Car Goes on New Years Binge

Tom Wylic, age 25, of Pinckney received no ticket after crashing through the home of Mr. Edward Wakefield, West Main, Pinckney, about 3 a.m. January 1. Tom was driving a 1961 Ford coach.

Tom reported he and his wife had been attending a party at the local bar, when he decided to go out and "warm up the car." While waiting for Mrs. Wylie the accelerator became stuck to the floor board, causing the car 👁 gine to race wide open. Leaning down, Tom attempted to adjust the pedal. The car then took off across M-36, across the Wakefield lawn and went through the Wakefield living room. Before the car hit the house, it struck a small foreign car sitting on the Wakefield's lawn.

Tom was too dazed by the crash to realize exactly what had hap pened, and could not bring himself to turn off the car ignition. The wheels spinning, burned through the carpet, a linoleum covering, and caused the wood floor and a nearby overstuffed chair to catch fire. Aside from minor injuries. Tom was not hurt. It was thought, however, had anyone been in the rider's seat, the large cement portion of the building that was hurled through the windshield would have been fatal.

Mr. Wakefield summoned the Pinckney firemen, thinking the gas furnace, recently installed in his home, had blown up. The fire whistle never did blow because while Mr. Wakefield was talking he realized, and told the parties on the fire phones, "there is a car in my living room."

Mr. Wakefield said his two daughters had left that room just minutes prior to the crash.

Wylie is covered with insurance that will sufficiently cover the cost of damage to the Wakefield home. Insurance adjustors have made no estimate of the damages at this time.

Over 100 fellow employees at tended a farewell dinner in the thing room at McPherson Commanity Health Center for Mrs Marjorie Stowell, R.N., Director Nursing, last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Stowell resigned effecttre Dec. 31st in order to take extended vacation and rest.

A poliuck dinner was served on tables decorated to represent the highway running from Howell southwest to Arizona. Mrs. Stowell was presented with two pieces of matched airplane luggage and & corsage.

Mrs. Stowell joined the staff of the Health Center as Director of Nursing in August, 1959. She came from Owosso, where she had been Associate Director of Nursing at Memorial Hospital.

At McPherson, Mrs. Stowell was active all through the implementation of Progressive Patient Care from the establishment of the first Intensive Care Unit to the present six unit program in the new building opened only a year ago.

"It has been exciting to be a part of this wonderful project, but now my doctor tells me I should take a rest," said Mrs. Stowell. Mrs. Stowell will leave for Arizoga with friends early in January. She expects to spend the winter there and return to Howell | next spring.

hand" water has become so wide spread that action by Washington is being demanded from many quarters.

Extensive use of "hard" de tergents has developed into a problem which plagues many people. Most of the detergents sold are made of a substance called aikibenzene-sulfonate. Such substances just cannot be broken down by bacterial action. They accumulate in the water supplies. The result is that you find a "head" on your glass of drinking water or cup of coffee, beer. Soaps and earlier detergents used fats as a base. Such detergents were readily broken down > by bacterial action and left no permanent after-effects. But the new detergents pushed the fats off the market, and brought toaming water to the tap. The Agricultural Research Service has developed some excellent detergents with fats as a base. These are readily decomposed in septic tanks and sewage disposal systems.

search shows that "hard detergents actually tend to kill off the bacteria which break down soaps and fatty detergents, and which may even interfere with the normal function of septic tanks. Public reaction against the persistent use of hard detergents has bee., rising, Some people have suggested that a

Edwin O. George, president of the Greater Michigan Foundation Hidden Tax predicted today that citizen efforts for the promotion and progreas of Michigan will reach a new high in 1965. That will be true, he said, because of the Rapid Growth uf family and neighborhood participation in state promotion programs.

"Michigan is recognized as having the most extensive cooperation of community organizations and state-wide groups in programs for the development and betterment of their state to be found anywhere in the nation." Mr. George said. "For this a great many local groups and state associations have earned the gratitude of all of us. "The year 1965 will bring an important expansion of this cooperation among Michigan's eight similar to that on a glass of i million citizens. In fact, it will be a new dimension in state promotional activity, one in seen leading the way. participation of families and neighborhood groups in state

Hunters Help Fight Pasture a Profit on Idle Lands Forest Fires

There are two schools of thought on forest fire prevention during hunting seasons, reports the National Wildlife Federation. Some states close woodlands to recreational use during periods of high fire hazard, such as occurred over much of the eastern United States during the fails of 1963 and 1964. Others, such as Missouri, do not interrupt regularly scheduled huntmg seasons but ask sportsmen to help in spotting and fighting forest fires. The "Show-me" state allowed some 120,000 deer hunters to enter woodlands last fall, despite a high fire danger. During he first two days of the 1964

deer season, hunters were blamed for starting 21 out of the 74 fires reported but they were credited with fighting and helping extin-| tion." guish 26 fires. Missouri officals

Livingston county's great expanses of unproductive pasture land could be turned into profit making forage land with a few simple renovation practices according to Milo B. Tesar, MSU next year by one-fourth to onecrop scientist. He estimates that third of a ton. Don't seed later in the entire state there are more than August 30 in southern Michthan 2.000.000 acres of unproduct- | ignu.

ive permanent pastureland. He estimates the cost of reacvation at about $35 an acre but says the increased production during the first grazing year would more than pay this cost. "The renovated land should increase production from one ton or less of low quality forage to three to four tons of good quality alfalfa and bromegrass. The added grass-legume production can be easily turned into profit by using it in a feeder calf or beef opera-

The MSU scientist notes that farmers wishing to renovate should select their more productive land, rather than that which is uncleared or stony. It will yield more profit, he comments.

Tesar offers the following recommendations for an economic renovating job for unproductive pasture heavily infested with quackgrass:

Tyst the soil this fall and add the pH to 6.5 or above. Fertilize with 50 pounds of nitrogen in early spring to give a heavy growth which can be pastured off by June 1. By the same time, the grass will have produced about two-thirds of its normal seasonal production. Plow, if possible, the deeper the better. Disk or field cultivate every week until August 1 to suppress or kill the quackgrass and other grasses.

Seed early in August with 8 nouncis of Vernel allelie since it is long-lived and wilt resistant. Each week's delay in seeding after August 1 reduces the vield the Tesar warns farmers not to use oats in their summer seeding since outs take too much soil moisture and shade the seedlings. This often results in poor stands and low yields. He suggests adding 4 pounds of bromegrass, preferably the southern type, mixed with the fertilizer as both are put into the drill.

Band seed by placing the alfalfa in a band above the fertilizer and brome drilled one-half to one incn deep. Use about 400 pounds of 6-20-20 fertilizer per acre. Tow a cultipacker behind the drift, or preferably, use press wheels behind the drill.

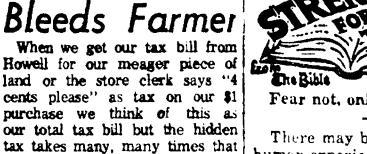

Don't graze during the fall but wait until the following spring when the alfalfa is at least 8 inches tall.

Graze rotationally (one field. then a second and a third and back to the first) to keep the stand productive as long as possible. Topdress annually with about 300 pounds of 0-10-30 per acre lime now or next spring to bring I in the fall when resting the field between September 1 to October 15. Graze if desired after Uctober 15.

"Such a pasture should produce a three to four tons annual production of high quality forage," comments Tesar. "Farmers should try it on 10 acres this next spring and renovate other unproductive pastures in the succeeding years."

> FOR THE FISHERMAN, THE HUNTER, THE RECreation-seeker-----anyone with a stake in Michigan's natural resources----1964 opened new horizons to more sport, more fun-filled hours in the out-of-doots. ONE OF THE YEAR'S BIGGEST BREAKTHROUGHS took shape when the Conservation Department started putting its "house" in better working order by reorganizing itself from top to bottom. Out of a series of sweeping changes emerged a streamlined structure, gearing Department programs and operations to modern-day needs and wants of outdoor users. Built into it were a flexibility and go-power which will grind out an increasing number and variety of conservation improvements in future years.

FOR FISHERMEN, THE DEPARTMENT'S LOOKahead styling showed its form during 1964 in a hold new management program designed to raise angling productivity in the state's waters by 15-30 percent. Briefly put, the fisheries blueprint calls for giving trout fishermen a better return from their license dollars by shifting planting emphasis to releases of smaller fish in waters where chances are best for greatest trout growth and survival. High on the new program's priority list are: Acquisition of access sites, development of state fishing lakes, expansion of sportfishing opportunities in the Great Lakes, and introduction of species new to Michigan.

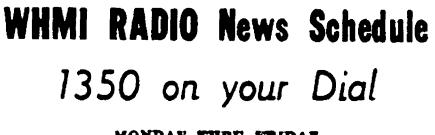

BIG GAME MANAGEMENT TOOK AN IMPORTANT step forward when Michigan's first regular elk season was held in early December. Although only 300 residents were licensed to hunt, the season opened the way for future sport as a means of controlling and preserving this fast-growing elk herd for all to see and enjoy. Paralleling this was the first major antlerless deer season in southern Michigan. It, too, provided added hunting as a starter toward better management of the region's whitetail herd. THE YEAR 1964 UNLOCKED A GIANT TREASURE chest of lang-range promises for Michigan's millions of campers, picnickers, and other recreationists through the signing into law of the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund Act. Starting next year, the new act will channel an estimated $2.8 million into Michigan on a matching fund basis to help underwrite purchase and development of state and local outdoor recreation facilities. Eventually, this state is expected to receive $5 million annually under the Land and Water Program which is set to run for the next 25 years.

THESE ARE BUT SOME OF THE MORE IMPORTANT cornerstones laid down in 1964 to build a stronger platform for conservation management. They are forerunners to even bigger and better benefits for sports-men and recreationists in 1965 and the years that

Extension Service Outlines Care of

Holiday Plants

The tradtional Christmas flower, the poinsettia, may be carried through another year and flowered again if the plant reveives the appropriate home care. After the plant has flowed, it requires a rest period. This is followed by a resumption of growth during which the plant must have adequate moisture, nutrients and sunlight. Extending the normal day with artificial light in autumn prevents flowering, so special precautions must be taken to get good bloom under home conditions.

For Livingston County residents interested in the home care of poinsettias, a mimeograph has been prepared that covers the Holiday care, pruning, fertilizing, summer and fallcare of this interesting plant.
