G. E. Truck To Visit This County

General Electric to Show Latest Lighting Devices at Howell High School May 1.

Loaded to the roof with the latest lamps and lighting demonstrations developed by General Electric at world-famous Nela Park, Cleveland, this new streamlined motor van rolled into town. Also here is a group of lighting experts from Nela Park's G. E. Institute and the Detroit Edison Company. "Professors" from the Nela "University of Light" will join with Michigan G. E. representatives to stage a deluxe lamp and lighting show.

The show staged by the traveling unit in this locality is part of an itinerary of 100 cities and towns coast to coast and border to border, a 12,000 tour designed to wheel Nela Park's G. E. Institute to the nation.

Talks on "Fluorescent Lighting Practice," "Light Conditioning," and the "Science of Seeing" will be illustrated by a host of new exhibits and demonstrations expressly built for the Nela-Park-on-wheels road trip. These displays, collapsible for space-saving, when unfolded completely fill an ordinary stage and overflow around the auditorium. They are built to light up at the touch of a switch and to show at a glance the advantage of new lamps over old types. Outstanding is a novel chart filling the entire back of the stage which dramatically pictures the solar spectrum, the various groups of rays (visible and invisible), the roles they can play in serving mankind, and the lighting "tools" now available to do the various jobs in countless fields.

Among the newest G. E. Mazda lamps featured are the following types: fluorescent, mercury, germicidal, all-glass sealed beam, self-reflecting hard-glass projector units, drying, health and reflector lamps. After staging performances at

Big Wind Storm Hits This County

About $200,000 Damages Is Done This County and in Washtenaw by Saturday Night's Windstorm

A cyclone or windstorm hit the southwestern part of this county at 6:30 p. m. Saturday night, doing about $200,000 worth of damage and then dipped over into Washtenaw county where it destroyed the kangar at the Ann Arbor airport.

The press is not agreed where the cyclone first hit. It seems to have struck in Howell township where 2 barns on the Fred Berry farm were destroyed, then to the Fred Van-Guilder farm where the barn was blown down and eight cows were killed by electrocution when they came in contact with a wire fence on which a high tension power wire had fallen. The John Ruttman house was flattened and the Ruttmans and their 19 year old daughter, Marretta, narrowly escaped injury. A new barn on the Gus Smith farm in Marion was destroyed and 500 chickens on the Wayne Soap Co. farm were killed and Mrs. Holcomb who lives there injured by flying timbers. The barns and outbuildings on the Aibin Pfau farm in Isoco were damaged, a chicken coop on the Don Leary farm two buildings on the George Harford farm and buildings and a windmill on the Claude Jackson farm. Falling timbers smashed the power and telephone lines and Fowlerville, Williamston and Webberville were without lights and power for several hours.

The storm then went over into Washtenaw county where it demolished a new $25,000 hangar being built at the Ann Arbor airport and injured an airplane. All this damage seems to have been done in about an hour and a half.

The Pennsylvania Airways plane enroute to Pittsburg, was caught in the storm near Fowlerville but managed to weather it.

Legislature To Get Down To Business As Adjournment Nears

Potatoes at $6 a bushel, eggs at $1 a dozen and sugar at 25 cents a pound are not expected in a 1941 or 1942 war-time economy, such as was the case in World War I.

The farmer, remembering the price collapse that trailed the great boom, is inclined to be cautious and wary.

And Uncle Sam is taking a hand with reins on possible inflation.

Prospects of the 1941 farm crops in Michigan are decidedly favorable, if not bullish. The Michigan cooperative farm reporting service at Lansing pointed out this month that winter wheat, rye and pasture were above average in condition. Corn wheat and oats are above average, the estimate for oats being 27 million bushels compared with a Michigan average of 15 million.

Because of the mild winter, fruit prospects are also equally bright. And so it goes.

Brakes on runaway prices are to be applied at Washington through special administration headed by Leon Henderson, the federal economist who accurately foresaw the "inflation" of 1937. And at the same time a price ceiling is contemplated, a price floor has been ordered for some food products—pork, butter, eggs and chickens.

The net result should be more money in the farmer's pocket. We Eat More

Consumption of food is not static it does not remain stationary.

The federal stamp plan for marketing of surplus food commodities helped to establish this fact. In county after county in Michigan where this system has been put into the families on welfare lists are eating more food.

Studies by the American Institute of Food Distribution reveal sharp variations in consumption by income groups. As income of the "submerged third" increases, total food consumption goes up.

Food prices tend to rise when spending is inflated.

Meats, for instance, register the highest percentage of price rise—from an index of 68.4 in February, 1940, to 83.6 in February, 1941. But this is an exception.

Foods generally have gone up only 6 points from March, 1940 to March 1941.

Lend-Lease
Under the price program at Washington, production of pork, dairy products, eggs and poultry will be stimulated by pegged prices during the next year or two. Prices will be kept at levels remunerative to the producer.

STATE PAYROLL INCREASES
The payroll of the state is steadily rising and if conditions continue Gov. Van Wagener may find himself in the same boat with former Gov. Dickenson who saw his payroll increase $4,000,000 during his term of office. The increases are in the highway department which is up $300,000, Secretary of State $100,000, Social Security $145,000 and state hospitals $100,000. With many other departments demanding more funds it is hard to see any great reduction in sight.

CURRENT COMMENT

The railroad associations are conducting a strong campaign against the proposed St. Lawrence project. They claim the project is impractical, the waterway never to be used by ocean liners and great lake boats are built for ocean travel. All the points to be seen however. The one line of argument which cannot follow however. This concerns the taxes paid by the roads and the huge payroll paid by them. The same line of argument could very well have been played by the stage coach and horse raisers against the coming of the automobile. Exponents of hand labor could well have used this argument against the installation of power machinery and did. As history shows took place in many places where hand weaving was replaced by power machinery, to wit, the low riots in England. However the past it has been found impossible to check progress for any length of time.

Owing to a shortage of aluminum which is greatly needed in the manufacture of airplanes and war materials the government is said to be considering the confiscating of a aluminum cooking utensils etc. to be melted up and used for war material. We doubt that any more very drastic steps will be necessary to carry this into effect and believe the people will be perfectly willing to cooperate.

The war department has modified its ruling against the induction of any person with a criminal record into the army. Now only those persons with two or more convictions who have served a year in prison, or have been guilty of sex offenses by the sale of narcotics will be barred from service. It was unjust that only the law abiding should be called for military service while those who had lifted a few chickens, watermelons, etc. should be entirely exempted.

Although the spring election is two weeks past still the results of the election are not yet known as over 100 precincts, mostly in rural districts have not yet reported. This has led the press to remark that suspicion may arise as to the delay and whether these precincts are being held back purposely as in the old days in order to see how many votes may be required to put certain candidates over. The only argument against this is that the only offices at stake, regents of the university and members of the state board of education are of little practical importance. Secretary of State Harry Kelly would remedy this situation by compelling all election boards to send in returns 12 hours after the polls close. When large city precincts with thousands of votes can do this there is no reason why small rural ones with only a few hundred votes cannot.

The Detroit News, on commenting on an America First meeting held in Detroit last Thursday night in which Ham Fish of New York charged the national administration with causing "war hysteria", says the hysteria is not all on one side and remarks that during the meeting every mention of President Roosevelt's name was booed and jeered and even Ham Fish's statement that he believed the president's statement that the United States would not become involved in war. Incidentally there is no mention that the meeting was then closed with the singing "God Bless America" This last incident is becoming a fixed habit and has been done at Catholic, fraternal, and school assemblies recently attended by us in this section. The Gallup poll showed the president's popularity at 73 per cent, the highest it has ever been.

The state is paying $1,400,888 to 82,648 old age pensions applicants this month an increase of 2,625 over a month ago. The waiting list has been reduced to 15,724, a decrease of 24,634 in the past four months. The average payment per person is $18.95 a month.

Howell, the lighting "cavalcade" will visit other towns in southeastern Michigan.

Cooperating with General Electric, local representatives of The Detroit Edison Company have helped make arrangements for the showing. They will be present at the performances to receive requests for advice and help on use of the various lamps displayed.

The Company is prepared to furnish help on problems involving commercial, industrial, and residence lighting. Its staff of lighting experts have all "gone to school" at Nela Park, and can offer practical solutions for lighting problems.

The ladies of Pinckney and vicinity are cordially invited to attend the Home Lighting Meeting at Howell High School at 2:30 p. m. May 1, 1941. Admission Free.

34 draftees left Howell this morning for induction into the army at Detroit. Clarence Culver, also scheduled to go, is still sick, and his induction was deferred for the second time. Norman Miller of Pinckney was among those who left, also Ambrose Kennedy, son of Sheriff Kennedy of Howell. He was placed in charge of the draftees on the trip to Detroit.

Senior Class Play Is Big Success

Full Auditorium Witnesses the Annual Senior Play Put on by the Graduating Class at the High School Auditorium Friday

One of the largest crowds on record filled the high school auditorium last Friday night to see "America First" the play put on by the senior class. All parts were well taken and the play was well chosen.

The play was very appropriate for the time dealing with fifth columnists, sabotage, foreign spies etc.

The story had to do with Ann Holmes, a widow, played by Ruth Culver, her son, played by Earl Berquist and her daughter, played by Megan Meyer. The son is persuaded into a plot against the United States by two foreign agents, played by Beryl Amurgey and Virginia Baugh, masquerading behind the false front of a dancing school. Jimmie Banks, friend of Earl is also a victim of theirs. Ken Lamont had this part. Owen Blake of the Flying Cadets, played by Roy Clinton, has his plans and drawings for a new air plane stolen by the foreign agents and the widow's son is placed in an embarrassing position. However, by the aid of Frank Griffith, FBI agent, played by Donn Widmayer who is a brother of the widow, the plans are recovered, the villains foiled and all turns out well. The comedy part is furnished by Gerald Vedder who is the bad-tempered grandpa and by Mrs. Boggs, the house-keeper, played by Goldie Markos. Rosemary Read had the part of Gladys Caley, sweetheart of the widow's son.

The specialties between acts were tap dancing by David Aberdeen, Barbara Haines, Geraldine Felner, Betsy Mock, Rita Kennedy and Lois Shanley. Barbara Haines also favored with some solo numbers.

The total gate was $115 for ticket sales. These funds will be used to pay expenses of the class to Washington D. C. following graduation on May 28.

CHILD HIT BY TRUCK

Richard Gallup, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gallup of this place had the bones in his left foot crushed Tuesday afternoon when he was struck by a truck belonging to Kyer and Whittaker, grocery firm of Ann Arbor. The accident happened about 5 p. m. near the fire hall. The child was taken to the Pinckney Sanitarium, and later to University Hospital, Ann Arbor, for a possible operation. Junfor Dinkel was the driver of the truck.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Quintilian's line, "He abounds in sweet faults," was meant for James F. Dewey. The quite uniformly successful federal labor conciliator Share a Failing, Promote Harmony, seems to Dewey's Method have learned that people are more apt to be brought together by pooling their little redeeming virtues than by matching virtues. Share a human weakness with a man and he's apt to begin to feel the stir of fellow-feeling. That seems to be the idea, although there is no evidence that all this is premeditated on Mr. Dewey's part. Here's how he "joins" 'em: He doesn't mind his calories, or worry about his waistline. He likes to sleep late. He smokes cigars so strong they make an Erie freight engine smell like an atomizer.

He isn't systematic. Taking over as a conciliator, perhaps addressing a big jittery meeting, he excavates various bulging pockets and discovers he has forgotten his credentials. Then he forgets about all that, opens with a wide nonpartisan smile, delivers his speech and makes them like it. He dislikes exercise, yet he is a rough-and-ready hooper who will dance on the slightest provocation—until his tongue hangs out. He wears his hair loosely and casually.

All this and more of the same, sets Mr. Dewey sharply apart from the slick and impeccable conformist who is always putting other people in the doghouse and thereby getting nowhere as a conciliator. Sen. James J. ("Puddler Jim") Davis set him up as a mediator, in the department of labor, after he had done some strikingly effective conciliating in Pennsylvania. He was a school teacher, auditor for a coal company and a telegraph operator. At the old home place at Chester, Pa., he spends a lot of time patching things up and making them work. Amateur tinkering always denotes the true pragmatist at work. Maybe that's what all this strike trouble needs.

AMONG those ready to affirm that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country, Leon M. Henderson, director of price stabilization for the National Defense Commission, may not be included. Once he was a farm boy in Millville, N. J., and his hometown folks have just honored him with a banquet and other proceedings, establishing him as "No. 1 Citizen" of the village in which he was born 46 years ago. Joined with the citizenry were not a few government officials coming from Washington to approve and acclaim the excellence of Millville's choice.

Here is a village Hamden, "innocent of his country's blood," who didn't stay in a village, one who has been in the thick of things, up to his elbow as some one recently said of him, in all sorts of affairs best known by alphabetical designations, as NRA, WPA, NTEC, SEC, NDAC, etc.

One of the strong men in the national defense picture—he is the only New Dealer on the defense commission of seven members and its only economist—they called him the nation's outstanding crystal gazer when he predicted the business boom of 1936 and its drop later, in 1937. Ironically smiling, Henderson has subscribed to the appellation.

His induction into government service came about in rather a curious way. In 1934, as director of the remedial loan division of the Russell Sage foundation, he began sniping at the NRA, and his shots were so accurately aimed as to arouse, not the anger, but the admiration of Gen. Hugh Johnson who grabbed him as consumer advisor. Very soon thereafter he became director of research and planning, and when a Supreme court broadside sank the NRA he was appointed secretary of the senate committee on manufactures.

There he was when the 1936 national presidential campaign arrived. He was withdrawn and made economist for the Democratic national committee. It is said of him that the source of information enabling J. M. Farley to predict so shrewdly the outcome of this election was Leon Henderson.

Then Henderson became economic counsellor to the WPA and subsequently held various important offices until the creation of the advisory commission to the National Council on Defense. His hobbies—smoking cigars and early rising.

Nation's Attitude on War Puzzle to U. S. Officials

Washington Hears Conflicting Reports on Issue of Full Participation; Wildlife Is 'Mobilized.'

By BAUKHAGE National Farm and Home Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—One of the interesting events to watch in the capital these days is the welcoming of a traveler who has safely returned from the great west or the wide prairies. Washingtonians gather around him with wan but hopeful smiles on their faces. They are never quite sure whether he is about to pull a peace-pipe from under his blanket or a tomahawk.

And they are not sure whether the tomahawk is meant for use on them or as a sign that the wild tribes of Chicago and Pittsburgh and Cripple Creek and Hollywood are ready to join the militant East in a good old-fashioned war-dance.

Of late some of these returned travelers have surprised the braves who collect the wampum and the medicine men who sit around the council fires along the Potomac. Surprised at what they hear from the peaceful folk who live in the valley of the Father of Waters and who are tilling their fields on the great plains and among the Rockies. While these distant Americans are loyal to Big Chief in the White Teepee (according to the Gallup poll), "they just ain't a-spoilin' for a fight."

In other words even some of the writers and pamphleteers who have been most enthusiastic about aid to the democracies at all costs have changed their tune. They are beginning to say that the American people are still so strongly against permitting America to become a belligerent that Washington must step carefully lest it go too far in that direction. I have very good reasons for feeling that the President is beginning to be influenced by this feeling.

Diplomat's Viewpoint.

Recently I talked with a foreign diplomat whose country, still at peace, is trembling under the threatening shadow of the dictators. He said he found it hard to understand the American people. He was sure that they were willing to save the democracies from defeat at any cost and yet they seemed to be solidly against putting this country into war. "It reminds me," he said, "of a line from the poet Goethe," and he quoted:

"Two spirits dwell within my bosom."

Some of the President's associates who are able to look on the situation abroad objectively and are in close touch with our observers in foreign parts are saying, in effect, this:

"The present American foreign policy is not being run counter to the majority of public opinion."

"It is fully realized that while parts of the East and certain groups in Washington are ready for United States participation in the war immediately, the people as a whole would object strenuously to getting us into the conflict."

"But they feel that even if this country should take steps which lead us nearer to the edge of the conflict than we have already gone, they believe that Germany is so anxious to avoid a formal state of war with us that she would hesitate a long time before bringing about such a step."

"In other words even if we were to convoy British supply ships to the very edge of the Western hemisphere, to Greenland for example, and there was an open battle between an American warship and a German submarine, war might not be declared by either side."

Evidence of this conviction was offered by Democratic Senate Leader Barkley when he was opposing the Tobey amendment recently which expressly forbade the use of convoys. Senator Barkley said:

"... if we have violated international law in such a way as could result in a declaration of war against us by Germany, we have already done that, and the convoying of ships, would be only an incident."

Wildlife Mobilized For Defense

The United States is mobilizing wildlife for defense—the department of agriculture's recruiting drive is on! When the axe of the first settler rang out on the continent of America, its echoes disturbed the "balance of nature." Until then the natural food supply regulated the animal population of the primeval forest and the lonely glen. But the white man cut down trees, planted corn and wheat.

Birds and animals, robbed of their ancient homes, poached on the settler's field and garden. The settler, both to protect his crops and to add to his larder, went forth with trap and rifle. The sportsman hunted where he would. American wildlife all but disappeared in some sections, did in others.

Most farmers—most people, for that matter—have a sneaking affection for the furred and feathered folk who live on their land. But the old fear of their predatory habits lies deep—birds that pick and rabbits that nibble and the foxes, the little oxes that clear back in King Solomon's time, spoiled the vineyards.

Today the farmer is rapidly breaking down this ancient fear and with the encouragement of the government—material as well as moral—he is hanging out the welcome sign and offering free board and lodging to wild life.

Already more than half the nation's game exists on privately owned farm, range and forest land. Department of agriculture officials tell me:

"The biggest part of our work of conserving our national resources of quail, pheasants, doves, rabbits, squirrels, raccoons, opossums and many other kinds of valuable game and fur animals must be done by individual farmers—right on their own land."

That is why benefits under the Triple A go to farmers who plant odd corners with trees and brush and grains and legumes which furnish house and hearth of the wild folk.

So now many a patch of scab rock in a field that once was a desert island has become an oasis where small animals and birds live and move and have their being.

Given a pat on the back the wild life helps the farmer, eats the bad bugs. Given a chance to forage in the upland growth and woodlots and helped with a little food that the state is glad to furnish, they do not bother the crops.

And the game birds and animals have served another purpose. They have built a new comradeship between the city sportsman and the farmer. Twelve million sportsmen in this country are glad of the chance to shoot on the farmer's land. Six million farmers have proved by their co-operation with the AAA plan for conserving wildlife that they are glad to offer the hospitality and the sport which the city people love: a chance to hunt with gun, rod or camera and sketch-book.

Spring Comes To Nation's Capital

Spring comes to the Capital. A cheerful squirrel is begging for peanuts in the shadow of General Lafayette's statue. Suddenly it darts for a tree as a newsboy cries:

"Whole col-ium an-eye-a-lated in Balkans."

The newsboy passes, selling his blood-spattered news. I watch the squirrel. He watches the newsboy, then darts down to the grass and rolls over three times in sheer glee at not being a man...

Walking down with the government workers in the morning, I pass the tall and dignified brick facade and the great, sheltering dome of St. Matthew's cathedral.

A couple arms locked, pass me. They have walked this same path, this same way to the same office for years. But today, after an Easter holiday, a bright new platinum band is on her finger.

A sudden spot of color on Washington's wide Sixteenth street. A little row of one-story, brick houses. Once they were slave quarters, now they are squeezed in between a stiff, grim brownstone mansion and a tall residence with high peaked roof and belling bay window, prim clipped hedges. The dweller in one of the little brick boxes has painted his front a warm red. It glows like a glass of chianti held against the light.

The cherry blossoms. Walking under them early enough to be alone you can almost feel their enveloping beauty resting on you like a delicate robe of pink down.

WPA 'Bookmobiles' Reach Rural Readers

More than 200 traveling lending libraries are now on the road. They are called bookmobiles. "Before the WPA library program began operating bookmobiles about four years ago, traveling library service to rural communities was almost unknown," says Assistant WPA Commissioner Florence Kerr, who nationally administers WPA library service along with all other community service programs.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE by Roger B. Whitman

(© Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service.)

Types of Heat.

QUESTION: Can you advise me as to the heating of a house that I plan to build? Is steam heat more efficient than gas or oil-fired air-conditioned heat? Can you tell me about how much more expensive gas is to operate than fuel oil? Is the maintenance cost about the same on each? Which system would you advise?

Answer: The efficiency of a heating system is not gauged by the type of heat, but by the quality and design of the equipment that is installed. Steam or air conditioned heat will keep the house warm, if the heating plant is sufficiently large. The air filtering and humidifying features in air conditioning systems are favored by many home owners. These features are desirable, providing, of course, the system is installed by a reliable firm having a thorough knowledge of this type of heating. Comparative costs depend entirely upon local gas rates and fuel oil costs. Your local gas company and oil burner man can help you on this better than I can. The maintenance cost may be slightly higher on oil fired units.

Cracked Plaster.

Question: The walls of my house are of unfinished plaster, and were recently decorated with casein paint. There is one particularly bad crack in the wall. How can it be repaired?

Answer: The crack is probably from settlement, and may grow worse should settlement continue. If so, you will be wasting time and material to do any patching until settlement is over. If you feel sure that the crack has reached its limit, you can repair it with patching plaster, to be had at a hardware store. Widen the narrow part of the crack with a knife to admit the patch, and for the entire length of the crack, make it wider at the lath than it is on the surface, so that in hardening, the patch will lock itself into place. Directions for using patching plaster are on the label of the box.

Cleaning Wood Floors.

Question: What can I apply to hardwood floors to remove marks, such as scratches and spots, as well as several layers of wax? The floors are almost new, and I do not want to have them scraped.

Answer: To remove scratches from shellacked floors, wipe with turpentine. Or, small scratches can be treated with a little denatured alcohol, put in with a soft camel's hair brush, and deep scratches with a little thin shellac. Varnished floors should be treated with varnish. You can clean the floors by wiping with liquid floor wax and plenty of clean cloths. Polish by applying good paste floor wax in thin coats, rubbing well. Floors that are badly scratched should be scraped, preferably with an electric sanding machine.

Papering Rough Walls.

Question: The walls throughout my house are textured plaster. Can this be smoothed to make a good surface for wallpaper?

Answer: Go over the walls with sandpaper wrapped around a block of wood to take down the highest points of the texturing. Then, using the same kind of plastic paint, that was originally used for the walls, fill the remaining roughnesses, using a brush or trowel. Final smoothing of the wall can be done with a trowel, or with a rubber squeegee, such as is used for washing plate glass windows.

Cleaning Silver.

Question: Salted nuts were left in two silver dishes, and have made black spots that no amount of polishing will remove. How can I clean them?

Answer: When silver has been spotted in that way, the only sure method of cleaning is to have the job done by a silversmith. Salt should not be allowed to remain in contact with silver.

Squeaky Spring.

Question: A bedspring has become loose, and every twist of the bed's occupant causes the spring to squeak. Can this be remedied?

Answer: Using a small camel's hair brush, try the effect of putting a little oil at every point where two or more pieces of metal come together. If this does not cure the trouble, the best answer is to get a new spring.

Putty.

Question: I have been making my own putty with white lead, whiting, and linseed oil. My hardware man says that I should use only whiting and linseed oil; no lead. Which mixture is better?

Answer: Ordinary putty contains no lead. The addition of about one-fifth as much white lead gives the putty greater hardness and permanence.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—all to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, sitting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

CONSERVATION NOTES

Until vegetation and leaves become green, forest and grass fires are liable to be numerous on account of dry weather. 74 fires in the first week of April burned over 1,263 acres. Among the losses was the 17 acre of 14 year old pine trees in the state park near Highland.

Coyotes believed to be declining in numbers. Only 103 were taken in the first quarter of 1941 compared to 209 and 298 in the first three months of 1940 and 1939.

Inland lake levels in north central Michigan will be almost a foot higher this year according to records maintained by the conservation department.

Carcasses of 22 deer that had died of starvation were found near the Ogemaw state game refuge recently by 50 boys and girls from the West Branch school's 4-H clubs.

CCC workers have salvaged 138,000 feet of board lumber and 539 cords of fuel wood of trees blown down last November 11th.

Expected shipments of iron ore from the upper peninsula are approximately 15,000,000 tons this year.

Skunks which have made a nuisance of themselves by burrowing under cottages or farm houses may be driven out by placing a pound of naphthalene or moth balls in or near the den.

All man's worst weapons of war invented by nature. A noted college professor points out astonishing parallels between man's masterpieces of destruction and prehistoric monsters and modern creatures. Don't miss this timely feature in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

held at Hotel Olds, Lansing, were given by Mrs. May E. Stephanon and Mrs. Nellie J. Pearson, who announced the election of Mrs. Stephanon as a district delegate to the Great Camp for Michigan Review to be held at Lansing, June 11, 12, and 13 in observance of the sixty-third anniversary of the organization of the Maccabees.

Remarks were made by Mrs. Kline who also gave instructions in some ritualistic work.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Lois Borton, commander; official reports were given by Mrs. Emily Kuchar.

Following the business meeting with Mrs. Mary Moore and Miss Julie A. Ball acting as entertainment committee for April, bingo was played; prize winners being Mrs. Minnie Parkalew, Mrs. May Stephanon, Mrs. Nellie Pearson, Mrs. Jennie Shannon and Ms. Mary Dyer; Mrs. Bucklew winning the grand prize; ice cream and cookies were served. The next meeting will be held Tuesday after noon May 6.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Wray Hinckley and Mrs. Julie Ball attended the meeting of Webster Grange at Webster Congregational Community house Thursday night when a special program was presented in observance of the thirty-eighth anniversary of the organization of the Grange with about 75 in attendance.

Following brief business session members on Welsh Post Woman's Relief Corps of Ann Arbor presented the Grange with a beautiful silk United States flag in an impressive ceremony, which was accepted by the master, Fred Wheeler. 14 members of the corps were present.

With Mrs. G. Roy Merrill, the lecturer, in charge, the following program was presented: Reading, William Wilson; vocal trio, Mrs. William Wilson, Mrs. N. J. Stephanon and E. Olney Outwater with Edwin Beifus at the piano; reading Albert DeWolf vocal solo, Edwin Beifus; "History of Webster Grange", Miss Julie Ball; Remarks by George English of Chelsea, organizer of the Grange and other installing officers; R. MICHIGAN FARMERS PLAY VITAL PART IN U. S. DEFENSE

LANSING, MICH. — Michigan farmers realize that soil fertility is as vital to the defense of America as fighter planes, anti-aircraft batteries and naval strength, an agricultural bulletin points out.

"The man behind the plow is as important as the man behind the gun," the bulletin declares. "The farmer's importance lies just as much in defending his soil against

SPELLING BEE HERE FRIDAY

This Friday afternoon at 1:30 the Detroit News District Spelling Bee will be held in the Pinckney gym. School champions from all schools in Green Oak, Hamburg, Iosco, Putnam and Unadilla townships are expected to compete. This will be the largest District Bee ever held at Pinckney and the total of entries will be about 35.

Prior to the actual Bee each school champion will be presented with a spelling certificate and a bronze pin bearing the words "Detroit News Spelling Bee Champion."

Mr. Jay Paul Bouchelle, superintendent at Gregory, will serve as the pronouncer and the following teachers have been asked to serve as judges: Joe Basydo, Mrs. Marjorie Sheehan and Miss Helen Bland.

A word list has been sent to each school champion by the Detroit News and the words will be pronounced from this list. However, in case the contest proves unduly prolonged, an unstudied word list prepared by the News Spelling Bee Manager will be introduced. However, it is thought that in most cases will not be necessary to introduce this unstudied word list.

Following is a list of competing schools and the names of the competitors. In some cases the name of the competitor has not been made available.

Green Oak Township, Field School Joe Spirl; Gage School, Janice Hern; Hoister School, Anthony A. Wenzel; Monahan School, Henry C. Wisser; Washburn School, Patricia H. Lorchill.

Hamburg Township: Cordley Lake School, Adolph Knorpp; Hamburg School, Janice E. Green.

Philathea Notes

Our ladies met for the April meeting on Wednesday last with Mrs. R. K. Elliott. About a score of members and friends were present for the pleasant event, Mrs. P. H. Swarouth presiding for the business meeting, and Mrs. Hattie Swarouth conducting a beautiful devotional service. The usual business included roll of members, secretary's report discussions, bills and communication.

The program committee presented a Bible quiz and a group of three of Edgar Guest's poems read by Mrs. Lola Rogers: "My Creed", "The Path That Leads to Home" and "Be a Friend". Mrs. Mayme Sloan read her poem "The Easter Message", and Mrs. Lulu Darrow gave the reading "Drafted," all of these being greatly enjoyed by our group.

The next meeting is to be held with Mrs. Mae Daller, and will be the Quarterly Missionary program, with Mrs. Ina Buzzard in charge. Be prepared for roll call with a scripture verse. The calling committee for this month will be Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Rogers.

On Sunday we enjoyed our usual very helpful study of our Bible passage for the day, which pictured "saved souls in action". The sermon preceding the class hour was a strong plea for the continuance of the spiritual fervor of the Easter season.

A notice was read that a vote would be taken on next Sunday morning concerning the retaining of our pastor for another year.

The "Michigan Mercury" published for Michigan Baraca-Philathea classes, at Detroit, is a live little magazine. Just now it is boosting the annual convention to be held in Los Angeles, July 10-13, 1941.

The state police are receiving much favorable comment on the efficient way in which they handled the Ford Motor Co. strike at Dearborn. Some even go so far as to maintain that instead of establishing a home guard the state police should be increased for this purpose for the sake of economy and efficiency.

Use of the state police at the Ford factory only cost the state $8000 while use of the militia at the General Motors strikes cost $100,000. The state police were on the job in side of a few hours while it took three days to mobilize the state militia at Flint.

Scenes like the above, girls and blossoms, are going to be common in southwestern Michigan in the near future because the annual Blossom Festival at Benton Harbor and St. Joseph is slated for the week of May 4 to 11. There'll be fanfare and festivities, and Queens. But there will also be millions upon millions of blossoms in bloom along the highways in southwestern Michigan.

MICHIGAN FARMERS GIVEN SOIL ADVICE BY COUNTY AGENTS

LANSING, MICH.—How cooperation between Michigan farmers, county agents and the State Agricultural Experiment Station is helping to boost crop yields and reduce production costs is shown in the increasing use of recommended fertilizer grades.

These grades of mixed fertilizer which soil scientists at the experiment station have found most profitable through long periods of trial in actual field tests, are known by county agents throughout the state. In many cases farmers have turned to these grades at the suggestion of their local county agents.

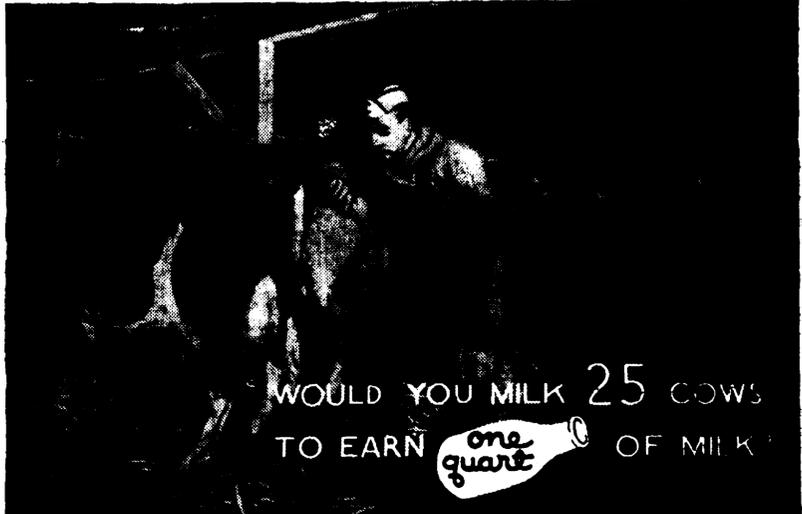

The extent to which Michigan farmers have learned the practical benefits of these recommended grades is illustrated by the experience of last year. In the 1940 season, 91.9 per cent of all fertilizer applied to the soil was confined to analyses on the recommended list, compared with 88.5 per cent the year before.

In other words, only 8 per cent of the fertilizer used represented grades not on the recommended list. At the same time, 96.3 per cent of all fertilizer contained 20 per cent or more plant food.

In Michigan, seventeen different grades of fertilizer are on the recommended list for 1941. These include: 2-12-6; 2-16-8; 2-8-16; 3-12-12; 3-9-18; 4-10-6; 4-16-4; 4-16-8; 5-10-5; 10-6-4; 0-12-12; 0-20-20; 0-8-32; 0-8-24; 0-14-6; 0-10-20; 0-20-10; as well as 20 per cent superphosphate.

"When purchases are confined to analyses on the recommended list," says an agricultural report, "economies result both to the farmer and the fertilizer producer. No need for special grades exists."

WOULD YOU MILK 25 COWS TO EARN one quart OF MILK

Do you know how much you really earn when you milk 25 cows the hard way — by hand? If you know how low the wages are for all that labor, you probably would throw away your milking stool. Because you can let electricity do that job for you — for the price of a single quart of milk!

You can run your electric milker for about five cents per cow per month, on the average.

Farmers who have used electric milking machines for years tell us that they wouldn't waste time milking cows by hand. They say that the time and labor saved by electric milking more than pay for the cost of the machine and the cost of operation. In addition, there are other advantages: More milk, cleaner milk, and better condition of cows.

Your dealer will be glad to show you the latest models in electric milkers. Or for complete information, talk with the Edison Farm Service man.

Children's Wardrobe Problems Made Simple by Home Sewing

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

JACK'S beanstalk of fairy tale days has nothing on little girls when it comes to growing rapidly. They seem to change from day to day, once they pass the doll-like stage of babyhood. It's a problem every mother has to face, but it is surprising how simple a problem it becomes if you can sew. The many needed changes don't upset the most rigid budget if wardrobes are planned carefully.

In the first place cotton fabrics are not only practical and inexpensive but smart as well. This spring, sand-boxes and dancing school alike will see cotton frocks on all of Fortune's favorite tikes. There are innumerable enchanting fabrics that cost so little you can make a six-year-old daughter a complete wardrobe of spring frocks for five or six dollars.

It's smart this season, too, to make children's clothes from the same basic pattern, varying materials and trimmings. This is a blessing for a busy mother. You'll find most children's patterns are so simple this season that you can complete a whole frock in a couple of hours' time.

The princess silhouette, as graceful and becoming to almost every child as its name implies, is particularly favored right now. For playtime, make it of sturdy denim or striped seersucker. Percale and gingham, crisp and trim, are favorites for school, likewise pique, which is simply ideal for practical wear. You can get pique in the new pastels as well as in white. As shown in the illustration, the little girl standing has on a winsome frock made princess style. To add to its charm, it has a cunning zippered front fastening. Mothers find that these gay colored zippers prove a constant source of delight to youngsters.

When party time calls something more dainty, novelty organdy or dotted swiss would be a good choice, and as for dimity, it is more of a favorite than ever. An Alice-in-Wonderland dimity frock is the pride and the joy of the little girl seated in the picture. In size four, this little dress costs but a few cents over a dollar to make, including organdy frills, tiny pearl buttons, pattern and thread. The same pattern in gingham makes a cunning play frock.

A most commendable thing about the frilled organdy panel that adds such a dainty touch to this gown is that it is made detachable so that the frills may be laundered separately. One of the delights of princess frocks is that they also are easy to launder. No gathers, no pleats! Be sure you use boifast thread when you are sewing, so that it won't run or fade. Also, if you want to leave an extra two inches in the hem to take care of rapidly growing legs, boifast thread will leave no mark when the hems are changed.

The pinafore with its apron and bib, so charming for little girls, has been revived, and a very sensible fashion it is. A change-about of guimpes and skirts is a flexible wardrobe note to be remembered when active playtime makes many changes necessary. You can often use last year's outgrown dresses to make the apron and pinafore bib. Use the extra fabric of the sleeves for little ruffles over the shoulders or for a big pocket on the skirt to hold a favorite toy.

A good time to teach youngsters to sew is when you are making their clothes. With a little supervision, leftover pieces of material can be fashioned into doll clothes just like mother's. You can't start them too young, and doll clothes are by far the happiest medium of approach. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

FEMININE headgear usually holds its shape best if it rests right side up on a stand that fits inside the crown, but this is not true of a man's hat. Its dashing lines may be preserved by placing it upside down in a holder.

The man's hat box, shown here, is covered on the outside with maroon and blue cotton print and lined with blue chambray. The lid and the front of the box are hinged with adhesive tape before the covering is pasted on with stiff paste. The stand is made of cardboard, as shown in the sketch, and is covered to match the box. The maroon bias tape edging of the stand is cemented in place in a way that you may find useful in making many other things. The secret is in spreading the cement evenly on both surfaces, letting it

British Coastline

Together with Scotland, Wales, and North Ireland, England has a varied shoreline of more than 5,000 miles to watch against threatened invasion. Near-by independent Eire, across the Irish channel, with approximately 1,000 additional miles of coastline, is also a big worry to Britons, although Eire has declared that its defense will be managed without direct British military aid.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Never scrape kitchen utensils with a knife. Use a stiff brush dipped in scouring powder to remove stains and burns.

If short of eggs when making scrambled eggs for the gang, add a tablespoon of fine bread or cracker crumbs for each egg short—up to half eggs and half crumbs.

To prevent metal salt-shaker tops from corroding, cover the inside of the tops with paraffin.

To keep down the cost of operating a mechanical refrigerator it is important to watch the frost on the cooling unit and defrost as often as it is necessary.

For best results in painting a new brick wall, use a paint made with a Portland cement base. It comes in powder form and is mixed with water.

Never wash a tea strainer or a teapot in soapy water. Wash and rinse in clear water always.

When running rods through your curtains put a thimble on the end of the rod. It will run through more easily.

TIPS to Gardeners

TRIM FLOWER GARDEN

THERE is much value in keeping the flower garden trimmed. Wise gardeners pick bouquets of favorite annuals like Marigold, Zinnia, Petunia, Sweet Peas and Snapdragon with systematic regularity, for the picking promotes continued blooming.

Periodic trimming is not best for such small, low-growing edging flowers as Alyssum. A complete cutting, however, will benefit this type of plant. This treatment may be applied to Ageratum, Linaria, Lobelia, and Nemesia as well as Alyssum.

Pinks, Cynoglossum, and Dwarf Bedding Rust Resistant Snapdragon are grown both for cutting and for garden beauty, but they too will profit by a thoroughgoing "haircut" such as that prescribed for the smaller, edging favorites.

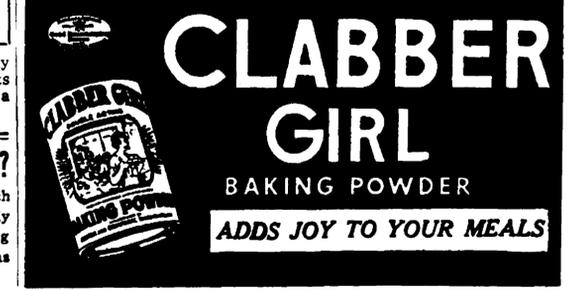

It is advisable to pick the flowers of certain popular perennials when they are in their prime, to prevent their running to seed, and to promote the production of a second crop of blossoms in a single season. Delphinium, Sweet William, Coreopsis, Perennial Dillanthis, and Pyrethrum should be handled in this manner.

Proving That Doctors Don't Know Everything

A doctor's telephone rang when he was trying to go to sleep. The caller was in a wild state of alarm. "My wife, doctor!" he shouted. "It's her appendix. You'd better come round quick!" "Keep her quiet in bed," said the doctor, "and I'll come around tomorrow. She hasn't got appendicitis." The husband became even wilder, however, insisting that the doctor should come at once. "Look here," said the doctor at last, "you know that I took out her appendix three years ago, and nobody has two appendices." "Ever heard of anybody having two wives?" asked the husband.

Twain Hankies

Striking accessory notes are a fashion "must" this season. Your quest for novelty and chic should lead you to the handkerchief counter where you will be rewarded with a real "find" in the way of plaid hankies. The "trick" is to wear these plaids in pairs, as here shown. You may choose these hankies in little pin checks or big bold plaids, with background colors that match or blend with the latest colors. These hankies never fail to add that dash of spice to the always smart, simple suit.

Here is where the lease-lend act should help the farmer.

It is a story of surplus and shortage.

The surplus of wheat in the United States is 380 million bushels, greatest in our history. In South America, wheat is being fed to the livestock; Canada has stored enough wheat to provide for needs of the dominion of Canada and the British Isles for the next two years.

Furthermore, federal triple-A experts concede that the prospect of the 1941 wheat crop, combined with the record carry over, should be enough to take care of our domestic needs for nearly two years if farmers didn't grow another bushel of wheat in that time.

Surplus, Shortage
While surplus corn, estimated at 700 million bushel, can be converted into profits by using it as feed for hogs under a better price for pork products, a possible shortage is in sight for dairy products, meats, poultry and eggs and some fruits and vegetables.

Demand for these products comes from both Britain and from rising domestic consumption due to higher industrial pay rolls.

The government, through its surplus marketing administration, will bolster prices in the above group by going into the commodity market and buying up supplies in an orderly fashion. Supplies could be transferred to the British, Chinese, or Greeks under the lend-lease act, or they could be released upon the domestic market to halt unwarranted, speculative price profiteering.

Will it work? Both the consumer and the farmer stand to benefit if prices can be stabilized and if disastrous inflation can be avoided.

Cost of Living
An example of price control that affects a Michigan industry is the pegging of copper at 12 cents a pound.

If copper had followed the law of supply and demand, as it did in the World War, it would be selling today for 20 to 24 cents a pound.

Even a small rise to 14 or 16 cents a pound would enable Upper Peninsula copper mines to grant wage increases to miners. But it would also boost defense costs, now running at a dizzy pace of 16 billions for the current year. Cost of living as a whole is not much above last year.

According to the March issue of Labor's Monthly Survey, published by the American Federation of Labor, "figures for February show an increase of 1.2 per cent over February, 1940."

Earnings
What is the case of the farmer in comparison to industrial wage-earners and stockholders?

In an economy where leading benefits are going to industry, it is inevitable that rural members of state legislatures would reflect dissatisfaction of the farmer with production-halting strikes in national defense plants.

As for the stockholder, corporation dividends in 1938 were $3,370,000; in 1940, $4,800,000, according to the U. S. department of commerce, even after new taxes have been paid.

(The 1940 dividend distribution was the largest in the United States since 1929.)

As for the wage-earner, the weekly payroll in manufacturing industries for January of this year was $228,926,000, compared with $189,000,000 for January, 1940. The average wage this year was $27.69 compared with 25.51 one year ago and $23.80 two years ago.

Compare these prosperity figures with Michigan's agricultural income for 1939: $271 per capita for a farm population of 830,000, and a total income of $224,675,000. (The national average was $266; income in some southern states is pathetically low.)

Farmer Share
While these figures may seem dull to the consumer, who thinks usually in terms of cost of living, they are important to the Michigan farmer.

Price-pegging of certain food commodities at profitable production levels, accumulation of food reserves to stabilize consumer prices (and prevent speculative profiteering by the middleman), and continuation of federal acreage restriction payments and parity payments all spell one thing: Better times for 830,000 people in Michigan.

The farmer, faced with prospect of good crops in 1941, is due to get a fairer share of the national income. Such is the picture in April.

Tornado

Last Saturday Livingston County experienced a real tornado. The loss in buildings, livestock, and trees was large though the path of the storm was only six hundred feet wide.

However, this is not the only loss. Personal property was scattered for miles. It may have been in the form of important letters, deeds, abstracts stock certificates, bonds, insurance policies or even jewelry. Losses of this type are replaced with difficulty and expense or not at all.

A Safety Deposit Box protects such personal property at small annual cost. We have boxes available in convenient sizes in our vaults.
