Circuit Court Is Now In Session

Two One Day Sessions Held Last Week. Patterson Lake Arson Trial on This Week.

Judge Collins held a one day session at Howell last week Monday. Thomas Pritchett and Jesse James, two Lansing Negroes charged with the armed robbery of Marion Davis of Central Lake in Genoa on January 4 last, pled not guilty and March 24 was set as the date of their trial. The third Negro, William Middleton, will be arranged later. Senator Harry Hittle of this district is their attorney. The colored men are waiters at the Hotel Olds in Lansing.

Divorces were granted to Edith from Merle Garlock, and to Bart from Clarabelle Christian.

The arson trial of Dayle Kettler and Marshall Campbell in connection with a cottage at Patterson Lake was set for this week Monday and the panel jury was called in at this time.

Judge Collins returned Friday and held another one day court session. Ray Burley pled guilty to stealing grain from Jay Barber of Isoco and was placed on probation.

Earl Fletcher of Unadilla pled guilty to bastardy and was sentenced to pay $2 per week for 14 years for the support of the child.

Homer Buzzard pled guilty to drunkenness and sentence was deferred. He is a several time offender.

Tom Beck pled guilty to stealing tools from Chris Hupert and was put on probation.

This week the trial of Dayle Kettler and Marshall Campbell for arson in connection with the attempted burning of a cottage at Patterson Lake last spring, belonging to Kettler began. Prosecutor Gates acts for the people and Hiram Smith, the defendants. The blaze was extinguished by the quick arrival of the Pinckney fire dept. who made the run in 10 minutes. The fire was discovered about 2:00 a. m. The state police investigated and the arrests for arson followed. Marshall Campbell is said to have confessed to the crime which he later repudiated. Fire Chief Stanley Dinkel Met Chalk, John Rowell, Mr. and Mrs. Densmore, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Michaels of Pinckney and Patterson Lake, Pat Dillon of the state police, O. A. Holmes, secretary of the Livingston County Mutual who had the cottage insured and Deputy Sheriffs Loren Bassett and Let Huff are all witnesses for the prosecution. We understand that Lee Lavey, R. T. Read, Norman Reason and Lucius Doyle are character witnesses for the defense.

The trial started Monday, the jury being secured with little trouble. No objection was made by the defense to Livingston County Mutual policy holders and some 6 or 7 were on the jury. The jurors from here are Wm. Darrow and Wheeler Martin. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Michaels were the first witnesses called. So far the defense does not dispute the evidence that the cottage was set on fire or the kerosene soaked rags came from there. They deny that the defendants are guilty however.

In Justice Barron's court Paul Baldwin was fined $8.75 and given 5 days in jail for drunken driving. He is to be sent to a sanitarium at completion of his sentence. He is a druggist.

Thomas Alexander of Chelsea who just completed a years sentence in Jackson prison for passing worthless checks on Saline merchants was turned over to Livingston county officers to answer similar charges here. We understand that he may be released as his family have agreed to make restitution.

Local Team Is Eliminated Early

Pinckney Fails To Show Much and Is Eliminated in Tournament Game

Last year Pinckney high school won the class "D" district title by overwhelming New Hudson at Wall-Lake in the tournament game. However that team was shot when Jack Young and Merin Lavey graduated and Bob Martin, the 6 foot center transferred to Swartz Creek high school. This left only Joe Lavey and Max Reynolds of the championship team around which to build this year's contestants. Bill Kuhn of Gregory who had had little previous experience developed into a good player and the team had a fair season besting Dexter and Hartland twice and breaking even with Brighton. However they lost to Stockbridge, New Hudson Saline, Chelsea and Fowlerville.

Of the tournament game with Cement City at the Michigan Center tournament last week, the Jackson Citizen-Patriot has the following to say:

Cement City had a wierd game with Pinckney. Neither team scored in the first quarter and 12 minutes passed before a field goal was recorded. Cement City led 3 to 2 at the halfway intermission. Most of the action came in the third period when Cement City counted 10 points and Pinckney 11 leaving them deadlocked at 13-all. Pinckney grabbed the lead with two field goals in the final period and held the advantage until the closing minutes when they failed to freeze the ball, Cement City got possession and Snell and Johns sank two long shots for Cement City that split the meshings. Snell made 7 of his teams points and Johns 6.

The Pinckney scoring was pretty thin. Kuhn led with 7 points, Reynolds got 3, Young and Widmayer 2 each and Palmer 1.

Kuhn	F	Johns
Young	G	Miller
Lamont	F	Shewman
Palmer	F	Schultz
Lavey	C	Weatherwax
Reynolds	G	Snell
Widmayer	G
Amburgey	G

Field goals—Kuhn 2, Reynolds 1, Young 1, Widmayer 1, John 1, Miller 2, Snell 3. Foul goals—Kuhn 3, Reynolds 1, John 1, Miller 2, Snell 1, Weatherwax 1, Palmer 1. Fouls—Pinckney 9, Cement City 10.

In the finals Cement City was eliminated by Horton by a big score. Previously Dexter had given Horton a run for their money, leading at the half. Manchester beat Chelsea and St. Mary's beat New Hudson 31 to 13 to win the district class Harbor again took the class "C" Haror again took the class "C" title there from Holly 37 to 23. Holt beat Williamston, last year's class "C" champion 27 to 22 for the title at Holt. Bob Martin's team from Swartz Creek was eliminated in the finals at Owosso by Perry 38 to 36. St. Gertrude's, who beat Pinckney in the regionals last year, also won the district title again this year at St. Clair Shores. University high school downed Saline 42 to 34 for the class "C" title at Ypsilanti. Eprighton and Howell were both eliminated early in the tournaments and so were Fowlerville and Stockbridge.

VESPER BAND CONCERT

Michigan Mirror State News

Federal Funds Make Michigan the Leading Winter Sports Center of the Nation

Something has happened to Michigan in the winter time. It is this colorful thing called "winter sports."

As a tonic for war jitters, view for a moment the following picture of Michigan's 1941 sport season and then judge for yourself whether it merits the verdict of a "truly remarkable development."

When grandma and grandpa were young they were apt to hug the base burners on snappy wintery days. Now Michigan's post-war, depression sired generation of lads and lassies don bright rainbow-hued duds club into a train or bus or automobile, and within a few hours they are reveling in the great outdoors.

To lean on a very trite saying yes, times have changed!

Modern Magic
Until a decade or two ago the northern summer playground of Michigan was practically isolated from easy public access during a seemingly long winter.

Today the highways of concrete are kept clear of snow, day and night, by huge motorized plows, "Big Berthas" of the road.

Railroad excursions transport thousands of city dwellers to northern sport centers for an inexpensive week-end or Sunday holiday. Comfortable busses maintain schedules with regularity. Modern automobiles, warmed by heaters, are veritable ballmans on rubber.

Add to this the short work-week, often ending on Friday afternoon, and the resultant expanse of leisure play time, and it all amounts to this: Winter sports constitute the fastest growing recreational field in Michigan today!

Uncle Sam
In every northern community you can find certain outdoor enthusiasts who for years have foreseen a bright future in our northern climate and our rugged hills and steep valleys.

At Grayling, for example, businessmen led by Clarence Johnson raised private funds to establish a public park for winter sports.

Uncle Sam put it over.

Say what you care about federal spending, the fact remains that tens which otherwise would not have been literally poured into Michigan winter recreational facilities, money which otherwise would not have been available.

SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE FOR RURAL TEACHERS

They specify that the student must take the prescribed course of study leading to the State Limited Certificate. Application blanks may be obtained at the office of the Commissioner of Schools of the County in which the applicant resides.

CURRENT COMMENT

Pension bills seem to predominate in the congressional and legislative hoppers, but according to press commentators most of them will be consigned to the ash can. The reason for this is the present world war which has crowded everything off the front pages and from the minds of the people. In Congress some 60 pension bills have been introduced to provide general pensions for veterans of the last world war. Some of these bills were conceded a favorable chance until the present war started. The prospects that the United States may engage in another war has diminished congressional enthusiasm for heroes of yesterday.

In the legislature a bill has been introduced by Rep. Joe Warner of Ypsilanti to pay state employees a pension after 30 years of service. To establish a fund for this the employees would pay 3 per cent of their wages into an old age pension reserve. State employees are barred from the federal and social security old age pension plans. By the way, there seems to be general satisfaction with these two old age pension plans.

For some time we have not heard much of the lie detector which got much publicity a few years ago and named as the greatest invention of ages as a solver of crime. Several judges have refused to accept its findings as evidence in court and the belief is that it is still in the experimental stage. However, it is still in use and the state police at Ann Arbor, who have its custody, state that during the past year it has helped to convict 39 persons and absolved 155. Its only failure was in a murder near Kalamazoo. It absolved a man who confessed to the crime the next day. However, it was found afterward that the chart of the machine had not been correctly read.

The liquor commission has handed down a ruling that women are barred from acting as bartenders in taverns and beer gardens but they can still serve as waitresses. An exception is made in the case of the women who hold liquor licenses in their own name, or the wives and daughters of license holders. Another rule was also adopted that thousands of women applying for license must submit their fingerprints so it can be ascertained whether they have a criminal record and whether their wives are fronting for them.

All cities and villages have their archives cluttered up with a lot of obsolete laws which are no longer enforced but have never been repealed. According to the constitution they are still enforceable. Attorney General Morford of Delaware determined to get rid of these laws and ordered an old blue law enforced which forbids any kind of business activity on Sunday. He was within his rights and the result will probably be a general repeal of the many obsolete laws. The village of Pinckney undoubtedly has at the present time on its books ordinances dealing with riding bicycles on walks, kerosene street lamps, wooden sidewalks, racing horses on Main St., playing ball or other games on Sunday and a hundred and one other things which have not been enforced for years and probably never will be again, but according to the strict letter of the law are just as enforceable as the day they were adopted.

After 18 days of oratory and filibuster during which time some of same speeches were repeated several times the Lease-Lend bill passed by a 2 to 1 majority as everyone expected it would. A noted press commentator remarks that the bills opponents were the radical fringe of the Democrat party and the Republicans, whose policy has been for the past eight years that President Roosevelt is always wrong. They made a sorry showing and were so split they could not unite on a substitute bill. Senator Taft's bill to lend Great Britain two billion dollars got little support from them for the reason that many of them don't want to aid Great Britain at all and a German victory would be perfectly acceptable to them. Senator Wheeler has stated that he will go up and down the land preaching isolation. He has said that he believes British imperialism and not Nazism, Communism or Fascism is the cause for the war.

Danger-Proof Jails

Building a modern prison is one of the most difficult construction jobs, for the convict of today is a scientific-minded fellow who bursts his way out with tools and explosives. Hack-saw artists have to be curbed by laminated bars of hardened steel let into concrete walls. Magnetic traps are built into walls, doors and windows, to detect smuggled tools. In some cases sensitive speaking tubes are added, which betray liquor smuggling through the whisky-tainted breath of prisoners.

Even apparently innocent fixtures in cells, such as coat hooks, must be made strong enough only to hold a jacket, but never so strong that a prisoner can commit suicide by hanging himself. And all fittings must be so designed that in no circumstances can they be used as weapons.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Robert A. Lovett, New York banker and World War flying ace, gets the news spotlight as a possible aviation production czar.

Young Financiers after two months' service with the war department in which he has shown extraordinary capacity for slashing red tape and getting things done. His father, Judge Robert S. Lovett, was head of the war industries board in the World War.

When he was summoned by the war department, Mr. Lovett withdrew from the New York banking firm of Brown Brothers, Harriman and Co. A few months earlier, the also comparatively young James V. Forrestal, Mr. Lovett's friend, and bracketed with him among the up-and-coming young financiers, left the presidency of Dillon, Reed and Co. to become undersecretary of the navy. Years before, their Wall Street running mate, Averill Harriman, had moved into the Washington picture and just now appears to be pegged as the liaison between British and American business in the hastening crisis.

There is a complaint from the bankers themselves that bank money is on the sidelines in the defense crisis, if that's what it is, but at any rate the bankers are in the line-up, particularly the younger set, serving the army, the navy and the department of state, as above and in many other instances.

They let by-gones be by-gones. Mr. Harriman was an early convert to the New Deal, while Mr. Lovett is dead-set against it. But that's all water under the bridge.

Mr. Lovett and Mr. Harriman are both small-town boys, the former from Huntsville, Texas, and the latter from Beacon, N. J. Mr. Lovett, rather slight in stature, good-looking, an easy-going, tactful executive, was graduated from Yale in 1918 and pursued postgraduate business studies at Harvard in 1920 and 1921. Then he took over where his father left off in running the Union Pacific, the Oregon Short Line, the Oregon-Washington and the St. Joseph and Grand Island railways, picking up a few important industrial directorates on the side and keeping everything moving nicely.

The Wall Street battalions of youth provide evidence of the many tributaries of specialized skill and experience feeding into democratic defense effort.

ALCHEMY brought on chemistry; astrology led to astronomy and now the forked hazel twig to "dowsing" ground leads to the discovery by one of the world's most distinguished geophysicists that the horsetail plant of the meadows locates gold, and perhaps stores up a bit for all comers.

Orchids Not Gold Diggers, but the Horsetail Finds It

Dr. Hans T. F. Lundberg of Toronto is the scientist. He is a widely famed mining engineer of Swedish birth and education. Experimenting with various means of locating metals deep in the earth, he worked through Sweden, Norway, Finland, Belgium, France, Germany, Spain, Mexico, Canada and the United States. His success with "electrical prospecting" methods was sufficient to gain him the gold medal of the Swedish Engineering academy in 1925, and to locate 14 profitable mines. But he needed a more accurate method and kept on the tail of the horsetail.

The more gold in the ground, the more in the horsetail, with even infinitesimal quantities to be detected by the spectroscope. Dr. Lundberg calls it the "geobotanical method." Furthermore, suburbanites may get in on the profits, even if they don't find a gold mine. A ton of horsetail, Dr. Lundberg figures, would yield 4½ ounces of gold worth $157.50 at current gold prices. This back-to-the-land movement may come off yet.

Dr. Lundberg was born in Malmo, Sweden, in 1893. He was graduated from the Royal Institute of Technology at Stockholm and later was a professor there. He came to Brooklyn in 1923, and formed the Geophysical Exploration Limited, which, exploring many countries, took over where the Willow-Wythe left off. He is highly certified in his profession and a member of many scientific societies.

Incidentally, miners always look for iron wherever they find orchids. One would think they would be the gold-diggers.

Plaids Bold, Colorful, Striking In Spring Coats, Capes, Jackets

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALL signs point to a riot of handsome plaids in the spring style parade. When you choose your plaid for a new coat, cape, jacket, dress or separate skirt, fashion asks you to throw all caution to the wind. New plaids are big and bold, brazen and color-mad, for fashion is in a mood for drama in plaids this spring.

However, there is another side to the plaid story which has to do with conservative plaids that are in pastel colors so subtle, so winsome, that you will find yourself yielding to their enchantment at very first glance. Which all goes to show in the new spring collections that there's a plaid for every time, place and occasion and for every individuality.

Notwithstanding the color furor that is going on, there is much enthusiasm for black and white wool plaids. They are very new and very good-looking and have a unique style all their own.

The plaid costumes pictured typify the new trends. These stunning models were selected from among hundreds at a recent preview dramatically presented in a pageantry of fashion by the Style Creators of Chicago, an event that illustrated new achievement, new triumphs for American designers. Conveying the message that plaids are stylish this season, we illustrate three distinct types herewith—the long coat, the dramatic cape of which you will see an endless procession this spring, and the ever-favorite softly tailored long jacket.

The cape vogue is taking the world of fashion by storm. The wearing of a plaid cape over a smartly tailored jacket suit is very practical to wear during the fickle weather of early spring days. As an ideal ensemble for later on, you will be topping your crepe and print pretties with a cape in one of the pretty springtime colors. Note the smartly capped lady of fashion in the picture, who wears over a frock of gold-hued crepe a full length wool plaid cape, straight lined according to latest silhouette trends.

One of the new and very smart gestures of fashion is to top your tailored suit with a coat of wool plaid. Provided with such a chic outfit as the sailor-hatted young modern in the picture is wearing, you will be ready to greet spring in fitting regalia. Furthermore, if you own a sleek tailored plaid sucoat, smartly straightlined and pocketed as the one worn by the model illustrated, it will prove a perfect treasure later on as a wrap to wear over various prints or plain frocks.

Note the good-looking plaid-jacket costume centered in the group. Here you see a very advance model in the new longer length. The bias cut of the plaid adds to its charm. You will love the hazy green gold and gray tones in this plaid. Worn with a sheer dress that features an all-around pleated skirt, this jacket will take you places in high style.

More plaid! Here's the latest—hat and enormous underarm bag of vivid plaid to add color glory to your new ensemble.

All-In-One Sleeves

There are important changes going on in sleeve styling. The new movement toward an all-in-one sleeve and bodice or sleeve and yoke is very obvious this season. You see it in the Chinese influence this season and in smart dolman sleeves. In this picture, the sleeve extends seamless at shoulders from the yoke section. The Russian-styled blouse underneath is of white linen, and the skirt repeats the slight flare of its own peplum.

Fashions Reveal Hawaii Influence

New fashion trends used to come 3,000 miles east from Paris. This season important fashion influence comes to us 6,000 miles out of the west. At the moment it is Hawaii that is interesting front-page fashion and social news.

Just as the Rhumba and the Conga have swept America, so will the Hula, the native sacred Hawaiian dance, one of the most beautiful dances in the world when it is danced and interpreted correctly, so declares Dr. Gladys, just returned from a year's research in Hawaii.

In their current resort collections the best stores throughout the country are making a feature of Hawaiian-inspired fashions. Dresses of Hawaiian prints by Tina Leser, well-known designer versed in Hawaii lore, are especially a forerunner of costumes that will take lead in the spring style parade. The collection includes such interesting themes as a day dress of a flowery new lei print, also a charming Lauai fern print is shown. Unique and very attractive are undersea fish patterns, a novel pineapple print, also fluted clam-shell motifs and the sensational Sarongs are greatly admired.

Tiny Bows Decorate M'Lady's Spring Shoes

There is no type shoe so universally flattering to the foot than a neat-fitting shapely pump. This year pumps are decorated with bows of every description. You can tune your pump to almost any occasion via its bow.

For the tailored street look, the bow is of patent or the leather that fashions the shoe. Ribbon grosgrain bows are on the dressier types of shoes. Bows of perforated leather are very decorative. For dressiest wear are bows which are made of sequin or rhinestones.

Spring Embroidery For Pillow Slips

FOUR enticing designs—the loveliest of the year—are these for pillow slip embroidery. A refreshing iris motif, the appealing bird pair, a butterfly and flower arrangement, and the cross stitch basket of pansies will find favor.

As Z9202, 15c, you receive an easy-to-stamp transfer of all four designs—and you may stamp this transfer more than once. Send order to:

REGISTRATION NOTICE For Biennial Spring Election

MONDAY, APRIL 7th, 1941 To the Qualified Electors of the Township of Putnam County of Livingston, State of Michigan

Opinion of the Attorney General is that Acts 66 and 63 "must be construed to repeal the inconsistent provision of Sec. 2774 permitting absentee registration. At the time of making application for an absent voters ballot.

Thus the Absent Voters application and affidavit for registration are useful only in cases where voters may mail these in, then make application for ballots later, after the election has been completed.

HOME INDUSTRY

Make your own mattress and then sleep on it is the slogan of more than 600 Livingston County folks. During the past week and a half demonstrations have been held in every portion of the county showing how to take the ten yards of mattress ticking and make a mattress cover. These demonstrations have been carried on by Mrs. Manley, secretary of the county Extension office, and Mrs. Howell, field woman for the triple A.

Approximately three days after the ticking demonstration is held we go back into the community and set up the actual mattress making demonstration. Probably Cohoctah township leads in the number of that they will make. Due to the number of applications from that area this was the first center to be set up. The work is being carried on in the Cohoctah Church. Clair Lott, local committeeman for the triple A has given a great amount of time to this project. This center is making 10 to 12 mattresses a day. These mattresses are very good quality. The workmanship varies with the individual. However each mattress contains 50 pounds of cotton and when completed has the appearance and the quality of a commercial mattress.

Philathea Notes

The reporter was in error concerning the class meeting for this Wednesday. It was decided on Sunday to postpone it until next week when the What-So-Evers and Philatheas are to meet at the home of Miss Ethel Martin and Mrs. Villa Richards with the usual potluck.

Another error, not the reporter's was the addition last week of an item not belonging to the Notes.

The Pastor gave us a stirring sermon or last Sunday from the text "Be Still, and know that I am God." We hope many will be able to avail themselves of the opportunity for spiritual growth by attending the Lenten services in our church. Also we are finding our lessons in the Sunday class very helpful with Mrs. Kellenberger as teacher. The next lesson is especially appropriate for this Lenten time, being, "The Lord's Supper" Study 22:14-30.

Sympathy is sincerely felt for the family of the late Edward Cook, who was brought here for burial on Thursday. Mrs. Cook was Elva Hall before her marriage and has friends here.

Our students should have a special devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary as a model for them. She is, after God, their best source of spiritual wisdom. Students should have frequent recourse to Mary in order to obtain God's blessings upon their studies. Passages of the Book of Proverbs VIII, applied by Biblical commentators and theologians to Mary are appropriate to Our Lady as Patroness of Students, "Now therefore ye children hear me: Blessed are they that keep my ways, bear instructions and be wise and refuse it not. Blessed is the man that heareth me and watcheth daily at my gates and waiteth at the posts of my door. He that shall find me shall find life."

MICHIGAN BELL STARTS INTERESTING AD SERIES
 Believing that relatively few of the residents of Michigan are particularly well acquainted with the vast extent of the state's natural resources, or of their development, production and distribution, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company in last week starting a series of advertisements in the Dispatch and 250 other Michigan newspapers which will portray pertinent facts concerning our state.

For instance, Michigan is first among the states in the production of cherries and mint, and in acreage of beans, potatoes, and alfalfa seed, and third in production of grapes, apples, peaches and clover seed, and in acreage of alfalfa hay and sugar beets. No state has a more diversified agriculture.

Therefore, this series will tell something of that story, and of the important part the telephone plays in both production and distribution, and in bringing together producer and consumer.

It is planned to include advertisements on such subjects as the mining of copper, iron, salt, coal and gypsum; oil production, a variety of agricultural subjects, lumbering, floriculture, commercial fishing, fruit raising, beef and poultry growing, and the tourist and resort industry.

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company is to be congratulated for their progressive ideas which prompted this series of educational advertisements. School children and adults alike should benefit from this publicity about Michigan.

INDEPENDENT TEAM SPLITS EVEN

The Pinckney Independents put up two good contests at the high school gym last Wednesday night. In the first one they were nosed out by Howell Motors 38-36. In second contest they defeated the Blue Front team of Ann Arbor 36 to 32. Clinton, rangy Pinckney center had a good night scoring 18 points against the Howell team and 15 against the Ann Arbor boys, giving him a total for the night of 33 points. Hulce played a nice floor game and his work kept the ball in Pinckney's possession much of the time. Lefty Reason, star or other days, was back in harness and sank two long shots from the middle of the floor.

Pot Holders to Make For Spring Bazaar

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
THESE moody young ladies with their sun-tanned faces, gay bandannas and sparkling button eyes will stand out among pot holders with less personality. Also, you can have fun making them. You won't need a stamping pattern. Just follow the directions in the sketch to change the faces from gloom to joy by easy stages. Baste the tan piece for the face to a cotton flannel interlining with a line of basting exactly through the center up and down and another crosswise through the center. The two pieces for the bandanna lap one inch below the top of the up-and-down line. Their lower ends come one-half inch below the ends of the crosswise line. Stitch these in place. The one-inch buttons for the eyes are spaced two inches apart and the tops are one-fourth inch above the crosswise line of basting. The top of each mouth is 1 1/2 inches below this crosswise line. The lady becomes sad, speculative or gay according to the slant of the stitches for the eyes or the shape of her mouth.

England May Get Food Under 'Lease-Lend' Bill

Increasing Shortages Now Appear Likely; Roosevelt Opposed to Censorship Of 'Defense' Information.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1395 National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.
WASHINGTON.—In the past few weeks the tall figure of a Hoosier farmer has been seen frequently entering and leaving the White House. This was not so strange to us who watch the busy portals because the man was Secretary of Agriculture Wickard. Like other members of the cabinet, he is called in for frequent conferences with the President these days. Cabinet officers and other government officials have been helping the President plan the concrete steps to be taken to aid Britain under the lend-lease bill.

But what a lot of us did not guess was just what Secretary Wickard was up to. The purpose of those visits has not been officially announced, as I write these lines. But it can be safely predicted that he was working out plans with the President to include farm products among the first supplies to be loaned or leased to England.

Secretary Wickard was able to achieve his purpose partly as a result of his own persuasiveness, and partly for other reasons that I will explain later.
Here is the tip-off on the plan the secretary discussed with the President, in Mr. Wickard's own words. It is pretty cagily expressed but if you know how, you can read between the lines. This is what Secretary Wickard said in a public speech during the congressional battle on the lend-lease bill:

Overproduction Held Unlikely.
"Frankly speaking, there is little likelihood that we will produce too much meat, butter, cheese, milk and other dairy products in the months to come. I have an idea that all we produce in the South and elsewhere will be needed.

"The reports about the British food situation are not too encouraging. The British have lost their sources of food supply on the continent. They are handicapped still further by their shipping losses. The English may want some of our food and want it pretty soon. If they call on us, I think we will answer the call."
Almost all of the products to be sent to Britain under the lend-lease plan will be proteins (meat, milk and milk products and eggs). There will be, however, some cotton, wheat and tobacco, but these commodities will constitute a minor part of the shipments. The practical arguments for sending proteins are obvious:

1. The extra physical demands on fighting men require a greater protein diet.
2. These products up to now have been shipped to England all the way from Australia, New Zealand and the Argentine. Two trips can be made from New York to Britain while one is being made from these distant points.
Unfortunately the protein commodities which are needed by England are not the ones we most want to sell. They do not constitute our great surpluses, disposition of which has caused the biggest headaches in the department of agriculture since the farm problem was tossed in the government's lap.

Surplus Produce Unaffected.
Furthermore, they are the products which, later on, when the defense industries expand, we will need at home because if all our unemployed were working full time and eating three meals a day, we would not have enough proteins at the present rate of production to satisfy them. The things we do want to get rid of—the things of which we have enough and to spare—are not as greatly affected by increased employment. Department of agriculture experts here will tell you any day that in prosperous times there is not an important increase in the use of cotton, tobacco and wheat.

But as far as the British go, they have to consider first things first, and they have all the cotton, wheat and tobacco they need, or they can get these products as conveniently from their own dominions as from the United States.

So this new "lend-lease" market won't solve the problem of farm surpluses. Nevertheless, it will absorb some of them, for the government is insisting that along with the proteins, some of the surplus products will be included in the commodities we dispose of under the lend-lease plan.

How long this new market overseas will last no one can say. It is impossible to predict how long the emergency will last or what the fortunes of war will be. But the effort of the New Deal planners is to build up an increasing demand at home for the things the farmer raises. As Secretary Wickard says on every occasion when he gets the chance:

"Whether they lose or keep the foreign markets, farmers must try to increase consumption in their best market—the domestic market."

President Discusses News Control With Reporters

Imagine the head of a European state sitting for half an hour while he was questioned by a group of newsmen on any subject they chose, including the government's confidential transactions!

And, yet, that happens twice a week in Washington at the White House press conferences. There the President sits at his desk covered with papers; members of the White House staff sitting about him, two secret service men standing inconspicuously behind him, between the stars and stripes and the presidential flag.

To us in Washington, the White House press conference is routine. But a recent meeting was so democratic, so unlike anything that could possibly happen abroad, that it stands out clearly in my memory.

Mr. Roosevelt started it. The question which the American public ought to think about, as he put it, had to do with the ethics, morals and patriotism of making public matters which might be injurious to national defense. First, should a member of congress divulge testimony before a secret committee session; second, should a newspaper publish or a radio station broadcast such information.

The issue was raised by the publication of testimony given by the chief of staff, General Marshall, before an executive session of the senate military affairs committee in connection with a shipment of army bombers to Hawaii.

Censorship Not Desired.

The President said he had neither the desire nor the power to censor the news, but he wished us to consider whether it was ethical, moral or patriotic to publish any information which the heads of the army and navy believed should, in the interests of national defense, be kept confidential.

The newsmen did not question the advisability of withholding from the public important military secrets, but they showed plainly that they resented any suggestion that the freedom of the press be interfered with. One correspondent said frankly that the chief of staff ought not to tell things to congressmen which he did not want to get out because such information always leaked. The President replied, quietly, that naturally, one did not like to withhold any information asked for by congress.

Another reporter asked how the press was to know what information, once they had received it, ought to be withheld, and what could be printed. The President answered this could be determined by what the heads of the army and navy felt would be injurious to national defense. The President admitted he had no specific proposal to suggest. No definite conclusion to the discussion was reached at the interview.

The incident had one effect. Shortly after the meeting, a writer who is usually excellently informed, stated that the President had turned down flatly a plan to place all information concerning defense under what amounted to a censorship board. It had been long known that such a plan was placed on the President's desk at the time war broke out abroad. The President turned it down then. When it came up the second time, he again turned it down. Later, Lowell Mellett, administrative advisor to the President, said no plan of censorship was being considered.

If war comes, some method of regulating the publication of military information will probably be put into effect. But until that moment, the press and radio will fight for freedom of speech, the spoken word, or the written.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

On the same day that President Roosevelt declared that he approved of wire-tapping by department of justice operatives where sabotage was suspected, the guards in the Capitol building were replaced by policemen and no one is now permitted to carry packages of any kind into the building. Even cameras have to be checked at special stands at the entrances.

The average American soldier eats about 40 per cent more than he does in civilian life, according to the national defense advisory commission. He gets much more than 40 per cent more meat. In some localities as many as one-third of the draftees who are otherwise eligible for army service have to be turned down because of physical conditions due entirely to deficiency in diet.

Apparently the Old Man Was Still to Be Satisfied

The old countryman and his wife were seated in the shoe shop of a small market town. The occasion was a pair of new shoes for the wife.

She tried on practically every shoe in the shop, and at last expressed her satisfaction. The weary assistant breathed a sigh of relief.

But the matter was not settled so easily. Addressing his wife, the old man queried: "Now are you quite sure you would like shoes for your birthday present or would you prefer an umbrella? They are on sale today, you know."

MICHIGAN STATE MIRROR NEWS

Federal park service, state conservation department, and Civilian Conservation corps, Grayling offers today the finest public toboggan set-up in the entire United States, and this isn't paid ballyhoo. Six steel slides are the only ones of their kind anywhere not excluding Lake Placid or Sun Valley. Two ski tows have been in operation; next year there will be three.

Nineteen snow trains journeyed during the 1940-41 season to Grayling, a gain of nearly one-third over the previous high. The weekly payroll at the park is between $500 and $700. Soon Grayling will offer a semi-professional bobsled run with sleds guided by expert drivers. A 95 foot professional ski jump is to be ready for 1942.

Cadillac's Caberfae
On the west side of the state, lower peninsula, is another federal-sponsored project, the Caberfae winter sport area 15 miles from Cadillac, right in the heart of the Manistee National Forest.

Here is another mass recreation program. U. S cost to date has been $85,000.

Ski addicts enthuse of its 1200-foot ski tow that serves 15 downhill runs.

A toboggan slide, a half a mile long, has a wide, sweeping curve at the finish, requiring installation of a field telephone between starter and finish crew to assure public safety.

Unknown almost a year ago, the Caberfae area has soared quickly into high popularity. It serves a populous area from Grand Rapids to Chicago.

Silver Valley
Over on the east side of the state is Silver Valley, a few miles west of East Tawas and situated in the Huron National Forest.

For a picturesque name, Silver Valley has all the magic of Union Pacific's high-powered Sun Valley.

It is a lovely valley winding through a forest of spruce and pine. When wrapped with a white blanket of snow, it possesses startling grandeur.

Facilities: Skiing, tobogganing, ice skating. Attendance was double that of the previous season. Visitors widely proclaimed Silver Valley to be an ideal winter playground.

Other Centers

At Gaylord, highest point on the lower peninsula, are two private ski clubs—the Otsego Ski club, with a log clubhouse overlooking the majestic Valley of White Sands through which the Sturgeon river twists and also the Vanderbilt Ski club with its superb breath taking thrill of a 1400 foot run in a sheer 18 second's time.

Snow trains convey Detroit and Toledo sport lovers for a Friday-to-Monday holiday. The Gaylord Chamber of Commerce has been cooperating enthusiastically.

Sault Ste. Marie recently staged a 30 mile "airsted" derby on the Soo river. (What is an "airsted"? Answer: A snowslid powered by an airplane motor and propeller.) The Soo city's artificial ice rink, housed in its new community center, is open year around.

From Ironwood and Houghton east to Sault Ste. Marie the favorite right sport is ice hockey—the fastest, roughest, maddest sport of all. Tonic for Nerves

This growth of winter sports has been rapid and unexpected. Curiously enough, it has been somewhat in proportion to an increase of public nervous tension (see current European nightmare). Winter sports offer relaxation and escape from unpleasant realities and a wholesome diversion that is beneficial to health.

This thing called winter sports is bringing thousands of dollars into Michigan resort areas at a time of the year that otherwise has been dull and listless.

Because Michigan is geographically at the door of millions of Americans, it can truthfully be said that a bright future lies ahead for the snow centers which cater to what the public wants.
