News and Doings of the Michigan State Legislature

Balancing the Budget Seems Impossible As Payroll Shows Big Increase Since Jan. 1, 1939. Labor, Welfare and Civil Service Bills Almost Certain To Face Hard Going. Little of Importance Has Been Accomplished So Far

How the Fitzgerald administration is going to rescue the schools, increase old age pensions and perform other heroic acts of financial generosity, while at the same time it affects that much-promised $8,500,000 payroll saving appears now to merit the classification of a first-rate miracle.

Six weeks of consistent economy efforts by the governor have achieved some headway, but the goal is still a long ways off.

Senator McCallum of Ann Arbor, who solemnly warned voters last fall that the state deficit was in the neighborhood of $66,000,000 took his legislative colleagues to task the other day by reviewing appropriations demands, already $55,000,000 a year in excess of anticipated revenue, and calling attention to the mounting cost of state institutions. It was a most gloomy talk.

Hospital Additions
The state hospital building program conceded by everyone to be imperatively needed, will cost $2,000,000 more from the treasury before it is completed. The institutions will then cost close to $500,000 more each year in salaries and maintenance.

"Where is this money coming from?" Senator McCallum asked. "This is the question I want to have answered. We have a big deficit on our hands. If we appropriate large sums of money early in the session, we may have to deprive others later on of needed money."

The comment was voiced during consideration of $150,000 annual appropriation to advertise Michigan as a tourist state. This amount, voted in 1937, gives $25,000 a year to each of four tourist associations and $50,000 a year to the state administrative board. According to facts brought out by Senator Bishop of Alpena and Senator VanderWerf of Fremont, Michigan receives back in the form of sales taxes paid by out-of-state tourists ten times this appropriation each year.

$337,000 More in Wages
An actual comparison of the state payroll in January, 1937 and in January, 1939, shows an increase of $337,000 on the Fitzgerald payroll instead of a decrease. The governor's office payroll, for example, was $3,225 in January, 1939 as compared with $2,865 in January 1937.

Of course these facts paint a gloomy picture, but they are incomplete to the extent that much of Fitzgerald's economy deeds could not take immediate effect. Employees are entitled to reasonable notice. Reductions of staffs can not be achieved always overnight.

As the administration enters into its eighth week, it is becoming more and more clear that Governor Fitzgerald will be fortunate if he manages to balance the budget.

Labor Relations
Another plant in the administration's program is sound labor relations, giving every man a fair chance to get and keep a job.

Step No. 1 was to be a labor relations mediation board which was to settle strikes, if possible, without the loss of production for the manufacturer and a loss of wages for the workers.

WHAT EVERY PERSON SHOULD KNOW ABOUT MILK

Milk is an excellent source of Vitamin A. Professor Sherman of Columbia University, one of the outstanding diet specialists of the world has stated, as a result of his own extensive research, that "milk is the most important of all foods as a source of vitamin A". The same author has stated, in his book on "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition," of the three vitamins A, B, and C, vitamin A is the factor of greatest practical importance to nutrition and health, because so many of our staple foods are poor in vitamin A, and because a diet poor in this vitamin causes such widespread weakening of the body and increases its susceptibility to so many infectious diseases.

"Carotene, experiments reveal, bears a very close relation to vitamin A, one of the most important of health vitamins, which promotes the growth and is the anti-infectious vitamin. In fact, vitamin A is formed from carotene when it is made into a complete food, and vitamin A is colorless. Thus, lighter colored milk has the largest vitamin A content.

The Mich. Fur Crop

Michigan Fur Bearing Animals Furlish More Than a Million Dollar Crop Every Year.

Fur bearing animals in Michigan represent annually considerably more than the proverbial million dollar crop.

Figured as a commercial game crop, nine species of animals are marketable fur for the trappers fortunate enough to harvest them in their traps, with the mink, beaver, and raccoon among most valuable per pelt and the muskrat yielding the largest number taken.

Analysis of records of the game division, department of conservation of fur reported taken during the 1936-37 seasons, last for which the completed figures are available but which are indicative of conditions of over a considerable period, show that 618,744 muskrat pelts were valued at $920,616. Although only 15,891 mink pelts were reported their value was second highest, with $150,964.

The raccoon is given third highest valuation, $70,172, although only 17,834 were reported trapped while beaver yielded nearly as much, $66,080, although only 4,130 were taken. The other hand, 195,959 skunk pelts were reported and the total valuation was only $63,570. The other species which profited trappers are:

Furs	Value
Weasel	40,215.....$14,076
Red Fox	1,287.....$5,791
Opossum	14,233.....$5,693
Badger	1,748.....$4,357

Market conditions, of course, determine the relative commercial value of Michigan's fur bearers, but ordinarily prices do not vary greatly from year to year, but may over a longer period.

WOULD ABOLISH HIGHWAY DEPT.

Rep. Fenstra of Grand Rapids, has introduced a bill in the legislature to abolish the state highway department and the office of commissioner. In its place he would have the dept. administered by a three man commission appointed by the Governor to serve for six years. However Von Wagoner would continue as commissioner until his term expires in 1941. Governor Fitzgerald in a press interview stated, however, that he was against the bill.

U. S. Lines Names New Flagship "America"

THE largest liner ever to be built in the United States will be christened "America" when she is launched next July at Newport News. The big passenger vessel is under construction for the United States Lines, and will become the flagship of the fleet when she enters the New York-Chicago-Hamburg service early in 1940 as running mate to the popular Manhattan and Washington, largest and finest American liners now in operation. The name was chosen from among the many patriotic and historic names suggested in thousands of letters received by the United States Lines as the one best expressing the significance of the ship—the most important and most costly unit thus far under way in the country's merchant marine program which contemplates the construction of fifty

High Water Threatens Dam

High Water Threatens Ford Dam at Pinckney and Day and Night Is Necessary to Prevent Ingress Swept Away.

The long Sunday rain swelled the Pinckney mill pond to such a degree that there was danger of the bank washing out and releasing water, especially where the old mill race had been filled up. It was necessary to draw in considerable material to reinforce the bank and avert danger of a washout.

The water in the pond raised 17 inches Sunday following the heavy rain and seepages started the bank in several places. The Ford Motor Co. who own the water power were notified and sent men to the dam to lower the water and hired a gang of men and trucks to reinforce the bank with dirt, manure, brush. They worked all night Sunday and Monday. The water level even with the boards off the dam remained at the same level all day Monday but started to recede slightly towards night. According to the Ford men if the water had raised six inches higher it would have been impossible to save the dam. The mill pond drains numerous lakes and streams west of here. As a result of taking the boards off the dam the swamps & lands below it are flooded.

News of the Pinckney School

Pinckney Ends Season By Dropping All Three Games to Manchester. High School Puts Up Hard Fight But Tires in Last Half. Pinckney Will Play in Milford Tournament Next

Pinckney high school teams lost all three games played at Manchester last Friday night. The reserves boys team lost the opener 15 to 7. This is their lowest score of the year. They couldn't shoot baskets. The girls were without the services of their star, Victoria Kulbicki and only got 13 points. They lost 23 to 13.

In the final game the high school got the jump on Manchester and were ahead at the quarter. Manchester came back strong and led at the half by one point. In the last half they continued their comeback and finally won 45 to 26. Manchester used two teams and by sending in fresh men tired Pinckney out. Reynolds got 13 points for Pinckney. Young and VanBlaricum 4.

CURRENT COMMENT

Unpasteurized milk is not always the cause of undulant fever. Bad plumbing is said to have caused the outbreak at East Lansing where over 40 cases were reported. The bacteriology building at Michigan State is antique and too small and the plumbing was outmoded for the large number of students there. The water pipes all sucked air. A request has been presented to the legislature for a new building.

The 17 Detroit school teachers accused by the Dies Committee of being Communists have all been exonerated of that charge by the Board of Education there. The board found that they were not Communists and they did not teach Communism. So they will remain on the jobs. Of course they have no redress against the Dies Committee for branding them falsely as Communists.

Governor Fitzgerald has introduced his welfare bill and it does not seem to differ greatly from the bill passed by the Murphy administration and defeated by the voters last fall. It abolishes the supts. of poor, the county agent, etc., and puts the job of administering welfare in the hands of a three man commission two of which are selected by the board of supervisors and one appointed by the state governor. This is necessary in order to meet federal requirements and get state aid money. In the bill the welfare funds are apportioned according to need. The bill may have had slidding as it is not the kind of a bill favored by Mel McPherson but the Governor may be able to put it across.

Some of the newspaper commentators claim to think that the Dr. Gallup poll is the most powerful factor in the directing of the affairs of the country at the present time. They claim the congressmen depend on the Gallup poll to tell them which way to vote. Of late a poll has been taken on about every important question which comes up by Dr. Gallup. So far he seems to have been right. Previous to 1936 the Literary Digest was considered the only accurate straw vote taker. It had been almost accurate in several previous polls. However it specialized in presidential election and got its poll list from auto owners and telephone subscribers. In 1936 its poll went haywire and was about 100 per cent wrong as it showed a Hoover landslide. The Gallup poll on the other hand showed a Roosevelt victory but hedged somewhat by placing enough states in the doubtful column to swing the election either way. The Gallup method is different from that of the Literary Digest. It takes sample votes from so many doctors, so many merchants so many farmers and so many of the labor class.

A few years ago a law was passed providing that a United States flag 3.52 feet by 5.69 feet must be displayed in each polling place. There are 3,400 polling places in the state. Now another bill has been introduced providing that each school room in the state must display such a flag. This would mean 43,000 flags. Some people are beginning to suspect a racket and believe the flag manufacturing interests are behind the bill.

Orrin DeMass, chairman of the liquor commission wants to put the blame on the minor who buys liquor and make his buying liquor punishable by a fine or prison sentence. The fault that always existed with the liquor laws was that there was too many laws and too little enforcement of them. Minors have always been able to get liquor and probably always will. Too great a percentage of the people have always considered it smart and high hat to wink at liquor law violations ever to get any very effective enforcement.

Coeds Are Not as Good Talkers as Mothers

So College Faculty Holds Little 'Gab Fests.'

COLUMBIA, MO.—The modern college girl, unlike her mother, has a difficult time when it comes to gossiping, according to a survey conducted at Stephens College for Women.

The survey, participated in by more than 860 freshman students, revealed that most college girls have speech defects or are backward when it comes to talking. As a result "gab fests" have been organized at the college dormitories so the girls can improve their speech.

The survey, conducted by Dr. Wesley A. Wiksell, professor of speech, showed that nearly 40 per cent of the girls suffered from noticeable speech defects.

Almost an equal number showed a lack of composure and a tendency to be "jittery" when they were called upon to express themselves. Only 6 per cent of the girls were able to talk freely, without restraint, and were without speech defects.

The survey revealed that the most common speech defects are a flat, throaty and nasal voice; slovenly diction, affected mannerisms and an inability to express simple ideas in clear language.

The survey is conducted at the college every year with an idea of eliminating speech defects.

"Our object is not to make public speakers," Dr. Wiksell said, "but to make the everyday human communications easier and more pleasant."

Dr. Wiksell said that one of the most troublesome of defects of speech to overcome is that of shyness manifested by the "inferiority complex" type. Such students are encouraged to become interested in a wide range of subjects through intensive reading, interviews and conferences.

These students are also asked to meet with faculty advisers frequently and are urged to take part in dormitory "gab fests."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—The WPA barrel isn't like the widow's cruse of oil in the Bible. They expect to be scraping the bottom by next June.

Who gets fired and when is a naturally distressing problem, falling mainly on Dean Brimhall, troubleshooter and handyman for the WPA, who looks and talks like Sinclair Lewis and who used to hunt bears in Utah. Officially, he is director of the section on employment problems of the WPA, and just now these problems loom up like the peak range of his native Rocky mountains.

Ax-grinders, angry congressmen, union disputants, kickers, fixers, utopians, and what not see Mr. Brimhall, and, when he isn't taking this rap, he is expediting and editing administration outputs on labor relations and employment, making surveys on relief technique, or flying in his own plane to some spot where employment is ebbing. A trap-drummer is just snoozing along compared to Mr. Brimhall. Merely getting a bear by the tail was never like this. For relief or nerve tension, he hops into his plane now and then and makes a getaway in the clouds, which seems like a nice idea.

Reared in the Church of the Latter Day Saints—his grandfather trekked west with Brigham Young—he was one of a group of twelve Utah business men, Mariner Eccles among them, who craved New Deal action for some of their ideas. Six of them are still active. On the side, he still maintains a live interest in four different concerns—an airplane company, a railroad company, a lumber business and extensive real estate interests. Ogden is his home town.

He hauled coal to pay for his education at Brigham Young university, and one winter he maintained his family nicely with a shotgun, hunting large and small game. Under McKean Cattell at Columbia university, he studied experimental psychology and later taught that subject at Columbia and Brigham Young. He saw the Wrights make their first European flight and he has been interested in flying ever since—flying and hunting. On every week-end and holiday he's high in the sky, his plane poised and pointed toward his beloved Rockies. But there seems to be no likelihood of his doing a "wrong-way Corrigan."

He says he still could get a living with a shotgun, but instead of his gun he has to shoulder the troubles of citizens less versatile.

THE United States senate, possibly "standin' in the need of prayer," does away with piece-work supplication and puts praying on the regular senate, in need, daily schedule. Puts Daily Task Last year, the On Its Chaplain occasional prayers by the official chaplain, the Rev. Ze Barney Thorne Phillips cost the government $420 a prayer. Now the rate for each will be about $16, as Mr. Phillips gets $1,680 a year.

The change was brought about by a resolution by Senator Neely, by which the senate will be opened by prayer on every calendar day, instead of only on "legislative" days as in the past. The latter are a fiction by which the senate may free itself from things diurnal, as effectively as did Joshua. But, since the senate is entitled to a good prayer on every real, not figurative, working day, it is going to get it. Possibly as a tribute to Chaplain Phillips' prayers, the vote on Senator Neely's resolution was unanimous.

While both parties in the senate have on many occasions claimed divine guidance and inspiration for their side, Mr. Phillips, although a Republican, appointed by Calvin Coolidge in 1927, has been strictly non-partisan. He is a distinguished Episcopalian clergyman, rector of the Church of the Epiphany of Washington, and has discharged his office with simple eloquence and dignity.

Chaplain Phillips, 63 years old, is a native of Springfield, Ohio, educated at Wittenberg college and the General Theological seminary. He engaged in special studies at Oxford in 1916 and 1911 and has served parishes in Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia. His children are named Faith, Deacon and Sallie Hews.

HOW TO SEW by Ruth Wyeth Spears

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I am a bride of six months and your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator has certainly been a life saver for me. I have turned to it for help when making things for every room in our little house. The guest room is next. I would like to use yellow to brighten it up. What color could be combined with this? My smart effects must be accomplished with spare minutes rather than expensive materials, so I would appreciate a helpful hint along this line.—M. S."

If you really want to make that yellow guest room smart, use touches of brown to add characsketches. Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, will give you a new interest. It contains complete directions for making many useful things. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, a crazypatch quilt leaflet is included FREE; it illustrates 36 authentic embroidery stitches in detail. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

TIPS to Gardeners

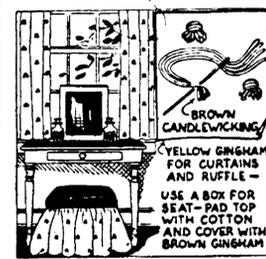

Making the Garden Pay VEGETABLE gardens are grown to provide fresher, more nourishing food for the family, and to conserve on food bills. Therefore, crops must be wisely chosen and systematically planted.

According to Walter H. Nixon, vegetable expert, the most important vegetables considered both for food value and garden space required are: Beans, cabbage, carrots, beets, squash, tomatoes, onions, peas and spinach.

To get the most from garden space, plant two crops of spinach, one in spring, the other in late summer. Plant Chinese cabbage and parsnips about midsummer in space occupied earlier by beans, radishes and peas. Make successive plantings of carrots and beets for a steady supply of small tender roots.

Plant bush beans and beets on both sides of tomato rows. When tomatoes need the space, those earlier crops will have been pulled and used.

Garden can be worked into the corn plan even though there is not such space. Plant spinach or beets or green onions between rows of slower-growing corn. Then grow pole beans (cornfield beans) to climb on the corn stalks.

ter. I have sketched an idea for you here. Mark your material with little dashes about six inches apart and then make the tassels as shown. For the bedspread, reverse the color scheme, using yellow tassels on brown material. Several rows of the tassels may make a border for spread or curtains instead of an all-over design if desired.

Now is the time for all of us to give our houses a fresh start. Crisp new curtains; a bright slipcover; new lampshades; or an ottoman that will do the trick. Make these things yourself. Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you how with step-by-step, easy to follow

SAFETY TALKS

Most Hazardous Occupation MOST farmers probably would scorn the use of industry's steel-toed safety shoes, hard hats to protect their heads from falling objects, and goggles with unbreakable lenses to ward off sparks from the grindstone and splinters from the woc l-cutting power saw. If this be true, it may possibly account for agriculture ranking first as the most hazardous of occupational enterprises.

The National Safety council reports that of 19,500 fatalities in occupational accidents during 1937, agriculture, or farm accidents, contributed 4,500. Trade and service industries were responsible for another 4,500 accidental deaths. All other industries experienced fewer accident fatalities during that year, the council said.

IT'S A HIT! The NEW Firestone CHAMPION TIRE

Because IT'S THE ONLY TIRE MADE WITH THE NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and GEAR-GRIP TREAD

CAR OWNERS everywhere are acclaiming the extra blowout protection and non-skid safety of the new Firestone Champion Tire. And automobile manufacturers, knowing its outstanding performance, have adopted it for their new 1939 models. On every hand you hear, "It's the most effective tire we have ever had on wet pavement and in mud and snow!" It's the hit of 1939!

The Firestone Champion Tire is a completely new achievement in safety engineering and the result of a new and revolutionary means of locking greater safety into the cord body of a tire. This is accomplished first by the use of a new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to give greater strength. And then the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping, which provides amazingly greater strength—and greater strength means greater safety.

The new Safety-Lock cord construction gives the added strength that makes possible the use of the new thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip Tread, which provides remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design which has more than three thousand sharp-edged angles that grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and to assure a safe stop.

Have your Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires, the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

Do you know that Michigan offers fine facilities for winter sports . . . that probably no State excels our own as a winter playground? And do you realize the advantages of making this fact more widely recognized?

It will stimulate a growing Michigan industry. It will bring additional money into the State. It will create more jobs for Michigan men and women.

Progress has already been made in this work. Every one should help—you can help by telling your friends about Michigan's Winter Carnivals and centers of winter sport.

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company is publishing this advertisement, one of a series, in 250 Michigan newspapers to help gain wider acceptance of Michigan as a great State for the sport that winter brings.

IDEAS INCREASE SAFETY AT HOME

An old mariner sang "Safe, safe at home," in an old song. But the National Safety Council refutes that idea easily with figures that in a single year 23,000 persons are killed and nearly three million are injured in home accidents, many resulting from carelessness.

More accidents are caused by falls than any other reason. Next come burns, scalds, and explosions, then asphyxiation and suffocation.

These winter weeks are proper to look about the home for possible hazards and to correct them. Miss Evalyn Bergstrand, specialist in the home management at Michigan State College, suggests projects for the man who is handy with the hammer and saw.

Some of the stairway falls could be averted if there were a strong handrail the length of the flight. Falls are more common on stairs that are badly lighted. It may be possible to put in a window or install a two way switch at the top and bottom of such a flight. Most people who have young children put up baby gates at the top of the stairs. But often children, too young to walk, climb up a flight of stairs nearly to the job and then topple backward. Top and bottom gates would be better.

On the cellar stairs it is a good idea to paint the bottom step white, and to provide for illumination. Outside the house, steps to porches and doorways are exposed to rain and dampness. They may not reveal a rotted condition until someone has had a bad fall or a wrenched ankle. Frequent inspection and prompt repair when needed would avoid trouble at any time.

HISTORY REPEATING

BAD AXE (MPA)—On Jan. 6, 1914 a boat was washed ashore at Harbor Beach and burned. This year, 25 years later to the day, there were reports that a boat was seen blown up in Lake Huron between Port Hope and Harbor Beach. The reports proved to be without foundation. Was history trying to repeat itself, or were trawsmen who reported flames about 25 years late in sighting the burning vessel?

Conservation Dept. Notes

Two types of radio communication will be used to control forest fires this year. The old assignment will be used and also another effected only after considerable negotiating with Canadian authorities.

Nine Marquette men went out one day recently and bagged 45 rabbits. Orders are already being received for trees by the dept. to be planted on privately owned land. No order for less than 500 trees is accepted and not for less than 50 of any class.

A biological development project for waterfowl, fur bearers and fish is now underway is a 2500 acre marsh tract near Houghton Lake.

About 80,000 deer and bear hunters have failed to send in their game report cards. Under the law failure to report is punishable by fine of $100 or 60 days of both.

Work has been in progress for some time in getting the dept's fire fighting equipment in shape for the coming season.

The field force of the forestry division are now attending a training school at the Pigeon River head quarters.

The small amount of ice this winter is said to have resulted in a small winter kill of grouse.

The commercial fishermen are complaining about the poor ice harvest on Tawas Bay. Each fish house takes about 400 tons of ice and each 60 pounds of fish packed about 37 lbs.

Discovery of oil beneath an existing formation of 100 ft. has stimulated interest in Ogemaw county. The new well was brought in at a depth of 3600 ft and is producing 20 to 25 barrels a day.

This is the last week of ice fishing the season closing March 2nd.

About one third of the legal sized trout planted in Michigan streams are marked by jaw tags or clipped fins.

Safetygym
BY ERIC W. BRAUN
The Safety Plan

A few weeks ago in this column I suggested that horns be eliminated from all motor vehicles. Some of my friends, in commenting on this said the idea was too radical that such a change would immediately cause tremendous increase in accidents. Would it?

Whenever weather conditions are extremely bad for driving, such as fog, sleet and snow, communities pride themselves that no motor vehicle fatalities have been reported during such a period. The reason is this: all drivers become more careful when driving conditions are bad. In the elimination of the horn would control some of the thoughtless driving habits by slowing us down. The idea cannot be too radical. If you care to write, I am glad to receive your criticisms and suggestions. Please write me in the margin of this paper.

JINXED AUTO

CLARE (MPA) An automobile belonging to James Olson, local contractor, was jinxed. On a recent trip to Gaylord, Michigan, it was bound and had to be towed to extricate it from snowdrifts. Back in Clare, Michigan, days later, his car was stolen. It was parked downtown. The car was recovered several days later.

SWEET CHIMNEY

DECATUR (MPA)—When Wanko started to build a new home he recently purchased had been unoccupied for some time. The fire would not burn. On the roof gull pulled a hole down the chimney. It was filled with honey. There were three solid honeycombs which were found.

The Democrat state convention which was held at Flint last Friday and Saturday saw the control of the party pass into the hands of Murray VanWagoner, state highway commissioner. One of the church activities this week was the Father-Son Banquet on Tuesday evening. Tonight (Ash Wednesday) occurs the first of the Lenten special services which Rev. McLucas is beginning.

For the first Sunday in Lent, our Sunday School Lesson will feature 'Peter in Samaria', using the Bible passage, Acts 8:14, 25. The theme is along the line of 'Keeping Religion' Free from Commercialism. Last Sunday's lesson time was too short for the helpful discussion of the Temperance Theme conducted by our teacher. We are hoping for ideal conditions next Sunday in all our classes as we consider the spiritual significance of the Lenten season.

"More abundant use" means cheaper electricity — in Michigan as elsewhere. As your use of electricity goes UP, the average price goes DOWN. And ONE CENT acquires tremendous buying power as you use more electricity!

For example, most residence customers can add additional electric appliances to their existing uses without greatly increasing their bill. It is wise economy to use more of these thrifty electric servants: ONE CENT will furnish soothing comfort from an electric heating pad for 10 hours ... or brew 24 cups of coffee ... or burn a "night light" in your bathroom or hallway every night for one week ... or do most of the family wash on Monday ... or cook a tempting meal in the electric casserole.

Electricity is cheap! You can make free and unstinted use of lighting and appliances and not add much to your bill. Prove this by using all the electricity you need.

Linda dared not tell Mr. Wines, dared not admit to herself how important this might be. He stopped uncertainly; and she said, half-sobbing with excitement: "No one had seen this bullet hole till you did, Mr. Wines. I want you to stay and tell them how you found it. Wait. You will, won't you? Till I telephone?"

"Why, guess't I can," he decided. "But—what's the idea?" She closed the door, carefully, as though afraid that to do so might erase the indications his keen old eyes had been the first to see. Her thought was of Phil; but she would not give Phil a hope that might yet fail. She must first be sure. While old Mr. Wines watched in a puzzled way, she called Mr. Falkran.

"Someone who knows about the Sentry case," Linda pleaded desperately. "Anyone." "Who is this, please?" "Miss Dane, Mr. Phillip Sentry's secretary."

"I might give you Mr. Weldon? He assisted in the trial, and he is here." "Oh, do, please!" And a moment later she had Mr. Weldon on the phone. He said guardedly, "Mr. Weldon speaking."

"Can you come down to Mr. Sentry's office, quickly, please?" "Why, if necessary, yes. What is it? Let me speak to him." "Oh, he's not here! But it is necessary. We've just found—" She hesitated, then spoke carefully, explicitly. "Mr. Wines is here," she said. "The father of—the dead girl, you know. And he has found what looks like a bullet hole."

"A bullet hole?" Weldon's tone was puzzled. "Yes. In the lock of the door." "But I don't see—" "It might mean," she urged, "that Miss Wines was shot by someone else; was already dead when Mr. Sentry got here. You remember they said the gun was pushed against her, but he said he didn't feel her when he fired. Can't you come, please?"

"I see!" Weldon was alert now. "You've found a bullet?" "No, just a hole." "Don't touch anything," he directed. "I'll be down there in ten minutes." So Linda waited, and Zeke Wines waited; and when Weldon arrived and had seen what there was to see, he sent for another man who was expert in such matters to examine this that they had found.

Time thereafter dragged interminably, while Weldon questioned Wines and Linda, and while the expert made his examination. Linda, watching, fretted with impatience; and once she urged, "Oh, can't you hurry?" But Weldon reassured her. "We've plenty of time. Miss Dane. Today and all tomorrow."

"Can I—tell Mr. Sentry's family?" "Suppose you wait," he suggested kindly. "Wouldn't it be better to have something definite to tell them?"

"But doesn't this prove Mr. Sentry is innocent?" "Hardly that," he warned her. "I think you'd better wait, really." "Can't we drive down to the Cape and see Mr. Flood?" "I intend to."

"Please let me go with you." He smiled. "I don't know why not," he agreed. "Yes." He added, "I'll locate the Governor before we start, so that we will know where to find him, later today, if Mr. Flood wishes to do so." Half an hour later they were on the road. At a little before five they met District Attorney Flood at the golf club near his summer home. At a quarter of eight they were all back in Phil's office, while the District Attorney himself examined the bullet hole.

He turned at last to Linda. "Well, Miss Dane," he said, a deep relief in his tones. "I shall see the Governor, ask him for a reprieve." "What does that mean?" "A postponement." He hesitated.

"In fact, I may even suggest a commutation. This other bullet certainly creates a grave doubt that Mr. Sentry actually killed Miss Wines." "But then won't the Governor pardon him?" "I'm afraid not. Not yet, certainly. Of course, this means a further investigation of the case. The Governor—I'm speaking frankly, you see—may suspect that some of Mr. Sentry's friends have faked this evidence. But there must be a reprieve at least. I'll see the Governor this evening."

Linda considered. "When you know what he decides, Mr. Flood, will you let me tell them? Tell Mr. Sentry's family? You can telephone to me at my home." "Of course. You've certainly earned that."

"Mrs. Sentry isn't well," she explained. "The shock even of good news—" Linda meant to wait, to hold her peace, till she could go to Phil proudly with this word; but when she came home, she found it hard to wait. In the end, despite her resolution, she telephoned the Sentry home.

Barbara answered. Linda asked for Phil. "He's with mother," Barbara told her. "They're outdoors somewhere. I couldn't bear to be with them." Barbara's tones were shaken. She said: "I can't bear to see mother. She's so strange and still." Linda said quickly, "Come over here, Barbara." She hesitated, then added: "Don't let them know you're coming. I've—something to tell you."

"Something about my father?" Barbara cried, a quick hope in her voice. "Come," Linda insisted. "I'll be here."

Phil leaped up the two or three steps to her side. He caught her close and tenderly. "Mother! Mother!" he cried. "The Governor has commuted the sentence to life imprisonment!"

CHAPTER XIV The newspapers were again filled with the story of the case. The Governor had to meet editorial and public criticism for his commutation of the sentence; but he met it silently, and without revealing the fact that the discovery of new evidence had been responsible for his change of mind. The secret of the bullet hole was well kept. The District Attorney believed that—assuming Mr. Sentry was not the murderer—the actual killer, whoever he might be, would feel a false security if he supposed Mr. Sentry's guilt remained unquestioned. So except for a few individuals, no one knew the truth; but the District Attorney's office meanwhile was busy, checking back, following every line that promised a solution.

The secret was well kept; but Dan Fisher knew. Barbara wrote him the truth; and over the next weekend he came on from Cleveland, California, Canada, Europe; and Phil brought home travel folders and they studied them diligently, and at night they might be decided on an early departure. But in the morning Mrs. Sentry always reflected: "You know, Phil, we're perfectly comfortable here. And I don't want to go away from him."

Yet toward the end of July, at Linda's suggestion, they decided on a fortnight in York. Mrs. Sentry would go a day or two ahead, with the servants, to open the house; Phil and Linda would follow later. That Linda should go with them seemed a matter of course. Phil found as always deep happiness in her companionship. She demanded nothing—except to be with him. And—she could give her nothing. If any dreams ever took shape in his thoughts, he remembered his mother's pleading cry, "Stay always with me, Phil!"

And more than ever she needed him now. His mother and the servants left for York on Wednesday; and on Friday morning, Phil and Linda followed, in Linda's car. The girl drove; and as they picked their way through traffic toward the Turnpike, Phil said: "Linda, I saw your father, yesterday. He suggested that he put my name up at his club." He added, "I was mighty grateful to him; but they'd be sure to turn me down."

"Father wouldn't have offered, if there were any chance of that." "He's like you, Linda. He and your mother. So darned—loyal. But others may not feel the same." "Haven't all your friends been the same?" "Some have. Some have not. Mother felt hurt at first when Mr. Hare suggested another to defend father, though doubtless it was for the best. Occasionally he stops in to discuss affairs and to encourage Mother."

"The Warnings—the way they acted grieved Mother," Phil continued. "And then, she resigned from all her committees and things; and they accepted her resignations. That was tough on her. She's been happier lately. Happy in just—loving father. But she doesn't really seem well. I'm pretty worried about her, Lin."

Linda, grave eyes upon the road, changed the subject. "Do you hear from Mary?" she asked. Phil nodded grimly. "She's married again, a South American; beef baron, something of the kind." Their thoughts, as sometimes happens with two people as close to one another as they had come to be, ran together. Thinking of Dan and Barbara, they said aloud in a sort of chorus: "But Barbara—" Then they looked at each other, and laughed, and he said, "We were going to say the same thing!" "Yes. Just the way married people do—"

He protested: "Lin, do you have to keep—torturing me?" "My dear," she said, "don't you know by this time that you and I are already married, in so many real, deep ways? And I'm not asking anything more than we already have, Phil." She added, half to herself, "At least, I don't think I am."

She smiled, her eyes upon the road. "You wouldn't even have to ask me, Phil."

"And—mother needs me. I'm all she's got to hold to now, with Mary and Barbara both gone." Linda did not argue with him; but during the next few days at York, watching Mrs. Sentry and Phil together, she was sometimes secretly angry.

Occasionally Mr. Hare Stopped In to Discuss Affairs.

Find Student Interest Lags When a Game or Sport Lacks Prestige

Many are the college men who, with neither the inclination nor the ability to take part in the major sports, have consoled themselves with the thought that after graduation they will still be able to play their golf and tennis, which is more than those who have gained fame in football and baseball can say of their sports, says the Hartford Courant. They may now take further cheer from the recommendations of Prof. Eugene C. Bischoff, of the athletic department of Pennsylvania State college, and Mrs. Elizabeth Meyers, of the school of education, New York university, both of whom advocate greater collegiate emphasis upon individual as opposed to team sports.

Meritorious as is this proposal, most colleges would have difficulty putting it into effect. Athletic departments of major universities that have attempted to encourage general participation through emphasis on informal, intramural competitions have found that student interest lags when a game or sport lacks prestige. As long as they are major attractions from the spectator's point of view, the team sports will undoubtedly continue to be the center of student interest. Many students believe, too, that they can shift with little difficulty from the group sports to golf or tennis or any other generally available type of recreation when they are graduated.

It would be hard to prove that shifting the emphasis from the team sports to the individual sports would increase the number of students participating in athletics, if such is the purpose. Students who like a sport will take part in it regardless of its importance. There is a large group, however, that would probably have but a passing interest in any sport were it not for its prestige value.

Legislative News

Accordingly a bill was introduced simultaneously in the senate and in the house, known as the 'governor's labor bill', which among other things would require a ten-day notice for a strike, would legalize picketing (now illegal), force manufacturers to hire back workers who went out on a legal strike and to pay them wages during the 10 day interim, and otherwise restrict both sides in the public.

Labor, Industry Critical

First, organized labor registered emphatic objections to the 10-day clause. While they liked legalized picketing, they opposed a requirement that only the workers of the involved plant could demonstrate. They spoke heatedly of their 'right to strike' with notice. They especially disliked the restriction that workers who violated the 10-day strike notice would make themselves liable to loss of their legal standing as an employee.

Both the AFL and the CIO joined in a loud chorus of protest. Governor Fitzgerald was booed at a labor convention in Detroit. Mention of Daniel A. Knaggs, former mayor of Monroe, who was appointed one of the state labor commissioners, evoked a noisy storm.

It became evident that labor didn't want restrictions on labor any more than the Michigan Manufacturer's association wanted restrictions on industry. John Lovett, counsel for industrialist, declared that a permanent labor mediation board would incite trouble instead of preventing it. He suggested that a state commissioner be empowered to appoint a special arbitration committee to fit the particular needs of each labor difficulty and that restrictions be few in number, if any at all.

Welfare Bill

Faced with a clash of interests between the cities and rural areas, the Governor has chosen to compromise on the drafting of provisions for the welfare reorganization bill.

Aimed to eliminate costly duplications of agencies handling relief and to promote efficiency and economy, the welfare measure follows closely the provisions of the welfare reorganization act defeated in last year's referendum. It provides for more local control which is satisfactory to supervisors, but allots welfare funds on the basis of need rather than of population, which is suited to city officials.

This is a controversial topic in Lansing, and the welfare bill will have tough sledding before it is enacted into law.
