Current Comment

The annual cleanup of college athletics has started in the useless effort to make them as pure as the freshly fallen snow. In California, a few college players have been ruled ineligible and at Michigan it is now charged that Ron Kramer, Michigan athletic star got too much financial assistance. Now the Michigan alumni who make up the bulk of the football game attendance do not go there to see their alma mater trampled in the mud. They demand a winning team. If not they want the coaches scalp. The colleges must have winning teams to pay for their million dollar stadiums. Football is big business. Now a coach cannot field a winning team unless he has first class material. In the short training period it is impossible to make players of boys who never played. This is where the alumni assns. come in. They are supposed to tip off the college scouts on the star football players in their high schools and provide a fund to get them through college. They are supposed to work in order to get this fund but this is more or less mythical. I knew one boy who got an athletic scholarship. He was supposed to pick up paper and litter on the campus but there were so many other athletics doing it he had to work only about one day a month. J. C. Caroline, a star negro player in South Carolina was sent to Illinois. For years Michigan State has been getting the cream of the Ham wack high school players who usually rank high in high school football. They are usually negro or Polish. College amateur athletics have been a myth for years but we suppose periodic cleanups are necessary to prevent them from going too far over the boundary line.

The Republican vice presidential question is still front page news and more and more news writers seem to be inclining to the view that Stassen may be a hatchet man for the president. The president could have stopped Stassen's move if he had wanted to but he did not. At his news conference last week he again refused to endorse Nixon. He repeated that it was the duty of the convention to nominate the vice president and not his place to dictate to them. Chairman Hall who tried to steam roller Stassen now seems inclined to straddle and also says it is up to the convention to select the vice president. The old Taft wing of the party to whom Nixon was thrown as an olive branch 4 years ago are still 100 percent for him and threaten dire things if he is not renominated. All this discussion stems of course from the state of the president's health. If he was in good health there would be no free for all for the vice presidential nomination.

40 convicts in the state prison at Buford, Georgia, broke their legs with sledge hammers last week over what they call inhuman treatment and bad working conditions. The prison authorities deny this but the records of the past years do not bear them out. Most of the road work in the south is done by convicts who live in road camps and the working conditions and food there has been under criticism before.

Serg. McKeon at Paris, S. C. was cleared of most of the charges against him in the recent death march in which 6 marine recruits were drowned. He was found guilty of negligence and drinking while on duty. reduced in rank, given 9 months labor, $300 fine and a dishonorable discharge from the U. S. Marines. From the tone of the testimony the marine command seem to think the entire training system of marines and not Sergt. McKeon was on trial.

The World Was Made for You

By Ann Blyth, motion picture star

AT LAST, at some time or another, we thrilled to the beauty and majesty of the mighty world. These things, like our whole world, are a reflection of the beauty and majesty that is God.

But if the whole world reflects the beauty and glory of God, however imperfectly then nothing in the world is a greater reflector of God than man—for man is made in the image of God and everything in the world is made for man.

EVERYTHING in the world exists to help man get to God, or getting to God is man's destiny. But to get to God man must look for Him and he must listen for Him. True, man can find God in the beauty of the sky and the majesty of the sea, for God is reflected in these things and in all His creation. But man is more than a creature with eyes. He has ears that hear words and even more he has a mind that understands words and the things he sees.

MAN HAS A MIND that is made for truth. He must see the truth in the creation around him and reason to the fact that God is and that He is man's support in existence. But man's mind is capable of more truth than this.

The mind of man is capable of learning something about God—what He is like; what He thinks about man—and other profound truths. But to get this truth man must listen with his mind—he must listen to the words of God's revelation to man.

EVERYONE OF us hears and sees countless billions of spoken and written words during our lifetime. We hear complimentary words and flattering words; we hear unkind and cutting words; we hear mean and even unclean words. Naturally it is not in these words that we will find God's revelation to us of what He is like and what our destiny is.

But fortunately these soothing and comforting words of God's revelation do exist. At the behest of his gospel, St. John wrote, "In the beginning was the Word." This Word was the only-begotten Son of God, having the nature of God from all eternity.

One day about 2,000 years ago that WORD OF GOD, the Son of God, became a man. The WORD OF GOD came to bring to all men God's words of salvation.

TODAY WE CAN hear those saving words; we can follow them and find happiness. But we must open our minds and hearts to these words, the words that contain the truth brought to the world by Jesus Christ, true God and true man.

God Gave Us A Yardstick

By Rev. Vincent F. Holden,

author of CONFLICTING MORAL STANDARDS and other works

THE BUREAU OF STANDARDS in Washington, D. C., is important in American life. When you buy a yard of wire, the store clerk reels off the wire to the length of a yard measure. How was the length of that yardstick decided? It was ultimately based on a carefully guarded bar of platinum-iridium—the standard yard—kept in the Bureau of Standards.

How confusing it would be if there were no standard measure. Suppose the electrician measured his wire using 40 inches as a yard, and the carpenter sawing his lumber estimated 30 inches as his yard? If the house they were building were ever finished, it would be weird to look at and dangerous to live in.

BUT IT ISN'T only in weights and measures that we must have universal standards. We must have them in the field of human conduct or morals. If we allowed every human being to decide for himself what is right and wrong we would have as much chaos in daily life as we would have in building a house without a uniform yard.

But who can set the standard for the morality of human conduct? The only one who can give us a clear-cut and unchangeable code of morals is Almighty God. After all, He made man and gave him his human nature. He knows what is good and bad for that nature.

ISN'T IT ALWAYS true that when a person makes something, he makes it for a reason? Atomic scientists who have perfected the A-bomb know exactly how to explode it. What a tragedy it would be for any amateur to toy with an atom bomb to "see what would happen."

Yet how much more of a tragedy it is for man to toy with the complicated human nature that God has made. God created man in a particular way to achieve a particular destiny—union with God in heaven.

GOD KNOWS HOW man should use his nature to get to heaven. He has written the instructions on the fleshy tablets of our hearts, and this is the law of nature, or natural law. He has made the natural law more explicit in the Ten Commandments. And in the teachings of the God-man, Jesus Christ, He has given us His final word on attaining our destiny.

The natural law, the Ten Commandments, and the teachings of Christ are the source of the unchangeable standard of human conduct. We must guard this standard just as we guard the bar of platinum-iridium in the Bureau of Standards in Washington. It is only by measuring every action against our Creator that we can achieve this unchangeable standard of the purpose of our existence.
