

Ann Arbor Woman Loses Life in Auto Accident

Mrs. Bernard J. Shanahan, 22, Ann Arbor Meets Death Near Portage Early Sunday Morning

Mrs. Bernard J. Shanahan, 22, of 723 Daniels St., Ann Arbor was almost instantly killed about 2:30 p. m. Sunday morning when the car in which she was riding hit a utility pole on the Pinckney-Dexter road, south of Portage Lake and just north of the barns on the Birkett farm. There are several stories as to how the accident happened. In the car were the deceased, her husband, Bernard J. Shanahan, who was in the back seat with his wife, in the front seat was Charles Hamilton, 22, of Detroit, driver of the car and Mrs. John McAuliff of 2701 Pontiac Road of Ann Arbor. Along the east side of the blacktop road where the accident happened, is an old cattle trail, used in the old horse and buggy days and now only by tractors employed on the farm. This trail is several feet lower than the blacktop road. In some way the car got off the blacktop onto this by-path, going at a high rate of speed and hit a utility pole, turned over several times, stopping upside down 40 ft. from the pole which was moved but not broken. Mrs. Shanahan had her neck broken and died almost instantly. Hamilton suffered a compound fracture of the arm. Passing motorists took Hamilton and Mrs. Shanahan to an Ann Arbor hospital. The others were taken there in the sheriff's ambulance. The auto was a total loss. McAuliff was on leave from Camp Beaugard, La., where he is in training.

Mrs. Shanahan was formerly Florence Desmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Desmond of Ann Arbor. She was married to Shanahan last September. In 1938 she graduated from Ann Arbor high school and in 1939 the Alexander School of Cosmetology. Funeral services were held Wednesday at 1:30 at the Muehling Funeral Chapel, Rev. Stelhorn officiating. Burial was in Forest Hill cemetery, Ann Arbor.

NEW VIADUCT TO BE BUILT

The Michigan State Highway Department began to draw equipment here last week and make preparations to build a new viaduct over the Grand Trunk Railroad track on M-36 a mile west of Lakeland and just east of the Peter Conway or Coluser farm. The viaduct will be steel and concrete and regulation width. We understand that no temporary bridge will be built and that traffic will have to detour around by way of Pettyville.

Mich. Bell Telephone To Refund $1,500,000

Michigan Bell Telephone Users To Get Refund of $1,500,000

County officials of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. were unable to estimate Saturday morning the approximate amount of refunds on long distance calls through the local exchange as the company prepared to reimburse 700,000 Michigan patrons in amount of about $1,500,000.

Preparations for the refund began after president George M. Welch of the telephone company announced there would be no appeal from the recent state supreme court decision upholding a lower court's orders for a reduced rate. Livingston Manager Mr. J. E. Johnson explained that many thousands of tickets on all long distance calls put through the local exchange have been stored since July 1938. These will be sent to Grand Rapids where it will take 300 girls about 6 months to figure the refunds he said.

He added that refunds are payable only on calls covering distances of more than 42 miles and that customers to whom refunds are owing need not file claims except on calls made from public pay telephones. The company should be notified however of patrons addresses.

The company plans to ask Judge Leland W. Carr of Lansing whose original order was upheld by the supreme court, for a supplemental ruling relating to refunding procedure. An estimated 65,000,000 separate toll tickets are involved, and the company questions whether refunds should be made by check or whether corresponding credits may be applied to current bills. It may be 30 days before refunding machinery can begin to operate company officials said.

THERE ARE MANY GRASS FIRES

How do you like the balmy spring weather of the past week? The thermometer hit 85 degrees Sunday we are told. One disadvantage of this weather is that every thing is remarkably dry and grass fires are many and numerous. It has kept the Pinckney fire dept. on the run. Thursday they were called to the White Star oil station to put out a fire and Friday to the Clara Miller home in Pinckney and to the Elsa Bock home at Portage Lake. Sunday they made a run to the Fink farm and Patterson Lake. In all cases they were able to put out the fires.

GRADUATION PARTS ARE AWARDED

The two highest graduation parts for the senior class have been awarded. Miss Megan Meyer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Meyer, has been named valedictorian and Miss Rosemary Read, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Read, salutatorian. The other parts will be assigned later.

Results of Recent Election Are Confusing. Legislature Is Expected To Get Underway Now

If you want to find who won the election, page a Solomon.

Michigan's ballyhooed bi-partisan government wasn't changed much by the popular vote. The state administrative board, about which the politicians fussed and fumed, remains the same.

Four Republicans - Vernon J. Brown, Eugene B. Elliott, Harry F. Kelly and Herbert K. Rushton.

Four Democrats - Murray D. Van Wagoner, Frank Murphy, Theodore L. Fry and G. Donald Kennedy.

Two state administrative offices were at stake. Democrat Kennedy pulled up a plurality of about 48,000 while Republican Elliott triumphed by 38,000. It was just another way of saying that Michigan, perhaps more so than the average mid-west state, has enough independent-minded citizens to swing political fates either way at any election.

It again emphasized the record. No governor has succeeded himself the past decade. Democrat has followed Republican with distressful regularity, and vice versa.

Soft Gloves Since the democratic strategy called for wooing of Republican voters in order to elect Kennedy, Governor Van Wagoner deftly avoided a frontal assault on Republican ranks. The maneuvers to date have been skirmishes, calculated not to outrage the enemy.

In this kind of political courting, the governor wore diplomatic soft gloves.

Because the spring campaign was so devoid of pressing issues, almost like parlor game of tiddle-de-winks, Republicans had to take the offensive in injecting life into a somewhat listless contest. Vernon J. Brown, two-fisted auditor general, applied a political hypodermic in the form of charges of civil service violations by the state highway department.

Even this last minute jolt did not overcome the headway made by the Van Wagoner machine over the Republican nominee, Leroy C. Smith. Smith made his entry into the political arena in February, while Kennedy had been "campaigning" persistently for four or more months. Highway promises, steady publicity and public appearances are bids for votes.

Every state highway sign and every state highway map were changed since the November election to carry the name of the Democratic.

WANT ANOTHER FREIGHT LINE

C. H. Kennedy and Lee Lavey of this place, Lee Hoey of Dexter and others along this route visited the Public Service Commission at Lansing last week to see if a franchise could not be given the Interstate Truck Line to haul freight from here to Ann Arbor. This company has the franchise already to haul freight to Hamburg and would return from there to Ann Arbor via Pinckney and Dexter. Roy Bird former Pinckney resident is the local manager of this line. The commission took the matter under advisement and will render the decision later.

Philathea Notes

Our ladies are meeting this Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. R. K. Elliott for the regular April business and social gathering. There was no class on Sunday, owing to the Easter services, but lesson three is scheduled for April 20 with the topic, "Using Witnessing Power". Acts 2:1-4; 4:8-20.

A capacity crowd was present for the beautiful Easter services on Sunday forenoon following the early morning Easter breakfast and sunrise service. An evening service was a concluding feature of the inspirational Lenten and Easter devotions.

We hope for an increased attendance in our classes now, due to the inspiration of the Easter season and the coming of the glorious springtime. We hope you will feel the sincerity of the welcome to our Philathea classroom, and come regularly.

CURRENT COMMENT

The charge that Don Kennedy, successful candidate for highway commissioner, had a well organized machine working for him carried little weight with the voters. A machine is merely a well organized body of workers located in every county, city, village, and township. These workers are held together by various means, the best tie probably being jobs. The highway department with many workers and garages in every county has been able to perfect a very workable organization. It has always been so. Every successful candidate for public office, especially in the state or nation, has to have an organization for it is impossible for him to contact all the voters personally. There is another strong organization in the state, according to Senator McCallum, Republican, of Washtenaw county. This is the organization of Secretary of State Harry Kelly whom it is rumored will run for governor on the Republican ticket in 1942. He has built his machine on the same plan. Instead of one man in each county having charge of the sale of out license plates, he has discontinued the practice of giving one man the sale of plates for an entire county and has put it up. By this means, he has added 130 more license plate dealers. This doesn't please the old boys who formerly had one county's sale of plates. This county, we understand, was to have plates on sale at Howell, Brighton, Fowlerville and Pinckney, but a change was made and only Howell and Brighton sold them.

When Detroit and the upper peninsula combine their votes as they did last week on highway commissioner, they seem to be able to nullify the ballots of the rest of the state. When they vote for a candidate, they go for him like a ton of brick. In Hamtramck last week some of the wards went to Kennedy by a ratio of 10 to 1. This seemed to be general all over the county. Leroy Smith, Kennedy's opponent, in general got but small majorities out in the state where a small vote was cast and this 30,000 majority melted away like snow in the sun before the 80,000 one Kennedy rolled up a Wayne county.

I had ball dieing out and why? Compared to the past, very few of the towns have base ball teams any more, and the interest in it seems to be rapidly dieing. Ten years ago, 200 and 350 crowds at a ball game were common. The last few years a game played here you were lucky to get a 10 crowd. The story is the same all over. The people just won't turn out. Team loyalty doesn't mean anything anymore. A number of reasons are given for this. The ones most commonly stated are the radio and the auto. Why should a baseball fan go out to a game and sit in the open air when you can stay in your easy chair, sip a mint-julep and hear a big league game, play by play? The auto has annihilated distances and the young man of today would rather speed around the country than play ball. Soft ball still remains popular as this game is played mostly in the early evening and does not interfere with social activities.

The election returns, despite the fact that a very small vote was cast were very slow coming in last week. Three days after the election, over 200 precincts in the state were unreported and just who was elected to several state offices, notably regents of the university and the state board of education was still in doubt. The answer seems to be inefficiency in election boards, who are chosen more for political strength than ability. This does not prevail in Putnam township, which for years has been one of the first precincts in the county to report. This year the township ticket votes were all counted by 11:00 p. m. and by 3:30 a. m. the state ticket, non-partisan tickets, and the amendment counts had also been finished and tabulated.

Sunday visitors of Harold Galbreath were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Blake, Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley of Flint, Mr. and Mrs. William Mustata and son of Gregory, Loren Meabon of Pinckney, Mr. Robert Waters of Jackson, Mrs. Eva Tutun and two daughters, Evelyn and Betty Lou.

TIPS to Gardeners

REGARDING HERBS

MANY home gardeners may be interested in growing herbs this year because of the war...

Herbs may be grown in a plot about four by six feet to supply the average needs of a family.

Almost all popular herbs—balm, basil, borage, fennel, marjoram, rosemary, thyme, sage, anise, dill, and caraway—may either be used when young, and fresh, or prepared for use dried.

Anise, basil, borage, dill and savory are annuals; caraway, and fennel are biennials, and balm, marjoram, sage, rosemary, thyme and chives are perennials...

All the herbs mentioned here will probably produce enough growth for use the first year, however, if seeds are planted early, and climate is normally temperate.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—If Lord Halifax has been homesick for England, he no doubt feels better after his weekend at Unionville, Chester County, Pa. There has been a gesture of gracious hospitality it would seem, a tiny spot of old England as authentic as diligent effort could possibly make it.

Halifax Heard No American Accent In Pack's Baying

Lord Halifax's host, W. Plunket Stewart, and so faithfully has Mr. Stewart adhered to the British tradition that Chester county is often called the Leicestershire county of America, with its hunts comparable only to the Melton, the Mowbray and the Quoin of Leicestershire—the same comprising all the superlatives of fox-hunting in England.

In 1911 Mr. Plunket—a banker when he isn't riding to hounds—began searching for the perfect hunting domain. He found it in Chester county. The terrain was sufficiently broken to give the fox a break, but open enough for some slam-bang, tallyho riding, with woods, streams, stone walls and all the required hazards and lures, without too many people to get in the way.

He and his brother Redmond had bred a pack of hounds and built the famous Green Spring Valley hunt, of Glyndon, Md. Hence, knowing all the ins and outs of fox-hunting, he proceeded rapidly to recreate the Leicestershire of the Eighteenth century. Gilbert E. Mather, already established in Chester county as a fox-hunter, was moving eastward in search of new territory.

There is in Mr. Stewart's hunt the most careful observance of all ancient traditions of British fox-hunting, particularly in dress. The master and his staff wear scarlet, with crimson collars and the every-day dress is scarlet with crimson facings and scarlet velvet collar.

Mr. Stewart is a native of Maryland, related to European royalty. He was in the army remount service in the World War. Incidentally, the natives of Chester county have co-operated enthusiastically in the fox-hunting, and real estate values have risen.

WE'VE started leasing and lending, and the quarterback snaps the ball to Adm. Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission and as of his recent appointment. There is historic precedent for his finding a hole in the line, weaving through a broken field and planting the ball on the other side of the goal posts. That was in the famous "crap game" session between the Army and Navy in 1900. With less than a minute to play, "Jerry" Land, as his shipmates always called him, in the backfield for the Navy, blocked a kick and made one of those Frank Merriwell zig-zags down the field, winning 11 to 7 for the Navy, just a few seconds before the whistle blew for the finish. Such doings are pretty much in his horoscope.

In the World war he was in the navy bureau of construction and repair and got the Navy cross for building submarines and for his work in the war zone. In 1919 he turned in the most comprehensive and searching technical study of German submarines the navy ever got, along with a study of what they might do or try to do in the next war. He retired in March, 1937, but got only a month's lay-off, as President Roosevelt got him back on the job as a member of the maritime commission. When Joseph P. Kennedy retired to become ambassador to Great Britain, Land became chairman of the commission, and within two weeks the same was shaking a leg as never before.

The admiral, a small, wiry, eager man, with a touch of the mule-skinner about him when he's driving things through, lost no time in putting to work the first congressional allotment of $400,000,000 for building our merchant marine.

He is a native of Canon City, Colo., and a cousin of Charles Lindbergh. At Annapolis, he was tops not only in football but in several other sports, and rowed the bow oar on the academy crew. He was the successful conciliator in that long-drawn-out Army and Navy athletics row of a few years ago.

Capital Housing Problem Vexes District Officials

School and Water Supply Facilities Are Also Seriously Taxed by Influx of Defense Workers.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Millions for defense but not enough sense to contribute sufficient funds to the District of Columbia budget. That is the Washington city government's present charge against congress.

The other day I sat in the office of one of the district commissioners and an army officer who had been drafted to help work out the city's housing problems, and they seemed pretty helpless.

"We haven't got the money to meet the emergency situation that is growing in the district as a result of the defense program," was the burden of their song.

Washington is run by a commission—three men—our three "mayors," if you will, appointed by the President. Our board of aldermen are the district committees of the house of representatives and the senate. The federal government bears a share of the expense of running the city—but not enough, say the citizens of the district. All they can do is "say," for they have no vote, either locally or nationally.

The emergency is bringing thousands of new workers here. From June, 1930, to January of this year nearly 25,000 new government employees moved in. The figures for February, due to be released in a few days, are expected to show a big increase.

The Washington Board of Trade estimates that 55,000 new residents have moved into the District of Columbia in the last year.

In addition to these extra beds and baths that must be provided, there is the question of schools. The commissioner with whom I was discussing the situation, cited one example.

"Down there between Bolling field which will soon be the center of American aviation and the naval research laboratory," he said, "the federal government has built 800 family units. It will probably be increased to 1,000. These are just for the navy yard workers. Right there will probably be enough children to fill one schoolhouse alone."

A million and a quarter dollars, it is estimated, should be spent on schools alone in Washington as a result of the influx of residents. This is to say nothing of the next most pressing need—facilities to increase the water supply. The Canal Zone is not much hotter than Washington in the summer. People take a lot of showers. We have a Potomacful of water but we need more pipes and pumps.

The greatest portion of the city's expense, however, goes to taking care of the homes and the offices and people which make up the federal government.

Anyone who thinks the life of a government worker is all roses, frankincense and myrrh in these days needs only to listen to the local director of the Housing association who says:

"Doubling Up" Complaints. "Frequent complaints of doubling up in apartments and rooming houses come to us. One bath for 15 to 20 persons is a common grievance. Three to six unrelated roomers in the parlor of a once fine private residence is not uncommon."

Very bad, say the health authorities, for sanitation. Very bad for morale, too.

And then Washington has on its periphery a number of army camps, cantonments and forts. By July the boys on leave will be flocking in from an army of nearly a hundred thousand men. Their welfare and amusement have to be taken care of, too.

The district government, therefore, is struggling with the congressional committees, attempting to convince them of Washington's needs. A bill is now being considered which would increase the proportion which the federal government contributes to the federal city, but the officials cannot bank on the money until it is in hand.

American Housewives And Vitamins

An efficient secretary laid a newspaper clipping on my desk. The same day's mail brought a letter enclosing a magazine article from a farm-woman listener.

The newspaper clipping said: "The housewives of the United States are soon to receive the most thorough education in how to feed their families ever provided by any nation in the world... the American housewife is going to learn a great deal about vitamin B and about all the other vitamins..."

I ran through the magazine article. It was written by Velma Carson 12 years ago and in it she remarked on what a misapprehension most city people have concerning the modern farm woman. The author told how a companion in a Pullman made some pitying remark about a woman they passed who was hoeing in a garden. Miss Carson said:

"I explained that quite likely the pathetic creature we recently had passed would be in a chiffon dress by afternoon, powdered with the same brand Lady What's-Her-Name has endorsed, marcelled into shining waves, and driving her car to a meeting where a professor from the state university would give latest gossip on vitamins—a subject so fascinating to farm women ever since they have discovered hidden forces in the old familiar 'greens.' As one progressive, earnest, white-haired lady said to me once after a home demonstration agent's lecture, 'Well I always fed my family on just what we had on the farm—milk, butter, eggs, cheese, and vegetables, and such. It sure was a piece of luck these things all had vitamins.'"

Flapjacks For the Navy

When the cooks of the U. S. S. Wyoming—or any other ship with a complement of 1,200 men—get their pancakes, it is quite an undertaking to provide them. Down at the navy department you can see a cook book with recipes just like any cook book—but the figures are different. I looked at the recipe for flapjacks the other day. Here it is:

Sea air makes for big appetites. A cook in the galley of the battleship U.S.S. Wyoming prepares flapjacks by the hundreds for breakfast.

- 120 lbs. flour 2 1/2 lbs. shortening 10 lbs. sugar 10 lbs. evaporated milk 7 1/2 lbs. baking powder 70 qts. water 2 1/2 lbs. salt

The same men who dispose of this order of cakes in one day will eat 1,500 pounds of fresh meat, 3,200 pounds of fresh vegetables, 1,300 pounds of fresh fruit and 120 dozen eggs, to say nothing of the canned goods consumed.

Bears Get 'Friendly' In National Parks

The bears in our national parks are getting too pally with tourists, so the national park service has issued a warning.

It seems that when humans begin fraternizing with a bear the bear begins to treat them as equals. This means that when a human gets between a mother bear and her offspring, she chases him out of the way, sometimes administering a well-aimed swat in the process.

"Bear incident!" is the government's name for damage to property and injuries to persons as a result of the public's disregard of rules against getting too familiar with bears. Moral: Don't treat bears as equals.

CONSERVATION NOTES

The fishing season on trout opens in about two weeks.

The smelt run, later than usual, is on. It began April 3 at Beulah and then at Boyne City, Tawas Bay and Alpena. Perch are also said to be becoming active.

Michigan's 56 state parks will open Memorial Day. 125 people are employed in maintenance of them during the summer.

Monthly crude oil production in Michigan is less than the peak production reached in May, 1939. This was 2,188,551. Only 33 drilling permits were issued during the month of March.

To insure themselves a chance to purchase tax delinquent property reverting to the state, the former owners must apply this year in May instead of November as the redemption period has been shortened to 12 months.

During the young rabbit and present season, owners are asked to confine their dogs. No permits for field trials will be issued after May first.

Deer are moving from low to high ground now and motorists in northern Michigan should exercise extra caution to avoid hitting them. If you hit one, report it to the nearest conservation officer.

At the present time Decker is living in Bellevue, Ohio. Earl Schroeder is tenant on the farm, but he was absent at the time the fire was discovered by a passing motorist about 9 p. m. His wife and five children were alone. The fire is said to have started from a defective stove pipe. The farm is in Hamburg township, which has a contract with the fire department of Brighton for fire protection at $50 per trip. Pinckney is but 4

RATES ON MICHIGAN BELL LONG DISTANCE CALLS REDUCED

700,000 CUSTOMERS WILL SHARE
REFUNDS OF $1,500,000

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company is moving promptly to comply with the order of the former Michigan Public Utilities Commission, which has just been upheld by the State Supreme Court, to reduce intrastate long distance rates to the level of interstate rates.

That will mean savings of approximately $700,000 a year to long distance users, based on present volume of usage.

Messages will be charged at the new rates as soon as the new tariffs can be filed and are accepted by the Michigan Public Service Commission. Until then, messages will be charged at the old rates and will be subject to later refund.

TO REFUND $1,500,000

Under the order, the Company will make refunds or credits of the difference between the intrastate and interstate rates paid by its long distance customers since August 1, 1938, effective date of the order. That money, totaling $1,500,000, has been impounded in a bank designated by the Court, without interest.

More than 65,000,000 long distance call records, involving the accounts of 700,000 users of the service must be checked. Therefore, it will be some weeks before the refunds or credits can be made or information given with regard to specific accounts. However, in the interest of speeding the work, the checking has been started.

WORK WILL BE SPEEDED

The Company will at once request a supplementary court order authorizing methods to be followed in making the returns.

Calls made within the state between points more than 42 miles apart are affected.

As soon as additional information becomes available with respect to the method of making the refunds or credits it will be advertised in this paper.

SENIOR NOTES

The annual play (this year "America First") is scheduled for Friday night of this week. As this is a good play and in the order of the day, everyone should make an effort to attend it. The cast is very busy but needs your assistance to make the play a real success.

So come and see "America First" Friday night.

Plans for the Washington trip are being completed. The greatest difficulty seems to be that there aren't enough drivers available.

Megan Meyer was announced as the Valedictorian of this year's senior class with Rose Mary Read as the Salutatorian.

The typing class is having difficulty in typing this week because of the 12 new Underwood typewriters which the school obtained Monday. The main difficulty the class is having is that the keys of the typewriters are covered up and they have to hunt for them.

We have a new scholar in school this week. He started Monday in the ninth grade. His name is Dan Elliott.

SOPHOMORE NEWS

The sophomore class of Pinckney high school ordered their class rings the 3rd of April. We had a choice of silver, gold or part silver and gold, which have a crest with the school initial engraved. On the side of the ring will be the number "1943", the year of graduation. The class as a whole seems very pleased with them. Although we are sending our orders in for the rings while we are still sophomores, we will not get them until the latter part of September, when we are juniors. Our premiums will be sent to us in a few weeks and they are the first letter of the school's name with the year 1943 on them.

Tailored Silk Suits, Dresses Reflect Beau Brummel Styles

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A FASHION that appeals to best-dressed women everywhere is the suit or costume tailored of either black or navy silk faille. There is a refinement and ladylikeness about these tailleurs that women love.

There is a patrician look about the suavely fitted, smartly detailed silk costumes in the illustration. You will be hearing much during the coming weeks about the Regency period fashions to which contemporary designers are turning for ideas or new inspiration. Our style creators are translating these costumes of the "dandies," who gloried in molded waistlines, peplum flared coats, wide picturesque cuffs, fastidiously frilled waistcoats and wrist lingerie frills, into practical contemporary fashions, such as are here shown.

The black silk faille suit to the left in the picture reflects the Regency influences of the Beau Brummels of the past in its neat slender waistline, accented by a peplum silhouette, flared collar and cuffs and beruffled lingerie accents. The enormous felt hat is especially chic in that it typifies a smart, new millinery trend. These hats are particularly pretty in pastels, worn with either navy or black spring costumes.

The simplicity of the silk crepe dress to the right in the trio is a master stroke in costume design as interpreted this season by foremost designers. Note the new longer waistline. It is just this type of dress that invites lingerie accents. With a gown or coat dress of this sort, you can change it entirely with new accessories. Note the white frills in the sleeves.

Black wool and silk faille adapt well to the lines of the dressmaker suit centered in the group. The jacket features the new dropped shoulder yoke, with bracelet length sleeves and unpressed pleated peplum. Unpressed front pleats introduce new skirt interest. The blouse is of white mousseline de soie.

Another type of silk costume suit that is a leading fashion is the redingote ensemble. The great advantage is that the redingote can be worn either with its companion dress of faille or crepe or with print frocks. Many of the new redingotes are strictly tailored in straight slim lines. Others depart from the straight and narrow path by introducing front pleats and sometimes back yokes to give freedom across the shoulders.

Very smart, too, are black or navy silk coats, elaborately braided down the fronts. Also, a striking new note are glittering jeweled buttons, fastening the jacket of simple black or navy silks. Many front buttons in realistic colorings are used on the new silk tailors.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Print-Bow Trim

The ingenious use of print with plain is outstanding fashion news for spring. Especially attractive and chic is a new print silk bow technique used in jacket and bodice fastenings, as illustrated. The black, white and golden yellow silk print is striped horizontally for the dress, with the stripes applied in bands to the black wool jacket. Unpressed pleats give subtle fullness to the skirt. This model shows that the idea of print with plain is being used with refreshing originality.

Shades of Deep Purple

Seen in Spring Fashions
Purple and violet and kindred shades are color features being highlighted this spring. Many suits and cape costumes are tailored of purple or violet-toned tweeds this spring. Topped with a fetching little straw chapeau, trimmed in violet, with violet boutonniere to match, this ensemble sings fashion's spring song.

The new lavenders and purples go charmingly with navy. Lots of white frills on a navy suit, navy or violet felt hat with violet flower trim and you're ready for the sun! Lavender veils or light green ones are accessory "musts" with purple ensembles.

Bright Red Colors

Red is registering one of the biggest color triumphs of the season. Young girls "dote" on the new red coats and jackets, some of which fasten with military brass buttons.

Prints with red backgrounds are creating a sensation. Some are patterned with navy or black or beige and green motifs. You really must have a red print frock.

It's the fashion to match hat and handbag this season. Try carrying out the idea in red straw or fabric, and don't forget to add a red veil. You will like red accents with your navy suit or redingote ensemble, and red accessories will add an exotic touch to your new beige outfit.

Chinese Hats

A custom among Chinese maidens is to wear clusters of flowers at each side of the head. It is this pretty headress which has given inspiration for a new fashion that some predict will develop into an important vogue during the coming months. A noted American millinery designer has devised a band that curves to fit the head. This is covered with ribbon, and at each side flowers or ribbon bows are attached. You wear this fitted bandeau like little girls used to wear round combs. This is a real help to those who prefer to go hatless.

City of Caverns

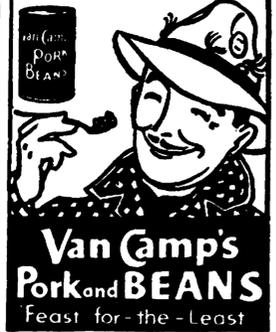

London, in these times, would be fortunate if the city were constructed as Paris is, for the French capital is built largely of stone brought from under the very ground on which it stands. Because of this, there is a ready-made underground city about one-tenth the size of Paris. One section of this cave city contains the Catacombs, where rest the bones of some six million. Another zone consists of vast layers of gypsum. The Quarry service has cut into this section tunnels which follow accurately the courses of the avenues above. Ordnance maps of this system show springs, galleries, rooms, arches, and reinforcements. Had the government of France decided to defend the city, the people could have occupied this underground fortress and defied Hitler's bombers till Doomsday.

Nominee to be, long before the state convention ratified the Van Wagoner-picked state ticket.

The Loser Wins

While Smith possessed a record of engineering achievement that has merited national recognition, having managed a county road organization receiving 1940 national honors, (he is also a former deputy state highway commissioner) the fact remains that he was not widely known outside of Wayne county. Republican generals realized this handicap, and they made valiant efforts to overcome it in the short time available. Upstate pluralities were disappointingly small.

And so, neither man is out of a job.

Smith presumably will continue to earn $15,000 a year as engineering manager at Detroit, while Kennedy draws $7,500 as state highway commissioner. Could it be possible that Smith, who was virtually drafted as a party nominee, will be doubly better off financially as a result of the April 7 vote?

Who won the election, anyway? Figure it out for yourself, we can't.

Labor Votes

Now that the diplomatic season is over, Governor Van Wagoner is expected to assume a militant role.

Six to seven weeks remain in which his administrative program, revealed belatedly, might be salvaged.

Chances of labor legislation were greatly dimmed by the C.I.O. tie-up of the Ford industrial empire, accomplished without a 30-day notice that is customarily required by the state mediation board for employees in plants that are producing national defense supplies.

The prevailing legislative attitude is tinged with resentment of any labor organizing move that delays vital arms production.

Labor leaders point out that the automobile industry, with the exception of the Ford Motor company, is almost entirely under union agreements, as in the steel industry with the exception of a few medium-sized concerns, and the rubber industry with the exception of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and a few small plants.

This union expansion, chiefly in mass production industries has come about during the past five years. Union membership soared from 3,500,000 to over 8,000,000 at the beginning of 1940. The harvest has been rich.

Promises?

Labor's mounting influence in national economy has levied political bargaining. Such is true in Michigan where the C.I.O., for example, endorsed Kennedy. It has also been evident for some time that Governor Van Wagoner was building his fences for re-election in 1942 with a definite tilt for labor and farm support.

His generosity in advocating labor measures, which in some cases surpassed anything enacted at Washington, has been interpreted by labor-minded Republicans in the following light:

He could put the Republicans "on the spot" by asking more than he knew legislators would grant. He could appease labor with bills, while trying to keep radicals in line by threats of a big stick, such as he brandished in the Consumer's Power company controversy.

This wasn't bad politics from a practical point of view, since he had little to lose. And Van Wagoner is a practical man.

But it has prompted Republicans advocates of labor reform to question the governor's concern about the working man amid the greatest industrial boom the state has ever seen. So don't be surprised if Republicans fail to rush to the rescue.

With the 1941 election out of the way, folks here are already beginning to think about 1942. Such is the way of politics.

1941 FRONTIERS

Many recent films have carried us back to the robust days of the nineteenth century. The days following the Civil War when soldiers were paid in land grants in the West. The days when new found resources in land, minerals, and oil were in their infancy.

Pictures like Union Pacific, Arizona, Western Union, Dodge City and many others recapture the hazardous existence of the time and project us into the middle of it.

The Wild West Frontier is gone, but each of us faces a frontier of our own. Our ability to beat the other fellow on the draw, to establish our right to the respect of our fellow citizens, to create an estate by a perseverance no less indomitable than the heroes of yesteryear, can still be tested.

Our Bank is ready to prove that today's frontiers can be met. A Savings Account regularly added to will help to make its owner (in Western parlance) "top dog of the outfit". A bank Account enables a man to feel that independence that is his rightful American heritage.

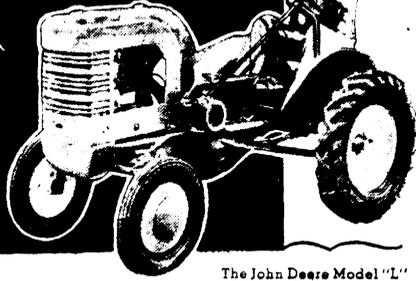

Money to loan at reasonable rate. Interest paid on Savings Books and Time Certificates of Deposit.
