Wolf Is Killed Near Byron

Unadilla Hunters Kill a Wolf After Two Days Chase of Some 30 Miles

A party of Unadilla and Marion township hunters shot a grey timber wolf near Byron Saturday morning. The wolf was sighted Friday by Ed. Corsar, Mahlon Titus, Francis May and Lawrence Owen, all of Unadilla at a point in Lyndon 5 miles from Chelsea. These men make a practice of hunting foxes and they ran the wolf all day Friday with three fox hounds, being joined by more hunters as the news of what their quarry was got noised about. When they went through Marion township they were joined by Jockey McGee, G. Ward and other hunters. At the kill near Byron Saturday morning about 50 hunters were present. The wolf was shot by Francis May who lives near the Unadilla-Lyndon town line. The four dogs who ran the wolf belonged to May, McGee, Wm. Plummer and Lawrence Owen. They took the animal to Howell where a picture of the hunters, dogs and the wolf was taken near the jail by Don Knapp. The wolf was a young one and weighed about 30 pounds. May will collect a $25 state reward bounty for it.

TAX SALE ADVERTISING HEARING HELD

The inquiry into the state tax sale advertising of 1938-39 was held at Lansing Tuesday before Judge Sam Street Hughes. In this inquiry Martin J. Lavan of Brighton and Hymen Levinson, editor of the Farmington Enterprise are charged by Messrs Roman and Little, proprietors of a newspaper at Pontiac, with conversion of $2,600. Charles Seeds, editor of the Rochester Clarion who had the tax sale in 1938 was the principal witness. He stated that he wrote to Auditor General Gundry, stating he was the only Democrat editor in Oakland county and asked for the 1938 tax sale. He got it but was told that he must split his profits with Levinson, Roman and Little and four other small papers. The Oakland county tax sale advertising came to $43,200 in 1938. He paid the Livingston County Press at Howell $9,000 for setting and printing it. This left $34,200 to divide among the editors. He said these editors agreed to help him finance the printing but failed to do so and he had to get an advance payment of $9,000 from the auditor general to pay the Livingston County Press. He also said that Messrs Roman and Little did nothing at all in regard to tax sale advertising except to distribute a few copies of the tax sale from their office. They demanded $7,600 as their share of the profits. He endorsed the checks in Lavan's office who said Roman and Little wanted too much and he would endeavor to settle with them for $5,000.

Under questioning by Thomas Chawke of Detroit, attorney for Levinson Seeds said that he did not get the tax sale in 1939 but Levinson did. He refused to split profits. Seeds admitted that he hired a lawyer to see if he could get part of the profits. John P. O'Hara of Detroit and Jay P. Sweeney of Howell a former Republican prosecuting attorney appeared for Lavan. The hearing was adjourned until March 1 when the lawyers will make their arguments.

Very few papers will publish the above. They will continue to wax sanctimonious and keep spouting about Messrs Roman & Little being defrauded of their publishing costs. The above material was available to them as it was in this morning's Detroit Free Press.

Local Industries of the Past

The Carriage and Wagon Factories Which Once Flourished in All Villages and Cities Are Now But a Memory

In the early pioneer days transportation was crude. There were few decent roads and no bridges to speak of. Transportation was by horseback, ox teams and in many cases on foot. A stage operated between here and Dexter but in periods of the winter and spring the roads were impassible. Following the civil war the roads were improved some, times got better. People demanded improved transportation and carriage and wagon factories sprang up. Dan Richards was a wagon maker. His shop stood where the Hi-Speed gas station on Main St. is now located, east of the community hall. W. C. Miller now has part of a wagon made by Mr. Richards, formerly owned by the Jackson family.

The late Samuel Sykes had the largest wagon and carriage factory in Pinckney. He came here in an early day and was first a miller and then a wagon maker and blacksmith. His factory consisted of three buildings. One is now the residence of W. H. Meyer. Another wooden building that stood just east of it was said to have been Pinckney's first hotel and first stood where the home of Lucius Doyle is now. Mr. Sykes moved it to its last location. East of the wooden building a blacksmith shop stood. It was a brick one story building. These last two buildings were torn down about 1916 when Arthur Flintoft who purchased them built the building now occupied by the Pinckney Doorcheck & Mfg. Co.

As far as we can learn these factories made mostly for local trade. As all work was done by hand they did not probably have a very high production rate. Mr. Sykes, his son, Casper, Samuel Grimes and Charles Henry Grimes, was a woodworker, Casper Sykes, a painter and Samuel Sykes and Charles Henry, blacksmiths and workers in metals. Mr. Henry was a nephew of Mr. Sykes and brought up by him.

They made all parts of the carriages themselves. Michael Roche states the first carriage or buggy his father bought was purchased of them. They also made sleighs and cutters. In our files of 50 years ago are pictures of the Sykes carriage. It had extremely high wheels and was hard to get into. Most houses in those days had horse blocks in front of them. These were wooden boxes two or three steps high to make the entrance and exit from the carriage easier. The high wheels were necessary on account of the mud roads and also the fact that portions of the roads were sometimes three feet under water in the spring of the year.

Our files of 5 years ago also state that Samuel Sykes was given a patent for a 1000 mile axle. This was a buggy axle that was packed, had a groove in it and was supposed to hold enough grease to last 1000 miles. About 1900 the city streets began to be paved the wheels were made smaller and hard rubber tires put on them to make quieter running on the pavement.

Most of the carriage and wagon factories went out of business in the nineties due to the fact that Durant & Dorr at Flint, Studebaker at South Bend, Ind., and the Pontiac Co. built large factories with modern machinery and by making carriages and wagons by the thousands were able to undersell the small factories who did all work by hand. OLD TYME WINTER SCENE This is not an old time Pinckney scene but it could be. Some 30 or 40 years ago this would be a familiar scene on the streets of Pinckney on occasion of the first heavy snow fall sufficient for good sleighing. It could be a picture of the late Dr. C. W. Haze, Dr. H. F. Sigler, G. W. Teeple or G. W. Reason taking their family out for a sleigh ride. However it was taken last week at Port Huron at the first showing of the moving picture, featuring the life of the late Thomas Edison and was posed for by Port Huron people who ransacted the county for costumes and vehicles of 40 years ago.

Michigan Bell Telephone Company Installs a New Service To Be Used in Cases of Emergency

The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has purchased two sets of radiotelephone equipment to be used in cases of emergency when certain sections are cut off from telephone service. This equipment will be stationed at Lansing and sent about the state as needed. When a town is isolated of telephone service usually a few hours is enough to repair the damage. However there are exceptions. In 1923 the ice storm did a million dollars worth of damage to telephone lines and it took weeks to repair the damage. When a madman blew up the Bath school, telephone facilities were inadequate to summon help fast enough. These radiotelephones have a 75 mile range and are operated by a gasoline driven motor driven generator. They have been assigned the letters WRPN and WRPO and will operate on 2726 Kilocycles.

The Political Pot Begins To Boil As Plans Are Made for the Fall Campaign

The extent to which the present state administration is behind the Vandenberg-for-President campaign is shown by the recent activity of Governor Dickinson's private secretary, Leslie Butler. Butler, like Miller Dunckel, the state treasurer, was active in the Michigan Young Republican's club. Now at the bidding of Howard Lawrenson of Grand Rapids who is Mr. Vandenberg's Michigan chairman, he is dividing his time between the governor's offices and Vandenberg promotion, the latter taking him away frequently on out-of-town trips.

Should the Republican presidential nomination go to Vandenberg, then Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly of Detroit may get the senator's blessing as a candidate for the United States senate. Kelly, a Roman Catholic and World War veteran, has been building up a state-wide following that would be an asset, so the story goes, to the Vandenberg nomination. Whether Dickinson will be a candidate for re-election no one definitely knows. The impression has been growing at the state capitol, however, that the 81-year-old executive is already unofficially campaigning for the office. The number of speeches which he has made during the past 12 months would do justice to a man half his age.

On the Democratic side the elevation of Attorney General Frank Murphy to the United States Supreme court has clarified the party atmosphere considerably. Murray D. Von Wagoner, commissioner of highways, has found himself in the position of being pushed by party demand into the nomination for the governorship. As the only Democratic elected official at Lansing, he is recognized as the party's top boss. Charles Porritt, chairman of the state central committee, is known to be a "Von Wagoner" man.

Since Murphy and Von Wagoner were frequently at odds during Murphy's administration as governor, the former's appointment to the supreme court bench nicely eliminated the possibility of future conflict.

A Dickinson vs Von Wagoner campaign would evoke interesting fireworks.

Edmund C. Shields, national committeeman from Michigan, recently confided that a fairly systematic survey has shown more than 90 percent of Democratic leaders throughout the state favor a third term for President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Counter to the insistence of state committeemen such as Mr. Shields was a recent declaration by Raymond Clapper, Washington correspondent, and the American Speeches polls to the effect that elements of a third term sentiment are not new in evidence throughout the nation. CURRENT COMMENT

The hard sledding prophesied last year when the legislature cut the school funds seem to be being borne out. At Pontiac 35 teachers have been released, including the athletic coach three dentists and two nurses. The five day a year sick leave in which teachers did not have to pay for substitutes has been abolished. The school day in junior high has been cut from 6 hours to 5 and the sessions of the first and second grades cut to one half day. This will cut expenses $99,354 and enable them to pay off a $90,000 state loan made last year and so borrow an additional $65,000. Many schools are low on finances now and will be forced to take drastic measures or else borrow funds to meet expenses.

The Dies committee seem to have grabbed hold of a hot potato last week when they put Dudley Pelley, the long sought after leader of the Silver Shirts on the witness stand. He had nothing but praise for the committee and said that it was doing the work his organization was formed to do and that if it continued he would disband. He admitted that the Silver Shirts were founded on Anti-Semetism and on the teachings of Hitler. That if a dictatorship had been established here Pelley would have been made dictator. In that case he admitted he would probably have put into effect policies similar to those of Hitler with respect to the Jews. His praise of the Dies committee was likened to the kiss of death and the committee showed much eagerness to get rid of him as quickly as possible. He was brought forward as a witness to refute the charge that Dies and Pelley were friends.

The first battle to take Michigan out of the control of Messrs McKay and Barnard was fought at Lansing last week and won by said McKay and Barnard 55 to 14. Wayne county led the fight against the two but was unable to attract much support. As the situation now stands the delegates to the last state convention will be delegates to the next one. The Wayne county men wanted new district conventions held and a new slate of delegates selected not under the control of McKay and Barnard. This proposition lost 55 to 14. At a meeting of the Republican state central committee at Lansing last Thursday.

The Michigan press, although they admit the sincerity of Gov. Dickinson's views on welfare, liquor etc., fail to back him up for the reason that he fail to provide a solution for the problems now at hand.

The Grand Rapids Press expresses the situation briefly and completely: "Sermons on the drink evil, lectures on the way rural families live in Eaton county with the implication that this should be the standard in every other section, including Detroit, proposals to eliminate from relief all families owning cars, telephones or even dogs and cats—these and similar preachings may all have their value as admonitions for the more simple life. They fall utterly as a constructive approach to the basic problem of meeting the relief needs of the people now".

The governor may be excused for considering himself a preacher as well as a chief executive. No one disapproves of respect for God and concern with religion and morality in the state's highest office. But in addition to these qualities, a state government must concern itself with practical administrative problems. Michigan may need moral reform; it certainly needs governmental reform. The spiritual needs of the people may require attention; but so do their physical and practical needs. Michigan should have an effective method of collecting taxes and a streamlined system of relief. The governor's administration has failed to achieve either of these.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Latest Blasts of Political Oratory Are Devoid of Substantial Facts

Honest Abe Gets Many Fine Tributes From Republican Speakers, but U. S. Voters Receive Minimum of Basic Governmental Information.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—About half of the Republican representatives and senators in congress, most of the Republican governors and scores of lesser lights are back home as these lines are printed. They have been away on speech-making trips. They used Abe Lincoln's birthday as the rallying point. They concentrated on February 12 just as their arch rivals concentrate annually on Andrew Jackson's birthday for ballyhoo and money raising.

Honest Abe received many, many fine tributes. His services to his country were told by good orators and bad. The tributes were justly deserved. But I could not help wondering, as I read page after page of these speeches, just how Abe Lincoln would feel about some of the things that were said, some of the national policies that were advocated, some of the solutions that were offered for national problems.

It may have been just my imagination, but I thought Honest Abe was a bit restless as his great statue sits out its unending days in the vast memorial on the banks of the Potomac river. The memorial is so arranged that Honest Abe gazes through daylight and darkness at a vista that includes the tall and imposing monument to George Washington and, beyond, to the capitol of the United States. The things that have been going on beneath the capitol dome and the things that were said by Republican flag-wavers and represented as being Lincolnian, it seems to me, have been quite sufficient to make the Lincoln eyes heavier, to make the lines of his stoney face deeper.

Just as the Democrats, last month failed to convince very many people that Jackson would do as the New Dealers have done, so the Republican orators failed to prove they are sticking to Lincoln's traditional philosophy. The tragedy is that each major party is attempting to streamline a national figure, and the result obviously is that neither Jackson nor Lincoln has been presented to the newer voters in the light of the genuine services which they rendered their country.

Republican Presidential Nominee Aspirants Have Field Day

These speeches, to which I have referred, included, of course, resounding statements by five or six of the men who aspire to be the Republican presidential nominee. There were Senators Taft of Ohio, Vandenberg of Michigan, and Bridges of New Hampshire, and New York's racket-busting district attorney, Thomas E. Dewey, Governor Bricker of Ohio, Republican Leader Martin of the house of representatives, and former President Herbert Hoover.

Anyone who heard the speeches or read them must have come to the same conclusion that I reached. The day's oratory, with the possible exception of Mr. Hoover's speech, was as devoid of good substantial facts as a frog is of feathers. There was outburst after outburst of bitter criticism, reference after reference to New Deal failures, repetition upon repetition of charges of waste and assertions of danger to our national welfare. All of these things were said, with the usual pounding of the table and slapping of hips. But the Republican orators either forgot their facts or neglected to use them in the excitement of the occasion.

What I am seeking to say is that no campaign is worth much in any political battle unless the attacking forces base their charges in the simple facts that individuals understand. Generalities mean nothing any more. President Roosevelt has been the greatest generalizer of all history, and the folks have been digging up some of his earlier general statements to ask about them. Such presentation of attack or defense leads definitely to a lack of confidence on the part of the voters.

I referred above to Mr. Hoover's speech. Let us take one section of it as an illustration of what I mean about generalities. Mr. Hoover talked about the $45,000,000,000 national debt. He went further. He figured out that the annual interest on this debt is about $1,100,000,000 a year. And thus, according to the calculations, each man, woman and child in the United States is paying almost $8.50 per year in interest. Going further, if there is a family of five, that family's share of the interest on the national debt is roughly $42.50 a year, or a little more than three dollars a month.

Now, most of the speeches contained a few plain and simple facts like that. Most of them hit around the mark. But not a single one of the speeches laid down a real barrage of facts. They failed miserably to apply the facts to the affairs of the individual voter. So, even though the Republican orators did not ask me for advice, I am going to offer some: if they really want to restore this nation to its native, conservative way of doing things, they will tell the factual story of the New Deal and its theories and dreams. And the voters ought to ask for facts instead of general statements! In these conclusions, I believe Honest Abe likely would agree.

Attempting to streamline Honest Abe as a national figure, as the Democrats have done to Andrew Jackson, they failed to prove that the G. O. P. is sticking to Lincoln's philosophy.

figured out that the annual interest on this debt is about $1,100,000,000 a year. And thus, according to the calculations, each man, woman and child in the United States is paying almost $8.50 per year in interest.

Taft Challenges President's Handling of Budget

Senator Taft lately got right close to specific statements when he challenged President Roosevelt on the question of balancing the budget. He took many of the federal agencies that have come into being under the

SENATOR ROBERT TAFT

New Deal alphabet and pointed out the cost of each and how little worthwhile he believed them to be. It was something Mr. Roosevelt could not answer without resorting to generalities. The Senator, however, has slipped away again from the channel he appeared ready to paddle. Like the rest of the candidates on the Republican side, he is no longer using the ammunition available.

These references to the necessity for the use of facts recalls how thoroughly the National Labor Relations board has been discredited by a special house committee which is investigating the funny looking activities of the board. Thus far, the investigation has had very little in the way of sensational statements except those from the record of the board, itself. Its own papers, its own writings, the exchanges between its own members and staff workers has served to show better than volumes of argument what ridiculous policies the narrow-minded officials and employees have inflicted upon an unsuspecting public. Why? These were facts.

Another illustration: the administration is determined to gain congressional approval for another three-year extension of its right to negotiate trade treaties. Now, there is no doubt that the trade treaties help in some places and hurt very much in others. But I sat in the house ways and means committee room one day listening to administration testimony in support of its request for the three-year extension. The witnesses, all government officials that day, had the facts. It is true that they used those facts to show what they wanted to demonstrate. They were careful that the sordid side of the story was not told. They failed also to break down the facts to individual application, but they pieced together a story that was understandable. It was effective and opposition was difficult because the opposition was not equipped with a complete record. On the story thus built up, it is likely the extension will be voted.

I have observed the activities of the Republican national committee for some months. It has flopped completely in the most obvious of its jobs, presentation of factual information to the country about what the New Deal has been doing. Day after day, delivery boys bring copies of speeches to my office, and day after day, I look vainly for facts. I do not mean to say there are no facts at all; I do insist, however, that there are heaps of opinion that convinces none whereas the facts underlying those opinions would have important weight.

NEW YORK.—In war, both the Poles and the Russians seem to suffer from incurable romance. The Poles cling to their picturesque cavalry against all the hard-boiled military advice in Europe, and their horses made beautiful targets for machine-gun bullets.

Russ, Like Poles, Cling to Horses With Ill Results

all the hard-boiled military advice in Europe, and their horses made beautiful targets for machine-gun bullets. The Russians in the latest emergency sent in, not a strategist in modern war, but their most romantic cavalry general, Marshal Simion M. Budenny, and reports of disaster follow swiftly.

In the late summer of 1919, when the cables brought the news that the Bolsheviks were whipped and in flight, and that the White Russian Denikin held all of southern Russia, Budenny galloped through the steppes, recruiting his army of wild horsemen. He was a Cossack, from the Don region, gaudily appareled, and with a huge blow-torch moustache that flared magnificently in the wind. His little bands of free-booters grew into a huge cavalry army. It swept back, not only Denikin, but his ally, Wrangel and stopped the Poles until the French came to their aid.

The general was enshrined in legend. He became the hero of folk tales and songs throughout the land—his wife, too, who rode and fought with him. Lenin later put him in command of all the Russian cavalry. He is a man of extraordinary energy. "Proletarians, to horse!" was his rallying cry, as he became one of the country's main inciters of patriotic enthusiasm. He had all Russia thinking or at any rate feeling that the answer to all its troubles was in getting everybody on horseback.

He was a peasant, without schooling. And there is no available record of his having had any training or experience in mechanized warfare. He was a private in the Russo-Japanese war and a petty officer in the early stages of the World war. His wife, said to have been the best rifle shot in Russia, killed herself accidentally while cleaning a gun, in 1925. He married a famous actress of the Mall theater in Moscow, and their joint histrionics have continued to thrill the Russians. He has maintained a horse-breeding farm and encouraged his countrymen to do the same, evidently on the theory that a good horse and a good proletarian slogan would make any Russian unconquerable.

MANY years ago, this writer shared an apartment with the late Willard Huntington Wright. If the Empire State building were an ivory tower, it would not have been tall enough for Mr. Wright in those days. He was an aesthete, fastidious in dress, multi-lingual, a postgraduate of many European schools, a distinguished art critic and a precisionist of ideas, to whom a primrose by the river's brim was a simple primulae and nothing more. I began to feel the altitude, and one day dived out of a 90-story window. It was not until several years later that I learned Mr. Wright had done the same and, conversely, had become S. S. Van Dine, authoring bell-ringing murder-mystery stories to the end of his days.

Somewhat similar is Dr. Rudolf Kager's ambidextrous life as a philosopher and writer of detective stories. As he is hired by the New York World's fair—they may need to have a philosopher around by next spring—it is revealed that this Kurt Steel who has been keeping us awake nights with "Judah Incorporated," "Creaked Shadows," and the like, is none other than Dr. Kager, associate professor of philosophy at New York university. At the fair he will work as a philosopher rather than as a detective, pulling together a lot of educational loose ends and ravellings which, it seemed, got into a somewhat untidy state last summer.

His detective stories started as an antidote for a feeling of loneliness in the groves of Academe—as in the case of Mr. Wright. In 1930, he had prepared his doctor's thesis on "The Growth of F. H. Bradley's Logic," and had climbed where few or none could follow. He was all fagged out, and any two-dollar word made him shut his eyes and duck. A friend suggested that he bang out a murder story—anything that came into his head. "Murder of a Dead Man" was his first extra-curricular work-out. The publishers yelled for more.

Charming New Apron Has Square Neckline

THIS pinafore apron (1888-B) is so pretty that it really deserves to be called a fashion—a crisp, flattering, practical home fashion! The square neckline (no troublesome straps), the princess waistline and bosom gathers make it fit as becomingly as your favorite afternoon dress. And it covers your dress with protective thoroughness. Send for the pattern this very minute! You can finish the apron in a few hours, because it's simply nothing to make. And the first time you slip it over your head, tie the sash bow, discover how pretty it looks and comfortable it feels—you'll go ahead and make up several, in order to have a fresh, clean one always ready. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1888-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 35-inch material, yard trimming. For a pattern of this attractive model send 15 cents in coin, your name, address, style, number and size to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill.

Women in Majority

In most countries the female population exceeds the male. For every 1,000 males there are 1,088 females in England, 1,071 in France, 1,058 in Germany, 1,103 in Russia, 1,097 in Portugal, and as many as 1,139 in Esthonia. Only a few countries have a larger male population than female. They include the United States, with 976 women for every 1,000 men. And in Cuba the women are comparatively scarce, with only 888 for every 1,000 men.

ACCURACY

There are several factors of vital importance in maintaining the high quality of Michigan's telephone service. One is the experienced skill of the Western Electric Company, manufacturing department of the Bell System. Another is the constant research of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. Of even greater importance is the highly trained group of Michigan men and women who assume a personal responsibility in seeing that your telephone message goes . . . swiftly and dependably . . . straight to the mark.

WIN HARD FOUGHT GAME

The Pinckney Independents basketball team won a hard fought game from Dexter here last Wednesday night by a score of 33 to 35. The game was close all the way. Pinckney got a lead but Dexter forged ahead, then Pinckney forged ahead.
At one time in the 4th period Dexter had an eight point lead. Then Ed. Meyer and Lefty Reason got the range and started to drop field goal-putting Pinckney ahead. Dexter by a burst of speed cut the lead to two points with 15 seconds to go but was not able to score further and it was Pinckney's game. The game was extremely fast and hard fought. Edsil Myer was high scorer for Pinckney with 17 points. This gives Pinckney
2 wins out of 3 contests with Dexter. Tonight they play an Ann Arbor team here.

Washington.—The Red Cross reserve of registered nurses qualified for immediate duty is stronger than ever before, Miss Mary Beard, director of the American Red Cross nursing services, announced.

"We now have a first reserve of 15,000 unmarried nurses under 40 years of age available for duty with the Army, Navy or government nursing services and subject to call by the Red Cross for disaster work," she said.
"This is 700 more than any previous first reserve registration."

Miss Beard pointed out that the increase has been gradual and that only registered nurses meeting rigid requirements of training and physical fitness are enrolled. All classes of nurse reservists, including nurses now employed by the Red Cross, being the reserve corps total to 44,333. During the World War of 1917-18 the American Red Cross maintained direct 20,000 nurses for duty with Army, Navy, and Air Force.

MRS. ANNA KRAFT

Mrs. Anna Kraft, who died at the age of 73 at her home in Detroit last week was a one-time resident of Pinckney. Born in 1866 in Saxony, Germany, Mrs. Kraft came to Detroit in 1877 and lived there for 62 years, excepting a four-year period when she resided in Pinckney.

In 1916 Mrs. Kraft, with her husband, the late Frank Kraft, bought the Daniel Richards place on Main street and lived there for two years before selling it to her newly married daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Swarthout. Mrs. Kraft then bought Mortenson place at the East town limits, living there until moving back to Detroit in 1920. The first woman ever to sell her goods at the Eastern market in Detroit, Mrs. Kraft combined a love for the soil with a business instinct that saw her active in transaction of property and goods alike.

She left one son, William Kraft; five daughters, Mrs. Michael Solo, Mrs. H. G. Swarthout, Mrs. Louise Bell, Mrs. Carl DeKoff and Miss Edna Kraft, three sisters, one brother, eight grand children and two great grand children.

Frequent complaints have been made by various police departments because of improper lighting on the automobiles. I want to discuss especially the matter of tail lights. Have you ever had the experience of driving on a highway on a foggy rainy night and suddenly realizing that there was a car parked a few feet ahead which you had not noticed because it had no reflectors or tail light burning? If you did, you will know how dangerous this condition can be. The purpose of the tail light is to warn other drivers behind you, and therefore it is necessary that the equipment be in first class condition. The law requires it. Police officers should be in excellent condition to insure perfect performance. When the car is mechanically perfect, the driver's attitude is right, and he exercises good judgment and proper courtesy, automobile driving will become much safer. It's smart to Drive Carefully!

High School Notes

Next Friday night, February 16, is Parents night for the basketball boys. The parents of both the first and second team boys are invited as guests of the school. The boys play New Hudson in the last home game of the season.

Princess Watassa, who is visiting the schools of this county will be at Pinckney Thursday morning, nine o'clock. This is for the intermediate and lower grades and also we have invited the rural schools of this vicinity to attend.

The Juniors are giving an invitational class party next Saturday the 17th. This will be an outdoor party consisting of sleighing, tobogganing and skating. Afterwards they intend to return to the gym for refreshments if they are still alive.

The sixth and seventh grades play Brighton (basketball) Saturday, 17, at 2 o'clock.

Wednesday, Mrs. Lobdell's room will enjoy a party at Read's cottage at Portage Lake. The party is really a sleigh ride with pot luck dinner eaten at the lake.

The senior class had their graduation pictures taken last week. This reminds us that commencement is just around the corner.

The junior band membership is increasing rapidly and we should have plenty of harmony in the near future.

Pinckney will enter the basket ball tournament to be held this year in Walled Lake's new gym instead of at Milford. Other class "D" teams are New Hudson, Hartland, Orchard Lake, South Lyon. Pinckney, after failing to win a game during their regular season won two tournament games last year. Maybe she will repeat this year. The tournament is to be held the first week in March.

Pinckney dropped both games to Dexter there last Friday. The second team lost 24 to 6 and the varsity 13 to 20. The last game is an extremely low score for a high school game. Pinckney couldn't get going and their field goals were few and far between. The hostile Dexter crowd seemed to get on their nerves.

WEEKLY LETTER CONGRESSIONAL

Since the beginning of the 76th Congress I have received many letters from the readers of your paper asking me questions with reference to the parliamentary procedure of the House. This is evidence of the fact that the American public is taking a renewed interest in legislation. I have therefore, decided to set forth in this letter some of the essential principles of our parliamentary system as used in the House of Representatives.

The word "parliamentary" law, of course, is taken from the rules governing procedure in the British parliament. During our colonial days, when we were governed by the common law of England, our colonial legislatures used the parliamentary system, which had been developed by England. After the Declaration of Independence, our legislatures continued to use this parliamentary system, so far as it was applicable, making such amendments thereto as would conform to the new American system.

So, for 150 years, the House of Representatives has continued to use those great fundamental principles of parliamentary law that have proven successful and beneficial in the development of our nation, making such amendments from time to time as the exigencies of the case might require.

Each Congressman, at the beginning of his term, is furnished with a book containing the general principles of parliamentary procedure. These he is supposed to familiarize himself with, in order to be fully informed as to the method of doing business in the House. These rules of parliamentary procedure are to the House of Representatives what the general fundamental laws of the State are to the State.

It is the duty of the Speaker, in case a point of order is raised with reference to a parliamentary point, to make his decision in conformity with the general rules laid down. In this way, the Speaker is governed by precedents, just the same as the Supreme Court of the State and the Nation is governed by precedents. During the 150 years of our Congressional history, more than 10,000 decisions have been made by the Speakers of the House, and Chairman of the Committee on the Whole and these precedents have the binding force of law, unless subsequently rescinded or overruled.

In governing a body as large as the House of Representatives, which consists of 435 members, the rules of parliamentary procedure must be rigidly enforced, otherwise confusion would reign supreme. Under the rules of the House, there are thirty-three specific steps which a bill must take before it reaches the dignity of the law of the land. These rules must be specifically observed, or a point of order could be raised against them.

There are various ways in which a bill may reach the floor of the House. The minor bills may come before the House by unanimous consent, and if that consent is given, these bills are usually passed or defeated within a short space of time; but important pieces of legislation usually come before the House by a rule given by the Rules Committee which is, in many respects, the most important committee in the House of Representatives.

If the proponents of a certain bill ask for the Rules Committee to give a rule allowing such piece of legislation to come before the House, then this rule will provide the number of hours of debate, whether or not the bill can be amended, and such other points as the Rules Committee may designate.

If the Rules Committee refuses to give a rule allowing a certain piece of legislation to be brought before the House, then, under our parliamentary system, the proponents of said bill may circulate a petition to discharge the committee, which petition lies on the Clerk's desk and can only be signed during the actual sessions of Congress. Should this petition receive 218 signers, then that automatically discharges the Rules Committee, and the bill may be put before the House at a designated time.

The reason for this provision is so that the Rules Committee cannot become too dictatorial and autocratic and thus throttle necessary or important legislation.

There are four principle methods of voting in the House.

1. The vivi voce vote, or by voice.
2. The division vote, in which those favoring the legislation will rise and remain standing until counted. Then the opponents will do the same.

3. The teller vote, in which the proponents of the bill will pass down the center aisle and be counted, and then the opponents likewise.
4. The yeas and nays vote. This by far, is the most important method of voting, as is evidenced by the fact that our constitutional forefathers provided in the Constitution for a yeas and nays vote, when demanded by 1-5 of the members present. This vote is the safeguard of the people, because when the yeas and nays vote is ordered, each Congressman then must have the courage to vote "yea" or "no" on specific legislation, as his judgement dictates.

Formerly, in the House of Representatives, there was a fifth method of voting namely, by ballot, but this method has gradually fallen into disuse and no longer used.

In the House of Representatives, no member can talk longer than one hour without the unanimous consent of the entire membership. In the Senate, however, debate is unlimited, and frequently senators talk for hours upon pending legislation. In most respects, however, the fundamental principles governing the Senate are similar to those governing the House.

The bills coming before Congress this week have been more or less miscellaneous in nature, but I am informed that important legislation will be brought in the House soon, of which I shall speak in a subsequent letter.

William W. Blackney.

IRON RIVER (MPA) - At least one man in Michigan got the "special" license plates he wanted this year, and that is John A. Monroe. Each year he tries to get the numbers "66", his telephone number, on his license. This year he got "TH-11-99", says he knew that number would be on top of the pile and was on hand at the license bureau to get it.

ELSIE (MPA) - When village fathers decided Elsie needed a new fire truck, they purchased it from a local garage, S. B. Keys and Son. After the truck was delivered, S. B. Keys and Son had the dubious honor of being the first to use it when their garage caught fire.

REED CITY (MPA) - Loren Kilmer

was ready to stick the buck he had shot and tagged when the animal suddenly rose to its feet. Grabbing the deer's antlers, Loren "took a ride" through the woods, losing his knife in the process. After nearly an hour's struggle, he was able to bring the buck back to where he dropped the knife and finally hit it.

Reason, father of Norman Reason, who had the agency for several makes of vehicles such as the Flint, Pontiac and Studebaker. In some years before the advent of the auto he sold over 200 carriages and wagons a year. He did business the same as the present day auto dealers taking old carriages in trade for new and selling on a time payment plan. His operations were not confined to this county as he also had customers in Washtenaw, Jackson, Ingham, Shiawassee and Oakland counties. He was his own star salesman and spent much time travelling about, selling buggies or farm implements. He also conducted a hardware store where W. H. Meyer's garage is. William Shehan was a partner with him at one time and later his son, George.

Comfort, Style, Color, Novelty In New Spring Shoe Fashions

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS A prologue to the season before us the National Shoe fair, held in Chicago recently, launched many new styles for the Easter parade, and for the spring and summer months to follow. It is not possible to tell of all the shoe fashions exhibited, so in the next few paragraphs we will cite a few outstanding highspots.

First, one is impressed with the striking originality that marks the styling of shoes this season. The big news is the swing toward back decoration. The newest models are styled with all sorts of fancy cutouts in heel and side-back sections. Open toes appear in a substantial percentage, with good taste using a restraining hand.

In leathers there is decided ingenuity in combinations, especially with fabrics. In the forefront are leathers from the reptilian family. Patent is a top-honor contender, dividing its style prestige with gabardine. Suede is also definitely in the picture. The steps are prime favorites. The majority of these, and of pumps, carry elasticized sections.

For the initial purchase smart women will select black or the new bluejacket blue, a dark navy. Maltbeige is also a color you will be parading. Gray is due for a decided revival.

Heels introduce more novelty in their heights and shapes than in any previous year. They will "click" from flat platforms to new spike altitudes. Wedges in medium and high heel versions promise a great vogue. When you see the new play shoes you won't be able to resist. Wedge shoes with soles in brilliant red and tops of Paris blue, buck rided in red, with a red drawstring around the top will embark you gaily on that all-American spring which fashion advises will be here, with patriotic colors flagging interest from head to foot.

Ready to step out for spring are bluejacket pumps with bows and moccasin-effect fronts edged in white as shown to the left in the picture, worn with a navy and white print frock and navy and white accessories. Gay stripe wool for coats is a spring promise. To wear with your striped coat choose shoes such as accompany the coat illustrated.

Describing the shoes shown in the inset, beginning at the top, No. 1 is the new double platform type. The alligator pumps next below are real smart. They are in the new taupe gray, have the latest square toe and heel design, with stitching in brown. Shown next is a significant style forecast. It combines alligator with suede or gabardine. Two pert bows of alligator add swank. Comfort plus style is the very important message conveyed by the shoe that concludes the group. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Pastel Blouse

A sheer crepe blouse in monotone pastel, pale blue, muted pink, grayish green or the new wheat color with a dark skirt of rich fabric is a dress formula that carries style conviction. The blouse pictured observes the newest styling details. High necklines, long generously full sleeves, the wide corset effect that gives a nipped-in waistline, they are marks of fashion-wise dressmaker touches. A matching turban is late fashion decree.

Nepotiny is launching new styles in chemisier blouses, making them of silk or cotton novelty shirting and trimming them with old-time leather-fitted braids and nacre shell-shaped buttons.

Milliners Turn Out Cunning Spring Hats

A pastel felt or a gay fabric turban make good "starters" for spring. The sailor theme is a most important one. As for turbans you can wear no smarter headpiece. The latest is to have a turban match either blouse or bag or match something that has to do with your costume.

The outstanding feature about the cunning hats that tilt over the face, some not much larger than the palm of your hand, is that they all throw the spotlight on back views. Milliners have devised all sorts of schemes in the way of snoods and fitted deep bandeaux and ribbon cap-fitting contrivances not only to insure a comfortable fit on the head but to give chic and charm to back views.

House Coats to Fit Your Personality

House coats and hostess gowns, like all other costumes, should be chosen to match your personality. Once in a while the tall, stately woman may find it amusing to go frilly and feminine at home and the hoyden may try her hand at elegance, but these are the exceptions rather than the rule.

Ordinarily the woman who spends many hours in her home likes pretty, cheerful pastels, while the career woman who keeps an eye on the practical side chooses the darker red, wine and blue shades.

Wet Day Ensemble Chic and Sensible

Copper and white are attractively combined for a rainy day ensemble. A trench coat of copper-toned gabardine is teamed with white rubbers and a transparent copper-toned umbrella. The umbrella has an old-fashioned ivory tusk handle. An amusing lapel pin for this coat is a pair of white celluloid ducks.

Personal Service

By THAYER WALDO
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

REYNOLD RAND gave himself over to the luxury of a near-leer. In fact, refusing it status as a full-fledged one is based upon purely technical grounds: he neglected to exhibit his contortional tour de force. Rather, he screened it with great care behind his open newspaper. Of course, that may have been all for the best; there was a lady seated opposite him at the breakfast table, and she chanced to be his wife.

"But my dear girl," he said, nothing but silk in the purr; "my dear, dear girl—how preposterous! Could you conceive of idiotic jealous suspicions of me, of all people? I engaged a bodyguard for you merely to ensure your complete protection and my peace of mind."

With an emphatic movement Irene Rand reached across and snatched the printed barricade from his hands.

"You," she stated in flat accusation, "are a triple distilled liar! In the last 10 years you've never given me a single thought when I wasn't right in the same room, and as few as possible then. You've gone and hired some horrible plug-ugly just to embarrass me so I won't go anywhere, all because in your vile imagination—"

"Pet," Reynold interrupted, suavely mild, "remember your blood pressure. Do you want the veins in your neck standing out when they take those close-ups today?"

Swift solicitous fingers fluttered to her throat, stroked it soothingly. Reynold lit a fat cigar and continued:

"My motives, I can only repeat, are of the highest order. As a well-known star, you can't afford to ignore the current prevalence of kidnapping and robbery."

In the kitchen on their right sounded a buzz. The titular head of the house glanced around in an almost apprehensive fashion. Then he faced forward again, managing a careless smile.

"Ah, yes," he murmured; "that must be the chap now. I asked him to drop around this morning so you could meet him."

Irene gasped and began loudly: "Reynold P. Rand, if you think I'm actually going to put up with this, you're daffy as hell and—"

Deftly he had risen and slipped through the swing door, leaving her amidst speech. She sprang around the table, bolted after him—and then came to a halt just inside the dining room. Reynold's meager back was toward her, in the hallway; towering neck and more above him stood a great warrior-featured blond lad with gleaming teeth.

"Oh, Mr. Drake—Rey's just been telling me all about you. Do come in and sit down."

Both men faced her, one surprised, the other wearing a mask of cold politeness.

"How do you do, Mrs. Rand?" The tone was self-possessed and impersonal. "It's a pleasure to meet you; I've seen so many of your pictures."

His indifference brought an added thrill. Here indeed was novelty! "Thank you," she said, leading him into the library. "Reynold, will you please call the studio and tell them I'll be a little late. Mr. Drake and I need to chat and get acquainted."

He came at nine that evening, looking monumental but even handsomer in dress clothes. Driving alone, they went to the Capitol club. For an hour she enjoyed herself utterly.

Drake still would unbend but slightly. She was trying for the dozenth time to draw him into conversation when, several tables away, she suddenly glimpsed a familiar face, and started. Maurice! As she stared he saw her, evidently not for the first time. Elaborately he bowed; the accompanying smile was hard, ironic.

Quickly she glanced at her escort, and as instantly knew real excitement. He had seen, too! He was positively glaring in that direction. Irene leaned across the table to whisper:

"Never mind—he's probably tight. I never laid eyes on him before." But it was futile; that seemed only to aggravate matters. With a bull-like growl deep in his young chest, Drake sprang up and was striding toward the offender, fists hugely doubled.

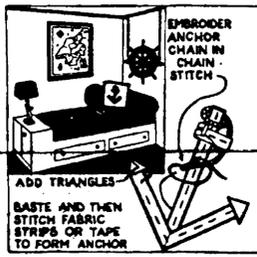

Shocked wonder checked her thoughts as she saw him charge straight past Maurice, heading for the table beyond. Then the tow-headed giant pulled a man out of a chair, sent him down again with a right to the chin—and the withheld little shriek burst from Irene. Incredibly, the man Drake had punched was Reynold!

The next second or so she never recalled. She only knew that at last her bodyguard was standing before her again; that one enormous hand inexorably grasped the wrist of a tearful little thing with auburn hair.

"Sorry, Mrs. Rand," he said in a voice like avenging thunder, "but I'll have to leave you now, and I won't be coming back. It seems this stuff should begin at home, so from now on I'll be shadowing my wife."

HOW TO SEW

for he invented both of them. He also salvaged the steering wheel from an old boat and hung it on the wall with ropes. A small figure of a sailor was wired for a lamp.

His mother made a smartly tailored navy blue couch cover trimmed in a red anchor and a red cushion was adorned with a blue anchor. Straight strips of material 1-inch wide after the edges are turned under will make an anchor 12-inches long and 8 inches across as shown here. Bias tape may be used for the smaller anchor which is just half the size of the large one.

Whose Signature? Proxy Parents Live to Collect

In a recent experiment the Chicago Police Crime Detection Laboratory had seven college professors differentiate between four samples of their signatures, one being genuine, one an expert forger, one a tracing and one written with no attempt at imitation. Only one man identified his own signature as genuine and recognized the other three specimens as nongenuine.

A new organization in New York supplies capable young women between the ages of 20 and 30 years to act as "proxy parents," taking children to theaters, schools, parties, dentists' offices and on shopping tours. They also stay with children while parents are away for the week-end, and meet trains and chaperon girls who come to the city for a visit.

movement to circulate petitions to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot next November 6th.

This amendment would reduce the membership of the House at Lansing from 100 to 64, automatically requiring a reapportionment of House seats. It just happens that there has been no reapportionment of legislative seats since 1925, although the constitution itself says that such shall be done every ten years. In apparent fear of metropolitan domination of upstate affairs, the legislature has consistently declined to do anything about it, and that goes for the Democrats as well as the Republicans.

Wary of vote complications either in the cities of rural areas, most state officials have merely parried attempts to elicit their views. Attorney General Thomas Read said the present 100-member house was good enough; the legislature should merely abide by the reapportionment mandate. Governor Dickinson, Treasurer Miller Dunckel, Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly and Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, all discreetly withheld their judgement. Only Vernon J. Brown, auditor general, conceded that there was merit to the reapportionment demand and that a number of adjustments should be made.

Medical Insurance
A Michigan physician-author and the Michigan State Medical society are responsible, so the inside story goes, for President Roosevelt's recent decision to shelve the expensive Wagner health act for a national subsidy of individual health service.

The new medical insurance plan, whereby workers with less than $2,500 annual incomes may get full family medical care on a monthly insurance fee basis, is designed by the state medical fraternity to solve the problem of adequate medical service for the low income group.

Back of that, of course, is the threat of socialized medicine which now exists in many European countries including England and Germany.

At one time the Wagner health program, patterned after the Social Security set-ups for old age pensions and unemployment compensation had the inside track at the White House. Michigan and California then adopted in 1939 medical insurance programs. A similar plan is being considered in 13 other states. These arguments were used effectively by Paul DeKroff, Michigan author, in a personal conference recently with President Roosevelt.

Hence the outcome of the Michigan plan is being watched nationally. If the physicians' own solution fails to provide the answer, then state socialization is on its way. At least medical leaders here privately take this view.

Pressure for Revenue
When governments spend more than they collect in revenue and when pressure for more revenue continues, then watch out for new taxes.

The recent publicity about deficiency of hospital beds, lack of old age pension funds, need for better crippled children care and so on is an illustration how popular pressure can be created to grant state aid for deserving causes.

And so it goes. In any event it is the consumer who ultimately foots the bill. No one can reasonably dispute that.

Abraham Lincoln

The picture of Abraham Lincoln shows a man of quiet dignity and steadfast purpose. He was a politician, he was president of the United States, but above all he was an American.

When the rest of the world is at war and name-calling is the order of the day, let us consider for a moment the way in which Lincoln withstood the name-calling, the European influences of the Civil War day. He met his opposition fairly and squarely and his program stood on its honesty and integrity of unselfish purpose.

1940 presents many similar problems to the people of the United States. An election year will bring out the name-callers. The issues will be clouded with flowery speeches and Utopian promises.

Let us remember Lincoln and America.
