

Various Preferences Given Owners

Land Owners Will Be Greatly Fav- or by the State in Purchase of Tax Delinquent Lands

Clarence W. Lock, executive secretary of the State Land Office Board, announced today the terms under which state-owned properties will be offered for sale at public auction, beginning February 13, 1940.

Former owners will be given every possible opportunity to regain possession of their properties through the liberal terms being extended by the board.

These properties which reverted to the state because of tax-delinquencies, will be offered for sale to the highest bidder, with the provision that no bids of less than 25% of the 1938 assessed valuation will be accepted. Purchasers who had no previous interest in the property must pay cash for the full amount of their bid within 24 hours, whereas former owners may purchase on a time payment contract.

The terms of the contract will require a down payment of 10% of the amount of the bid but in no case less than $25. The balance of the contract may be paid in monthly installments of not less than $5 per month. All contracts to be paid in full in a period not exceeding ten years.

The unpaid balance of the principal will draw 6% interest, and the amount of the interest will be included with the installments to be paid. In Mr. Lock's opinion, this liberal arrangement should enable practically every owner to repurchase his property.

Lists of descriptions of properties to be offered for sale are now available at the offices of the county treasurers. Detailed information regarding procedure to be followed in bidding at the auction sale is like wise available at these offices, and it is suggested that all those who are interested in the sale should secure information promptly.

When in the office of the county treasurer, and if such person is unable to hold the sale it will then be held by such other person as may be selected.

In counties where the sale may continue over a period of time, a calendar showing the descriptions to be offered each day will be prepared and posted at the place of sale. This will make it possible for those interested in bidding on a certain parcel to know what day it will be offered.

Local Industries of the Past

Pickle Industries Have Operated at Various Times Here Very Successfully. The Labor Element Seems To Have Been Instrumental in Closing Them Down.

Back in our files of 1888 we read that through the efforts of Charles Plympton, Williams Bros. of Detroit, leading pickle merchants of that day established a pickle salting station at Pinckney. This building stood where Thos. Read Sons coal sheds are now located. A man by the name of John Barton signed the farm to contracts to grow pickles. Some 200 acres were wanted. Thomas Ross was the biggest grower in 1889, the first year the station operated. He had 18 acres. In 1890 he increased this to 20 acres. Michael Roche remembers drying pickles there when a boy. This place was operated for about ten years. H. H. Swarouth later rented it and bought beans there. The structure was destroyed by fire in July, 1899.

About 1914 the Knox-Harris Co., established another pickle station here along the railroad, north of the Abel Haines home. Nelson Mortenson was the first manager. Later Wm. Jeffreys operated it, and M. E. Darrow and Boone Amburgey. During its heyday this last station took in about 100,000 bushels of pickles a year. There were grades. No. 1 pickles, those about 2 inches long sold from 3c to 4c, those larger at a lower rate and the big pickles not at all. The station contained 7 vats in which the pickles were packed in a salt brine. This brine had to be tested daily and kept at a certain consistency. The pickles stayed in brine until they were sold, sometimes six weeks until late spring.

The station was a big success at first. The late Floyd Resson had about this time sold farms to a number of foreign people with large families. In a good year the pickles ripened rapidly and it was a tough job keeping them picked at the right size. Here is where the big families came in handy. Sons of the biggest pickle raisers then were Bert Gardner, the Soloman, Bokrus and Cider families. Then in a big year in which the crop was bountiful the price was usually lower.

This station operated for about 15 years and moved to Stockbridge as they could not obtain sufficient cucumber acreage here. Some from here sold there this year but found the price way down around 2c and 1-2-2 Williams Bros. of Detroit have been out of business for a number of years. The Wilson Packing Co., took over the Knox-Harris Co. and they later sold out to a Cleveland Company.

NEW ELECTION LAW

Under the new general election laws, which were amended by the 1939 legislature in quite a few particulars, and in one instance that is of general interest, all township caucuses are to be held on the 3rd Monday in February, preceding any April election.

The township election is set by law as the first Monday in April, April which is April 1st.

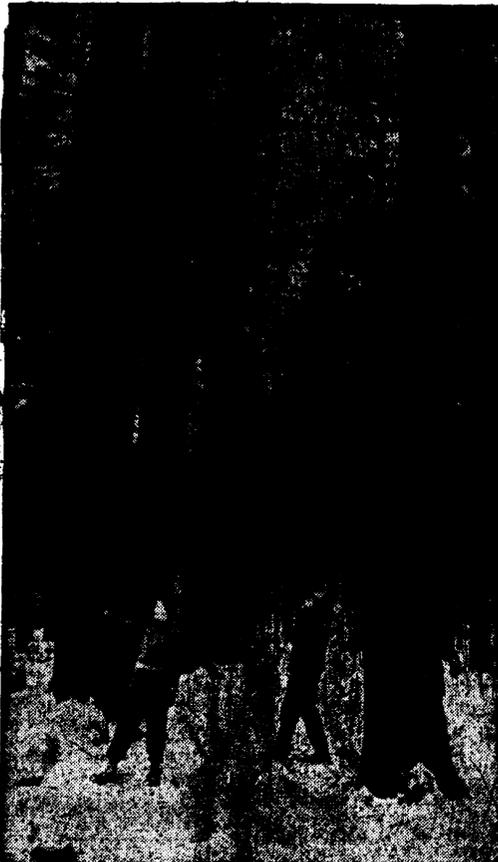

In townships which have adopted the primary system of nominating candidates, nomination petitions must be filed with the township not later than four o'clock in the afternoon of January 30. Primaries and caucuses will be held on the same day which according to law is February 19. Linden Leader.

BOOTLEGGING SPARROWS

The practice of poisoning sparrows is dangerous and unlawful for any person which will kill sparrows will also kill poultry, stock, cats, dogs and humans, according to J. W. Stack of the Zoology dept. of the Mich. State College.

Several crews of men are said to be working in our county to eradicate sparrows by poison. These men have no authority to do this and are connected with no college. They probably reside in a county where bounty is paid on sparrows and where they will sell the dead birds at 3 cents each. Hunting is always easier in a county where no bounty is paid, or in other words where there is no closed season.

Caldwell's Comedians Will Offer a Problem Play This Week Entitled "Chickens Preferred"

"Chickens Preferred", a great problem play, is presented by Caldwell's Comedians, at the Community hall on Friday night, being a problem as well as a lesson play with a moral. "Chickens Preferred" is also a great comedy. George O'Brien will be on hand as Toby to furnish the laughs as the friendly neighbor who simply loves to raise hogs. "Toby" is the proud owner of six little pigs, and as usual there is a runt in the litter. He names the runt "Kay Jr." after Kay Manning, played by Lucille Blackburn, much to her disgust. Grag Rouleau, in the role of John Meredith, the friend of the family, loves his poultry as much as Toby loves his hogs.

Roy Kinkle, as the unfaithful husband also loves chickens, but not the feathered variety. His scheming, plotting and meanness in general brings him to a bad end as might be expected.
You'll see Evelyn Easter, the leading lady, in one of her best roles this season as the loving, faithful wife who seems to stand for most anything from her philandering husband.

Eva Kinkle will give you many laughs as the slattern, maid of all work, and last, but not least (in avoidance) Dick Caldwell plays the part of Mr. Ames, the man who has money, spends money, and makes it buy what he wants.

All in all, it's a good show, for young, for old, for married, for single, for those who are in love, have been in love or ever expect to be.
Caldwell's Comedians, Pinckney's favorite show seems to be getting better each week and Mr. Caldwell promises us some exceptional plays before opening his tent show, early in May, so be sure and take advantage of your merchant tickets and don't miss a single play. State Liquor Commission Row and Supervisors Demands Furnish Highlights of Past Week

County supervisors who "received everything we asked for" in the 1939 legislature's home rule welfare act, according to Melville McPherson chairman of the state tax commission, now proposes new and drastic changes.

In the first place, the supervisors would have the state get out almost entirely of the welfare field.

Supervisors would hold complete control over how the welfare money is handled, and the state would set aside one-third of its sales tax revenues or approximately $15,000,000 in a normal good year for relief needs of the counties.

The blessing of Gov. Dickinson on the supervisors plan was duly proclaimed in the name of economy. The 1939 legislature had appropriated $8,750,000 for welfare needs, a reduction of nearly one-half from the previous year's expenditures, and it had put the home rule responsibility right on the supervisors lap.

Dearth of funds, however, has been disconcerting to supervisors as well as state officials. The latter particularly dislike the idea of a special session in 1940 for several reasons, these being mainly the present $80,000,000 state deficit and the unpopularity of any new taxes.

Under the supervisor's tentative plan as approved by the governor the counties would also take over responsibility for spending of other millions—$4,000,000 of aid for crippled children and $800,000 for crippled and afflicted children.

But while the counties were getting more money for relief purposes, they would leave to the state the administration of state old-age pensions. Again the legislature is asked by the supervisors to step up its appropriation for this form of assistance from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 annually to be matched by an equal amount by the federal government.

It is estimated that this increase providing $4,000,000 annually would assure pensions to 25,000 more persons who are now eligible to receive them.

MRS. FRANKIE C. LELAND

Frankie C. Horton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Horton, was born at Howell, May 26, 1867 and passed away at Middleville, January 27, at the age of 72 years, 8 months and one day.

When she was but a child her parents moved to Webberville, and there she grew to womanhood. In 1888, she was married to Wales H. Leland of Putnam township, where they resided until their retirement from farm life when they established their home in the village of Pinckney. Mrs. Leland was the last of their little family circle, her husband having departed this life in February, 1929, and the daughter, Carmen, who graced the Leland home, having been laid away to rest just two years ago today, her death and her mother's, having occurred on the same date.

Immediate survivors of the deceased are two brothers, William H. and Scott S. Horton of Webberville and one sister, Mrs. A. H. Van-Order at Middleville at whose home she was cared for during the last ten days of her illness.

Of a quiet unassuming nature, Mrs. Leland was possessed of sterling qualities of character, virtues which blend in the making of good wives and mothers, neighbors and friends. She was a loyal member of the Congregational church and of the Ladies Aid Society and also was affiliated with the Pinckney O. E. S. Chapter which organization attended the funeral in a body.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the Pinckney Cong'l. Burial was in Pinckney cemetery.

CURRENT COMMENT

The high light of last weeks news was the threat of Gov. Dickinson to sign the turchase orders for all liquor, himself, unless his old dry sidekick, Muri Defoe of Charlotte, backed down on his threat not to sign orders. The flareup started over Defoe's criticism of the buying policy of the state liquor commission of which he is usually a minority member. The commission wished to order liquor which would raise their stock on hand to about $4,000,000. Defoe said such a huge stock was unneeded and that $1,000,000 could be easily withdrawn and used for welfare needs where the funds are exhausted. Com. Chairman DeMaas said Defoe did not know what he was talking about and the purchases would go through. Defoe charged DeMaas was discriminating in his purchases in favor of Canadian firms and henceforth he would sign no orders for liquor bought of them.

Three commissioners must sign all purchase orders. DeMaas appealed to Gov. Dickinson who is also a member of the commission but seldom attends its meetings. The governor allowed that if Defoe refused to sign the purchase orders, he, the governor would put his John Hancock on the dotted line for the purchase of a million dollars worth of liquor. At last reports Defoe was sticking to his guns and the drier governor in the history of Michigan seemed to be faced with the alternative of signing orders for the purchase of a million dollars worth of booze. This should be one for Ripley. "Believe it or Not."

The state commissioner of agriculture announced last week that state and county fairs will be given no state aid this year. This will probably be the end of many of them as most of them even with state aid have been in the red. Dr. Snow, mgr. of the state fair, announces that this fair will operate as usual. This may also be difficult as the state in years past has paid half its premiums for it.

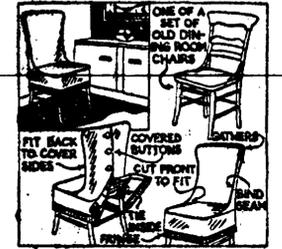

The state supervisors session was held at Lansing last week with Mel McPherson getting most of the spotlight. In his speech he advocated turning over the entire welfare problem to the counties and leaving the state and federal government out of it except that they should contribute financial aid. However he supplemented this by demanding that one third of the sales tax collections for welfare aid and that the distribution be based on the population of the counties. Gov. Dickinson was introduced and said he was for McPherson's plan 100 percent. The next day the governor recanted and said perhaps he might have been a little hasty, that he was not ready to approve the diversion of the sales tax funds until he had given the matter deep study. McPherson would also give the distribution of the mothers pensions back to the judges of probate.

In one thing we are for McPherson 100 percent. He demanded that the state appropriate enough money to pay old age pensions to 25,000 people on the waiting lists. In the zeal for economy, last year the legislature failed to make an adequate appropriation for old age pensions with the result no new ones can be added and many now receiving them has been cut to $15 a month or less. This is a disgrace to the state and should be remedied. Human welfare should come ahead of budget balancing.

Frank McKay continues to get in to the hair of Filton Bates, editor of the Plainfield Mail, who is in many respects the Wm. Borah of Michigan. Recently he got a letter from Frank printing bill Eaton had against the McKay offering to compromise a Republican State Central Committee for part of the amount. This was a mistake as Eaton had no bill against the committee. However he investigated and found McKay had been given the power to wipe out the $50,000 deficit the committee incurred in 1938 of which $32,000 is left. Bates went up in the air when he heard this. Gov. Dickinson and his advisor, Judge Boyles when called said they knew nothing of State Chairman Thomson and his methods. Relations have been shaky there since Thomson announced his candidacy for governor.

Here's New Dignity For Old Chair Set

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS ANY dining room may be made fresh and smart with built-in cupboards, a little paint and inexpensive curtains. But what may be done to bring a set of outmoded chairs up-to-date? The one, sketched at the upper right is typical of many that are substantial and sturdy though scarred by long use. All that they need is an up-to-date frock to make them perfectly at home in that modern dining room. If your chairs do not have the supports shown at the sides of the seat they will be even easier to slip-cover. This cover is of medium blue cotton rep with darker blue for the bias binding and the cotton fringe around the bottom. Large button moulds are covered with the slip cover material for the button-up-back opening. If you are not expert at making bound buttonholes, snaps may be used under the buttons. The narrow ties sewn to the corners of the inside of the seat cover hold it neatly in place. NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book No. 3 contains six other interesting ways to use slip covers, with step-by-step directions. There are 32 pages of fascinating ideas. Spool shelves; braided rugs; crazypatch quilts; many embroidery designs with numerous stitches illustrated. Ask for Book 3 and enclose 10 cents coin to cover cost. Momentous Question Faces U. S. In Matter of Helping Finland

Places Our Country at Forks of National Policy; Possible Involvement in Current War Seen as Great Peril; Other Nations Might Come Begging.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON—The question of aid to valiant little Finland is a proposition that is getting right close to home. Whether we like it or not, it can hardly be denied any longer that the proposal to extend money help to the Finns has brought the United States to a fork in the road of national policy. It is accepted as a fact that our sympathies as a nation and as individual human beings are with the Finns. There can be no question that almost all right-thinking persons hope that the butcher, Stalin, and his dastardly schemers meet ultimate destruction. That is the hope. The end, of course, may not be what we hope, but it is no sin to hope for results with which we agree in the matter of freedom for any distressed people. The amazing thing is that the Finns have accomplished as much as they have. Nor has anyone of common sense paid any attention ever to the Stalin's preposterous lies of the reasons for the Russian attack.

Moreover, we cannot be blind to the fact that the question of aid to Finland comprehends a decision wherein domestic matters are just as vital as those involved in the international relationship concerned. I think we can forget about the amount of money involved. After all, the $60,000,000 that would be loaned is a mere drop in the bucket when measured by the gigantic totals with which the Roosevelt administration has made the nation familiar. So, the intrinsic worth of the aid can be passed over.

American Involvement in War Is Crux of Question

Succinctly stated, the question which lies in the background; the footpad that awaits an opportunity to slug unsuspecting innocents; the man-killer that must be watched for is American involvement in the current world war! That is the heart, the crux, of the question, although I believe it is not as apparent as it is real. It must not be overlooked. I am unwilling at this moment to assert, as a personal conclusion, that granting of a $60,000,000 loan will lead definitely to the brink of American participation in that European catastrophe. But I am more unwilling to declare a conviction that we can remain out of the bloody maelstrom if such a loan is made. It is a situation so fraught with dangers to our future, as a nation, that almost anything can happen.

It may be said that a gift of money—that is what it will result in for the chances of repayment seem to be nil—will do no more than cause a fresh wave of hatred for us on the part of the Russians and Germans. Let us picture it this way and suppose the decision of congress is to loan the money: Russia and Germany start a vigorous press and propaganda attack upon the United States. We will be called every sort of vermin that has a name, if the propaganda follows the usual Russian or German pattern. Ignorant citizens of the two countries will be driven to angry passion, willing to do anything to punish America. The chain of events moves to the open sea. An American ship, not bound for warring countries, guiltless insofar as war rules are concerned, is sighted by a Russian or German raider. Our ship goes down. American blood has been spilled. And, the next step?

Other Nations Then Might Come Begging Help From Us

Now, let us examine another possibility. It is this: if we extend financial assistance to the Finns, does it seem likely any of the other nations—Norway or Sweden, if they get into the Baltic trouble, or England or France—will overlook the opportunity to beg help from us?

HELP FOR FINLAND

The crux of the question is the possible involvement of U. S. in war. Sympathy of American people is with the Finns. But national policy is involved. Loan to Finland would start other nations seeking spanofal aid. Selling goods and lending money entirely different propositions.

And, further, does anyone hold the conviction for a minute that there would not be a veritable deluge of propaganda in this country in behalf of loans to Norway or Sweden or even England and France, once the ice is broken by help to Finland. The second point, therefore, is that if a precedent is established by extension of aid to Finland, it is surely possible that loans to the others would follow. I said it was "possible." I believe it is probable.

What then becomes of the ironclad Johnson act? That law, pushed through by Sen. Hiram Johnson, the California Republican, makes it impossible for any government to borrow money within the United States if that nation has not paid its war debts to the United States. Finland, of course, is the only one of the World War borrowers that has even attempted to repay its borrowings and so a loan to Finland does no violence to the Johnson act.

Yet, I have a feeling that if the ice is broken, and passionate appeals are made for help for the others on the side of freedom—if those things come about, I am very doubtful that supporters of the Johnson act will be able to hold the line against the onrushing waters of propaganda which our own government would quickly employ.

President Roosevelt, I believe, was a bit tricky in the way he presented the proposal for a Finnish loan to congress. At first, we writers were informed from mysterious sources that there was a drive under way at the Capitol that was to lead to a loan for Finland. There were quick denials of that from congressional quarters.

President Avoids an Open Frank Recommendation

Eventually, the situation was clarified. Mr. Roosevelt sent identical letters to the speaker of the house and the president of the senate. He called attention to American sympathy for the plight of the Finns. He indicated that the bulk of the people hoped that, if anything should happen to Stalin, it would be something of consequence. But he avoided an open, frank recommendation. The President made a case in his argument for the loan, yet he did not follow the usual course of making a recommendation. It was unusual restraint on the President's part, something quite different than he always had done theretofore.

What Mr. Roosevelt did on the proposal for a Finnish loan, therefore, was to say to congress, in effect: "I am for such a loan but the responsibility is yours and if it has a bad fareback or if it gets us into trouble, you will have to take the blame."

The President's course respecting his letters on the Finnish loan had the unexpected reaction of recalling his position concerning repeal of the arms embargo. Most persons will remember how vigorously the President insisted on repeal of the arms embargo because, as he wrote congress, "such a statute is unneutral." It will be recalled, moreover, Mr. Roosevelt and his spokesmen in congress said with a great show of patriotism that this nation must do nothing at all that will involve us in a war that is distinctly Europe's trouble.

Distinction Between Selling Goods and Lending Money

It seems to me there is a distinction to be drawn between permitting the warring nations, or any of them, to come here and buy supplies and pay cash on the barrel-head for them, and the course that is not suggested. They buy them, pay for them, cart them away in their own ships that are manned by sailors of their own nationality. To make a loan of United States government money to one of the warring powers, however, is a national and not a private, act. It is official. It represents a determination of policy by the constitutional methods that are prescribed. These same methods are used in the declaration of war.

There are numerous other phases of less importance. None of them strikes me, however, as affecting the inescapable conclusion of the dangers inherent in the proposition. As I said at the beginning, I am not willing to assert that extension of the loan will bring about entrance into the war and that no other result is possible. I certainly am not going to say that refusal of the loan will keep us out. There are so many possibilities, so many things that can happen, that I believe we will be better off if we do not make that loan. My position is selfish, admittedly. I have consistently argued that it is a foreign war—not ours. Surely, we cannot help ourselves by allowing our sympathies to control our

All Is Not Welles Ingrid Has Promised A Musician's Needs

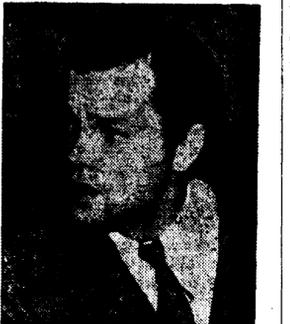

By Virginia Vale

(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

PLENTY of bets were won in Hollywood when RKO decided to shelve the first Orson Welles film, "Heart of Darkness." People in Hollywood were against Welles before he arrived there; they didn't like him in advance, and lost few chances to prove it. It was too much for the film colony to have a man demand the world with a pink ribbon tied around it, and get it.

That was practically what Welles did. He insisted on producing, writing, directing and acting in whatever picture he decided to make. RKO agreed.

And after some weeks of trying to get started, and finally postponing the first picture while a second, "Smiler With a Knife," got under way, it was announced that all bets were off, so far as "Heart of Darkness" was concerned. The reason given was that the budget for the picture—well over a million dollars—was so high. It cost the company $160,000 to settle things up with Welles and the cast that he had assembled for the filming of the Conrad classic.

And various Hollywoodites are collecting bets made with friends who were sure that the picture would reach the screen.

When Ingrid Bergman arrived recently in New York on her way back to Hollywood to make "Joan of Arc" she made two definite statements to the press. (1) If she becomes famous she will not forget her husband, back in Stockholm. (2) During this stay in the United States she absolutely will not lose her head over American ice cream, as she did the last time she was here.

As a matter of fact, she has already become famous. Contrary to custom, she was introduced to the public in her first American picture, "Intermezzo," without the usual ballyhoo. She saved the picture, despite the fact that Leslie Howard, Edna Best, and two enchanting children were also in the cast—and an enchanting child can give the most experienced actress the toughest kind of opposition.

Miss Bergman should be perfect for "Joan of Arc"; her beauty, talent and sincerity make it fitting that the role should be hers.

ODDS AND ENDS—The boys in Johnny Green's "Johnny Presents" orchestra have discovered a new way of relaxing after rehearsals: they hold a jam session on toy instruments. Robert Taylor got the constant role of the hero of "Warrior Bridge," opposite Vivian Leigh; it was rumored that Laurence Olivier, the hero of her private life, might get it. Greer Garson, instead of Norma Shearer, will do "Pride and Prejudice." So Joan Crawford gets the lead in "Susan and God," for which Miss Garson was scheduled. And Miss Shearer will do the film version of the Broadway success, "The World We Make." Three cheers! Walt Disney has finished camera work on "Pinocchio" after two years; it will probably be released late in February.

The aim of many a student musician is to land a job in radio, preferably on a network staff orchestra. It's a 52-week a year job, at a substantial salary, offering a degree of security difficult to find anywhere else in music.

Frankie Masters, who has been conducting dance music on the air for more than a decade, offers his advice to those trying to do it.

"Don't expect to get anywhere just on your ability to play one type of music well on one instrument," he says. "A staff musician's daily work covers a range from swing to symphony, and the musician who can't encompass that range hasn't a chance. And there's a constant demand for men who can play two or more instruments."

Joan Bennett seems to have been the very well dressed bride when she married Walter Wanger, the producer, in Phoenix, Ariz. She wore a beige jersey sports dress and a beaver hat and coat. And for the third time she selected a groom a good bit older than she was.

Until almost the last minute it was generally supposed that she would marry one of New York's young men about town. But that would have meant giving up her career—and when you have young children, it's nice to have a career.

SPEED'S FINE IN HOCKEY BUT NOT IN CIGARETTES. I LIKE SLOW-BURNING CAMELS... THEY'RE Milder AND COOLER!

RESEARCH men may use fancier language, but they say the same thing about cigarettes as Roy Coughler (above), high-ranking forward of the Boston Bruins. Scientists know that nothing destroys the delicate flavors of cigarette fragrances and favors like the excess heat of too-fast burning. Slow-burning Camels give more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack (see below).

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The flux that seemingly has plagued the Pinckney basket ball team all year was again working last Friday evening. With 59 seconds to play the victory was leading, the undefeated New Hudson team 22 to 22. Then the flux stopped in and Mortimer, New Hudson center who had been held scoreless all the game was left unguarded under the basket and calmly dropped the ball in. New Hudson made good on a foul shot a moment later and the final score was 25 to 22.

This was by far the best game the boys have turned in this year and it looks as if the boys might be on their way.

Several times I have written about the responsibility of the pedestrian. During a recent year over 16,000 pedestrians were killed and approximately 276,000 were injured.

Crossing between intersections ranked first as a cause of death and injury. The next cause was attributed to walking on rural highways. Crossing where signal was not available was another cause. Children playing in the street was one of the factors in this large death toll.

The pedestrian has a definite responsibility to obey traffic signals, to cross streets at proper intersections and at proper times to walk on the proper side of the highway, and to use a little extra care at night in crossing the streets.

You who are pedestrians do not condemn the automobile driver for these pedestrian deaths. A large part of the responsibility and the cause rests with "man on the street". It's smart to be careful.

In no case in Michigan in recent years has tularemia or rabbit fever claimed the life of a person. Of 12 cases investigated last year one person caught the disease from a muskrat, another from a snowshoe hare and the rest from cotton tails. In Illinois in 1938, 460 cases were reported and 25 persons died. The deer's worst out of season enemy is the auto. 45 percent of the dead deer found by conservation officers last year were killed by autos. The old argument is still going the rounds as to whether plenty of rabbits means lots of foxes or vice versa. This dept. has no proofs for either side of the argument. Bounties amounting to $24,575 were paid out on predatory animals for the 6 months period ending Jan. 1, 1940. Of the 180 animals killed only 6 were wolves, the rest being coyotes. Refusal of hunting licenses to persons who fail to send in their hunting score cards may be the penalty imposed in the future. A farmer and his minor children needs no license to trap on an enclosed farm on which they live. Crow hunting in mid-winter is being developed in Michigan. A stuffed owl is used as decoy and the hunters wear white overalls. Palathea Notes. About a dozen class members and friends enjoyed the most helpful discussion in our class room on Sunday centering around Christ's triumphant entry into Jerusalem, the cleansing of the temple and the homannas of the children in the temple and along the way. The Christian life application of the lesson from Matthew 21 was to consider the kingly character of Christ and what it means to make him king of our lives. Lesson five "Holding Life Sacred" (a principle of temperate living) is based on passages from both old and new testaments, Genesis 1:27-31, Corinthians 6:10, 20:2, Corinthians 6:16-18 and 2 Corinthians 7:1. Announcement was made of Family Night to be held next Monday evening, Feb. 5, in the church parlors with the Young People's class in charge of tables and the Palathea class looking after the program. The Kings Daughters are meeting this Thursday with Mrs. Dora Swarthout. Since the writing of our last Palathea Notes, Mrs. Leggett has passed away. The class will miss her and we extend our sympathy to those who mourn. Regret was also expressed in the class for the illness of a former pastor's wife and teacher of our class, Mrs. C. E. Kane of Merrill, who is ill with bronchial pneumonia. Not Sunday is Missionary Day in our church school. We feel sure that our church school. We feel sure that our church school. FISH FILLETS IN TOMATO CUPS

See Recipes Below

My Family Likes Fish! "There's all the health of the sea in fish," according to an old saying, and modern home makers find that there's variety and economy for menus, too.

Fish and sea foods are available the year 'round in almost limitless variety. In most markets it's possible, now, to purchase (1) fish "in the round," just as it comes from the water, (2) fish that is cleaned, scaled, and ready to cook, (3) boneless fish fillets, and (4) fish steaks.

If fish is purchased "in the round," that is with skin, bones, head, and tail included, allow one pound of fish per serving; if purchased cleaned and scaled, allow one pound for two servings, and if purchased in the form of fish fillets or fish steaks, allow one pound for three servings.

Fish cookery is simple, especially when you use fish that is cleaned and scaled, fillets, steaks, or the quick-frozen products. Remember, though, that the flavor of most fish is delicate, and that you need well-seasoned sauces and accompaniments to serve with it.

You'll find practical and easy-to-follow recipes for preparing fish and sea foods in my booklet, "Feeding Father." There are recipes for the old-fashioned cod fish balls men love, for delicious clam chowder, and for the other fish and sea food dishes you'll want to serve your family often.

- 6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
1/4 cup top milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cups cold fish (flaked)
6 whole green peppers
1 cup bread crumbs
Paprika

Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add flour and blend; add milk and cook over low flame, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from flame; add salt, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Then add flaked fish.

Place in cleaned green peppers, top with bread crumbs, combined with remaining butter (melted), and a dash of paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) approximately 25 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce.

Remove a slice from the stem end of each tomato and scoop out the pulp, leaving a firm cup. Sprinkle the inside with salt and pepper. Cut fillets in lengthwise strips. Brush each strip with melted butter, and sprinkle with salt, pepper, lemon juice, and parsley. Roll the strips firmly and place in the tomato cups. A Break for Julia

By SMITH BRONSON (Associated Newspaper Staff Writer.)

CHARLOTTE DAVIS could hardly wait till 12 o'clock lunch hour, so eager was she to show her friend Julia Winter her new ring.

"It's lovely," praised Julia. "I do hope you and Leah will be very, very happy," she added, wistfully.

"I hope so, too," retorted Charlotte. "And I guess we will be, for Les seems willing to give me anything I ask for. Lucky for him that he works in a store and can get a good break on the sort of stuff I want."

"Where will you live?" inquired Julia.

"Out on Park terrace."

"Aren't the rents awfully high in that district?" exclaimed Julia.

"Oh, yes," cheerfully admitted Charlotte. "But we only live once, I tell Les, so we're getting the very best of everything."

"It sounds wonderful," sighed Julia.

"I'll say it's wonderful," agreed Charlotte. "All that swell stuff for only $25 down, and he didn't really have to pay that, for the store is giving him credit for the twenty-five as a wedding present, so he took the fifty he saved and made the down payment on my ring."

"Oh!" gasped Julia, with the thought of the size of the debt in proportion to the husband's income.

"That's what I get for having a sweetie who is a salesman."

"Want a nice willow rocker for your hope chest?" called the foreman of the warehouse, as the tall, cheerful-looking truck driver passed the office door.

"What's wrong with it?" replied the younger man.

"Paint got scratched off in uncrating—and the party that ordered it claims the color can't be matched. We settled with her for $5 cash—and we don't want the rocker."

"Store it for me?" grinned the tall chap in tan.

"You bet," cheerfully agreed the foreman. "Put it right in with the rest of your junk. And while you're in the mood to spend money, better take a look at the table over by No. 15. Make you a nice dining table when you've got the top done over, and it won't cost much since the party that owns it hasn't got room for it and won't pay storage any longer."

In the warehouse Pete's bargain-hunting had become a standing joke. But it was a kindly joke that the men enjoyed, for Pete MacElroy was popular and the men all knew that the young chap's purse was strained to the utmost with helping put three younger brothers and sisters through school and at the same time saving to marry Julia Winter.

"I'll wait," Julia had bravely promised.

Sunday afternoons when Peter and Julia walked in the park or took a bus ride or went to a cheap movie they talked, as lovers will, of the time they would be living in a "home of their own," with a garden and a radio and an open fireplace. And then a sorrowful silence would come between them.

Peter and Julia were the first guests to be entertained at the Park terrace apartment. Proudly Charlotte displayed her new treasures. Silk draperies, silk bedspreads, handsome glassware, china and rugs, stunning furniture.

"Honestly, Julia, I wish you could clear out of that stuffy hall bedroom before the hot weather comes," whispered Charlotte as she kissed her chum good-night.

Going home on the bus Peter and Julia were strangely quiet, yet when they reached Julia's rooming-house Peter said, "Let's sit on the porch a while and talk."

Nervously the young chap clasped and unclasped his big hands, cleared his throat and exclaimed abruptly, "Honestly, Julia, there isn't a bit of sense in going on this way. We are just eating out our hearts. And at the rate I'm getting on we'll both be gray-haired before I can give you more than about two rooms to live in."

Julia's poor heart almost stopped beating. Yet she did not blame Peter for wanting to stop pinching pennies to save for a home after spending most of his wages for his brothers and sisters.

"Bravely Julia winked back the tears which filled her brown eyes. She tried to speak, to tell Peter that he was free to offer to give back to him the expensive little ring he had given her two Christmases before.

But the words choked her.

Accusingly Peter peered down into her face. Tightly his arm, tanned fingers closed over Julia's trembling hands as he said, "How about it, sweetheart? Are you game to start housekeeping with me in just two rooms? I've some odds and ends of furniture stored at the warehouse. And I've enough money saved so you can pick out your own cooking things for the kitchen—milk cans—no sink, like those fancy ones at Charlotte's. And the foreman gave me a tip yesterday about a garage—where we can rent dirt cheap, with an 'option' to buy."

"Oh, my dear!" gasped Julia, looking up with a radiant, tearful, radiant testimony as to just how Julia felt.

Mystic Had Come Short On That Routing Service

The man sat with his hand outstretched as the fortune-teller read his palm.

"See that line?" asked the mystic, pointing to the fellow's palm. "That means that you are going to take a trip in the very near future. To Chicago, perhaps."

When he left the fortune-teller the fellow hurried to the railway station.

"A ticket to Chicago," he directed.

"Right, sir," replied the clerk. "Single or return?"

The fellow stuck out his palm.

"I don't know," he said. "Take a look!"

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food—it means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Eighty percent of the relief that would be allotted to counties on a population basis, according to the supervisors scheme, and 20 percent would go to a state fund for emergency needs. Whereas the supervisors formula is based on population, city officials of metropolitan centers have insisted that relief should be allocated on the basis of actual need on the theory that industrial cities of the type are harder hit with unemployment than small towns.

The city vs rural controversy thus may break out into new fury as a result of the supervisor's plan. It will likely be challenged by Detroit and other large cities in Michigan. Labor complications are also foreseen.

Liquor Row
Action by Governor Dickinson, national and state anti-saloon league leader, in deserting his fellow townsman and temperance-living neighbor Muri H. DeFoe, was one of those things that makes the Lansing scene of news interest these days.

DeFoe, member of the state liquor commission believed that the state was putting too much money in liquor inventories, that a reduction of this investment would afford a cool million dollars for welfare sue and that anyway, the commission was paying too much attention to a few distilleries.

Orrin DeMaas, Detroit, commission chairman, countered with denials. DeFoe declared he would decline to sign any more orders for purchases with the "big six" distilleries until Feb. 5, the new buying meeting.

Then the governor intervened. Despite his personal ideas about temperance, Dickinson said he would sign liquor purchase orders if it were necessary.

It was all a bit disconcerting to the problem of liquor purchases. The dispute gave another airing and sales, a state business whose gross sales in 1938 totaled more than $37,000,000—5,236,000 gallons of whiskeys, gins, and rums and 102,873,000 gallons of beer. Last year liquor sales increased nearly 20 percent due to better times.

CONGRESSIONAL WEEKLY

Dear Editor:
The question of the Dies Investigating Committee came before the House by resolution on Tuesday of this week. Much apparent position has developed on the floor of the House against the continuance of this Committee and many pleas were made by certain congressmen, attempting to show that the Dies Committee had been too strict in its investigation of Communism and other items however, when the yeas and nays vote was demanded only 21 of these congressmen voted against the continuance of the committee, while 344 voted in favor thereof.

I personally favored the continuance of the Dies Committee as I have previously stated and voted an appropriation of $75,000.00 to this committee to cover their expenses of investigating during the year of 1940. I have received many letters from all groups of people in all walks of life asking me to vote for the Dies Committee. This I was glad to do because I feel that if we have subversive groups in America that do not conform to our government, are not in sympathy with our American principles, then the best thing for America is to see that they are deported to their own country.

This week the house has been discussing appropriation for the Treasury and Post Office Dept. for the fiscal year ending June 1941. The total appropriation for both departments was $1,032,154,612.00. This is a reduction of 740 million dollars from the appropriation for the fiscal year of 1940, but is explained by the fact that in reorganization of the government the Old Age Reserve Account, approximately 580 millions of dollars, the United States Public Health Service and the Pub Buildings Branch of the Procurement Division, have been transferred elsewhere.

Nevertheless there has actually been a total cut of 11 million dollars below the budget estimate. That is a good sign.

I am watching with interest the Postmaster General's estimate that the postal revenue for the fiscal year of 1941 will be 780 millions of dollars, which if it materializes will be the high water mark of income for the postal service. Postal revenue for 1939 was 745 millions of dollars for 1940, approximately 755 millions of dollars.

It might be of interest to the readers of your paper to note that last week before one of the sub-committees of the House Appropriations Committee, the Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr. asked that the Congress raise the statutory debt limit from the present figure of 45 billion dollars to 50 billion dollars, frankly admitting the steadily increasing deficit caused by appropriations.

With kindest personal regards
W. W. Buckley, M. C.
