

Big Navy Drive Starts Next Week

United States Navy Will Seek to Enlist 25,000 Men by Means of a Mammoth Advertising Campaign to Start Next Week. All Newspapers in the State to be Used

At a meeting of the Michigan Press Association held at Michigan State College, East Lansing, Saturday, the mammoth newspaper advertising drive to stimulate recruiting in the United States was explained to the editors and publishers by Captain Whiting of the United States Navy, stationed at Washington D. C. and Bruce Barton of New York City whose advertising company of Batten, Barton and Durstine has the contract. Mr. Barton is a Republican and one of the prominent men of New York. He was elected congressman in 1938 and ran for U. S. senator in 1940, losing to Senator Mead, Democrat incumbent.

The plan is to run four large advertisements in each paper and if these are successful to follow after a two week interval with four more. The co-operation of the publishers and their patrons are necessary. Navy recruiting organizations will be organized each place where a paper is published and the navy will furnish free moving pictures and speakers. At these meetings the value of a term in the navy will be stressed. There are over 50 trades available to those who enlist, you receive wages while you are learning, get a vacation each year, good food, plenty of clothing, travel around the world and may study for a naval appointment at Annapolis if you desire. Liberal retirement pay is given regular navy men.

For those who do not want to enlist for the full term, the naval reserve is available. If they enlist here they will be released immediately after the existing emergency.

Other articles on this subject will appear each week in this paper in the weeks to come. Already there have been three enlistments from this section this year, Bill Drown, William Lamb and Gerald Darrow being in the navy at present. Stephen Aschenbrenner also applied for enlistment but was rejected.

Pinckney Beats South Lyon for OWL Title

Has Easy Time Winning From South Lyon Here Last Wednesday. Reserves See Plenty of Action

Pinckney high school ran their string of victories to four last Wednesday when they defeated South Lyon here 13 to 0. They could probably have doubled the score if they had tried. Pinckney started out as usual at top speed, gaining at will through the South Lyon line. All backs took turns carrying the ball. They reached the one yard line and Ludtke went over for the touch down. Bill Kuhn kicked the goal. Then the Pinckney reserves began to come in and at times they outnumbered the regulars. They played a good defensive game but did not gain consistently enough to score. The score at half was Pinckney 7, South Lyon 0.

In the second half the reserves again saw considerable action. Pinckney started throwing passes and completed a number for short gains. In the third quarter they intercepted two South Lyon passes and reached the 20 yard line. Here Kuhn threw a pass over the goal line which Paul Young caught for a touchdown. Kuhn missed the kick for the extra point.

In the last quarter South Lyon fumbled the ball and Pinckney recovered. They reached the five yard line where Pinckney fumbled and South Lyon recovered thus ending the scoring chances.

The Pinckney team, despite the fact that their lineup was at times almost wholly composed of reserves looked better than in any previous time this year. They completed numerous forward passes and also ran the ends successfully.

Friday night they go to Ann Arbor to play a night game with the Ann Arbor high school reserves. They will concede plenty of weight to Ann Arbor. It has been five years since Pinckney has beaten this team. A large delegation will accompany the team there.

County Road Commissions and Highway Dept. To Fight License Plate Fee Reduction

Enemy bedfellows together in the latest anti-tax movement at Lansing are state and county highway departments. It is an unusual situation.

As a few sheriffs eye the state police, so some county road commissions have watched the state highway department at Lansing with envy and occasional antagonism. Like the Hartfield-McCoy feud in old Kentucky, the highway battle has been long standing. Field marshals have been Louis Webber, better known as "Doc" Webber for the county commissions, and the state highway commissioner - Governor Van Wagoner until recently and now the astute G. Donald Kennedy.

Because many upstate road commissions are Republican and the state highway department has been Democratic in personnel, the contest has taken on a political aspect at times - invariably on election days. That makes the present lovefest the more newsworthy to record.

Poor Motorist

Taxed by state and federal governments for years, motorists were recently given another defense levy of $5 per year be added to the state and local licenses and gasoline and oil taxes.

However, automobile sales are being curtailed by the government, all in the name of national defense. The excise tax has been doubled on new car sales. Automobile dealers aren't altogether happy about the whole thing.

Then came a dashing hero to the rescue, the Michigan Automobile Dealer's Association which proposes immediate relief to dealers and the motorist in the form of a $14,000,000 slash in revenue to state and county highway departments. This saving would be effected by reduction of motor vehicle license fees for automobiles and trucks.

"Extravagance"

In the role of crusader is Frank Heck, manager of the auto dealer's association. He has put the issue in the following sentence.

"It is a command from the voters to reduce extravagant government expenditures."

Nelson Brown, business manager of the Ingham County News at Mason, and son of Auditor General Vernon J. Brown, approved the tax-cut plan editorially with this comment: "Michigan had roads before we got the habit of providing $65,000,000 a year to the state highway department Michigan can still have an excellent road system if the aggregate is reduced to $50,000,000 where it was until 1940. The only way the reduction can be made is by the people."

tory there have been but two successful world powers. One was the ancient Roman empire and the other Great Britain. They were able to get nations they defeated to accept their rule by proving to them that they had more liberty, culture and advantages under them than they did under their own rulers, most of whom were dictators. Hitler seems unable to put this idea over among his seized countries in Europe.

CURRENT COMMENT

"By Ye. Editor"

The comments on the recent anti-Semitic speech of Col. Lindbergh were many and various but there was one angle that each and every commentator seems to have overlooked or failed to consider. There are many persons prejudiced against the Jews and perfectly willing to put the blame on them for the ills of the world. We have been told by many that while they were completely opposed to Hitler and his objectives, they had no use for the Jews and that Hitler was justified in taking measures against them.

While they did not approve the programs and massacres carried on against the Jews, they thought that something should be done. On just what this should take the form of they were extremely hazy. Now, just why do certain people have this attitude. It is the centuries old prejudice existing since the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. They are charged with His death. But we doubt if the case against them even here is conclusive. His death was ordered by a Roman governor and His execution was carried out by Roman soldiers, still no odium was ever carried by the Romans on this ground. It is true that the Jewish priesthood clamored for His death and incited a mob to join them in this, but the Jew had no power to order or perform executions and without Roman aid it never would have happened. Also, only a small part of the Israelites were concerned in this. Blaming the whole race for the death of Christ is as silly as blaming the people of Michigan for a lynching in Louisiana. However, the prejudice exists and probably always will in some quarters.

Unscrupulous rulers have found this same prejudice handy as a smoke screen to detract the attention of the people from their own troubles. We read that Richard the Lion Hearted, of England, financed his crusade to regain the Holy Land by extorting money from the wealthy Jews of London, some of whom he put to the torture. This was also a favorite sport of the other kings of Europe. The Jew was considered lower than a dog and the prey of any ruthless person. Hundreds of years of such persecution left its marks on the Jew, but, wonder of wonders, he not only survived but he prospered. That is the present grounds for prejudice today. People, some of them, believe this prosperity was attained by foul means, and point to the fact that in many branches of industry, such as the movies, radio, the press, finance, etc., the Jew is in supreme control. This they resent, and many people who should know better are perfectly willing to blame the Jew for the ills of the world. Lindbergh and his advisors know of this anti-Jewish current and undoubtedly the anti-Semitic remark of the Colonel was made for the express purpose of playing to this group.

The Detroit News remarks that we would like to see Senator Nye endorse something, even if it was only a good brand of cigarettes. The senator reminds us of of a fine looking horse that an uncle of ours once owned. This was a wonderful animal but it was balky double. That is the status of Senator Nye and also Senator Wheeler. They must be the leader or they won't play ball. This reminds us of a story attributed to former President Coolidge. It is said that he was told that Senator Borah, now dead, was out horseback riding. The senator had long Len a thorn in his side and Coolidge said, on hearing of the equestrian activities he said "Is the senator going the same direction as the horse?"

According to the military experts the end of the German-Russian war is in sight for the reason that the Russian tanks, planes, guns and ammunition are becoming exhausted. This was prophesied at the start and only British and American supplies have kept the conflict going as long as it has. Still, if Hitler does succeed in overcoming every country in Europe, his work will only be begun. To succeed he must render these conquered countries willing to accept his rule and co-operate with him. So far none, with the possible exception of part of France has shown a disposition to do so. So far in the world's his-

NEW YORK.—It has been only in the last year or two that this country began to realize that the Germans had done a vast amount of research and organization work, Blueprinting Ways And Means of the Dictators His Job over many years, in preparing for their world aggression. Devising ways and means to meet it on many fronts, military and political, our government belatedly discovers Dr. Calvin Bryce Hoover, dean of Duke university, who was away out in front in studying dictators' techniques, trying to understand them and find out what to do about them.

Dr. Hoover is an important member of Col. William J. ("Wild Bill") Donovan's new diplomatic brain trust, which recruits men of specialized knowledge who have disclosed a timely awareness of the more or less declared war against civilization.

Colonel Donovan's title of coordinator of information does not reveal the exciting character of his bureau which is in reality a somewhat mysterious ideological and mystical Scotland Yard, studying the origins and techniques of Nazi power, evolving plans to meet it in its under-surface penetration everywhere in the world, recruiting against the dictators some of the same psychological forces which they employed.

So far as the public record shows, Dr. Hoover scored a clean beat on our lavishly staffed state department in trying to understand dictators' intentions and make an accurate appraisal of their intentions and possible outreach. It was in 1931 that he wrote "The Economic Life of Soviet Russia"; in 1933, "Germany Enters the Third Reich"; and in 1937, "Dictators and Democracies." Through the pre-war years of planetary complacency, he was writing, in his books and articles, an outline of Adolf Hitler as "genius and fanatic."

These studies were not philippic against Nazism. They were searching and studious inquiries into the origins and inducements of dictatorship. They now provide invaluable analyses of the Nazi cultural, economic, military formula for world conquest.

Dr. Hoover, born in Berwick, Ill., in 1897, was conditioned to patient, methodical work by working on farms and railroads in his youth. He attended Monmouth college and received his Ph.D. degree at Wisconsin university in 1925. When he was an undergraduate at the former school, he joined the National Guard and served two years in France in the World war, taking part in two battles. He joined the Duke university faculty in 1925, becoming a full professor of economics in 1930.

In the above clinical studies, Dr. Hoover does not find dictatorships blue-printed in any patterns of social evolution. They can be fended off if we're "up and at 'em" without losing too much time—but, above all, they must first be understood.

CALEB S. BRAGG, manufacturer of the new plastics-and-mahogany airplane, which meets successful tests at Roosevelt field, was the matinee idol of early-day Once Cut Records In Airplanes, Now auto racing Cuts Cost of 'Em and aviation. A handsome chap, rich, venturesome and a Yale man. In 1912, he won the Fourth International Grand Prix automobile race, and was awarded the Vanderbilt cup, by covering 409 miles at 69.3 miles per hour. In that day, a mile a minute had been put down as the limit of safety for automobiles.

Newspapers threw a fit over Mr. Bragg passing this deadline and living to tell the tale. Time flitters on. In 1918 he left the country breathlessly by flying from Dayton to Washington, 430 miles, in 2 hours and 50 minutes. In 1919 he set a new altitude record of 20,000 feet for seaplanes.

He was born in Cincinnati in 1888, the son of a manufacturer and businessman, and was graduated from Yale in 1908.

He is a former head of the Early Birds, an organization of aviators who flew before 1918. At one time he beat Barney Oldfield in a race in California. He had the crowds whooping for him whenever he entered a race. In 1920 he helped finance the Glenn L. Martin company and moved into less exciting but no less exacting details of scientific plane-building. He and many engineers think he has pioneered new strength and economy in airplane construction with his soybean job—or whatever it is.

Farm Implement Industry Will Try 'Allocation' Plan

Manufacturers of Agricultural Machinery Placed Under Experimental System for Obtaining Necessary Raw Materials.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

By the time these words are printed the farmer ordering a tractor or a dairy machine is going to be able to line up at the counter right beside the generals and the admirals making their purchases of tanks and ships.

This is the interpretation that can be put on the remark made by Donald Nelson, head of the priorities division of the OPM, to the effect that he is going to make the agricultural implement industry a guinea pig in an experiment to remove the bottleneck which is preventing non-defense industries from getting the raw materials they need to operate.

Nelson admits that "priority lists" are not worth the paper they are written on in many cases and that a system of "allocation" is to be tried out.

"Priorities"—"allocation"—wars always create new words as well as new meanings for old ones. In this case the word "priorities" covers, if not a multitude of sins and headaches, at least a new meaning. When it became evident that there were not enough raw materials to supply defense needs and civilian needs both, the priority system was devised.

The priority division of the Office of Production Management was set up to decide which order for which raw material should be delivered to what manufacturer. The materials most essential to defense production were rated with an A, and graded in that category with numbers according to their importance. For example, A-1 material topped the list. The highest rating for civilian defense materials was B-1, while others were fitted into alphabetical classifications and numbered in line with their significance in the defense program.

This was the priority system. But it did not always work. For instance, the manufacturer of a dairy machine requiring some essential product like aluminum or rubber might have the highest civilian rating, but when he tried to get delivery for that product he found that all he had was the letter "B" and the number "1" on a sheet of paper, and you can't make dairy machines out of paper.

In Civilian Industries Also

This was happening in many civilian industries. It was also happening in defense industries. In the latter cases the system was changed so that certain defense manufacturers could get certain raw products (aluminum, copper, synthetic rubber, etc.) regardless of priority rating but by "allocation." In other words, the government ordered a specific amount of steel or copper delivered directly to the manufacturer.

And now the farm implement industry is to get its raw materials by the same method—allocation—if the plan being prepared by the priorities division at this writing is carried out.

The priorities division explains that this is to be an experiment and that it is being tried so that experience will be gained for applying the same method of providing raw materials for other civilian industries. This is, of course, a vital problem since thousands are being thrown out of work because non-defense industries are closing for want of supplies.

However, there is another story behind the story of the guinea pig. It probably began with a terse remark by Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of the Office of Agricultural Defense Relations. He said:

"The priority system works as well as writing a check on a bank with no funds in it."

He was referring to the priority lists in general but he was thinking specifically about the farm implement industry and thinking about it in connection with the new goals set for farm production. For what can the poor farmer do when he is asked to produce more with less labor—if he can't buy the machines he is willing to pay for—if the manufacturer can't get the essential materials to build those machines? Donald Nelson admitted that priority lists were not worth the paper they were written on.

Before Mr. Nelson made his admission, Dr. Townsend and a few other officials—a few hundred before long—in the department of agriculture got busy. The inter-bureau committees made a survey of the mechanical requirements of farm production as set forth in the new goals in the food for freedom campaign. This was in July.

Survey of Requirements

The department surveyed the needs in packaging and processing machinery—machines to take care of the products after they were raised. And the county agents went right to the farmer himself and asked him what he would need to take care of the extra production—bearing in mind that he would be short of human hands.

A farmer with sons and hired help in the army or working in defense industries might make up for their loss if he substituted another tractor for a four-horse hitch. Self-feeders help, too, and machines for handling the products, like hayhoists—and, since the accent in the farm program is now on dairy products, dairy machines are important. The latter take a lot of defense-precious aluminum, nicked steel and rubber.

The poultry business was not so much concerned, for human hands have to do almost everything for the hens that the hens won't do for themselves.

But how to get the machines? The manufacturers were all tooled up and ready to go. They were at the top of the priority lists—but there were no priorities.

The matter was laid before defense officials.

Next Donald Nelson, in charge of priorities and once dependent largely on the farmer for a living (he has been loaned to the government by Sears, Roebuck), started in to make good that "check on a bank with no funds in it." He began to plan allocations instead of priorities.

Washington's Preview Of Winter

For a while the other day, Washington drew a gray curtain over its bright autumn skies and gave us a preview of winter.

It started with that painful moment which, I daresay, you, too, have experienced oft in the chilly night when after dreaming you were stranded on an ice cake in the Polar sea in your shorts or something even shorter, you awake to find that the unfaithful blanket has left your bed. That happened to me. And when I had finally curled up to dream of warmer climes the alarm went off. It was still dark. So I let the clock buzz and tried to go back to sleep. It ought not to be dark, I reasoned. It hadn't been dark at that hour for months.

When I reached the street I found a thick gray sky above, there was a chill in the air that set even Washington's leisurely pedestrians scurrying—myself included. It did feel like winter. And when I had passed my second boarding-house cat, I was sure. These cats take their early outdoor loaf while the basement dining rooms are full. I suppose some of the boarders are subject to catalepsy or catallergy or whatever it is that makes people squeal and wiggle when a persistent pussy rubs their leg. Anyhow, these two particular cats are always loafing in the same spot in front of their respective boarding houses as I pass. Usually they merely look bored. This time they looked cold and bored. They were hunched up, like tight accordions—a chilly cat always looks as though it were trying to pull its chin into its own fur collar.

Another sign of the false winter was an empty bench in front of the Masonic Temple. Usually it is full of girls waiting for the pal who picks them up and takes them to work, or at worst a late bus. It is a convenient resting place in the summer under the shadow of a great sphinx. This time there was only one sitter. She may have had something on her mind—or elsewhere—that warmed her soul and prevented the cold stone from affecting the, shall we say, situation.

There was one more sign—the evergreens preened their needles with a look of satisfaction that they cannot muster when they have to compete with maple and magnolia.

Rather Far-Fetched Was This Relationship

"You say, madam," said the barrister to the woman in the witness box, "that the defendant is a sort of relation of yours. Will you explain what you mean by that—just how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, it's like this. His first wife's cousin and my second husband's first wife's aunt married brothers named Jones, and they were own cousins to my mother's own aunt. Then, again, his grandfather's on my mother's side, were second cousins, and his stepmother married my husband's stepfather, and his brother Joe and my husband's brother, Henry, married twin sisters. I've always looked on him as a sort of cousin."

If you have a relative or friend in the service and have any doubts about what to send him as gifts, your problems are over. The service men have solved it for you by naming tobacco as their first choice in gifts. Actual sales records show the favorite cigarette with men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard is Camel. Prince Albert is the popular smoking tobacco. With these preferences in mind, local tobacco dealers feature Camels by the carton and Prince Albert in the pound tin as ideal gifts to the men in the service from the folks back home. —Adv.

The team of Ed Dwyer ran away here Monday but was caught before much damage was done.

What kills our wild ducks? Squirrels and crows worst enemies of eggs, fish gobble the ducklings, and reckless drainage destroys others, so that only 40,000,000 of 140,000,000 survive. Read of this appalling destruction of wild-life and what is being done to stop it, as told in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

CONSERVATION NOTES

Black ducks and mallards are the principal ducks shot although the presence of greenwing and redhead show the ducks are going south much earlier this year.

Beavers in this state yielded a fur crop of $85,000 this year.

Hunters, by getting a permit may hold deer or bear in cold storage for a period of six months.

The Minden City wildlife restoration area in Sanilac county now includes 2600 acres of tax delinquent land.

Hunters are urged to use more retrievers to increase the recovery of wounded birds.

12 lakes were added to the trout lake list this year and eight were removed. 21 lakes were made pike lakes and 20 lakes were designated in which minnows may not be used.

The pheasant season is expected to reach its peak this week when hundreds of thousands of hunters will invade the fields carrying yellow back tags. Squirrels may also be shot. Over a million pheasants were shot last year.

All roads will be patrolled and hunters trying to bring home illegal game and stolen chickens or other animals will find themselves in trouble. Permits are also required to bring Christmas trees in from the country this year.

The cisco season opens October 15 and extends to December 31. Cisco netting is permitted in six counties and a $1 license permits their spearing in others. This is the only way they can be caught and they will not bite a hook.

Muskrat trappers are advised not to let expected high prices for furs cause them to deplete the breeding stock. Proper handling of the pelt will also mean a better price.

Mr. and Mrs. William Darrow and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cavanaugh of Jackson spent the week end at the Great Lakes Naval Training station near Chicago. Their son, Gerald, who is in the navy, returned home with them on a ten-day furlough.

The being of grace must go before the increase of it; for there is no growth without life, and no building without a foundation. —Lavington

What we need most is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love and good deeds. —Mary Baker Eddy

HOW DOES INDIVIDUAL THRIFT HELP NATIONAL DEFENSE

You hear nowadays about the importance of thrift to defense. Just how does it help? First, it provides funds which banks can lend for defense purposes. Second, it retards the dangers of inflation by diverting funds from consumer purchases. Third, it provides reserves to help cushion the post-war economic shock. We urge thrift as sound for individuals and the nation. Your account is welcome here.

NO SUNDAY HUNTING

In Livingston County

All Violators Will Be Prosecuted :

St. Mary's Church

The special offerings this month are in devotion to the Missions, for the work of those whose lives are devoted to God's work. The instructions this week are on the second sorrowful mystery of the rosary or the crowning of thorns. Among the feast of this week is St. Edwards. Reflections from his life we learn that David longed to build a temple for God's service. Solomon reckoned it his glory to accomplish the work. But we who have had God made flesh dwelling in our tabernacles, ought to think no time, no zeal, no treasures too much to devote to the splendor and beauty of a Christian church. And St. Gaul's feast, Oct. 16, teaches us that "the denial of self is, then, the road to perfection"

Among the prayers publicly and privately offered we are accustomed to the Litany of Loretto and the Salve Regina. The Litany of Loretto is a form of prayer in which the most glorious titles are given the mother of God and her intercession is unceasingly implored. The Litany of Loretto takes its origin and name from the place of pilgrimage in Italy, Loretto, where the holy house of Nazareth now stands. In this litany first of all God is called upon for mercy, as in the Kyrie Eleison of the Mass. This is followed by the invocator of the Holy Trinity. Then the Blessed Mother of God is invoked, and her intercession is besought. These invocations may be divided into six groups:

1. The first three invocations express her special prerogatives, her sanctity, her divine maternity, her Immaculate Virginity.
2. Then her perfections as a mother are enumerated; Mother of Christ
3. She is next extolled in virtue of her virginity; Virgin most prudent etc.
4. Her glorious glories are then depicted under a number of figures and types, mirror of justice, etc.
5. She is then shown in her relation to the church militant; health of the sick etc.
6. And finally in her relation to the church triumphant; queen of angels, etc. At the conclusion of the litany, confiding in the mediation of our advocate we appeal to her Divine Son, beseeching Him to spare, to hear, to have mercy upon us. Several of the invocations have been added by the Holy See in the course of centuries; for instance, "Help of Christians" after the victory over the Turks; "Queen conceived Without Original Sin", after the proclamation of the Dogma of the Immaculate Conception; and recently "Queen of the Most Holy Rosary", on the introduction of the custom of reciting the rosary in public during the month of October. An indulgence of 300 days may be gained for each recital of this litany. The Salve Regina, or Hail, Holy Queen as it is called, was composed in 1009 by Blessed Herman, and in 1146 the illustrious St. Bernard added to it the sweet words: "O Clement, O Sweet Virgin Mary"

Among the visitors to Pinckney Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schmidt, of St. Jude Parish, Detroit Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dunn, executives employed at the U. of D. and their family; Miss Jean Callahan of Detroit, all of whom were guests at Lakeland. Among the intentions for the sick are Genevieve Russell and John T. Dunn and for the faithful departed. You are requested to remember the late Fr. James Melling whose funeral took place from St. Mary's church in Jackson last Wednesday. Father Melling was 49 years of age when ordained to the priesthood, and lived 30 years in the priesthood. He is survived by one brother, John, and three sisters of Jackson, also several nieces and nephews of Jackson. May his soul rest in eternal peace.

Visits and meditations on the Altar. "All men owe a great debt of reparation to our vilified and insulted God. As grateful children, we should do something to console our injured Master; we should tenderly as Veronica wipe away the blood from His face and pray Him that all sacrifices and iniquities may be stayed and the hearts of men may be touched by His love and patience in the Blessed Sacrament."

SCHOOL NOTES

SOCIAL NEWS
Well, here we are back to school after an enjoyable four-day vacation. Our victory was well celebrated by around 60 students participating in a "Snake Dance" from the football field, going through town and over to the school. The traffic was blocked for half a mile, thus making some people angry but others enjoyed it and helped us celebrate our victory.
The victory dance was well-attended last Wednesday evening. All of the football team were there, tried, but happy, also our coaches were there sitting on the side lines with big smiles.

JOTS ON LAST YEAR'S GRADS

Earl Berquist is employed in Brighton assisting in building the state highway garage. We see you stick pretty close to Pinckney. We wonder why.

SENIOR NEWS
The seniors did very good on the dance Wednesday night. They made a profit of $7.89, which was more than expected. It was their first night at selling sweet cider and the demand was greater than anticipated.
Boys, when are you going to give the girls that party.

JUNIOR NEWS
The junior class has decided to give an all-high Halloween party. The party will be a masquerade and prizes will be given. Games and dancing will be part of the evenings.
Juniors made a profit of $9.75 last Wednesday at the game through candy sales. They thank you for buying from them.
The sixth grade received a letter from a sixth grade boy in the Auburn high school, which they answered promptly.
The seventh grade science class has collected 17 different kinds of insects in preparation for the study of that unit which occurs in December.
Room 2 has a fine new table for its aquarium and a new shelf for plants. The children are discussing plans for their Halloween party and soon definite committees will be planned to take the various responsibilities.

NOTES ON THE GAME
On Friday, October 8, Pinckney played against South Lyon for the championship in the Owl League.
On the afternoon of the game the high school had great enthusiasm. The moral support on behalf of the spectators was very good and this crowd was exceptionally large.
In the first quarter the Pinckneyites were held scoreless but in the second quarter Pinckney flashed back with a touchdown. The third quarter brought another well cheered touchdown bringing the score to 13 to 0 at the end of the third quarter. In the fourth quarter many Pinckney substitutes were sent in but still the South Lyon team was held at 13 to 0 throughout the remainder of the last period. The school received a large handsome trophy and each of the players receives probably a small gold football in recognition of their playing for the Pinckney team.
Next Friday, Oct. 15, Pinckney will try to defeat Ann Arbor high reserves at Ann Arbor. This game will be held under the lights and should be a very exciting game because Ann Arbor second team has not been defeated in two games while Pinckney's team has not been defeated in 4.

Some of the reserve players made an excellent showing. Ross Lamb, freshman, caught three passes and intercepted a South Lyon pass. Jack Haines went in at end and played a rip-snorting game. Meyer, Doolittle, Carver, Gentile and Baughn gave an excellent account of themselves in the line. Don Griffith subbed for Plummer at center successfully.

As a number of Dexter scouts were present Pinckney did not use any trick plays beyond trying a couple of triple passes.

Pinckney completed more passes during this game than in all previous games played.

Kuhn favored an injured ankle and consequently was willing to let others do the ball carrying.

Following the game, the student body started a snake dance from the field and down the pavement to the business section. This stopped all traffic but most of the motorists took it in good humor and detoured via Unadilla St. One car driver became angry and slapped a couple of students. However, he was shaken up rather rudely and told to get back into his car by some of the older fans.

Well, this is the halfway mark and the record is clear so far but the worst is yet to come. Ann Arbor Reserves, Dexter and Stockbridge will all be hard and Hartland has also been coming back strong. Stockbridge beat Fowlerville 20 to 0 Wednesday and is said to be going strong.

GAINS NEW HONOR

George M. Welch, of Detroit, president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, was elected president of the Telephone Pioneers of America today at the organization's 20th annual general assembly.
Welch succeeds N. R. Powley of San Francisco, president of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. It is the second time the honor has come to Michigan, the late Burch Foraker, former president of the Michigan Bell, having been named head of the international organization in 1931.

Welch, who takes office January 1, has been in the telephone business 37 years, starting as a stenographer, for what is now the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company at Minneapolis. He became a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America 16 years ago.

Coming to Michigan at Detroit in 1908, as contract agent for what is now the Michigan Bell, he rapidly rose through the ranks. He was made general commercial superintendent four years later and became general manager in 1916. In 1920 he was given the additional title of vice-president, and was made president of the company in 1934, succeeding Foraker.

The Telephone Pioneers of America has a membership of more than 56,000 and is made up of men and women who have been in the telephone work for 21 years or more. Its membership includes employees of independent companies as well as those of the Bell System.

SUES DANVILLE TELEPHONE COMPANY

The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has started suit against M. M. Marden, owner of the Michigan Telephone and Telegraph Co., which operates at Danville, for $1400 in telephone toll charges which have not been paid, it alleges. The Danville company makes long distance calls over the Bell lines, as it has no other means of outside communication. The Bell Co. states this was the only course open to it except to cut off the service, which it was loath to do.

PHILATHEA NOTES

Baraca-Philathea's birthday is still to come, October 20, when the movement will be 51 years old. Our own Philathea class celebrated on Wednesday last on the occasion of our regular monthly meeting for October. The pleasant function was held at the home of Mrs. Ina Buzzard with a good attendance of members and friends and we are always glad to welcome guests, both at this business and social meeting and on Sunday in our class room.

Mrs. Dora Swarhout presided, opening the meeting by class singing of "What A Friend We Have In Jesus". Mrs. Edith Peck beautifully conducted the Devotionals including the reading of "Philemon" and prayer. Members responded to the roll call with Bible verses and Mrs. Meda Henry read the minutes of the last meeting. After a business discussion, the calling committee reported about 35 calls made. This was a good record by Mrs. Lila Mercer and Mrs. Weltha Vail. For next time the president appointed Mrs. Lola Rogers and Mrs. Meda Henry for calling and Mrs. Theresa Coyle and Mrs. Weltha Vail as program committee. This will be the regular missionary meeting, the first of this church year.

The program for last Wednesday afternoon was in charge of three members, Mr. Pauline Vedder, who contributed a delicious birthday cake, Mrs. Vedder Sr. who conducted an instructive Baraca-Philathea quiz, and Clolla Fish, who gave a short history of the founding, ideals and growth of the Baraca-Philathea movement. During the afternoon a letter was read from our State Secret Service Treasurer, Mrs. Myrtle Bates, of Detroit, who asked for definite prayers by our class concerning the coming State Convention at Muskegon. A pleasing feature after the bountiful co-operative luncheon was the birthday greeting in honor not alone of Baraca-Philathea's birthday, but that of all our members who celebrate their birthdays in October. Among these are the president, Mrs. Dora Swarhout, the secretary, Mrs. Meda Henry, the treasurer, Mrs. Millie Elliott, the teacher, Mrs. Jennie Kellenberger and the Ladies' Aid president, Mrs. Inez Buzzard. If there are others please come and enroll.

Mrs. Lonnie VanSlambrook is entertaining the members of the Ladies' Aid on Thursday of this week at her farm home. Potluck luncheon at noon and election of officers.
On Sunday, following a most inspirational sermon by our Pastor, we had an equally inspiring class lesson period, with Mrs. Kellenberger teaching and everybody contributing to the discussion. One theme of the lesson seemed to be "Jesus, The Patron Evangelist" and "Zacchaeus, One Type of the Seeker." There were more fine points than we could cover in a short lesson period, so you'll want to be on hand for a companion lesson next Sunday - "The Holy Spirit, Our Helper". John 3:5-8; Romans 8:26-28; Gal. 5:22-26.

Meeting Trouble
Never meet trouble halfway. It will come soon enough; and then you will meet it where God meant you should meet it, and where He will help you to bear it.—C. H. Spurgeon.

PROBABLY "full credit for chic" won't be listed on college report cards this fall, but it's one course that is getting plenty of "cramming" the country over, as college girls settle down to the routine of classroom and campus life.

According to a recognized authority who annually advises hundreds of college girls on how to buy and how to wear clothes, as part of the functionalized "how to live" curriculum on a Midwestern campus, grooming has a significant influence on the adolescent girl. There is a relationship between success and a feeling of well-being which springs from the knowledge that one's best self is being expressed through the proper habits of posture, dress and general bearing.

"Wardrobe rhythm" is the way this authority describes the proper assemblage of clothes that are adequate for all occasions. Being well dressed on a modest budget is a matter of wardrobe integrating. One of the weaknesses of the average American girl is that she buys a one-occasion dress or an eye-catching number on the spur of the moment without giving any thought to how it will fit into her general wardrobe scheme.

The girl who wants to assemble a wardrobe that will be adequate for all occasions should decide on a color scheme for the season and stick to it. She should select frocks, ensembles, suits, coats and accessories that are interchangeable, meanwhile being sure that a dress or ensemble is suitable for wear on a variety of occasions. Variety can be achieved with bright belts, bags and carefully selected costume jewelry.

If you are planning a basic fall and winter wardrobe on a limited budget you might include a gray or tan herringbone tweed man-tailored jacket with a matching bias-cut skirt, a campus coat of bright red and gray or tan and green wool plaid lined with gabardine for general utility wear, a wool "dressy" dress for dates and those "special" occasions, a wool reefer in gray or brown to harmonize with the skirt of the suit or to be worn over the wool dress and a separate blouse-and-skirt dinner dress. These items, with a collection of sweaters and blouses, will keep you looking smart on all occasions.

Three simple "date" dresses that will major in chic for all more or less dress-up occasions are shown in the illustration. For "five and after" the "good little black dress" is ever a loyal standby. The tea dress of black crepe, left, with its long torso line accented by scallops and its American beauty red velvet bow at the neckline, should win high honors. The tricorne hat adds just the right note of dash.

Off to the movies? Wear the "date special" shown to the right and you'll steal the show. It's tan with brown passementerie across the square neckline and around the waist. And the skirt—well, it looks as though the dirndl is here to stay. A characteristic feature of this season's fashions is the importance attached to light wool daytime dresses in oatmeal, tan, beige, muted greens and dusky browns. The emerald green taffeta dinner dress in the center, above, should be a "come" signal for the stagline. The frock with its slimming torso line ending in a peplum will be voted an ideal basic evening dress.

Feature Ensembles In Costume Jewelry

It is a season of pretentious, important-looking costume jewelry. The massive sort predominates, such as huge wide bracelets with massive necklaces. Great clusters of colored stones or rhinestones form spectacular lapel pieces. Topaz and amber are in high fashion, to wear with autumn browns.

The newest effect comes from three separate pieces, varying in size but otherwise identical, that clip to dress or coat lapel in groups. Matched to these are earrings, bracelets and often finger rings.

Jet Gives New Sparkle To All Black Ensemble

For the sophisticate who likes to "say it" in terms of smart apparel there is an avenue of approach that leads directly to heights of modernism. It is the "black as a crow" ensemble that is being exploited this season among the ultra fashionable. To achieve this your black crepe or jersey dress is flecked with jet, intensified with jet passementerie at throat and sleeves. A tiny jet hat with a snood at the back or a drape carries out the theory of seductive black. Gloves are black, and wispy sheer black silk hose are worn with black suede shoes. The hand bag is either jet embellished or of classic suede to match the shoes.

Use Lace Trim

Now that peplums and tiers and flounces and overskirt effects are in fashion, designers are enhancing them with edgings of either black or white lace. Lace yokes are also being featured. Removable, very sheer lace gumpes are sold at the neckwear counters.

Blouses! You can't have enough of them! Here is a beauty. It is one of the most stunning campus originals brought out this season. It has long full sleeves, a round, high neck, fly-front fastening and double button-over pockets that are very new. It carries a convincing message of "style" told in terms of sophisticated simplicity. The colors are luscious pastels to contrast with dark fall clothes.

Ton of Scrap Iron

According to an estimate by army ordnance officers, a ton of scrap iron collected in this country could be made into: One 75-millimeter field-gun, or the carriage for such a gun, or 12 machine guns, or nine 500-pound demolition bombs, or one 2,000-pound, 16-inch battleship-piercing shell.

MICHIGAN STATE MIRROR NEWS

Webber Sees Danger

Webber, executive director of the Michigan Association of Road Commissioners and Engineers, thinks otherwise. The tax reduction proposal, affecting both state and county highway departments, was in Webber's judgement: "An ill-advised plan that spells disaster for county road systems."

To Webber, the villain in the plot is Herrick, his fellow association executive.

Webber's argument goes something like this: County road systems spend $12,000,000 a year less than they did in the 1920's, while the state highway department has about $6,000,000 less, despite the fact that traffic has increased. Furthermore, there are still $15,500,000 of Covert road bonds outstanding among the counties, and it will take at least six more years to retire them.

Add to this the prospect of a decline in gasoline tax revenue and automobile license revenue, because of the defense curtailment of automobile production, and the license fee reduction would spell ruin for road-makers and road-keepers, he insists.

And so when the auto dealers bill went before the state legislature, which reconvened last Thursday at Lansing, it met united opposition from both state and county highway forces.

Defense Needs

That the tax plan will be opposed by the state highway department under the leadership of Commissioner Kennedy is an obvious statement of fact. It will be fought vigorously on a basis of constituting a threat to national defense as well as a blow to the tourist and farm industries of the state.

Keynoting the 1941-42 needs were addresses delivered recently by Governor Van Wagoner and Commissioner Kennedy before the American Association of State Highway Officials, meeting in Detroit.

"In addition to building highways serving our new national defense industries," Kennedy is quoted in "The State Democrat", publication of the Democrat State central committee, "highway officials are now confronted with the gigantic task of coping with the tremendous rise in traffic brought about by the steadily rising industrial activity."

And there you have it: Good roads are vital to good defense; anything that threatens to weaken good roads will also weaken our defense. Such will be the answer. The flag will be waved again, and taxpayers will be exhorted to save the country.

Should the legislature decline to do anything about it, then the auto dealers contemplate the circulation of petitions for a referendum in 1942. You may have a chance to express your opinion at the ballot box.

Another 1942 Contest

Another lively scrap that is looming for the 1942 campaign is the challenge delivered by Michigan Young Republicans, in recent state convention, calling for united support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy and an end to isolationism.

The "Stay out of war" policies of many Michigan congressmen may be put to a popular test in 1942 when many of them will run for reelection.

Michigan's parade of events heralds varied and brilliant fireworks in 1942.

The state highway investigation is regarded as dead. It was never taken seriously. Also the opinion of Attorney General Rushton that all lawyers other than his assistants were not legally on the payroll.

The auto dealers' bill to cut auto license fees was ignored.
