and Sam had said that she was good. After the play Mark Trent was to keep open house for cast and audience. She would stay until the last guest had departed, then she would give this will, burning against her skin, to him and fade gracefully from the picture. Better lock it up in her desk until then. It wouldn't be safe to carry it around with her.

Back in her boudoir she locked the paper in an inside drawer of her desk and slipped the key into her bag of silver sequins.

Returning to the living-room, she paused before the portrait above the mantel. "This all means that you and I will be on the move again," she said in a low voice. "On the move, but with banners, Duchesse! With banners!" She threw a kiss to the woman in green satin and emeralds who looked back at her gravely.

Sam appeared in the doorway, and Brooke quickly asked: "Have you heard any more particulars about—about what you call the crime wave?"

She perched on the arm of a big chair and looked up at Sam standing with one elbow on the mantel.

"Nope, nothing except the usual lot of wild yarns which roll up like snowballs at a time like this. Have you ever thought that one of her ex-lovers might have bumped off the fair Lola?"

"Sam! Where did you hear that?"

"Didn't hear it. That ex-lover motif is a plot, a little thing of my own. It's my conception of what should have occurred to put claws, tearing, digging, ravening claws into the Filling Station Mystery. May I ask you to clip all the accounts of the police activities and confessions, if there were any. Have you done it?"

"I have, from every paper I could get hold of. When you want them they are in a manila envelope in the lower right-hand drawer of my desk. I haven't said anything to you about it but I was afraid that after what had happened, Mark Trent might feel that he could not go on with the play."

"Afraid! That's putting it mildly. I nearly had heart failure till he assured me that he would keep his part. He'll make 'Islands Arise.' He does more than play the lead, he puts glamour into the comedy and warmth and strength and vitality. I told him he was a fighting lover. He looked queer for a minute; perhaps he was thinking that I didn't put up much of a battle for that wife of his who walked off with the French count. Why should he change his plans for a woman like that? The shock of the tragedy has practically worn off. Spirits are picking up and by day after tomorrow everyone will be keen to make whoopee, to get the thing out of their minds. Two days! Boy, but I get cold feet when I think of all that night means to me."

He frowned at his younger sister who, in a diaphanous white evening frock sprinkled with gold leaves, appeared in the doorway.

"Lucette, when Jerry Field quotes 'Islands Arise,' look as if he were saying something serious, not as if he were inviting—"

"I've followed exactly the business in my sides, Master Reyburn."

"Don't apologize."

"I'm not apologizing. I'm explaining."

"Remember, kiddo, that tomorrow night will be the last rehearsal."

"For which blessing, praise be to Allah! I'll tell you right now, Sam Reyburn, you'll never get me in another play of yours."

"Boy, I won't want you! 'Islands Arise' will be a smash hit! I'll have the best actors in New York camping on my trail for a chance in it! I'll—"

He looked at his sisters watching him with fascinated eyes. Dark color surged to his hair. "I suppose you two girls think I'm a darn fool."

Lucette made a little dash toward him and patted his arm.

Three Kings in a Year

In 1936 England had three kings, George V, Edward VIII and George VI. England has had three sovereigns during two other calendar years. In 1483 King Edward IV died and his son Edward V was murdered by his uncle, Richard III. In 1553 Edward VI died and his cousin Jane was allowed to reign only a few days. She was imprisoned by the supporters of Edward's sister, Queen Mary I, and beheaded the next year.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY ROADS

STATE TRUNK LINES which are and have been under the jurisdiction and control of the State Highway Department. There are 62 miles of State Trunk Line Roads in the county including US-16, US-23, M-38, M-106, M-155 and M-183.

COUNTY ROADS comprised of the primary road system under the jurisdiction of the County Road Commission. There are 300 miles of these roads, 90 miles of which are black-top and the balance gravel surfaced. MC NITT ROADS, so called from the fact that they were taken over by the county under the provisions of the McNitt Act. There are 744 miles of these former township roads in the county plus an additional number of miles in Subdivision Streets.

Thus it is seen that the county has 1044 miles of county roads plus subdivision streets directly under the jurisdiction and control of the County Road Commission.

In the past the county has maintained the State Trunk Lines under contract with the State Highway Department. However, on and after the 1st of December, 1937 the State Department is to maintain the eighty three miles of the State Trunk Lines with their own forces. This is already being done in the remaining counties in the near future. The question of whether to continue with the maintenance of Trunk Lines for the State has been discussed by Road Commission at various times in the past, particularly since the townships roads have been taken over by the county. The increased burden and responsibility of maintaining the McNitt roads made the advantage of a state maintenance contract rather questionable.

The fact that the state is now assuming the maintenance of its own roads will enable the County Road Commission to give the public better service on the county roads, particularly in the winter time and as the county will still have nearly 1200 miles roads to look after, no material change in the organization will be made.

There is a large amount of improvements needed on the county system of roads including the continuation of the black-top program and the widening or replacement of old narrow bridges and the need of improvements on the 744 miles of McNitt roads is almost unlimited. During the past year four years the County Road Commission has been handicapped by lack of funds to carry on the improvement program on as large a scale as the needs of the county would indicate but in another year the county bonds will be paid up in full and there will be more of the weight tax money available for work on the county roads.

HISTORY SHOWS

The history of many Bible characters provides interesting illustrations of the inseparability of the spiritual and the material. Of service and dominion. Of Moses we read (Numbers 12:3), "Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth." Yet, who was more active or more useful in true service? And who, in the Old Testament, made a better demonstration in leading, clothing, and feeding God's people than he? Moses served and proved his dominion, because he discerned that true power lies in the reflection of spiritual qualities, including humility, which perceives activity to be in divine principle alone. Did not the Way-shower himself ask men to learn of him because he was meek and lowly? And did he not specifically promise that service, as he served, would bring rest and dominion? Because he knew no selfhood apart from God, his service consisted of the continual reflection of spiritual being, full, active, unceasing, ideal.

In Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures (p. 1) Mary Baker Eddy writes: "Prayer, watching, and working, combined with self-immolation, are God's gracious means for accomplishing whatever has been successfully done for the Christianization and health of mankind." So clear to her was the revelation of the allness of Spirit, and of man as God's spiritual expression, that she was led to use the term "self-immolation" to indicate the path which leads through service to dominion.

Our goal is to fulfill the command of the Way-shower in preaching the gospel, casting out demons, cleansing leprosy, and doing today the wonderful things he accomplished. Such may be achieved only through first proving in experience the perfection of God and man. Devotion is service in its truest sense. It consists of the hourly elimination from thought of the material, and in proving the superiority of the spiritual. This is the service in which we indeed "by love serve one another."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Each year we approach Armistice Day with a sense of satisfaction—another peaceful year for America. In America we have always built for peace. Our highway development allows mobility of population. Our business transactions are for the most part done by credit. Mutual trust and confidence redound to our benefit. A steady growth in National wealth and a continued rise in our standard of living, are products of peace.

Through peace we prosper through war we destroy our progress. In Europe density of population and lack of natural resources make for war, not so here. State boundaries do not make a different people nor do they prevent flow of natural resources. Let us have peace and we will build a real future both in dollars and cents and security.
