125th Birthday of Village Celebrated Saturday Night

The dance sponsored by the Kiwanis Club in honor of the 125th birthday of Pinckney attracted a fair attendance and everyone there reported a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Amburg won the prize for the best "old time" costume; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Young were the winners of the dance contest while Mr. and Mrs. Oli Mattison were judged the best in Square dancing. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Frank Carstens and Mrs. C. Wilson.

Unlikely the Centennial year in 1935 which was marked by four days of pageantry andrevellers, the 125th milestone was passed with calm and serenity. The characteristic Pinckney has a acquired since the early boom days, Pinckney was settled shortly after the War of 1812 in the days of wild cat banking and wild land speculations. Although records show that many of the hardy pioneers were here much earlier than the 1835 "birth date", Professor William Kirkland of New York, a school teacher, speculator, legislator and named the town so in that year. It is a matter of record that the first official village election was held in 1836.

Any number of issues could make the 1961-62 session of the Michigan Legislature the liveliest in years. Perhaps three stand out above the others:

From where in the state to elect the extra Congressmen Michigan became entitled to after the 1960 census.

What to do about the overall tax muddle?

Provisions to bring about a constitutional convention if one is approved by voters at the Spring election.

Add to these the routine and recurrent problems such as appropriations and pork barrel legislation and you have the makings of a session that would outdo the year-long "cash crisis" session of 1959 for fireworks.

Both Republicans and Democrats, of course, want the new Congressmen to be of their political faith. Because of Michigan's rural-urban split, the area which is given the right to elect the new Congressman will pretty much determine what party he represents. Either party can make a strong claim at the Aamal Meetiag. Eaeaei herewith an aajr anraal 4"ea.

The INSIDER'S NEWS-LETTER (Weekly Magazine, Inc., Tampa, TIIEX). The Latin-American situation is more alarming in Washington admits. Diplomatic insiders report that the Soviets consider the Castro government so thoroughly controlled that the Cubans can now be abandoned as far as economic aid is concerned, and a new stage of the Cold War can be started.

The first speech came from the affirmative side. In it, Jerry DeWolfe gave his opinion on how integration could be accomplished through the step plan. That is, integrating the first grade every year over a period of twelve years. He feels that this would cause complete integration of both elements and high schools. He also speaks about how the children are educated in the South and stated that Negro teachers are receiving a salary of $333 less a month, than that of the white teachers. Speaking for the affirmative was Bob Williams, who stressed points about poor health, education, and housing. Because the Negroes do not have proper facilities, they are unable compete with the better equipped whites. Karen Singer said that one reason that the white schools should not be integrated is because eventually the races would intermarry, and produce a mixed race of children.

The rebuttal was conducted in an orderly manner. After the rebuttal the students listening to the debate were allowed to ask questions.

After the debate and questionning was accomplished, Bob Williams directed questions on the subject of integration to Mr. Reader. This was done in perfect timing, because after Mr. Reader had answered the last question the bell rang for the students to be dismissed.

A "thank you" is due to Mr. Gibson, who assisted in planning the debate.

Mr. Swarbrick's American History class held a debate on the school integration. The participants for the affirmative were Pat Smith, and Judy DeWolfe. Speaking for those opposed to the plan were Karen Singer and Bob Williams. Carol Par- tanski was the general chairman.

The student body wishes to thank the Pinckney Kiwanis Club for their generous gift of money. The money will go toward the Band Fundamental Unit.
