Gov. Van Wageningen Takes Office Jan 1

Gov. Van Wageningen will begin his term as the first of the new Michigan Split Administration on January 1. He is expected to bring a new harmony to the state.

On New Year's Day, Van Wageningen, the only Democrat in the history of Michigan to be elected governor, took the oath of office in Lansing. He is the first Democrat to be elected since 1904.

Van Wageningen, who has served for four years as state commissioner, just what the state needs, is expected to bring a new harmony to the state. There is no doubt of his ability and his determination to do the job. He is expected to bring a new harmony to the state.

Second Draftees To Go Jan. 2

Second Draft Call is January 2nd. Livingston boys to be drafted from Livingston County on that date including two from Pinckney.

The second draft call is scheduled for January 2, this week, but some of the names will not be sent until the following week. Livingston county will send 18 men all of whom are volunteers. The boys were Lloyd Hendee and Ted Adesh of Pinckney; Irvin Grainger, Richard Ulrich, Lucius Smith, Paul Newman, Earl Cain, Harold Wall, Ivan Hanson, Robert Davis, Glenn Davis, and Merton Henry. Harold Wall is also registered from Pinckney, being employed on a farm near here. Edward Spears was also on the list, having volunteered, but later withdrew his name.

The boys will go to Detroit where they will undergo a stiff medical examination and undoubtedly some of them will be rejected. In that case this county must replace all rejected men. Over 3,000 men are called in Michigan at this time, about 2500 of whom we understand will be sent to Camp Custer, Barr's Creek.

The third call for drafted men is set for January 20. The quota this time is heavily studded with the names of Pinckney boys or former residents of this place. Of the next 17 names on the list about 9 are Pinckney boys or those who have until recently lived here. The Pinckney boys listed here are Roy Baker, Jr., Ladonis Spears, Clarence Culver, Doyle Shirley, Stephen Gerycz, Francis Krupa, Leonard Devins, Gerald Clinton, and Bennie Van Blaricum. Those from other places in the county are James White, Louis Scott, Howard Bastian, Joseph Berry, Kenneth Evans and Clark Titus.

We understand that John Dillon, a former resident of Pinckney, has also been certified. He tried to enlist in the navy in Detroit but was rejected on account of bad teeth. However Dr. Hollis Sigler, draft board examiner, passed him as physically fit.

Of the first two draftees who volunteered Lloyd (Doc) Hendee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hendee and physically fit. He has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Will Shehan for many years. Both graduated from Pinckney high school, Adesh in 1934 and Hendee in 1936. While they were there they starred in athletics, winning letters 4 years in both baseball and football and being star players on Coach J. P. Doyle's winning teams. Both have been employed by the construction gang of the Detroit Edison Company for the past year.

As we go to press we are informed that the second draft call has been postponed until February 21.

COMPOSED OF TWO GROUPS

The Republican camp is composed of two groups, those who favor Frank McKay and his type of government and those who do not. These two factions recently held a session and are said to have called a truce in which Senator Smith in one faction was to be elected president of the senate and Senator Manshaw of the other faction floor leader. However, all senators do not approve of this compromise and there may be no truce.

In the house there is also a struggle between two factions. It is understood to again be a struggle for speaker pro tem and the speaker. It is more than Rep. Charles P. Adams of this county who is serving his fourth term. Rep. Adams of Livingston county is expected to be elected speaker of the house and again named chairman of the education committee.

A session comes in a critical and it is expected that the speaker will be the motto and the members of the legislature will bring their differences and work for the good of the state and nation.

William S. Knudson, National Defense Director Asks Industry and Labor To Take Off Their Coats and Go To Work

When historians record the world events of 1941, Michigan may rightfully have merited a place of distinction.

We refer to the American man of the hour - William S. Knudson.

Upon the shoulders of this General Motors past president rests a responsibility of appalling consequences.

Military experts agree that the second world war has not been a battle of men, but a battle of machines. They also point out that Hitler's present domination of Europe the constant parade of falling democracies, has been due, to a large degree, to a totalitarian application of mass production methods conceived in a democracy.

In other words, the Michigan automobile assembly line.

It is a sober fact that a decade ago, before Hitler's coup in 1933, a delegation of German industrial experts visited the Detroit automobile plants and witnessed with admiration the astonishing efficiency in production of a constantly advancing line of machine parts which finally grew into a finished product, ready for immediate consumer use.

"Total Defense"

It is significant that in the 1941 battle of machines, the fate of England may rest on whether the United States can achieve under democratic processes maximum production of vitally needed arms.

As the mass bombing of English industrial centers will continue to cripple the manufacture of munitions and arms, it is becoming increasingly evident that the English must put greater reliance on American plants to replace lost production and to effect ultimate superiority of machines.

And hence the importance of an appeal by Mr. Knudson to the American people "to pull off their coats and roll up their sleeves and give their undivided concentrated attention to one thing - the swiftest possible production of the means of defense."

Because Michigan is first among the states in volume of government arms contracts let to date, we cannot dodge the responsibility that accompanies these defense orders. One newspaper writer in a dispatch from Detroit referred to the predominant sentiment today in Michigan as "a mixture of determination and commitment", as follows:

CROTTY - MOSS

The marriage of Miss Norine Crotty, daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Crotty to Richard Ross, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Ross of Howell, took place at St. Agnes' Catholic church of Cleveland on Saturday, December 28, Rev. J. McDonough officiating. The couple were attended by Margaret Ann Scully and George Pohey of Howell as bridesmaid and best man. Only immediate members of the family were present. A wedding breakfast was served at the hotel and the young couple left for their new home in Jackson where the groom will be chef at the Southern Michigan State Prison where his uncle has been head steward for a number of years. Both young people are graduates of Howell high school and the bride made her home with her grandmother, Mrs. James Roche, of Pinckney, for a number of years previous to that. Congratulations.

IS MUCH IMPROVED

Ross Hinchey who was hurt last week near Eloise Hospital in Wayne county in an auto accident and has since been at the Eloise Hospital, proved to have no broken bones and will return home this week.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

The following marriage licenses were issued at the office of the county clerk last week: John Wrighterworth, 76 Cohoctah, Elmfield Crawford, 69 Cohoctah; Erwin LeRoy Deane, 23 Brighton, Kalamazoo; Roy, 23, Pontiac; Hiram Collier, 23, Williamsburg; Florence Hank, 23, Howell.

CURRENT COMMENT

For some time now we have been wondering just what this much publicized "Freedom of Speech" consists of. Bugs Baer, noted columnist, says it includes everything except dropping slugs in telephone boxes, hurling fire in churches and leaving the loudspeaker on all night.

For a considerable period it has seemed to us that a lot of publicity hounds have been getting away with murder in the name of free speech.

We read that a certain minister is going to sue radio station CKLW because it cut him off the air last Sunday during his delivery of a tirade against the president, the administration and about everyone else who does not agree with his war views.

Free speech at the present time is being used by all the irresponsibles in the nation to broadcast their bawdy ideas and nine times out of ten, said ideas are not backed up by a shred of evidence. Said persons sure get a break in that they are never required to prove their assertions.

The Society to Preserve Peace by

Aiding the Allies and the Society to Preserve Peace by Not Aiding the Allies, aided by the America First Association and the No Foreign War organization are all in each others hair due to speeches by William Allen White and Col. Lindbergh.

Now Senators Wheeler and Vandenberg want President Roosevelt to call a peace conference and force a peace settlement between the warring nations of Europe. As this would certainly mean involvement in foreign affairs and these gentlemen are 100 per cent opposed to it, wonder just how they reconcile their stand. Also forcing a peace at this time would play directly into Hitler's hands. At the present time with Hitler in possession of France, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Roumania, Poland, Austria and Hungary, the only peace possible would be a Hitler peace because said individual has got all the ships. These senators are against any aid to Britain at all and supported the embargo, neutrality act etc. If they had been successful in these measures Hitler's triumph would have been assured as without U. S. war materials and supplies Great Britain wouldn't have lasted very long.

The new school pension bill to be presented to the coming legislature will include school employees other than teachers. Attorney General Reud has ruled however that school commissioner's assistants and librarians who are paid wholly or in part by municipal governments can not be included in its provisions. In other words only those persons who are paid out of state funds appear posted by the school budget.

There seems to be widespread selling of liquor and intoxicating liquors to minors in this state. Several arrests have been made in Washtenaw county and in Ionia county 3 liquor county beer dealers and 3 Clinton county dealers were called before the liquor commission following a wreck in which a minor in an incriminated condition who was driving a car figured. The arrests followed an investigation by Inspector Ingram of the state police. Of course, it must be admitted that there are many ways for minors to get liquor, either by holding about their age or getting an older person to purchase it for them. But in these cases the boys seem to have bought liquor openly and no questions asked. The liquor laws continue to present an unworkable situation and probably always will.

MAN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Joe Morris who works on the Schuler farm near Okemos, now owned by Harold C. Schuler, was injured last night when his pickup truck ran into a big tree on the property north of the farm. He was brought to the hospital and was able to walk home on his own.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — Simultaneously, Chancellor Hitler and Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli renounce gold and extol the fruits of the spirit.

Schiaparelli Says to France Cost Fetters Our soon, the famous dress-maker finds that Americans are too much given to money-grubbing to appreciate the beautiful art of couture.

Molyneux fled, to make gowns in London, but Lucien Lelong, the new Judge Landis of the French fashion industry, remains in the service of art—not money of course.

Soon after the occupation of Paris, Mme. Schiaparelli arrived here to begin a national lecture tour. We seemed to be suffering from much misapprehension about France.

Addressing the Junior League of Los Angeles recently, she said: "All of us in Paris are impressed by the generosity of American men regarding their women."

I had an idea that the French felt that way a few years ago when I was privileged to see some of the inner workings of Lanvin's establishment in Paris.

Mme. Schiaparelli lived five years in New York. Her daughter, Marisa, was born in her Ninth street house in Greenwich Village.

Taking an unheated flat in Patubin place, a dingy little nubbin of a street off Jefferson Market court, she found a $20 bill on the floor.

ELMAN B. MYERS, inventor of the new "jet propulsion" motor which is expected vastly to increase the range, speed and fighting effectiveness of war planes.

After 22 years he appears with his critically important invention. He got a job with a wireless station in Sacramento.

Requirement No. 1 has to be carried out each year, of course, but numbers 2, 3, and 4 are to be done over a five-year period.

The Alabama Plan is resulting in more co-operation among farmers in many cases. For example, operators of small farms are not able to maintain heavy equipment required in terracing.

Washington Digest

New AAA 'Alabama Plan' Promotes Soil Betterment

Crop Payments Based on Land Improvement; Roosevelt Suggests U. S. 'Loan' War Material to England.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON.—You may have heard about the "Alabama plan" of the Triple A which some have said is an attempt of reversing the policy of paying farmers for "not doing."

This is the way one member of the Triple A tells the story:

Down in Alabama they're trying, on a state-wide basis, an experiment in balanced farming that may eventually be a pattern for farm programs in other areas.

The Alabama plan is not complicated. It is part of the AAA farm program. It carries further than ever before the conservation work done under the AAA program.

Planned Conservation.

The difference between the Alabama Plan and the general conservation program is about the difference between going into a cafeteria and picking out a dish or two that you especially like and sitting down to a well-balanced meal.

Not only is the conservation well planned for each year, but it is worked out for five years in advance.

The Alabama Plan, like most parts of the farm program, came from suggestions from farmers themselves who have observed the operation of the farm program and made suggestions on it from time to time.

Requirements of Plan. Here's what the Alabama farmer has to do to avoid deductions in his conservation payments for 1941:

- 1. Grow erosion-resisting crops each year on an acreage equal to at least 25 per cent of his cropland.
2. Properly terrace all cropland in the farm having a slope in excess of 3 per cent.
3. Establish or maintain perennial soil-conserving crops on at least one acre for each 15 acres of cropland.
4. Establish or maintain permanent pasture on at least one acre for each 15 acres of cropland.

Requirement No. 1 has to be carried out each year, of course, but numbers 2, 3, and 4 are to be done over a five-year period.

Deductions in the farmer's conservation payments will be made on the basis of 5 per cent of the payment for each 10 per cent by which he fails to carry out the 1941 requirements.

Farm Credit

WASHINGTON.—The volume of financing through the Farm Credit administration was larger in 1940 than for several years past. Farmers obtained $460,000,000 of credit during the first nine months of the year compared to $416,000,000 in the corresponding period of 1939.

maintain heavy equipment required in terracing. However, groups of farmers can form an association to buy this equipment, and can pay their share on the basis of the amount of time they use it.

That is the story—told from the standpoint of the Triple A. You are better able to judge its merits than I am. Of course, if you have any views you would like to express, I would be only too glad to hear them.

President Announces 'Loaned' Aid to Britain

It was late as I hurried across the paved space in front of the executive offices. The waiting room was jammed. Overcoats were piled high on the huge mahogany table presented to the President by the Philippine General Aguinaldo.

We were soon crowding through the inner waiting room and across the hall and into the President's oval office. The moment I had wormed my way forward and looked at the President, I was sure he had something important to say.

Finally the last reporter had come in. The President began to speak. He spoke slowly, deliberately, informally but seriously, announcing his long-awaited plan for lending or leasing implements of war to Great Britain.

Because I had to broadcast almost immediately afterward I was kept busy taking notes, but as I wrote down the words that would be history some day, I suddenly felt that nothing was real around me.

Roosevelt Tells Story.

It couldn't be that the other side of the world was burning up—that a proud nation which claimed to rule the Seven Seas was begging for help—that I was actually writing down on a piece of copy paper a gigantic plan to bring that help. It was simply too big to grasp.

This seemed still more unreal but it is the President's way of trying to illustrate frightfully complicated things with very simple, everyday experiences. He told how, when he was the young assistant secretary of the navy back in 1914, war in Europe was suddenly declared and he was hurrying back to Washington.

In the smoking car with him were a number of brokers and bankers—"the best economic brains of the country," the President called them. They were saying that no war could last long. The bankers could stop it in two and a half months for no nation could fight long without money in the bank.

Money Not Essential.

This, the President said, showed how wrong the accepted beliefs were. History shows, he said, that no country ever lost a war because of lack of money.

And then he went on describing his plan for lending or leasing implements of war to Great Britain instead of lending money. He had no notes before him but it was plain he had spent plenty of thought on his plan, that it was the result of study and thought.

Whatever the merits of the plan may be, its one merit seemed to be this: it stilled for a while at least, something that came very near hysteria in Washington and what might have been hysteria in England, too. For while it did not increase by one machine gun bullet, immediate aid to Britain, it promised them "economic co-operation" and restored their morale.

And it stilled, too, the angry demands of the pressure groups in this country which would push us right up to the very verge of war. They could hardly complain if London was satisfied. And yet, on the other side of the picture, it did not even imply a single immediate act which would bring us any nearer the war than we were at the moment for the President made it clear that congress would have to pass upon it.

He also made it clear that it would not be presented to the old congress for any hasty action. It must await the convening of the new congress when you folks have had time to think it over.

The plan may be, as some of the critics say, the most bald of subtleties. It may be utterly impractical. But it has postponed rancorous discussion and discord in this country which would have served as aid and comfort to the totalitarian nations which seize with joy any example of the lack of unity in a democracy.

Chic Silhouette Figure Depends On Proper Foundation Garment

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

YOUR costume may be the very pink of perfection, your accessories nothing less than glamorous, but no matter how smartly appareled, unless you are correctly corseted in the proper foundation garment to make your figure conform, so far as is possible, to the slim svelte lines that current fashion demands, you will fail to qualify "up to the mark" in general appearance.

Ladies, look to your corsetry! Soon it will be time to take up the matter of new clothes for spring. Start the program right with a carefully selected foundation garment wardrobe and see what a difference it makes when you come to be fitted in the new frocks and suits.

The long-stemmed American beauty glorified by United States designers in their first season of independence from Paris influence calls for intelligent corseting to underline the new styles with high, well-contoured bustline, straighter and slightly longer waistline and sleek hip and thighs.

What special type of foundation you should wear depends upon your individual needs. Study your figure in a mirror to get a clear picture of faults to be corrected. Then go "in conference" with your favorite corsetier. In analyzing your figure defects and virtues, remember that the side and back views are even more important than the front, because they show your posture and distribution of weight.

It is especially important this season that your bustline be properly contoured. The tendency in current costume design is to accent top interest in moulded and draped and swathed treatments. The new classic daytime wools with their suave simply tailored blouse tops make expert corsetry imperative. This is especially true of brassieres which must be meticulously selected. Remember that unless you wear some type of pantie girdle and brassiere, under your slack suits, swimsuits, tennis, golf or riding clothes, your figure cannot look attractive.

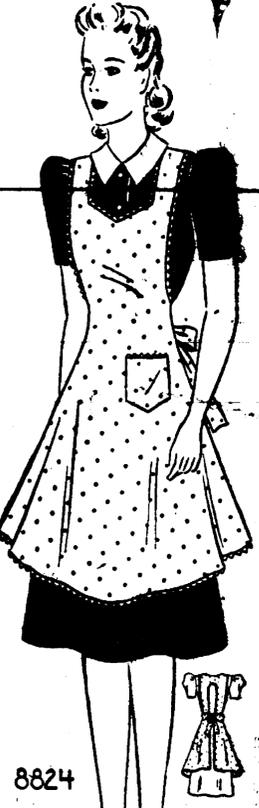

It is also important that you have two identical foundations for everyday wear to keep your figure moulded properly and comfortably. Two foundations worn alternately and kept fresh and in good repair may be expected to hold their original lines and do their job of figure control appreciably longer than two purchased successively.

One foundation for formal wear is a wardrobe necessity because the figure needs extra help to look its best under formal gowns, which are more fitted in line than daytime styles.

New foundations for evening offer several outstanding features. Brassieres are cut to give more accent to the bustline than for daylight hours, and have many clever tricks to suit the straps to the various décollete lines. Corsets and all-in-ones are cut longer in the skirt to prevent thigh bulge and afford a suave, gently curving line from waist to knees without any hint of stiffness in effect.

Shown in the illustration are two examples of the sleekly moulded evening silhouettes favored this season. Note the dress to the left with perky wee bows tying in a one-side fastening. It requires perfected corsetry to achieve the youthful fashion-right lines here delineated. Jacket costumes as centered in the group are outstanding in the evening mode and exact expert foundation garment fitting. A goodlooking daytime black wool dress with which to wear a single costume jewelry piece—this instance a stunning bracelet—pin at the waistline) has become a staple in every wardrobe. Shown here to the right is an over-the-hust draped effect which requires very special corsetry because of its interest.

All the Traffic Would Bear

There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Merchants charged what they thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer. It led the way to the established prices you pay when you buy anything today.

Loop Felt

Fetching little hats made of bright loop felt are effective with tweed or dark fur coats. Some of these jaunty sprightly headpieces are so fashioned they look like a single large flower caught firmly to a fitted cap made of ribbon velvet. They are tied at the back in a big bow, the flowerlike cluster of felt loops poses piquantly over the forehead. The hat of felt loops pictured is a pill-box type in moss green with beige. The long-sleeve muff is in green velvet with a ruche bordering at each end made of felt loops matching the hat.

New Trim for Shoes

Even your shoes have a dressed-up air this season, with trimmings of fur bows and beading. Tailored bows are used to trim pumps made of crocodile, and frilled bows and beading add a smart look to suede shoes for afternoon.

'Twin Hats' Copy Headgear of Men

Probably the most important style item this winter is the companionate hat, known also as "he and she," "Mr. and Mrs.," and "twin" hats. These hats are merely hats that look alike—one for men, one for women.

Actually the twin hats are a blessing, both to men who have put up with some pretty wacky looking women's hats in the past, and to the ladies who are always looking for something new. The list of twin hats is, of course, cut and cut-largely. It is styled to duplicate the sporter men's style. Manhattan has seen them in telegraph or park-plex derbies, felt caps and in the so-called double brim soft hats. The style item they are wearing.

American designers of women's hats have a knack of feminizing these twin adaptations to the point where they are, of themselves, more feminine than distinctly "twinning" hats.

Red, White, Blue Featured in South

Women vacationers spending their winter in the southlands are wearing dresses patriotically featuring red, white and blue. For daytime wear two or all three of the brilliantly contrasting colors are combined, and are often further trimmed with gold braid insignia, or belt buckles that are red, white and blue shields. Evening clothes, whether dresses or formal gowns, nearly have full skirts. They are made of sharkskin, crepe, organza, lace, tulle, and net, with black, white and blue the reigning colors.

December 30, 1940

After listening to the speech of our president, the Hon. F. D. Roosevelt over the radio last evening, telling us the reason for the vast and urgent defense preparations now being made by the government of the United States of America; in case we should be attacked by the nations in war across the seas giving his reasons that an emergency exists for for so doing; which we admit.

Now, I, as a citizen of this nation ask myself the question: what is the cause of all this trouble and hatred going on in the world of which we as a nation are a part.

And as I know no better source to find an answer to the question; I go to God's word, the Bible; I read in that book that disobedience brought sin Gen. 2:15, 16, 17 and its results James 1: 13, 14, 15 and God says what shall happen to the nation that forgets God; Pam. 9:15, 17. This is the cause of war.

Then God has told us what American needs to do to get his help Mal. 3: 7, 12 and John 3: 16, 21.

Our president gave us a good talk on defense and emergency, and the need of being prepared for war, which was timely and all right; but without help of God we will never save the United States from destruction. "America Back to God" should be our slogan.

Don't you think so Mr. Editor?

St. Mary's Church

We are most grateful to all for the holiday greeting offerings; to the children for choral renditions; to the choir for its splendid services; to the choir for its splendid services; all at the Midnight Mass. The Devotions for Holy Communion were very inspiring and splendid order executed at all services. The church altar flowers, Crib of Bethlehem, and lights added much charm to the solemnity of the Great Feast in Devotion to the Nativity of Our Lord.

The Rev. Father Edmund Young O. S. B. of Sandwich, Ontario, who was our guest and assistant was much impressed by the splendor and devotion as witnessed here Christmas Laboring with a severe cold, Father, too gave a very interesting talk to the parishioners at the Christmas morning Mass.

Father Young returned to Canada Thursday night. He is instructor in the College Department at Assumption College and hockey coach in the Athletic Department. Father holds degrees from Columbia College New York City and St. Michael University of Toronto and Sandwich College Ontario. We hope he may be able to assist us next summer.

shaking hands with Hugh Corkery, buyer for Hygrade Food Products Co. who paid $1.65 a pound for the steer, and Leslie Smith, who raised the champion. Mr. Campbell said that in the 11 year history of the show, his Cass City boys and girls have produced 16 champion animals.

QUALITY AND PROFIT

The 4-H club members exhibiting stock at the Junior Livestock Show have proved that there is a premium paid for quality. The sale at the Junior Livestock Show was held on December 12th. Market reports from the Detroit Stockyards were also issued on December 12th. The open market that day quoted choice to prime dry fed from 10.50 to 11.25. Now Tommy Perkowski and Ernest Wycoff exhibited steers at this show. Tommy's short horn steer sold for 15 1/2 cents a pound, and Ernest's steer sold for 13 cents. This was not only true of the beef animals but that day the Trade Journal showed one or two bunches of lambs selling at 10 cents, the bulk at 9.75. Gaylord Copeland exhibited a pen of Shropshire lambs which brought him 13 1/2 cents. Often we hear unqualified statements relative to the Junior Livestock Show, such as cattle are bought by buyers at the time of the sale purely on speculative basis and are sold next day at the yards for prices far above that which the buyer paid. Now if the buyers of these steers and lambs figured on paying the price that they paid with the expectation of going on to the open market with their purchases the following day and selling them at a profit I maintain that the livestock prices fluctuate between wide limits from day to day and hour to hour.

These boys and girls who exhibited animals at the show and sold them through the sales ring were paid a premium on these animals because they were dry fed animals. They had not been allowed to run on pasture and thus brought in but true to their name they had been dry fed.

Perhaps the packer can afford to pay a little more a pound because the dressing percentage that the carcass yields will be greater than the dressing percentage yielded by an ordinary steer. Perhaps they can afford to pay a wee bit more to encourage these boys and girls to go ahead and furnish one of the chief items of food for the American family.

The boy that makes his purchases wisely and cares for the animal that he buys will generally realize a very nice profit at this show. A premium is paid for quality in any commodity.

Brazil Strives to Remake Jungle

Wealth of Amazon Valley Viewed as Important Key to Economics.

RIO DE JANEIRO.—Sanitation, colonization and increase in production—these are the three major elements in President Getulio Vargas' scheme to remake the Amazon valley.

Back from an airplane tour which took him far into the jungle country, the little president sees the Amazon district as a region of "immense potential wealth," of tremendous importance if Brazil is to go ahead economically.

He has called a conference of Amazon nations—Venezuela, Colombia, Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia and Brazil—to consider their common interests. He has invited the United States to attend.

By development of the Amazon basin and co-operation of the Amazon countries, he hopes "we will increase our reserves for defense and our capacity to resist any attempt at absorption."

Vargas does not say what nation or nations might make such an attempt, but it is clear he has his eye on the European and Far Eastern struggles.

The story of the Amazon is a story of rubber. Back in 1910, when the United States manufactured only 200,000 automobiles, Brazil produced practically all the world's rubber—62,000 of the 70,000 tons.

But Brazilian rubber was wild rubber, gathered by natives in old-fashioned ways. The British had found rubber could be raised economically in the Dutch East Indies and the Malay peninsula. This new method was far more efficient than wild rubber production.

Ford Has Plantation. By 1914, cultivated rubber production exceeded that of wild rubber. By 1920, cultivated rubber production was 320,000 tons, and wild production 40,000; the United States consumed 235,000 tons.

In 1937, the picture—a gloomy one for Brazil—was this: Cultivated rubber, 1,107,062 tons; Brazilian rubber, 16,286 tons.

Rubber had been worth $3 a pound in 1910—real "black gold." But when production could more than take care of necessities, prices fell away off.

President Vargas had a look at Henry Ford's plantation near the Amazon during his trip, and apparently was convinced that Brazilian rubber could make a comeback. Already, Varga says, American industries have appeared who are interested in putting capital and technical experience into Brazilian rubber.

Ford has had one setback in his experiments; he had to move his main plantation when his first locale proved unsuitable. So far his output has been unimportant, but within a year or two the Ford people hope to begin serious production.

The Amazon country also exports nuts, including the famous Brazil nut; some woods, animal skins and some fibers.

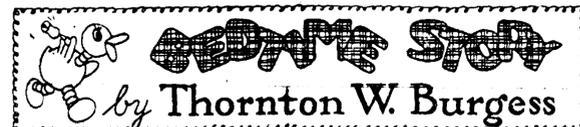

A major task in development of this district is the conquest of malaria. The germ-carrying mosquito breeds in the swamp lands of the region, although, as President Vargas points out, much of the territory is free of malaria. The Brazilian authorities and the Rockefeller Foundation have done a great work in eradicating malaria from all the important coastal centers.

To attract colonists from other parts of Brazil, Vargas offers free land, agricultural implements and technical assistance, plus free schools and training for their children.

MR. COYOTE TELLS WHERE HE CAME FROM

THERE was one thing which had puzzled the little people of the Green Forest, the Green Meadows and the Smiling Pool for a long time. Where had Old Man Coyote come from? There was a time when they hadn't known that he existed. Then one day they discovered that he had come to the Green Meadows to make his home, and he had been there ever since. There had been a great deal of wondering about him, and where he had come from, but no one felt well enough acquainted with him to ask him so personal a question. The truth is no one, unless it was Buster Bear, dared ask him, and Buster Bear wasn't interested.

"I—I should like to hear more about it," Sammy once more ventured.

Sammy Jay had been one of those who had wondered a great deal about Old Man Coyote. Now, usually Sammy is not at all bashful or the least bit backward about prying into other people's affairs, but there was something about Old Man Coyote that always had discouraged him. Today, however, it was different. He had come over to tell Old Man Coyote that all the little people of the Smiling Pool and the Green Meadows had given him a vote of thanks for leading Bowser the Hound into one of the terrible traps set by Farmer Brown's Boy, and so showing him how dreadful traps are. When Old Man Coyote had found out what Sammy's errand was he was so surprised that he hardly knew what to say, and quite suddenly felt that they were going to be friends. It was then that for the first time Sammy dared to ask what he had wanted so long to know.

"Mr. Coyote," said he, speaking in the politest manner, "you've been a neighbor for a long time, and yet somehow I've never felt really acquainted with you. Why, do you know I don't even know where you came from?"

Old Man Coyote's eyes twinkled. "You have plenty of company, I guess," said he. "Would you really like to know?"

"I certainly would," replied Sammy promptly. "I would feel a whole lot more as if we really were friends."

Old Man Coyote stretched himself out comfortably, and a far-away look came into his eyes. For a long time, or what seemed like a long time to impatient Sammy Jay, he didn't say a word, but continued to look and look off into the distance. It was quite as if he saw something there. Sammy looked, but he couldn't see anything unusual. He began to think that Old Man Coyote had forgotten that he was waiting and he had just started to clear his throat in order to remind Old Man Coyote when the latter spoke:

"I came," said he, "from the West—from the great, wide, wonderful West."

"Oh," said Sammy, because he didn't know what else to say. He scratched his head in an uncertain sort of way, and then he ventured another question. "Is—er—is the West very far away?"

Old Man Coyote didn't seem to hear. He was still gazing way, way off, and there was a soft dreamy look in his eyes which made them almost gentle. All the fierceness and the sly look was gone, and somehow it was hard work for Sammy to believe that it was really Old Man Coyote he was looking at. At last Old Man Coyote sighed. It was a long, deep sigh. "Yes, I came from the West, the great, wide, wonderful West," he repeated.

"It must be a long way from here," ventured Sammy.

"It is," replied Old Man Coyote. "I—I should like to hear about it," Sammy once more ventured, and he was very polite.

"So you shall! So you shall!" exclaimed Old Man Coyote, and straightway began to tell Sammy Jay all about the land he came from.

Sea Otter Cape for Sale

If You've Got $75,000

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—W. S. Brackett may sell his sea otter cape—the state's attorney general says—although state and federal laws prohibit the possession of sea otter pelts. All he has to do is find someone willing to pay him $75,000—the value fixed by a London furrier. Brackett received the cape as an heirloom from his mother, who obtained it in Newton, Mass., 80 years ago, before enactment of the prohibition laws.

The cape is three feet long with a sweep of 110 inches.

Mrs. Briney Thompson of Mission Ridge, S. D., doesn't need a handy man to carry wood for her, says the American magazine. Every morning her collie dog brings in the wood, stick by stick, and places it carefully by the kitchen stove.

Vaccine for Measles Has Been Discovered

PHILADELPHIA.—Discovery of a vaccine for measles was announced at the bicentennial conference of the University of Pennsylvania.

This vaccine is universal, good for both children and adults, and in war promises to protect soldiers from pneumonia that has followed measles outbreaks in military camps.

Minute Make-Ups

By V. V.

AFTER a really delicious, scented bath, it often happens that you slosh on too much dusting powder. Just because it feels so grand. But gobs of excess powder will streak your sheer dark frock. Dust off the surplus with a face brush. Or better yet, keep a brush for the purpose.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

FASTEN WITH SLIP-STITCH BASTING

IT WAS a bride of ten years who reminded me of blanket protectors. I say bride because her home still has the immaculate freshness of a bride's house. Her wool blankets have never been washed or cleaned, yet their soft light colorings show no sign of soil. She brought out some long pieces of cotton material; "I baste these over the tops of the blankets," she said "and change them every few weeks."

I thought of some dainty bed linens that I had seen all trimmed in flower sprigged cotton print. Why not make flowered blanket protectors to harmonize with blanket colorings? Here is one that would go with either rose or blue. It is easy to hide basting stitches that fasten it temporarily to the blanket by slipping them along in the pink or blue binding as shown. One length of material as long as the width of the blanket will make a pair of these protectors. A half yard extra of the flowered material will face a matching pair of pillow cases.

You will also find some other ideas for trimming pillow cases in SEWING Book 2. This booklet has been one of the most popular in the series as it not only contains complete directions for making gift and bazaar novelties but shows how to make 42 different embroidery stitches and five ways to darn and repair fabrics. ### AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Two or three minutes after you have started your gas or electric oven, open the door for a second or two, to let out the damp air. The oven will then heat in a much shorter time.

Always remove the wrappings from fresh meats before storing in the refrigerator.

In all but baked dishes, flavoring extracts should be added when the food is cool, otherwise much of the flavoring will vanish in steam.

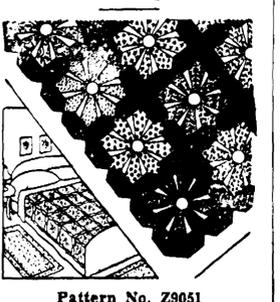

More food value is preserved when a vegetable is baked in its skin than when it is steamed or boiled.

A weekly bath in hot soap suds will not only make a broom sweep cleaner, but will make the broom last longer.

Fruit cake makes a delicious pudding if served with a sauce.

Add peeled, quartered apples when you roast lamb or veal. The apples add a delicious flavor and give a soft topping to the roast.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—tend to strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pain, swelling, feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. #### Knot Records Left by Incas Puzzle Experts

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—The Incas must have had some knotty financial problems, according to the "quipu" on exhibition in the University of North Carolina library.

The quipu is a knotted record of the Inca civilization, and, although anthropologists assume it might have pertained to financial problems, they admit it might mean almost anything.

It consists of 31 different types of small ropes of a dozen different colors and no two alike, containing a hundred different kinds of knots. Each knot is supposed to mean something, but just what is a mystery.

The quipu was donated by John Wise of New York, collector of Peruvian art objects, and is valued at $500. It resembles nothing so much as a Boy Scout's collection of knots, although on close examination it is apparent such knots are unknown today.

Getting Ready for Winter

Three young Farmington, Maine, residents are looking at earmuffs in the store of Mrs. Chester Greenwood. Her late husband made his first pair of earmuffs in this town in 1873 when but 15 years old. ### POOR RETURNS REWARD WESTERN PROSPECTORS FOR GOLD

SALT LAKE CITY.—They take to the hills in Utah in the never-ending quest for gold, but the chief worry of the prospector who makes more than enough to feed himself and his mule, or fuel his battered auto, is not an annual income tax report—although he wishes it were.

His principal problem, judging from a report of the U. S. bureau of mines, is how to buy enough food to keep alive and sufficient supplies to operate one more year from the $462 he receives annually for months of back-breaking effort. Placer mining was the basis of many fabulous fortunes when the West was young, and almost every creek and river yielded gold dust or silver ore.

And not even the most discouraging report will stop scores of prospectors—amateurs and bearded veterans—from hitting the trail, hoping to uncover some hidden bonanza. In recent years, "Okies," unemployed bookkeepers, farmers, clerks and laborers have swelled the ranks of those who go into the hills in search of gold. Grizzled prospectors still have their pack mules, but rattle-snake automobiles and trucks have become a partner to the mule in beating trails across Utah mountain ranges.

Yet a study of the bureau of mines report shows that not one in 100 makes more than the barest living. And the veteran prospector who has spent long years separated from civilization following the lure of gold will admit "there ain't much sense in it, is there?"

But the spring thaw in the mountains will find the same veteran leading his mule into the mountains for "just one more crack at it," because "maybe I'll hit it this time."

MICHIGAN STATE MIRROR NEWS

Determination to achieve a swift output of war machine goods. Resentment against critics for expecting miracles overnight in an engineering task that demands blueprint and machine die before mass production can begin.

Management, Labor
In turning to Michigan industries the federal government is placing a heavy burden not only on management but also on labor.

Cato Tolischus, Detroit winner for foreign correspondence from Germany, recently pointed out at a dinner at Detroit that this war was one of motors and that Michigan held a trump card.

Unless we — and apply it to Michigan — can effect a further speed-up of supplies to Britain, the United States may face Hitler alone in 1941, he warned.

Tolischus said the French collapse was due to French emphasis on social benefits, while Germany was busy rearming herself. German industrial production rose from 54 to 130 while French fell from 75 to 67, all during the familiar period of 1932 to 1938.

Mr. Knudsen called it our Friday night to Monday "blackout". He admits that the plane production is 30 per cent below expectations. He deplored the machine-tool industry bottlenecks, and he appealed to management and labor alike to accomplish the "impossible" in view of the "terrible urgency of the situation."

Overtime, Strikes

In breaking the bottlenecks, and in achieving the "impossible", industry is confronted with many problems. Here are a few:

1. Can labor be induced to work six days instead of five without the penalty of overtime wages?
2. Can labor be induced to forego strikes in national defense plants management is given ample advance notice, say 30 days?

Labor's problems include these:
1. Can management be induced to share the profits of war orders by payment of overtime wages?
2. How can labor retain its present social gains — collective bargaining, higher wages, etc.?

Presidential Powers

If both management and labor fail to achieve the "impossible" in meeting the demands of the present crisis, then look for the declaration by the President of a national emergency which would bring the near equivalent of a military dictatorship.

A further step would be our actual military involvement in the war (we are already in the war financially) under which the President, by the 1936 mobilization plan, could commandeer manufacturing plants, fix prices, regulate sale and distribution of commodities, and even provide a "system of licenses for organizations or persons engaged in manufacturing, mercantile, or public-service industries."

Roy O. Woodruff, Michigan representative to Congress, has even hinted that the bogging down of the defense program was a political conspiracy for the enactment by congress of the 1936 war dictatorship plan.

This may appear to be far fetched. However, the question does remain: Will management and labor work together under a democratic peace-time economy to a degree greater than ever before? The alternative may be compulsory regimentation by Washington — the ultimate goal of national socialism.

Defense But Not War?
Despite the vast astronomical spending of federal money in Michigan because of arms awards, the sentiment of Michigan residents is divided as to whether we should continue a policy of isolation under national defense or participate actively with men and arms in defense of Britain.

It is reported reliably that the preponderant opinion among the Polish element in Detroit is against all-out aid. Even Detroit's 100,000 Canadian-born residents are not united on this point.

As for labor, both C. I. O. and A. F. L. leaders oppose the sending of man power overseas.

The American Legion through its national defense committee chairman recently declared: "We are against the use of a single soldier, sailor or ship in a way likely to get us into the war."

General Marshall, Secretary of War Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War Johnson and Mr. Knudsen all advise that an army of a million men will not be trained and equipped until the end of 1941.

Warships and Planes
A two-ocean navy will not be completed until 1945, although we do possess the largest single-ocean navy of any nation in the world. Pilots and planes adequate to defend the United States will not be ready until 1942.

Representative Fred Bradley, Michigan, returned last week from a 12-day trip to the Canal Zone. Bradley asserted: "There is not a modern bomber in the Canal Zone. I was told that the fastest airplane there was capable only of making 140 miles an hour."

Senator Arthur Vandenberg has asked Mr. Knudsen to make public "full information" on the progress of our national defense program. In this period of emergency the new governor of Michigan, Murray D. Van Wagoner, may yield a disciplining influence. He is capable of strong leadership; he has the confidence of a substantial majority of Michigan citizens.

Thus in our present national crisis — one which is also the crisis of Britain — fate has decreed that Michigan plants and Michigan men are to play crucial roles. What we do, or fail to do, during the coming months may shape the course of our lives for many years to come.

THE GOLDEN RULE

To love our neighbor as ourselves includes even more. To love one's own true selfhood right is the opposite of self-love, for it requires us to separate the false qualities of thought from ourselves as well as others and to prove that we are indeed "the sons of God" (I John 3:2), in thought and act. We must see ourselves as the spiritual, loving reflection of the all-inclusive Mind, completely controlled by divine Principle. We cannot unsee the faults of character in others and yet cherish them in ourselves. To see ourselves and others as God sees His creation, fulfills our duty to love another as ourselves.

Jesus' answer in the parable to the question (Luke 10:29), "Who is my neighbor?" is as applicable today as it was then. All of God's spiritual ideas, His children, are truly neighbors. His children should begin at home, but not end there. As we meet the common daily opportunities to be helpful which lie on every side with the cheery smile, the word of encouragement, and little services, we are proving that our neighborliness is practical. . . . But we need to broaden our boundaries by including all mankind in our friendliness. . . . Then let our thoughts, like good Samaritans winged with spiritual power, reflect the Love which reaches beyond boundaries of community and country, and provides abundantly for His universe. Confident faith in His government among the nations will help to lift the heavy clouds of fear and oppression which threaten the peace of the world today.

One more lesson may be learned from the parable of the good Samaritan. The immediate need was met and also provision left for future care. Then let us add to our right thinking about our neighbor the assurance that God's continuous, abundant supply for His children is throughout eternity. Thus placing ourselves and our neighbors in God's care, knowing that all is well, we are truly loving God supremely and being a good neighbor.—The Christian Science Monitor.
