Michigan State College Predict More Demand

MICHIGAN State College agricultural economists predict that fertilizer is still one of the most important factors farmers can make use of to increase crop yields. These specialists predict that fertilizer supplies will be tight again in 1953—particularly nitrogen. They advise farmers to order their plant food early to be sure of getting what they need for the planting operation next spring. The fertilizer can be safely stored on the farm during the winter months. The economists report that more fertilizer will be produced in 1953 than was the case in 1952. Estimates indicate that there will be 12 per cent more nitrogen, 13 per cent more phosphate and 19 per cent more potash. Fertilizer does not mean fertilizer is easy to get, they say. Actual use of plant food by farmers will offset the increases in supply and may be greater than...

Good Soil Management, More Plant Food Helps Boost U. S. Crop Yields 45 Per Cent

Yield boosting fertilizer gives extra bushels of corn per acre.

SCIENCE and industry have teamed up with the farmer to boost crop yields per acre 45 per cent in the past 20 years, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in a statement based on a recent report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's bureau of agricultural economics. "This increase has been greater than in any other period of history," said the statement. "The yield rise has included major field crops such as corn, wheat and cotton, as well as the important fruit crops." Contributing to this rise have been the work of plant breeders and agronomists, machinery manufacturers, fertilizer producers and insecticide makers, says the statement. "As a result," it says, "hybrid and greater profit per acre."

Well Balanced Diet of All Plant Nutrients Gives Top Corn Yields; Build Up Land

Corn plants, large and small, are shown in the field. The soil is well balanced with nutrients.

LOADING up the soil with a variety of plant nutrients, while the others is building the soil on your car and letting the engine run dry of oil.

Howard Lathrop, Federal University agronomist, says that it takes a balance of nitrogen and a good supply of phosphorus and potassium to make a good corn crop.

Overfeeding the soil with nitrogen corn growth in tests on the University of California Schenck farm in Davis county, California, Lathrop says. The plots of corn, each received 100 pounds of phosphorus and potassium. One plot had 3 pounds of nitrogen and had 168 pounds of the third crop.

Tissue tests of corn of the 2 pound plot show no nitrogen, but ample phosphorus and potassium. As the soil is well balanced with nutrients, the corn plants are healthy and the soil is well balanced with nutrients.

VOLUNTEERS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR PROTECTING THE HOME FRONT

This is the eighth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It may be obtained from the Department of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.

All persons experienced in work having to do with health or medicine, others who can be trained in special weapons defense (against atomic, biological, and chemical warfare), are needed for the civil defense Health Service. Their big job will be to care for the injured, and protect the health of a city after an attack. In addition, many more volunteers will be needed for various duties under the direction of professional people, such as doctors and nurses, in the local civil defense organizations.

The Health Service also must have thousands of persons trained in more than just first aid who can be organized for definite jobs at first aid stations, and women volunteers who have taken courses in home nursing and nurse aide. Men will be needed for bearers, ambulance personnel, hospital orderlies and attendants, stretcher handlers, etc.

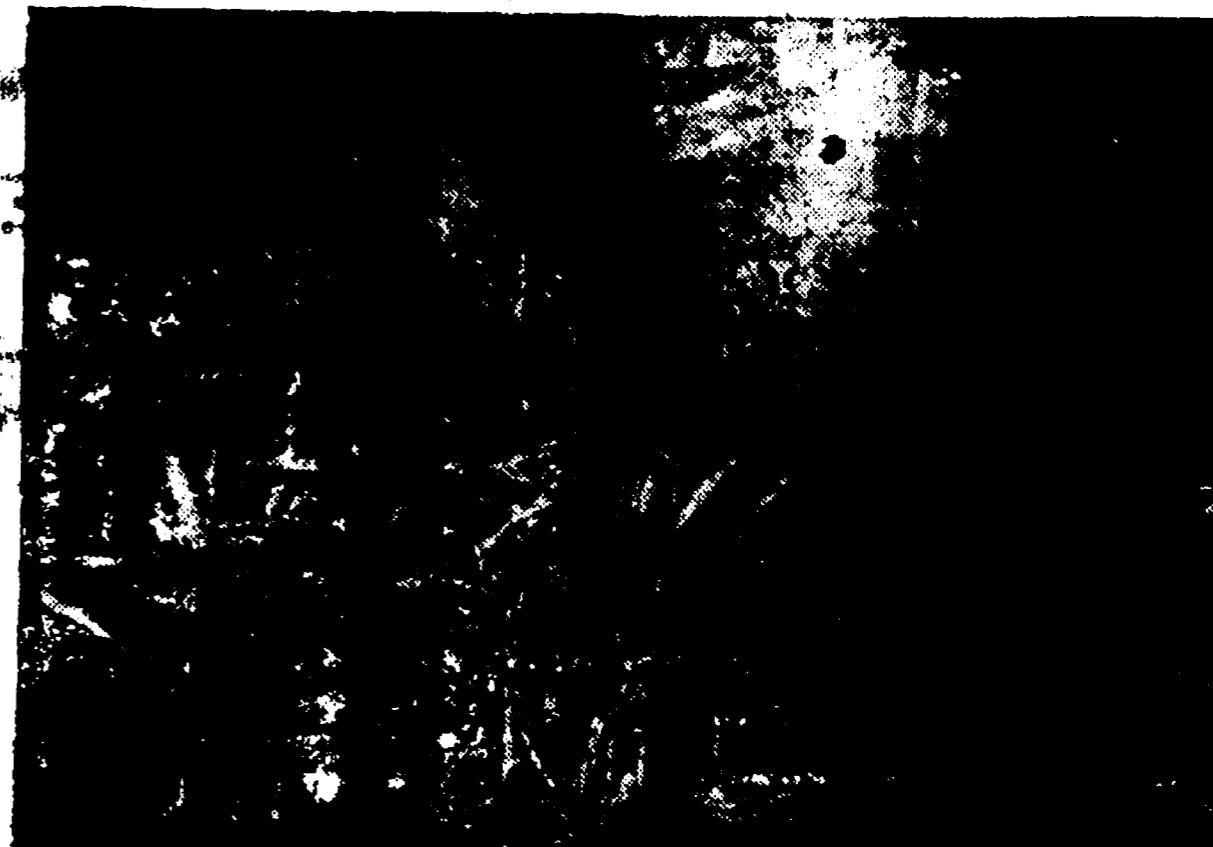

Defense against disease and germs, and against radiological contamination will need first aid stations, and sanitation workers. Biological monitoring teams will need teachers, or advanced students of physics and other related subjects, as team leaders, and high school graduates who have studied elementary physics, and radioisotopes, who can serve as assistants in laboratory work.

Unskilled Labor Used
Help is needed for such duties as washing, laboratory, glassware, and mopping floors. In fact, no matter what you do, Health Service can use you in the vitally important civil defense work of saving lives.

If an enemy attacks one of our cities, many persons will find themselves without food, clothing, money, and shelter. The Welfare Service provides, such things, and aids in locating missing persons, caring for infants, the aged, and the infirm. It also gathers and passes on news of people who are separated from their families, contacts relatives in other cities, refers families to places where they can get special help, and registers those persons who must have individual care.

Training Courses Available
Training courses, under competent instructors, are available in the various branches of this civil defense program. Women, by background and experience, are well qualified for blood service under the charge of the American Red Cross, and to be trained as assistants in laboratory work.

How to Grow 100 Bushels of Corn Per Acre

This farm soil has what it takes to grow bumper corn yields.

WHAT does it take to grow a 100-bushel per acre corn crop? Four main essentials are necessary, says the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee:

1. Good seed. Plant well adapted hybrids that are particularly suited to your growing conditions.
2. Be sure you have enough stalks per acre. That means from 14,000 to 18,000 on most loam soils.
3. Provide the soil with sufficient amounts of well-balanced plant food so it will be able to feed the crop all season long—from germination to maturity.
4. Keep the soil in shape. Take plenty of water and hold it for the crop's use. An inch or two of rain can make the difference between average and high yields when dry-spell come.

Agronomists recommend giving the corn a kick with a starter fertilizer at planting time. They advise adding nitrogen, phosphate and potash in the row and side dressing with nitrogen, fertilizer, where needed after the second or third cultivation. The sustaining fertility that will provide the heading of nutrients the corn plants need for building strong stems and well-developed ears, can come from fertilizer plowed under before planting time. A soil test will indicate what nutrients are most needed and the amount required to furnish a well-balanced supply.

Keeping the soil in shape to absorb and hold water depends on maintaining high reserves of organic matter. This you can do by following a rotation that puts in a well fertilized legume-grass crop a year or two before corn planting. Land plowed out of a good soil crop is mellow, fluffy, well drained and able to supply the moisture a corn crop needs for extra bushels per acre.

A-BOMB KILLS HUMAN PERSONS UP PROTECTORS HOME HALF MILL

This is the eighth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It may be obtained from the Department of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.

Down is announced if you hear a siren blaring. Learn that your community is being alerted for an emergency response. If it is organized, within minutes, first-aid teams, doctors, nurses, and other civil defense units will spring into action.

Hundreds of cities across the country are making preparations today to do their part in protecting the real aboriginals from atomic attack. These ingenious and coordinated civil defense personnel and equipment can do a great deal to protect you.

However, don't act as if the alarm signal you hear is just an imaginary air raid. Act as you have been trained to do. Do whatever you have been told to do. Civil defense prepares you for that split-second decision of knowing how to act—what to do.

Within one-half mile of the center of an A-bomb explosion, almost everyone without proper protection will be killed. Within the next half-mile fifty per cent of the population will not survive. From one to one-and-a-half miles away eighty-five per cent will live. Beyond two miles you will survive—but there will be work for you to do. Civil defense prepares you for that too.

With the proper protection you may live, but thousands will be wounded and in need of immediate care. Every street within the major damage area will be completely blocked with rubble, and hundreds of persons trapped or buried in the wreckage. Flies will start within a matter of minutes in many places at once.

Food supplies will be destroyed. We are the main things which will happen, that there are others. In a large part of the what are the most civil defense problems.

U.S. Needs Civil Defense

JOINING CIVIL DEFENSE CAN MEAN YOUR SURVIVAL

This is the eighth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It may be obtained from the Department of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.

By MILLARD CALDWELL

The most important reason for anyone to volunteer for Civil Defense is that his or her life may depend on it. From that point you can add more names to the list which may be dependent on you in some hour of crisis: your own family, your relatives, your neighbors, and other members of your community.

The protection of your own home, neighborhood property and your plants, buildings, the place where you live, your municipal facilities, your transportation system, your roads, canals, forests, harbors—everything which has to do with your life today, will be the reasons why you should volunteer for civil defense work.

Every good American will want to volunteer for civil defense. He knows it is his duty to do so, for there is no other way to recruit the millions of workers who will be needed to defeat an enemy on the home front. If we are attacked, we must remember that we can be attacked—the hard, terrible task of feeding our cities and industries that on their feet will fall mainly on civil defense volunteers. It is not a job for those who can't face their own death or that of their family. It is a job for real Americans with courage.

No one can do the civil defense job but the American people. The Armed Forces have their own job to do. There are not enough people in Federal, State, or local government agencies to do the job for you. It is one of those things you will have to do yourself. And you will have to be prepared for any emergency. There will be no time to take a civil defense training course, or read a booklet, when the bombs fall. All that must be done before if you want to better your chance for survival.

U.S. Needs Civil Defense

ORGANIZING THE HOME FRONT MEANS USING MANY SKILLS

This is the tenth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It may be obtained from the Department of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.

By MILLARD CALDWELL
Federal Civil Defense Administrator

After the explosion of an atomic bomb, the resulting fires could cause more loss of life and property than the blast itself. Therefore, getting ready to fight fires is a big part of the civil defense job.

Atomic bombing would cause great fires in the area of the burst, and start hundreds of small fires in surrounding areas. With the regular fire fighting companies fully occupied by the main fires, people would have to put out these smaller fires on the spot. If they live in target areas they must know how to fight fires at home or at work.

At least one member of your family should be trained in the use of basic fire fighting tools and methods. Because women are at home much of the time, they are urged to learn how to put out fires in case of emergency. Teaching of householders to fight fires will be carried out by instructors trained by their local fire departments. Auxiliary or reserve firemen will be recruited to back up the regular companies. These volunteers will be trained by local fire companies, using regular equipment.

Your Warden or your local civil defense headquarters will tell you where to volunteer for such training. Traffic A Big Problem
The biggest police problem in event of enemy attack, would be the control of traffic. Another big problem would be maintaining law and order. These are the most important of the duties which civil defense volunteers would help perform under the Police Service. Auxiliary police, which many communities now have to supplement regular police forces in handling parades and crowds on special occasions, will also be used in civil defense work. They will be a part of the local police department, and under the command of regular police officers their authority to act being prescribed by local law.

U.N. to Aid Victims of Korean Conflict

While the armed forces acting on behalf of the United Nations in Korea continue their efforts to reestablish peace, U.N. has also taken measures to relieve the suffering of millions of refugees left homeless as a result of the conflict. Lee (right), Korean interpreter of the Commission and a policeman of the Republic of Korea.

Yemen is an ancient kingdom in the southwest part of the Arabian Peninsula between Aden and the British Protectorate of Aden in Arabia. With an approximate area of 75,000 square miles and a population of 2,500,000 inhabitants, Yemen grows coffee and grain in the plateau of El Jebel, the most fertile part of Arabia. Its experts are coffee, grain, hides and charcoal. Its capital is Sana'a, an old walled city with eight gates. Yemen was admitted to the United Nations on 30 September 1947, and it was represented at the Second Session of the U.N. General Assembly by Prince Seif El Islam Abdullah. Its flag has a red background with five white stars and a white scimitar in the center.
